

ST.

0 2007 0410588 7

California State Library

Y.

Received in 1891

Accessions No. 85041. Classfc 051.

T3

V. 2

THEMIS

85041

INV. 1898

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1890.

No. 1.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

With this number THEMIS enters upon its second volume and the second year of its existence. With us this day is an anniversary, and one on which we take occasion to gratefully acknowledge the favors received from our patrons. When this journal was started a year ago, we remarked that while Sacramento had proved a graveyard for newspapers, THEMIS was not a venture, and would not be a contribution to the long list of journalistic failures. The fact was known to its projectors that a literary and political journal had never before been started by men who had lived for any considerable time in this section of the State, who had been intimately acquainted with the people and who had the financial and editorial backing requisite to carry such an undertaking to permanent success. When we announced that THEMIS would not be a failure we had a full appreciation of our ability to handle it, and having been reared in the community, and conducted business successfully in our several lines, felt we knew precisely the ground on which we proposed to tread. We had an advantage possessed by few who have embarked in journalism. Not the advantage that maintains some of the prominent dailies of San Francisco, of being able to draw from favored capitalists or relatives whatever is needed to foot shortages, but the advantage of having in our office the editorial and business ability to so conduct the paper that it could make its way along without charitable assistance. In very plain language, THEMIS is neither a poor relation nor a slave; it is not the creature either of the poverty that compels abjectness or of the dependence that commands subservency. Its editors are in active professional life, and in no manner dependent on the paper for support. One a lawyer, the other a short-hand reporter—lines of business that secure to them absolute independence, they are therefore in a position to write the opinions of the paper without fear of punishment or loss of business, if offense be given to the political or business powers that exercise so powerful an influence in controlling the expressions of a very considerable portion of the press of the country in this day. The publishers are alike independent. Popular favor is what we have sought to gain; that we have been successful in that regard is exemplified by the patronage we have and the standing of the paper with the intelligent and thinking people of the State. It has not occurred with our paper that to make it sought after by the undesirable class and to profit by their nickles, we have been compelled to pollute our columns with depravity and filth. In the fifty-two numbers that have been issued not a line has been printed whereby a pang has been inflicted; we have earned the respect of our fellow citizens by respecting them.

The criticisms we have made of the conduct of public men and the action of official bodies have been just. We have expressed our opinions on the important questions that have arisen in our own country and abroad, and it is a matter of no small pride that our expressions have received the respectful consideration of the leading journals of the country, and the endorsement of the thinking public. In several important matters that have arisen in the State, and particularly in Sacramento city, the suggestions originated by THEMIS have been adopted with beneficial results. This, however, is a matter of no surprise when it is considered that no article is published in our columns until after critical examination by each gentleman connected with the editing and publishing of the paper. Each writer realizes that that which he writes must successfully pass the required test to be published or find lodgment in the waste basket. Among our contributors are gentlemen distinguished at the bar, in politics and in literature, and we have arranged to add to our list of writers others whose work will command attention.

In the early part of last year we published a series of papers by B. Collins, an eminent scholar and lawyer, on the "Shakespeare-Bacon controversy." These articles attracted wide notice, both in this country and in England, as was evidenced by the demand made for back numbers. They were subsequently republished in book form in the East. Our papers on "Unwritten History" will refer to a portion of the history of this State heretofore very imperfectly recorded. The data from which these articles were written was derived in the main from original sources, and in a measure from comparisons of statements we obtained from persons who were in the country before the establishment of American rule. In November we presented engravings of Sutter's Fort and its ground plan, as it existed in 1848, together with a minute description of its various details. These views and the description were republished in the principal papers of the State, and it is conceded they are entirely accurate. The attention they drew to the subject had much to do with the subsequent purchase of the Fort site, and will doubtless be considered when the restoration will be made. Aside from this series of articles our file contains very many others concerning the early history of California that are of permanent value. Some of our shorter papers have already been republished in historical books.

The permanent character and originality of the matter we publish has induced the preservation of files of THEMIS in public libraries and by very many individuals, and the demands for back numbers long since exhausted many of our early editions. The outlook being so flattering we were justified in arranging for improvement. We have demonstrated there is ample room for a well conducted journal of this character, and having taking advantage of the opportunity by the establishment of THEMIS, we will hold the field by presenting a journal that will not fail to deserve increased patronage.

George Washington, the first President of the United States, was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, one hundred and fifty-eight years ago to-day. His life history is too familiar to need recapitulation. Reverence for him by the American people increases with the passage of time. At the close of the Revolutionary War, General Washington, on December 23, 1783, resigned his commission as commander-in-chief of the American army, and retired to private life as a farmer and planter at Mount Vernon. He was elected a delegate to the convention that met at Philadelphia in May, 1778, to frame a constitution for the United States, and was unanimously chosen president of that body. The Constitution was adopted by the convention September 17th of that year, and was declared ratified, by resolution of the Continental Congress, September 13, 1788. Delaware was the first State to approve it, December 7, 1787; and Vermont the last, January 10, 1791, two years and a half after it was in operation. Under the new Constitution, Washington was chosen the first President. On September 28, 1787, the Congress of the confederation directed that the Constitution, with certain resolutions adopted by the convention, be transmitted to the Legislatures of the several States to be submitted to conventions of the people thereof; and it was resolved that, as soon as the conventions of nine States ratified the Constitution, Congress should fix a day on which electors should be appointed by such States, and also a day on which the electors should assemble and vote for President and Vice-President of the nation, and that at the time fixed for the canvassing of the electoral votes, a special President of the Senate should be chosen. On April 6, 1789, the Senate met to count the votes, and organized by electing John Langdon special presiding officer. The Speaker and members of the House of Representatives were invited to meet with the Senate, and in the presence of the joint bodies, Langdon opened and counted the votes. The certificate of election of the first President of the United States was as follows:

Be it known, that the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, being convened in the city and State of New York, the 6th day of April, in the year of our Lord 1789, the undersigned, appointed President of the Senate for the sole purpose of receiving, opening, and counting the votes of the electors, did, in the presence of said Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates and count all the votes of the electors for a President and for a Vice-President, by which it appears that George Washington, Esq., was unanimously elected, agreeably to the Constitution, to the office of President of the United States of America.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal.

JOHN LANGDON.

On the morning of April 14th an old gentleman, Charles Thompson, who had been for years Secretary of the Continental Congress, rode into the lawn of Mount Vernon, and entering the mansion was received by Mrs. Washington, who cordially inquired how his people were and where he had come from. "From New York, madam," answered the old man. "I come to Mount Vernon upon a good errand—for the country, at least. The General has been elected President of the United States under the new Constitution, and I am the bearer of the happy tidings from John Langdon, President of the Senate." Washington was at the time out visiting, and it was not until 1 o'clock that he rode into the lawn. He greeted Thompson with grave cordiality, and broke the seal of the official letter. He then wrote and dispatched the following note to Langdon:

MOUNT VERNON, April 14, 1789.

SIR: I had the honor to receive your official communication by the hand of Mr. Secretary Thompson, about 1 o'clock this day. Having concluded to obey the important and flattering call of my country, and having been impressed with the idea of the expediency of my being with Congress at as early a period as possible, I propose to commence my journey on Thursday morning, which will be the day after tomorrow.

The rest of the day Washington passed in conference with his wife, and in preparing his baggage. Late in the evening he mounted his horse, and rode with speed into the woods of Virginia. His destination was nearly forty miles away; his purpose to see his mother, then 80 years of age, and to receive her blessing. In the morning he met her. As has been written by a distinguished author: "History is ceremonious as to what passed between them; but the parting was solemn and touching, like the event. 'You will see me no more,' she said; 'my great age and disease warns me that I shall not be long in this world. But go, George, and may the blessing of Heaven and your mother be with you always." Riding home, Washington found his baggage at the door, and on the 16th, accompanied by Thompson, set out for New York. Washington's mother was then afflicted with a cancer, and died two years afterward. His journey to New York was marked with grand popular demonstrations. At Brunswick he was joined by the Governor of New Jersey, and shortly after by the committee of Congress and the military, who escorted him to the point from which he was to embark for New York. The embarkation took place in a magnificently decorated barge, and other barges accompanied, which were filled with eminent dignitaries. On Thursday, April 30th, the ceremony of inauguration took place, on the balcony of Federal Hall.

Probably the most absorbing social question of the day is that of divorce. So much has been written and said upon the subject in the pulpit, on the forum, and in the secular and religious press, nearly all of which has been condemnatory of the laws granting divorce, that the masses are well informed and capable of forming intelligent opinions as to whether divorce laws should or should not be more stringent. Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf, whose views we have heretofore had occasion to quote with approval, in his lecture entitled "What Love has Joined, No Court shall Sunder," takes a very temperate view of the situation, and by his facts and figures shows that lax divorce laws are not the unmitigated evil they have been represented to be. Between the years 1867 and 1886, inclusive, 328,716 divorces were granted in the United States; surely a very large number, and which seems to create repulsion from its immensity. But it should be considered that 216,739, or 65 per cent. of the whole were granted to wives, and of the whole number 126,557, or 38 per cent. were for desertion. It will be conceded that woman is treated with greater respect in the United States than in any other country. The tendency of our laws is to put her on an equality with man in every respect. May it not be that our easy divorce laws have much to do in compelling man to recognize fully the legal and moral rights of woman? The most rabid adherents of rigorous divorce laws concede and claim that divorce should only be granted for the cause of adultery. If for adultery, why not for extreme cruelty, why not for desertion? When love has passed away should a woman be compelled to endure in silence and without recourse, the insults and jibes, the curses and blows of him who has sworn to love and cherish her? Or should a woman be compelled to bear the name of one who has deserted and abandoned his wife and little ones with cold, hunger and want at the door? It is not conducive either to good morals or happy marriages that such should be the condition of any man or woman. It is neither reasonable nor just that a blind belief in the divine institution of marriage should compel mis-mated couples to dwell together in a state of mental misery, arising from any cause. It is the worst form of concubinage. As the learned Rabbi well says: "Laws, and be they yet so severe, or yet so lenient, can do little towards making marriage happy or miserable. * * * Rigorous divorce laws will not, I fear, perceptibly diminish the large number of our divorces. Unless we go to the very root of the evil, trace the origin of domestic alienations, and apply the preventive measures before the outbreak of the evil, we may pile up law upon law, and add severity upon severity, it will avail us little. It is a poor way to correct the heart by a vote at the polls, or by adding a few extra clauses to the penal code. Where the heart is good you might abolish all laws and yet feel safe. Where the heart is bad you might pile up around it whole law libraries, and surround it with an army of police officers, and yet be in danger." In our opinion, the true course would be to build up a strong moral sentiment, that the marriage relation should not be hastily assumed. Time should be given for each party to gain a knowledge of the other's character, and the apparent necessity for rigorous divorce laws will disappear.

Happiness is a perfume that one cannot shed over another without a few drops falling on one's self.

Whatever temper of mind we choose will surely become chronic in time, and will be known to those among whom we live as our temper, our own particular temper, as distinguished from the tempers of other people.

ASTRONOMY AND THEOLOGY.

Has the Development of the Heliocentric Theory of the World Been Embarrassed by the Votaries of Theology?

By HON. JOHN W. ARMSTRONG, Superior Judge, Sacramento County.

To answer this question requires a retrospective view of the discussions upon the subject, including those of a kindred nature, which have led to the establishment of this theory as an astronomical axiom. At what period of time the controversy arose among the contending philosophers, as to whether the geocentric or heliocentric theory was true, is lost in the mist of receding ages. We gather from the fragments of ancient history, which have escaped the ravages of time, that the Chinese furnish the most ancient observations and theories of the movements of the heavenly bodies. We learn that during the reign of the Emperor Yao, about two thousand years before our era, astronomy was cultivated in China as the basis of their religious ceremonies. The movements of the celestial bodies were important for them to know. All their priests were educated mathematicians and astronomers; and a mathematical and astronomical tribunal was established, consisting of a definite number of the chief priests who had power to determine definitely the astronomical theories of the government. They, at that period, measured the length of the shadows of the gnomon, at the time of the solstices and the passage of the stars over the meridian; and they measured time by means of a clepsydra; and the position of the moon, with respect to the stars at the eclipses, was determined by them which would give the sidereal position of the sun at the solstices. They constructed instruments for measuring the angular distances of the stars; and from their calculations and observations they inferred that the earth moved annually around the sun, and they ascertained that the duration of the solar year exceeded, by very nearly a quarter of a day, three hundred and sixty-five days; and they fixed its commencement at the winter solstice which was established and celebrated annually throughout all China, as their great religious feast day. They believed that God resided in the sun and this to be the most propitious time to appease his wrath by worship. But their civil year was a lunar year, consisting of twelve lunar months or three hundred and fifty-four days; nor have they, to this day, made any change in their solar or religious year, nor in their civil or lunar year. But just what religious or theological doctrines they deduced from their knowledge or theories of astronomy, are involved in a conflict of evidence; the better opinion would seem to be that they deduced the doctrine of metempsychosis or transmigration of the souls of human beings, under circumstances of wickedness, into the bodies of animals of earth as a punishment or under circumstances of righteousness, as a reward, the soul should be translated into the bodies of superior beings in the realms of the stars. The priests of Egypt taught a similar philosophy, and there is but little doubt that they borrowed their philosophy from the Chinese; and like them, associated astronomy and theology together. While the Egyptian priests believed and taught that the earth moved diurnally on its axis and annually around the sun, they taught as their theology or religious doctrine, deduced from the observations of the heavens, the transmigration of souls. But Thales, the Greek philosopher, who established the Ionian school about 640 years before the Christian era, received much of his philosophical knowledge from the Egyptian priests in Egypt, where he went to complete his education; and though he adopted their theories of the constitution of the physical universe, he did not adopt their theology; but he deduced from the same astronomical theories, the probabilities of an intelligent creator of the universe and the immortality of the soul. However, his disciple, Pythagoras, upon his advice, went into Egypt to improve his knowledge of the philosophy of the times; and after arrival there, the better to obtain the knowledge he sought, he was initiated into the mysteries of the priesthood. With this advantage he obtained a full knowledge of their astronomical theories, as well as the theology deduced therefrom. But, he possessing a mind of great energy, was not fully satisfied with what he had learned, and in the hope to acquire more certain knowledge, he continued his travels into India as far as the shores of the Ganges where he visited the Brahmins, those ancient sages of India, to learn of them. There he found the same physical and moral philosophy taught, which he had learned of the Egyptian priests. They taught that the earth revolved on its axis daily, and around the sun annually; and the doctrine of metempsychosis or transmigration of the soul was deduced from their theories of the constitution of the universe. Pythagoras adopted the theories and philosophy of the Brahmins and the Egyptian priests, both as to their theology and the laws governing the world or universe.

But, instead of returning to Greece, he went into Italy, where, at Crotona, he established a school and had many disciples.

The Marquis de Laplace, in speaking of this school said: "All the astronomical truths of the Ionian school were taught on a more extended scale in the school of Pythagoras; but what principally distinguished it was the knowledge of the two motions of the earth on its axis and about the sun. But Pythagoras carefully concealed this from the vulgar, in imitation of the Egyptian priests, from whom, most probably, he derived his knowledge; but his system was more fully explained, and openly avowed by his disciple Philolaus. According to the Pythagoreans, not only the planets, but the comets themselves, are in motion around the sun. These are not fleeting meteors formed in the atmosphere; but the eternal works of nature."

This statement is fully sustained by other historians. The principal theological maxim taught by this school of philosophers was the doctrine of metempsychosis or transmigration of the soul. This doctrine they associated with their astronomical theories as to the constitution of the universe, and made the one dependent for the proof of its truth upon the other. But Anaximander, who was a disciple of Thales at the same time with Pythagoras, did not arrive at the same conclusion. His theory as to the constitution of the world or universe was the same, he belonging to the Ionian school; but what his theological doctrines were, is quite uncertain. Much light may be shed upon the general subject under consideration by a passage from Rollin, which I venture to quote at the hazard of being regarded as tedious. It is this:

Thales having at length brought the science of the stars from Phœnicia into Greece, taught the Greeks to know the constellations of the little bear, and to make use of it as their guide in navigation. He also taught them the theory of the motion of the sun and moon, by which he accounted for the length and shortness of the days, determined the number of the days of the solar year; and not only explained the cause of the eclipses, but showed the art of foretelling them, which he even reduced to practice, foretelling an eclipse which happened soon after. The merit of a knowledge so uncommon in those days made him pass for an oracle of his time, and occasioned his being given the first place among the seven sages of Greece. Anaximander was his disciple, to whom Pliny, and Diogenes Laertius ascribe the invention of the sphere, that is to say, the representation of the terrestrial globe; or, according to Strabo, geographical maps. Anaximander is said, also, to have erected a gnomon at Sparta, by means of which he observed the equinoxes and solstices; and to determine the obliquity of the ecliptic more exactly than had ever been done before, which was necessary for dividing the terrestrial globe into five zones, and for distinguishing the climates that were afterwards used by geographers for showing the situation of all the places of the earth. Upon the instructions which the Greeks had received from Thales and Anaximander, they ventured into the main sea, and sailing to various countries planted many colonies in them. Astronomy was soon repaid for the advantage she had procured navigation; for commerce having opened the rest of the world to the learned of Greece, they acquired great light from their conferences with the priests of Egypt, who made the sciences of the stars their peculiar profession. They learned also many things from the philosophers of the sect of Pythagoras in Italy, who had made so great a progress in this science that they ventured to reject the received opinions of all the world concerning the order of nature, and ascribed perpetual rest to the sun and motion to the earth.

Though this would seem to be sufficient authority to establish the condition of the knowledge of the learned of Greece and Italy as to the heliocentric theory of the world, yet, I will quote a further passage from the Marquis de Laplace, which is: "that Nicetas, according to Cicero, made the earth revolve on its axis, and by this means freed the celestial sphere from that inconceivable velocity which must be attributed to it to accomplish its diurnal revolutions."

The reasoning of the astronomers, who maintained the theory that the earth revolved on its axis and round the sun, would seem to have been conclusive; but the peripatetic school of philosophy, as well as the Alexandrian school, disputed it with such an avalanche of words as to obscure it in the confusion of abstractions. And in that obscurity it remained till about the beginning of the Christian era, when it was revived by Aristarchus; but it was visible to the light of reason for only a short time, because about the year 130 of our era, Ptolemy, the astronomer, maintained the geocentric theory with such force as to bear down all opposition. This theory was received by the learned of Europe as true, though it was disputed from time to time by the Arabian astronomers for more than ten centuries. Among the ancient Grecian philosophers, the geocentric theory was known as the peripatetic or Aristotelian theory of the constitution of the world. But the doctrines of Aristotle were condemned by the Ecclesiastical Council of Gens, held at Paris in 1209; and all his books were ordered to be burned, and the reading, writing, keeping, or using them in the University of Paris was prohibited. At various times during the preceding centuries, astronomers arose who advocated the heliocentric theory of the world; but their advocacy was so weak that they were not able to resurrect from the tomb of oblivion the heliocentric theory, to which it had been consigned by the peripatetic and Ptolemaic schools, until about the beginning of the fifteenth century.

[TO BE CONCLUDED.]

The Blind Boy's Picture.

Once there lived a little boy who was blind from his birth. In vain he sighed to see flowers and birds, about which his mother often talked. But it was always night to him. Once he had a lovely dream. He saw an angel float into the room, step to his bedside and say:

"I have a beautiful picture-book here, which I show to good children in the night when they sleep. Would you like to see it?"

"Ah, dear angel," said the boy weeping. "You are wrong. I am a poor blind boy and cannot see, not even your beautiful pictures."

The angel dried the boy's eyes and said:

"You can surely see them as well as you can see me. That is just why I go to blind children, so that they may view in dreams what they cannot elsewhere see." He then sat by the bed, opened a large, very lovely book, and showed the boy the pictures.

With what joy did the lad see what was spread before him! Flowers and birds and everything were much more beautiful than he had ever thought. And the kind angel told him the sweetest stories. But when they had finished half of the book he arose and said:

"Now I must go back to Heaven, for it will soon be dawn. I shall come again to-morrow night and you shall see the rest of the pictures." With these words he disappeared, and to the blind boy it was night again.

When his mother came to him the next day he told her of the angel and the lovely book. But she said in a sad voice: "You are ill, my poor boy, and must remain in bed to-day." The child was satisfied, for he was very tired. Still as a mouse he lay, and smiled often as he thought of the angel's visit, while he rejoiced at the coming evening.

At night time the angel came again, but the mother, who watched at the bedside, could not see him, nor did she hear the stories told; but she listened anxiously to the short breaths of the boy.

When the child had seen the last picture he begged: "Ah, dear angel, come soon back again and show me more of your lovely pictures. Have you only one picture-book?"

"I have many others," replied the angel, "much more beautiful, and I will be glad to show them all. But they are in Heaven, and I cannot bring them down to earth. If you will come to me you can see them."

"I would very much like to," the boy replied, "but I must first ask my mother and tell her where I am going. Come to-morrow night and fetch me."

The angel promised. When the boy awoke, he begged his mother to let him go to Heaven, so that he might see all the angel's beautiful pictures. The mother wept and wished him not to leave her, but he begged so long that she finally consented. When it was night the angel came for the third time, and seemed much more beautiful and friendly than before. He kissed the child's eyes and said: "Gaze at your mother and take leave of her!"

The blind boy looked around, recognized his mother, whom he had never seen, and gave her a friendly smile. Then the angel clasped him and flew aloft with him to the dawn, toward the rising sun.—From the German.

On the subject of cats most of our people are superstitious, and like the Egyptians believe it sacrilege to take the life of a cat. They think it all right to take the life of a horse, hog, cow, mule, goat, dog, deer or almost any other animal, but their reverence for the average house cat is so strong that they will endure any amount of fright and disturbance before they will venture to take the life of Kitty Puss or any of her offspring.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

When the curtain rolls down, and thy life's farce is ended,
And the grim prompter, Death, calls an end to your part;
Will it profit you then that your life was expended
In hoarding and stinting, and starving your heart?

When the story is told, and thy book has been written,
And the contents show nothing but chapters on self;
Will it profit you then that you're gone and forgotten,
And lost in oblivion, and laid on the shelf?

When the last debt of all has been surely collected,
And you sleep in the silence and gloom 'neath the sod;
Will it profit you then, when your life is dissected,
And your shams and your cheats are computed by God?

Sara Bernhardt is very ill at Paris, and has cancelled all her present engagements.

Booth and Modjeska don't have to quarrel now. They took in $41,500 in two weeks in Boston.

The most noted colored actress of the day is Henrietta Vinton Davis, of Baltimore. She made her debut in Washington in 1883, and has been well received in such roles as "Juliet," "Desdemona," "Queen Elizabeth," and "Leah."

The Westerner, a comedy-drama of New York life, by Edward Rose, will go on the road on April 7th. It will be presented by a competent company, and the painting is to be very attractive. Boston capitalists are said to be interested in the venture.

An agent of Mr. Kiralfy told a St. Louis reporter, concerning the selection of a ballet: "By looking at a woman's hand I can tell at once whether she is a fit subject for our business. We have had enough experience in this matter all over the country, and have found that a hand is indicative of the contour of a girl's physique. If her fingers are long and tapering, her limbs are correspondingly well formed. Should her hand be short and chubby, the limbs will be apt to be too stout."

Frederick Warde will soon play another engagement in this city. He is to-day one of the greatest actors on the stage. Greater than Irving—even greater than Booth, because he possesses powers far beyond Edwin Booth. His "Virginius" and "Belphegor" have never been—cannot be—excelled. No living actor can be compared to him in this line.

In Diplomacy, Mrs. Kendal once made an extraordinary hit by the deft use of her hands. She was standing behind a lounge while a man was talking to her, saying alternately pleasant and unpleasant things. As he did so, she played a tune on the back of the sofa with one hand, playing very slowly when she was displeased, and with great rapidity when she was glad. All London went to see this little bit of by-play.

Nearly everybody has a hobby, and Emma Juch's hobby is crystal; not a low-priced fad as she indulges it. Every successful tour of her opera company adds to the treasures of her dining-room. The dining-room is furnished to make the crystal more beautiful. Its yellow floor and blue and terra cotta rugs and walls, its polished oak furniture do but bring out the brilliancy and the sparkle of the cabinet, which is its chief ornament. This crystal cabinet is like a cave of diamonds, with its shelves of quaintly fashioned jugs, and bottles, and cups, and bowls, and pieces of every use with those which are clearly decorative. There are old French candlesticks, and cut glass trays, and French vases with handles in brass, and old barrel bottles, and lamps, and wine glasses with armorial tablets in gilt, and German glasses of the seventeenth century, and Venetian glasses, and Dutch glasses, and old Mexican glasses, and glass plaques with figures and shields in colors, and curious things and rare things almost without end. Miss Juch never travels that she has not an eye to the bric-a-brac stores for something odd or precious in crystal.

Book Chat.

His arms, with strong and firm embrace,
Her dainty form enfold,
And she had blushed her sweet consent,
When he his story told.

"And do you swear to keep your troth?"
She asked with loving air;
He gazed into her upturned face,
"Yes, by you elm, I swear."

A year passed by, his love grew cold,
Of his heart she'd lost the helm;
She blamed his fault, but the fact was this—
The tree was slippery elm.

Alphonse Daudet, in spite of his "Immortal," is said to be anxious of election to the French Academy.

Secretary Rusk recently received a letter from a publisher, asking him to write a book of funny stories. He curtly refused.

Having used up Charles Dickens, Mr. Howells is now tearing to pieces the reputation of poor old Dr. Johnson. Why does not Howells take somebody nearer his size; Ned Buntline, for instance.

Gertrude Franklin Atherton, author of some sensuous stories, is a grandniece of Benjamin Franklin. Mrs. Atherton is said to have written a new story that "flows as sweetly as a mountain brook."

M. Zola's latest story, "The Dream," is to be turned into comic opera by a French librettist and composer; and he has given to another author the right of making a similar use of another story of his, "The Fault of the Abbe Maurel."

Bret Harte positively refuses to answer any but letters of a business nature, or from friends. Tennyson ignores all letters, without discrimination. Robert Louis Stevenson travels around so much that most of his letters receive but scanty attention.

Buddhism is spreading to a considerable extent among the female graduates of the universities and other young people of culture in Europe, and the fact is being laid at the door of Max Muller, who is charged with having first brought that religion to the attention of the Christian world. His defenders say that the converts are made chiefly by Hindoos, who come from India to attend the universities.

Mr. W. W. Story is soon to issue "Conversations in a Studio." Mr. Story is probably the most versatile of living Americans. He is a clever writer of prose, as readers of his "Roba di Roma" know; a brilliant poet, who has written originally, in a vein of his own; while as a sculptor he has no superiors among the modern followers of Phidias and Thorwaldson. He just comes short of producing the highest effects with the chisel and the pen. We expect to find him at his best in these "Conversations in a Studio."

Alfred Tennyson smokes a big clay pipe, and never smokes the same pipe but once. He dislikes notoriety, and is said to have burned all his letters, so that his future biographers will have a hard time of it in writing his life. He says he does not propose after he is dead, to be "ripped up like a pig." To strangers he is surly, and even rude, but with congenial spirits the native sunshine of his nature shines out. He does not believe in poetic inspiration, but believes that all good poetry is the result of long, patient and persistent work. He has been known to spend a whole day over a single verse.

Says the Pall Mall Gazette: "It is well known that Mr. Gladstone is a voracious reader of current periodical literature. His zeal in reading magazines is equalled only by his industry in writing for them; and it seems, according to a London correspondent, that, unlike the most of us, he endeavors to let his survey include, not only their literary contents, but even their advertisements. He expressly subscribes for the American edition of certain American-English magazines, in order that he may obtain from their advertising pages any new ideas to be gleaned therefrom, as to American industries and enterprises."

Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman, the last love of Edgar A. Poe, was a woman of exquisite beauty, whose face was a poem, and whose life was a romance. She mourned her poet lover more than thirty years after his early death, and devoted him from first to last, with all a woman's deep faith and undying love. His friends were her friends; his enemies her enemies. He was an idol enshrined in her heart of hearts, to be worshipped there forever more.

We are in receipt of a neatly printed little book, by Wilson R. Ellis, of the Woodland Mail, wherein Mr. Ellis takes issue with Colonel Ingersoll, the gifted Agnostic, and furnishes a reply to Ingersoll's Review article entitled "Why I am an Agnostic." Mr. Ellis replies from the standpoint of a Deist. He claims that Ingersoll denies the existence of a deity, as well as his skepticism of the divinity of the Bible. That Agnosticism neither denies nor affirms, and is opposed alike to dogmatic skepticism and to dogmatic theism. Our country editor has undertaken a pretty large job in crossing swords with the gifted and eloquent Agnostic.

STRANGE.

He died at night. Next day they came
To weep, and to praise him; sudden fame.
These suddenly warm comrades gave;
They called him pure, they called him brave,
One praised his heart, and one his brain;
All said: You'd seek his like in vain—
Gentle, and strong, and good; none saw
In all his character a flaw.

At noon he wakened from his trance,
Mended, was well! They looked askance,
Took his hand coldly, loved him not,
Though they had wept him; quite forgot
His virtues; lent an easy ear
To slanderous tongues; professed a fear
He was not what he seemed to be;
Thank God, they were not such as he;
Gave to his hunger stones for bread,
And made him, living, wish him dead.

—Edward Rowland Sill.

Professional Chat.

A Coroner's jury, after listening attentively to the evidence given in a case of suicide, brought in the following verdict: "We are of the opinion that the want of the common necessities of life drove the deceased to commit the desperate act with the greatest deliberation; therefore, we find him guilty of culpable insanity."

An Irish witness, having been sworn to the truth of a statement he had made regarding an attempted murder, afterward confessed that the major part of it was false. "Did you swear to the truth of it?" he was asked. "Yes, begorra!" answered the witness; "but I didn't swear to the loying part; I'll take me oath to that, sorr!"—Green Bag.

A minister lately "gathered to his fathers," who was noted alike for the brilliancy of his wit and the moving quality of his pathos in pulpit story telling, was wont to recount with gusto one of his own after service experiences. One Sunday morning he had illustrated his discourse with a melting tale which drew tears from all eyes (not excepting his own). On the way home his little son said to him, in the most innocent way in the world: "Papa, was that story you told in the sermon true, or was it only preaching?"

The Rev. George Gates, President of Iowa College, tells the following story: "In the family of a home missionary on the virgin prairie of Iowa was born a baby boy. A little later a new association of ministers and churches were discussing the possibilities of beginning a college. The father of the new baby took a unique way of announcing his new happiness. He stalked down the aisle and laid a new silver dollar, which rang true, on the table (if it was the communion table it was not profane), saying, 'When my three-week-old boy grows up I want a college here for him to attend, and there's the first dollar to found it.' That boy took his seat last summer in the Board of Trustees of Iowa College (of which he is an honored alumnus) whose beginning was the home missionary's silver dollar."

We have known Tom Clunie from his boyhood. While he has reached exalted stations in political life, and is now a distinguished member of Congress, we always remembered him as "Tom" Clunie. There is no man living who enjoys a joke better than Hon. T. J. Clunie. He is one of the few jokers who can laugh at and appreciate a joke on himself. Among the many incidents, amusing and otherwise, of Tom's early life in Sacramento, we recall a couple of anecdotes that perhaps in the busy turmoil of public life he has forgotten. Well, when Tom was a student, while he was a hard worker, the spirit of devilment was very largely developed. Prof. Templeton, a kind of schoolmaster general, was the principal of the high school, and Tom was constantly getting into some kind of trouble. Finally, for some transgression, which we believe occurred at a picnic of the school, Tom was suspended by the Professor, and it was the firm purpose to expel him, but through the agency of friends and the promise of Tom to be "very good," and not violate any of the moral precepts, he was reinstated. From that time on, Tom became very ambitious to take part in the literary exercises at exhibitions, in fact, wanted to be listed as one of the orators. Among the leading pupils was a then popular young man, who was of a well-to-do family, who dressed in exquisite taste—in fact, was considered the head and front of all the social and literary events of the school. If a speech was to be made, this young fellow was always put to the front. On one occasion, there was to be an entertainment, and Tom Clunie was very anxious to distinguish himself as an orator, so he called upon our dapper little man for a place on the programme. The dandy favorite looked on Tom's plain clothing and rather awkward appearance, saying: "Why, Tom, you can't make a speech; you were never cut out for anything of that kind. Besides, your clothes and lanky shape would make you the laughing stock of the whole assemblage." This bitter taunt cut Tom to the heart, and he was denied the privilege of appearing in public. Time ran on, both of the boys, Tom and the class favorite, graduated. Tom Clunie has become rich, great and an orator. The class favorite is, and always has been, laying brick and mortar for a living. We saw him a few months ago, and recalled the incident of his refusal to allow Tom Clunie to make a speech, and pointed to his position at the present time.

NOTES.

The United States Senate yesterday confirmed the appointment of W. A. Anderson, a Supervisor of Census for the Second Census District.

The good housewife is always striving to procure something good for the inner man; on the other hand, the good husband is constantly contriving to provide something for the outer woman.

The last pin has been knocked from under the bond-holders' vicious litigation against the city. Yesterday the Supreme Court denied Sam Davis a rehearing of the cases recently decided in favor of the city.

Since the enforcement of prohibition laws in Kansas, it is stated that one druggist disposes of over 200 flasks of whisky per day. While prohibition abolishes the saloon, it seems to create a vast number of individual saloon keepers, that is to say every fellow is his own saloon keeper.

It is said that a young Japanese lady belonging to a high family, will take the veil and enter a Bavarian nunnery. This is indeed a novelty. It would not have been half so startling if it had been announced that she had entered a Bavarian brewery. There are more votaries to Bavarian beer than religion.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction has apportioned the school money to the different counties in the State. He finds $7.89 for each census child. It must not, however, be understood that Sacramento city receives this sum for each census child. The amount the city schools will receive is $36,300 or $7.27 per capita.

This idea of freezing and keeping fish for days in the refrigerator and ice chest is not what it is supposed to be. Such diet is unpalatable and unhealthy. No amount of sauce or cooking can make such a dish desirable. We often, particularly in the summer months, in hotels and in palace cars find fish preserved in this manner, and which is about as tasteless as boiled chips.

In the light of the great Los Angeles boom it is marvelous that there could be any penitent or conscious-stricken person in that county, yet we see that the United States Treasurer has received $20 from some penitent, who says that it is returned to the government, having been appropriated when he was not so squeamish about such matters. Coming from Los Angeles, we repeat it is indeed a marvel.

The City Board of Education threatens a mandamus against the Board of Trustees for not levying the amount of taxes determined upon by the former board. This is one of the unfortunate dilemmas occasioned by the conflict between one local organic law and the interpretation placed on the municipal charters by the Supreme Court. The obstructionists to framing a new charter will soon realize of the danger surrounding our local government.

Some noted French doctors have succeeded in effectually removing the jaw bone from a woman without causing death. What a chance there would be for those learned medicos in this country. There are hundreds of women that husbands and neighbors would offer up a sacrifice to have their jaw bones removed. If doctors could only succeed in inventing a scheme to abrogate women's tongues as well as the jaw bones, it would be a good achievement.

We read of the announcement that more than 800 school houses have been constructed in Mississippi during the past two years. If the result and character of the recent elections were any test we would be forced to doubt the correctness of this report. Education and liberty go hand in hand, and from the manner of conducting politics in Mississippi, we are constrained to think that there is very little advancement in education in that State.

Many people are wont to confound agnosticism with atheism. The orthodox people purposely class them together, looking upon both as something awful. The true agnostic repudiates all atheistic doctrines. The recent lecture of Rev. Wm. Lloyd, of New York, ably defines the vast difference between dogmatic atheism and agnosticism. Says Mr. Lloyd: "God forbid that any whose faith finds sure foothold on divine love, should have anything but sympathy and brotherhood for a man wrapped in the storm shadow of an awful doubt, unable to seize the life line or feel the bottom. For our own, as well as for the doubter's sake, let us be honest."

Some conflict of opinion has arisen in regard to the manner of holding our municipal election. Under the charter, if construed strictly, all city elections would have to be called under an obsolete law, but in the light of our recent Supreme Court decisions, the general laws in force are paramount to charters and govern. Thus the general election laws must control the elections in municipalities. The time for opening and closing the polls will have to conform to the recent amendments to the law. In fact the general election laws will have to be invoked in the conduct of the election. The Board of trustees have power and authority to fix the precincts. A few months ago THEMIS published a full digest to the late amendments to the election laws.

Judge Van Fleet's little two-year old boy is possessed of a very strong will, and is usually bent on having his own way in about everything. When he is scolded in the least, he has a habit of throwing himself down on the floor, where he indulges in vicious kicks and emphatic yells as evidences of his temper. In order to break the little one of these exhibitions of temper, the Judge has been accustomed to have a little switch, which he keeps in a particular place, with which he switches the youngster's legs when he gets into these tantrums. One day the young hopeful was climbing upon the window, thus endangering himself, and was told by the Judge to desist. This interference with the supposed jurisdiction and prerogative of the hopeful made him angry, and he threw himself on the floor, commenced kicking and yelling. When the Judge looked in the accustomed place for the switch it was gone; so he took the youngster on his judicial knee and administered a judicial spanking. This was a great surprise to the youngster, who at once ceased his tantrums. When he was released from jeopardy, he started to a hiding place and at once returned with the switch, which he had taken from its usual place and hid it, handing the switch to his father in a manner that meant, "don't spank me again, here is the switch."

Political.

From the stir that has been made by a few politicians the last few months, and particularly for the past few weeks, it might be supposed that in Sacramento an election for President was approaching, and that the matter would be settled at the coming Republican primary. About all there is at stake however, is the question of which faction will control the next City Committee of the Republican party, and what individuals will claim the leadership. There is little doubt, however, as to what names will appear on the ticket that will be nominated by the Republican municipal convention. As is generally understood, the main battle ground will be in the first ward.

The political situation in this city is unique. A few years ago a reform movement was inaugurated in the Republican party, to correct abuses that had existed. It met with the hearty and honest support of the better element, and in some respects accomplished good. The trouble, however, resulted that the energies of the well meaning citizens soon relaxed, and the impetus they gave the new movement was taken advantage of by the small politicians of the city who assumed the navigation of the party craft. It has come to be, quite naturally, that each ward has three or four mushroom bosses, and some of them are men whose political and moral integrity is hardly up to the average, and who would hardly be invited, from their character, associations and record, to mingle in the better element in social gatherings.

The fact will not be disputed, that, in anticipation of the coming city election, the Great Register of the county has been augmented by the addition of names of men rather undesirable. In fact, there has been an unusually large number registered from houses and resorts of questionable repute. It has been made no secret, that, in a great measure, this storage is of salable political merchandise, and the price of the commodity will be expected to be paid on election day by the candidates willing to advance the most.

We feel little hesitation in saying, as we did several weeks ago, that unless the authorities and the people of Sacramento will prevent, this spring will be marked with very disgraceful frauds on the electoral franchise in the coming primary.

We understand Chief Lee is not a candidate for re-election; he is, therefore, in a position to signalize the closing of his term by an exhibition of the efficiency of his force. If we mistake not, abundant opportunity will be afforded the officers for arresting parties for violations of the penal laws, and there is no doubt, if such a course is pursued, convictions will be had and salutary effects result. There is little difficulty in ascertaining in advance the quarters from which trouble may reasonably be expected.

We do not regard the question who will be members of the Central Committee of particular consequence, for those bodies, as a rule, destroy their influence by arbitrary action, and, quite generally, are composed of men whose minds are not broad enough to comprehend the party situation. Instead of representing the party as an entirety and its interests, in most cases they seem to have the idea they have been elected to take the petty advantages that may seem to favor a particular faction, and quite generally in this city and county, any person at all familiar with politics can foretell their votes on any proposition. It would be unjust to say they have never been unanimous, for it sometimes so happens when the matter of the assessment of candidates is considered. The present committee, however, has upon it several gentlemen who are prominently identified with the business interests, and we assume they have independence and ability enough to exercise their own judgment, and not blindly follow the lead of interested politicians. That course which will admit of the fairest possible expression of Republican voters will doubtless be favorably considered. The body of the party do not importune; the petty politicians are importunate.

It is a matter of congratulation that the last county convention directed that future primaries should be called strictly in accordance with the State law, and fixed the apportionment of delegates upon a business and mathematical basis, so that we are able at this early day to determine the exact number of delegates that will be returned from each precinct to the coming county convention. There are fifteen precincts in the city. The lowest Republican vote cast in any one of them was 169 and the largest 334. We suggested in December last, and renew the suggestion now, that the Republican City Committee save all trouble by adopting the system that will be pursued in the fall primary. It will result in the division of this city into fifteen, instead of six, subdivisions, each of which will return its own delegates independent of the others, and if one precinct should be manipulated by fraud, the taint will not affect the entire ward, and engender bitterness which will require time to remove. We feel little doubt that this plan will be adopted by the coming city convention for the government of future primaries.

It is now a foregone conclusion, and has been for some time, that Eugene J. Gregory will be re-nominated for Mayor. His satisfactory course in that office and the appreciation of our citizens of the worth and service of the man, has won for him the merited honor. By his election the people feel and know they will have value received. The Democrats find difficulty in inducing a candidate to take the nomination against him. Their situation can be appreciated. The season has been unusually stormy; the snowfall in the mountains unprecedented. It is a moral certainty that it will worry the largest snow plow that has ever been constructed to dig out the Democrat who may happen to run against Gregory.

Captain Stevens is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Chief of Police, and notwithstanding other names have been mentioned, will unquestionably receive the endorsement of the convention. Mr. Stevens once filled the office with credit, and is thoroughly familiar with its duties.

Since our last writing on this subject, two new candidates, Hon. E. C. Hart and T. W. Humphreys, have entered the fight for City Attorney, the other candidate being Judge Charles N. Post. It is uncertain which of the gentlemen will be victorious.

M. A. Howard seems to encounter little opposition for the nomination for Fire Commissioner.

Writing at the last moment of the war situation, and at the hour of our going to press, we regard the situation about thus: In the first ward both parties are impatiently awaiting the fray. In the second, very much of the life will be infused by the Democracy.

The fourth promises to entertain us with a dignified contest. We are, however, ashamed of the third ward. The people of that district will not take an interest in politics, and it has been a matter of absolute duty that a few gentlemen should do the political thinking for the people. To the untiring efforts of these gentlemen will be due the credit for arranging the details of the caucuses and selecting the lists of delegates. During the stormy weather of the last few weeks, when the walking was so bad and umbrellas scarce, these self sacrificing patriots have neglected their families and their business to give the ward a proper representation. So far as can be learned, the arrangements have all been perfected, and all that is now needed is for the good people to formally do the voting. While this course robs the caucuses and primary of excitement, it saves worry and expense. The only injustice is that no provision can be made to compensate the gentlemen who have expended their time and worn out their brains to make politics easy.

FLASHES.

It takes a good liar to cover his falsehoods, or to catch others fibbing.

There are two things that are likely to flare up at any time—a woman and Vesuvius.

When a lady's suit is loud a report is sure to follow—from other women.

We have not heard of any babies being christened after the President.

When a fellow kisses a girl on the forehead does he always get a bang in the mouth?

Freckled-faced girls are strongly imbued with the proverb that beauty is only skin deep.

Doctors have patients—That is more than neighbors have with a fellow learning to play the violin or cornet.

When a married man comes home after taking a drop too much, and hugs his wife—it is a tight squeeze.

If Colonel Ingersoll only knew how the country preachers annihilate his agnostic doctrines, he would feel very badly indeed.

Census Enumerators.

The enumeration of census will not commence until the first Monday in June and will have to be completed on or before the first Monday in July, 1890, thus only allowing the enumerators thirty days for their work. Populous districts will have to be divided so that not more than four thousand, according to the last census, shall be in any district. The Superintendent will fix the compensation of enumerators at least one month before the commencement of the enumeration. The law fixes in populous districts not more than 2 cents per name, 15 cents for each farm, 2 cents for deaths, 20 cents for each establishment of industry; each surviving soldier, sailor or marine, or widow of such soldier, sailor or marine, 5 cents. In certain districts where the taking of the census is more difficult, the Superintendent can fix the compensations, which shall not be less than $3 or more than $6 per day. There is no compensation for mileage or railway expenses of enumerators.

Older and Better.

The Daily Record-Union this morning entered upon its 79th volume. This journal was established in March, 1851, and in all the years of its publication has been recognized as among the leading newspapers in the Union. It has the merit of reliability, and its expressions are carefully digested before published. Under the present management the Record-Union has improved upon the past. It is fully up with the times. We are grateful at the prosperity of our neighbor, and to be able to congratulate its anniversary. It is an institution almost as old as the State, and as firmly established.

The Weather.

The rainfall for the past week, according to reports from the signal office, was 3.98 inches, making 10.60 inches for this year, and 27.59 inches for the season, as against 9.94 inches to the 1st of March last year.

The highest and lowest temperature during the week was 57 and 34, as against 68 and 31 for the same time last year.

The barometer this morning was rapidly rising, which is not a good meteorological sign of settled weather. There was .52 of an inch of rain at Red Bluff last night, while but .06 of an inch precipitated in this city for the same time. There was no rain at any Oregon signal service station during last night.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Sol Smith Russell, the most accomplished artist in his line on the stage, will give his inimitable rendition of A Poor Relation, on Saturday and Sunday nights.

Last night the Sacramento Business College celebrated its seventeenth anniversary. The attendance was quite large and the programme given was of unusual excellence.

Many of the public schools of the city celebrated Washington's birthday by literary and musical exercises. Young America acquitted themselves in an appropriate and patriotic manner.

Hoyt's Bunch of Keys was presented at the Metropolitan on Thursday and Friday nights to good houses. The company is not strong. There is very little spontaneous humor, and most of the comedy is very strained.

Judge Buckley denies that his court is the scene of ridicule, or that any undignified conduct occurred during the sessions of the court. There is, however, a manifest disposition with some of the attaches of the department to bring the whole police department into public contempt.

Domino Party.

Equity Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, gave a most successful party at Turner Hall, Wednesday evening. Some of the masks were elegant. It was largely attended, notwithstanding the pouring rain. The committee on arrangement deserve great praise for their ability and good judgment in attending to all the details that constitute an enjoyable domino party. It was in the wee sma' hours when all departed, thoroughly satisfied with their evening of pleasure.

Spring Races.

The Executive Committee of the State Agricultural Society has decided upon a programme for the Spring meeting. The races will continue four days, April 26th, 29th, May 1st and May 3d. Some splendid horses have been entered, and very fair purses are put up on each race. The track is being put in condition, and from all outward appearances, there will be great sport and a large crowd.

A Joke on Pa.

We have all heard about the old lady who hunted from garret to cellar for her glasses, and then found them on the top of her head; but an occurrence came to our notice a short time since which, we think, distances this story. A gentleman friend of ours hunted everywhere for his glasses one night, preparatory to stretching himself on the lounge for a good, comfortable read. He finally had to call in the assistance of his family. One of them on looking at him began to laugh immoderately, and exclaimed: "Why, pa, you have them on your nose." "Hey, what's that?" and he began to feel for them. There they were, sure enough, and he had been hunting for them while looking through them. The expression of his face when he made this discovery may be imagined. The family still tell it as "a good joke on pa."

The Girl Who Hints.

Naturally you didn't ask him, and you would be very indignant, indeed, if anybody suggested that you had forced the poor fellow into bringing you the flowers, candy, or in taking you to the concert. No, you didn't ask him, but you couldn't have been any clearer about it than you were when you looked into his eyes in your most beseeching way and told him how anxious you were to hear the great violinist, how sweet you thought violets, and how much you did wish for a pound of chocolate. He didn't want to get any of these; he hadn't the money to spend for them; he doesn't get a very large salary, he is trying to keep himself out of debt, and yet, because he is generous and can't resist a pretty girl, you have forced him into a dishonest position. That's it in plain English. When the end of the week comes and he is $10 short in his money, a little bit on his board bill must wait, his landlady cannot be attended to, and the money that should go home must be apologized for. This is his first step toward not doing his duty, and you have made him take it.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Senators Taken Down.

Senators learn sometimes that they are not the most mighty men at the Capital. One of them signed a ticket of admission for a party of friends to the Senate gallery on the occasion when Senator Ingalls made his speech on the race question. They presented the ticket to the door-keeper. He flipped it aside, scornfully remarking:

"That's no good."

"But it has Senator —'s name on it," expostulated one of the party.

"A Senator's name is no account," was the reply; "you will have to get the Sergeant-at-Arms to sign it if you want to pass me."—New York Tribune.

Union Primary School.

The anniversary of Washington's birth was celebrated at Union Primary School, 7th and G streets, by the following exercises:

Song, "America," by the school; "Love of Country," Miss Crowell's class; dialogue, "The Child and the Bird," Maud Snook and Irma Eades; "Hope," Eugenia Mouser; "The Grave of Washington," Lillie Shay; song, "Never Late to School," Class; "Welcome," Helen Petersen; "I Want to Tell Something," Carrie Salomon; "Pretty Pussy," Frank Williams; "Story of General Washington," Joey Simmons; "Drive the Nail Aright," Carlos Perkins; song, Georgie Fisher; "The American Flag," Jacob Steinman; "Kind Words," Fannie Connelly; "The Value of Little Things," Theo. Copper-smith; "Counting Baby's Toes," Phoebe Litzberg; "The Truthful Boy," Florence Allen; song, "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," School; "Character of Washington," Russell Williams; "John Henry Jones," Alice May; "Always Speak the Truth," Elmer Reeves; "Maxims of Washington," Miss Chapman's Class; "Never Break A Promise," Gussie Carroll; "How Many Miles to Baby-land," Ethel Parsons; song, Mabel Jane; "The Lost Pantaloon," James Weller; "Life of Washington," Signe Wallquist; "Little Ragamuffin," Maud Clark; "Love Lightens Labor," Charlie Jones; "Goldy," Carrie Markewitz; "February Twenty-second," Frank Pedlar; "What Does Little Birdie Say," Bertie Noyle; song, Estel and Arthur Jones; "Life of George Washington," Harmon Bonte; "East and West," Emily Berger; "Washington as Farmer-boy and Commander-in-Chief," Miss Smith's Class; "A Little Girl's Questions," Mabel Higgin; song, "The Bird's Ball," School; "Who is the Truly Brave?" Chas. Elkus; "The Truthful Boy," Florence Allen; "Old Ironsides," Edith Grant; "Smile Whenever You Can," R. Carmichael; "Two Busy Hands," Donna Hunt; song, Annie Marks; "The Farmer," Winfield Lewis; "Little Goldenhair," Myra Smith; "The Old Man Dreams," Willie Dorsey; "Inconsistent Husbands," Frank Strover; "Star Spangled Banner," Class.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

From this date all music, including all copyrights, will be sold at Cooper's music store to teachers and our customers, at and under Eastern and San Francisco prices. A reduction on all books as well. All we ask for breaking the high prices is your patronage.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

General John C. Fremont, the Pathfinder, and pioneer of this State, is to be placed on the military retired list.

An English doctor reports over thirty cases of headache and facial neuralgia cured by snuffing powdered salt up the nose, and no wonder. But a little warm water, in which a teaspoonful of salt has been dissolved, may be snuffed up the nose with benefit to whoever needs such treatment.

The American skater, Louis Rubenstein, at St. Petersburg, Russia, won the championship.

The Passion Play is to be revived at New York, and Jeannie Winston, she of the model form, is to take the part of the Savior.

The Senate has increased the Sacramento Federal building appropriation to $300,000.

The German elections resulted in Socialistic victories. This does not look like an accord with the young emperor's views and ideas of government.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

Mistress—"You say you want me to read you what's in this letter, Molly; but it's marked 'Private.'"

Molly—"Well, ma'am, ye moight stuff a bit of cotton in yer ears, and thin ye couldn't hear what ye read."

"Who is that man over there?" said one traveling man to another, directing his attention to a gentleman who devotes his energies principally to booming expositions and so on.

"He is a promoter."

"What does he promote?"

"His own interests, principally."

The Terror (after a seance with papa in the woodshed)—"When you were a little boy were you bad like me, papa?"

Papa—"No."

"Nor you didn't get walloped like I do?"

"No, I did not."

"That's the reason."

"What's the reason. What do you mean?"

"Why you can't understand the situation as I do."

Charles Roll, of Newark, N. J., accidentally broke a mirror which had been in his family for seventy-five years. Between the glass and the wooden back he found an old Indian land grant, issued to his Holland ancestor, Jacob Roll, in the year 1683, which made him the owner of a tract of land four miles in length, along the Mohawk river near Schenectady, and running nine miles back from the river. For many years the heirs, who number about one hundred and fifty persons, have been looking for this evidence of their ownership.

"Oh, Mr. Cahokia," exclaimed the Boston young woman with enthusiasm, "is it not wondrously pathetic, even in its utilitarian aspect, to observe the gradual encroachment of rationalistic concepts and methods on the time-honored superstitions of the age! While our judgment may commend our sympathies are involuntarily excited. Is it not so?"

"Of course, of course," rejoined the St. Louis young man heartily. "It's tough while it lasts, but there's no use of folks going sneezing around the way they're doing. Quinine and goose grease will knock it sky high in three days."

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.
First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.
J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.
703 J Street, Sacramento.

W. L. HELKE,

(Successor to J. C. Sepulveda.)

DRUGGIST and CHEMIST

N. E. cor. Second and K Sts., Sacramento.

Prescriptions a Specialty. A full line of Standard Preparations.

TUFTS'

Verbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA
sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

Notice of Sale.

PURSUANT TO A RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD of Supervisors, the following property will be offered for sale at public auction in front of the Court-house door, Seventh and I streets, at 12 M.

Tuesday, March 4, 1890.

One Boiler, Smoke-stack, Pipes, Flues, Functis, Fire-brick, Fire-box, Feed Pump, and all Tools, Tongs, and everything belonging to said boiler that is now located at the County Jail yard.

Also, two Horses used for the chain-gang, and one Spring Wagon.

Also, lot of Luggage held for poll tax.

The above articles to be sold for cash, and to the highest bidder.

Attest: W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

GO TO

Nolan & Son's

FOR

FINE SHOES,

BRANCH OF SAN FRANCISCO.

603 J Street, Sacramento.

The Only Retail House in Sacramento that manufactures their own goods.

Try Our Famous $3 Shoes.

Short-Hand

ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

E. FRANKS

ANNOUNCES HIMSELF A CANDIDATE FOR

CHIEF OF POLICE,

Subject to the decision of the DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Pacific Optical Institute

D. M. BISHOPP, Proprietor,

Has REMOVED TO 806 J STREET.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street,

Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

F. F. TEBBETS, DENTIST.

No. 914 SIXTH STREET,

Bet. I and J, west side, opp. Congregational Church.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS, Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents. Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDougall,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, ETC.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

OSBORN & FO GER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-six YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent.

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

HOME PRODUCTION.

—WE OFFER NOW OUR—

Newly Sugar-cured

HAMS, BACON

—AND—

SHOULDERS

—AS—

Superior to Any Other in the Market

—OUR LARD—

Is pure and fresh, and

—OUR SAUSAGES—

Cannot be excelled. All Hog Products are from grain-fed hogs only.

MOHR & YOERK.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSNER, BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

824 J ST.
Fine Candies

Family Orders for Ice Cream a Specialty.

THE ONLY MAKER OF COLT'S FOOT ROCK COUGH CANDY.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES, of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813 Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

WM. J. HASSETT.

A. J. JOHNSTON.

A. J. JOHNSTON & CO.

General Printers,

410 J TREET,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Simon Sturmer,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER,
No. 504 K Street, Pacific Hotel Building.
HOLIDAY GOODS in endless variety. REPAIR-
ING of all kinds done, and work warranted.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

B. Ruhl Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer.Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,
DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GASFITTING, AND ROOFING.
Jobbing a Specialty.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR
only. Linen polished in the neatest manner.
We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city.
Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE
Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also,
Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night.
EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

CANCERS,

Ulcers, Wens, Lumps, Exeresences, etc.,
Positively Cured or No Pay.
No Knife Used.As to the success of my treatment, I give the names of a few of the many cured. By addressing them they will give any information required—and it pays to investigate before being treated.Mrs. O. C. Neilsen, Grass Valley, cancer.
John Service, Auburn, lupus.
Patrick Lynch, Sacramento, cancer.
Mrs. Jno. Shaw, Grass Val., birthmark removed.
N. S. Peck, S. P. R. Sacramento, cancer.
J. L. Woods, Washington. Yolo county, cancer.
John W. Douglas, Rocklin, cancer.
Miss Mamie Lynch, Yolo, tumor removed.
Chas. McLaughlin, Sacramento, cancer.
I might give many more. Those afflicted are invited to call and investigate for themselves. Consultation at office free. Send for circular.
Office, 426 K Street, Sacramento.

DR. J. H. SHIRLEY.

FOR SALE.

Half Block

BETWEEN

Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth, V and W Streets

On line of Central Street Railway.

Apply to

FRANK HICKMAN,

1014 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

Smart Dog.

Justice Allen has a dog that is worth his weight in gold. His name is Scamp. The Judge bought him when he was a puppy, from the Doan family for $2, and began training him. Scamp is half shepherd and half Scotch terrier and is now nearly five years of age. He carries out the slop-pail and empties it, brings it back to the pump, pumps it full of water (taking hold of the pump handle with his teeth, and standing on his hind feet) upsets it so as to rinse it out and then takes the vessel to its place. He also lights the fire in the kitchen stove every morning, Mrs. Allen fixing the kindling wood, etc., the previous night and laying several matches on the hearth. After lighting it, the intelligent canine awakens the family by barking. Nor is that all. He carries in all the wood used in the house and puts it in the wood box, which he keeps filled without being told. This feat got Scamp into trouble the other day. He found the box nearly empty and started to replenish the supply. A visitor had closed and fastened the wood shed door, not knowing that it had been left open so that Scamp could do his duty. Mrs. Allen was out calling in company with the visitor. A neighbor says Scamp barked and howled and scratched at the shed door for nearly a half hour before he jumped the fence, went to a neighbor's wood-shed that happened to be open and began carrying fuel from it to the box in Mr. Allen's kitchen. The owner of the wood tried to stop the dog, but couldn't until the box was filled. When Mrs. Allen returned she was informed of the facts and scolded Scamp and made him carry the wood back, which he willingly did and then refilled the box from his master's pile. The dog will also bring his mistress the broom, milk or dish-pan, washboard, or anything else he can carry, at her request—in fact, he seems to understand what is said to him as well as a ten-year-old child, and far more willing than the most of them to do what he is asked.—Gridley Herald.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER
LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

F. KUEHNE & CO.,

NO. 906 NINTH STREET,

Between I and J, SACRAMENTO,

Carpenters and Contractors

Store and office work a specialty.

ICE BOXES for Breweries and Saloons always on hand and made to order.

Jobbing and Repairing promptly attended to.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAmento—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.
The People of the State of California, to John A. Steen, greeting:

You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 3d day of December, 1889, in which action Anna M. Steen is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and plaintiff, upon the alleged ground of habitual intemperance, and for the care, custody and control of the minor child, Gertrude D.
Steen, and for general relief and for costs of suit; all of which more fully appears in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made.

And you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento; and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

In testimony whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 4th day of December,
A. D. 1889.

[SEAL]

W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk,
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.
MATT. F. JOHNSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.
feb 8—w9.

Musical Stones.

The chink stone indicates by its name its sonorous qualities. The red granite of the Thebaid in Egypt possesses similar qualities. Most of the obelisks were made of this. So musical are the rocks on the banks of the Orinoco, visited by Humboldt, that their sounds are ascribed to witchcraft by the natives. In Brazil are large blocks of basalt which emitted clear sounds when struck, and the Chinese employ this stone in the fabrication of musical instruments.

Some years since an artisan of Keswick exhibited a rock harmonicon composed of slabs of stones, placed at certain distances apart, upon which several pieces of music were performed. At the Crystal Palace just recently, there was a performance on musical stones (Welsh). The most celebrated of these acoustic wonders is the "Jabel Nankous," or Mountain of the Bell, a low, sandy hill in the peninsula of Mount Sinai, in Arabia Petrea, which gives sounds varying in power from that of a humming top to thunder. The late Hugh Miller, when in the island of Heigg (Hebrides), observed a musical sound while walking on the dry, white sand of the beach. As two plates of silex or quartz (which are but crystals of sand) give out a musical sound when struck together, and the collision of two minute crystals of sand does the same in however inferior a degree, the union of all these sounds, though singly imperceptible, may constitute the musical notes, the Mountain of the Bell, or the lesser sound of the trodden sea beach of Heigg.

The sands near St. Lunaire, Cortes du Nord, give a faint musical sound at certain tides. In a cavern at Cheddar, Somerset, are some stalactites in the form of folds of drapery, which give forth musical sounds when struck. A chime of bells can be imitated upon them.—The Oracle.

Aunt Jane: What's this here, Benoni?
Uncle Benoni (looking at his catalogue): "Number 362, Venus of Milo." Wonder how she happened to lose her arms?
Aunt Jane: Shouldn't wonder if they were froze off, judgin' f'm th' way she's dressed—or, ruther, ain't dressed.

Lavenson's

THE LARGEST AND
MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

R. DAVIS,
NOTARY PUBLIC,
Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh,
Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

WM. H. BRADLEY,
(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,
Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Stude-
baker Wagons and Buggies,
Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Graugers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

H. WACHHORST

Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

TO BE HAD ONLY AT

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

MAGGI'S HOT BOUILLON!

Just Out: Maroon Marmalade

Willis & Ray

APOTHECARIES
212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

L. L. LEWIS & CO.

502 and 504 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

We keep the Largest Stock of

PARLOR ^d/_a COOK STOVES

Ranging in Price from $5.00 to $25.00.

WE ALSO KEEP A LARGE STOCK OF Crockery, Glassware, Etc.

Our 100-page Illustrated Catalogue is now ready.

L. L. LEWIS & CO., 502 and 504 J St.

Joe Poheim the TAILOR

HAS NOW A

GENUINE CLEARANCE SALE.

Suits Made to Order from $20.

Pants Made to Order from $5.

Other Garments in Proportion.

This Sale is to CONTINUE FOR SIXTY DAYS ONLY. ~~PERFECT~~ PERFECT FIT AND BEST OF WORK-MANSHIP GUARANTEED, OR NO SALE.

NO. 600 J STREET, Corner of Sixth, SACRAMENTO.

BRANCH STORES: 203 Montgomery Street, 724 and 1110-12 Market Street, San Francisco; 49 and 51 South
Spring Street, Los Angeles; 1021 and 1023 Fourth Street, San Diego; 105, 107 and 109 Santa Clara Street, San Jose; 73 Morrison Street, Portland, Oregon.

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

A. G. JOHNSON.

CLAUS ANDERSON.

ANDERSON & JOHNSON,

The † Leading † Merchant † Tailors,

SUITS MADE TO ORDER AT REASONABLE RATES.

No. 1014 Seventh Street, : : : Sacramento.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK.

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

Nov. 17, 1889.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at
SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:50 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
7:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
11:00 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3:40 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6:45 P
7:25 P	Knights Landing	7:40 A
9:00 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6:00 A
3:00 P	Ogden and East	10:30 A
3:00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willows	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7:25 P
6:50 A	San Francisco via Benicia	8:35 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
4:00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10:40 P
10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	26:00 A
11:25 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
11:25 A	San Jose	2:25 P
6:50 A	Santa Barbara	9:55 A
7:05 P	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa	7:25 P
9:00 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt	9:55 A
5:00 P	Truckee and Reno	6:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno	6:00 A
12:05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:50 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo	7:35 P
12:15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	10:25 A
7:15 A	Folsom and Placerville	2:40 P
5:20 P	Folsom	6:50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDGOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout.
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox.
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

GARZOLI & GENIS,

FRUIT AND PRODUCE,
BUTTER, CHEESE, EGGS, Etc.

POULTRY, FISH AND OYSTERS,

CALIFORNIA MARKET,

Telephone 188.

712 K Street.

NOTICE.

HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KIL-
GORE & CO., their interests in the grocery business, and reopened their old stand at the northwest corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.

T. H. COOK & CO.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

THE EMERALD

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MARCH 1, 1890.

No. 2.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.

A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

While it is true that every human being is given a mind, and presumably equal in each, still, the developments are not equal. Some denounce the idea of phrenology, and urge that it is bogus, and has a pernicious influence on many. We know there are great possibilities of human effort and labor, and the mind can, with training and development, accomplish wonders. Yet, it is certainly not in accord with nature to train all minds alike, and bring any degree of perfection in all the various compartments. No human being can possibly have a perfectly developed mind in all things. What fallacy would it be to say that any man, even trained from infancy, could develop into a great general, astronomer, statesman, musician, author, inventor—all embodied into one human form. Such an idea would refute all the history of the world. We believe in the mysterious powers of gifts and talent. We think men are gifted and talented over other men, and which no amount of training in the lesser gifted can develop into greatness. There is such a thing in the human composition as genius and talent. Genius is a gift, and is imbued into the mind without any training. Of course, this power can be augmented by opportunity, by development. Why, Nature makes thousands of sour, imperfect apples or peaches for one wholesome or palatable peach or apple. Millions of human beings are created before we find one Napoleon Bonaparte, one Edison, one Webster, one Grant, one Newton, one Confucius, one great astronomer, inventor, or statesman. Cente mille is a true expression—one in a million. We have only to look among ourselves to see that mind and mind differ. Who would, or could truthfully, assert that any mind, even in the frame of the most favored, could accomplish what A. J. Stevens has done for the mechanical world. It is not among the possibilities to take any mind and train it so as to become perfect. There is such a thing as the possibility of talent or of genius. One might, with equal propriety, say that we could take an infant born of the most ignorant of God's creatures, and develop its mind into all of the great accomplishments in art, music, statesmanship, generalship, and invention. Mind and mind differs. The general ideas of creation may be subject to the misconception that all men are created equal; but minds are not, neither are men, in the intellectual idea. Many a great man has been lost to the world for want of development, want of opportunity. There are mutilated minds from various causes—neglect, laziness, abuse, and many other reasons. It is absurd to say that any man can become a great artist, painter, actor, author, inventor, musician, statesman, orator, or any other accomplishment. Some minds are so constituted that they are easily trained into any particular thing. One man has a talent for music or painting, another for oratory or statesmanship, some for invention. With the great masses, no amount of training could develop any considerable proportion into any of these great accomplishments. We believe that ability to work may in many cases become the possibility of talent, and may achieve great things. But with all this, there is that mysterious power inculcated in a few human minds that makes them geniuses, even without training or development. There are compartments in the human mind which disclose in what direction that mind is bent, what it can excel in. Imagination is a prominent feature in some brains, music in others. Poetry holds sway in some minds, and invention is pronounced in others; and so on through all the powers of gift, genius and talent. Work is a great thing for the mind. No man can be fully acquainted with the hidden or mysterious power of the brain, until it is put to the crucial test by work. Opportunity and work produce great thinkers, great authors, great generals and statesmen. Necessity brings out the powers of mind in many instances. Whenever a great general is necessary, that necessity always produces him. So it is with all other affairs of the world; whenever a great inventor is necessary, he comes forth almost unbidden. So with poets, musicians, actors, orators, and other objects of genius or talent. No, all minds are not created alike; nor are they capable of the development into great things unless that gift, talent or genius, is there.

A few days ago the news was cabled from London that an English and Scotch syndicate had been formed with a subscribed capital of 100,000,000 of dollars presumably for the purpose of purchasing lands in the United States. While it is by no means a new thing for European capital to seek investment in land in the United States, it is a fact that within the past eight or ten years there has been renewed and greatly increased activity in these purchases. There is reason for this. The capitalists of the world are beginning to realize that the government of the United States is founded upon an enduring basis. We have never been able to fully appreciate with how much suspicion the nations of the earth have looked upon our government. Public opinion in foreign countries has been largely if not entirely controlled by the rulers thereof, and the crowned heads of Europe have industriously inculcated the idea among their subjects that our Republican form of government is but an experiment. In fact the experience of the world in the past seems largely to have justified that opinion. But within the past decade European economists have changed their estimation of the stability of our institutions. They witnessed our civil war, secretly hoping that our Union would be dismembered. We came out triumphant and stronger than ever. We lived through the reconstruction period and became, in fact and in deed, a reunited people. Large numbers of foreigners visited us in 1876 to witness our Centennial Exposition and went away filled with astonishment with the proofs of our material prosperity. But there have been causes at work in Europe within the past few years to warrant their thinking people in believing that a government founded upon the sovereignty of the people will soon be demanded by all civilized nations. They have witnessed the republic of France, in spite of plots and counter-plots, gradually become a permanent government, and demonstrate that the people through their representatives may be as strong as that of a monarchical government.

To add to their discomfiture the ease with which the Empire of Brazil has succumbed and in a day transformed itself into a republic; the fact that a majority of the people of Spain and Portugal are clamoring for a republic; that a revolution is yearly expected in Russia; that the government of Austria is virtually tottering to its fall; that in spite of the iron hand with which Germany is ruled, that the socialists have been enabled to make tremendous gains in all portions of that Empire; that it is an open question whether the Prince of Wales will ever be permitted to take his seat as King of England upon the demise of Queen Victoria; and, above all, the fact that in order to maintain even a temporary peall, immense standing armies are quartered in every country of Europe; and that to maintain these armies the people are taxed to such an extent that absolute starvation must inevitably ensue unless they are by some means relieved of their enormous burdens. These considerations have led the capitalists of Europe to look to the United States for the investment of their vast sums of hoarded wealth. Is it not time that we should call a halt and prevent any alien from acquiring, holding or owning land in any portion of the United States? Let us see: The Duke of Sutherland is said to own more than 500,000 acres of land in the United States. The Marquis of Tweeddale is largely interested in a company that owns 1,750,000 acres. Baron Dunmore of Worcester, owns individually 60,000 acres, and so we might go on and enumerate many others owning from 20,000 to 100,000 acres of land. These men reside in England and intend to remain there. The lands that they have obtained title to in the United States have been acquired at ridiculously low figures.

Railroads have been built across these lands, small towns have sprung up thereon, various industries started, immense herds of sheep and cattle are grazing on them, and all the people residing thereon are tenants of these foreign titled noblemen. Experience has taught us what we may expect from land owners of this class. The Duke of Sutherland owns a large tract of land in the highlands of Scotland. A few years ago he conceived the idea that it would be more profitable to him to convert his estates into pastoral lands—that he could make more money pasturing stock than by farming it. This noble duke, with a barbarous cruelty scarcely credible, cleaned from his highland estates 15,000 people—drove these poor Gaelic men, women and children from the homes which they had occupied from time immemorial, and filled the land with wailings and despair. These shocking cruelties were perpetrated under the guise of English law. How often we read of some duke or earl clearing some large portions of his estates of his tenants in order that he might convert it into a deer-park. The whole world has stood aghast at the sufferings of the Irish tenant, robbed of his ancient inheritance by the strong arm of the English soldier; for centuries he has existed in his thatched mud hut that he might pour into the lap of his absentee landlord the fat of the land. And these wrongs have been perpetrated by Englishmen living in England, upon people living under the same flag; people to whom they are under the strongest obligations socially, morally and politically, to foster and protect.

The English people are a nation of robbers. Brave, energetic and venturesome, they have advanced their arms until they own a large portion of every continent on the face of the earth. Just consider for a moment what they have done. They own the whole of East India; the whole of South Africa; fully one-half of North America; the whole of Australia. And in all these vast countries the people are working, striving, toiling in their order to fill the coffers of their masters in England. The tenants are deprived of the necessities of life in order to furnish the landlords with all the luxuries. But this is not all. Russia, France, Germany, Turkey, Spain, Italy, Portugal, Austria, the United States, in fact all the civilized countries of the world, have borrowed countless millions from Englishmen. In every land the tax-gatherer is calling upon the rich and poor alike to pay the interest on English bonds. Note what follows: England, with a portion of the money paid into her treasury, increases her enormous navy, until at all times it is equal in efficiency and power to the combined navies of the world. Thus by means of her money, ships and brains, she is enabled to enforce her demands, and the whole world pays her tribute. We said at the beginning of this article that an English syndicate had been formed of $100,000,000 to purchase lands, presumably in the United States. $100,000,000 devoted to that purpose is alarming enough, but that is merely the advance guard of the countless millions which must follow. Stop and consider: $100,000,000 at $50 per acre means 2,000,000 acres of improved land; a tract nearly 56 miles square and containing 3,025 square miles, sufficient land to give 40 acres each to 50,000 farmers. 50,000 farmers will support on the land 400,000 people.

But when we take into consideration the fact that the major portion of this enormous sum of money will be applied towards purchasing the so-called wild, unimproved lands at sums varying from $2 to $10 per acre, we are enabled to appreciate what this investment means. When they have secured the land, facilities will be provided to improve it. Tenants will be invited to settle thereon and the poor of America will be put to work on their vast estates to make them blossom as the rose, and send their hard earned dollars to England. Something should be done and done immediately. Is it not criminal for us to sit idly by and permit ourselves and our children to be despoiled of our and their inheritance? Something has been done—on March 3, 1887, an Act was passed by the Congress of the United States which makes it unlawful for any alien to thereafter acquire or hold real estate in any of the then territories of the United States, except such as should be acquired in good faith in the ordinary course of justice in the collection of debts theretofore created. A number of years ago the great State of Illinois was goaded into passing a similar law which likewise prohibited aliens from holding or acquiring lands in that State.

But we who live upon the Pacific Coast are in greater danger than any portion of the United States. Unfortunately large tracts of land were granted by the Mexican Government to private persons while California was a Mexican province. These grants have been confirmed by the United States Government. In addition the struggle to obtain titles to public lands has become intensified within the past few years to a degree previously unknown. In this struggle large aggregations of capital are participating. Multiplicity of systems of public land entry have assisted; criminal laxity of the laws in regard to settlement have fostered it. The result is that we have, especially in California, an alarming aggregation of large estates for permanent proprietorship, or for holdings for speculative purposes when available public lands have been exhausted. One man owns 300,000 acres of the best land in this State, and it is said that he is now bartering with an English company to effect a sale of it to them. We people in Sacramento can realize what a curse the holding of a large tract of land is when we contemplate the magnificent estate of 30,000 acres now lying idle just north of the confines of our city. Setting aside the question of the welfare of the masses, the stability of all nations, and especially of republics, depends in a large measure upon the land being held in comparatively small portions.

He who has an interest in the soil is the most independent, economical and incorruptible in the administration of the laws of his country. In short, attached to his home, he is at all times the most patriotic, and there are many wise statesmen who believe that only he should be permitted to use the elective franchise who owns some spot of land. Again, we believe that the man who reaps the benefits of the fruits of the soil should be compelled to share all of its burdens; in the event of war that he should be compelled to take up arms to support its flag; and, more than all, in times of peace to give his counsels and exercise the elective franchise for the welfare of the land. There is and can be but one remedy for this state of affairs. We should at the next session of the Legislature pass an act prohibiting aliens from acquiring any land within the State of California. We should urge our representatives to bring the matter to the attention of Congress, to the end that a similar law be incorporated in the Constitution of the United States. When we shall have accomplished this, then, and not till then, will we be safe from the results inevitably attendant upon absentee landlordism.

ASTRONOMY AND THEOLOGY.

Has the Development of the Heliocentric Theory of the World Been Embarrassed by the Votaries of Theology?

By HON. JOHN W. ARMSTRONG, Superior Judge, Sacramento County.

[CONCLUDED.]

Nicholas de Cusa, whose family name was Krebs, the son of a fisherman, was born about the year 1401, in a small hamlet called Cusa, on the banks of the Moselle, and he died in 1464. He was educated for a priest. He was a man of bold and original thought. Early in life he manifested great interest in astronomy. He studied in the chief universities of Germany and Italy. As an astronomer he openly and boldly defended the system of Philolaus and Pythagoras, as to the earth revolving on its axis and around the sun. By reason of his great talent he became Archdeacon of Liege, and in that capacity assisted at the Council of Basil, in 1431, when he was but thirty years of age. He had written several books, and among them was a treatise on astronomy, in which he boldly declared it to be his conviction that the earth and not the sun is in motion, and that the true system should be called, not geocentric, but heliocentric. This opinion he maintained, side by side with his friend Cardinal Cesarini, before the assembled fathers of the council. For the great services rendered by him to the cause of science, he was summoned to Rome, and by the reigning pontiff, Nicholas V, was created a cardinal, and appointed to the archbishopric of Brixen, in the Tyrol. Unlike the philosophers and astronomers who preceded him, who made their astronomical and scientific theories rest upon the evidence by which they established their theology, from which resulted so many conflicting theories, he founded his astronomical theories upon the evidence which he drew from science alone, and his theology was founded in the faith of the truth of revelation. He was also a great reformer of abuses in the church. The works of the Cardinal Nicholas de Cusa are still extant in the Vatican library at Rome.

The heliocentric theory of the world as maintained by Nicholas de Cusa, was, less than half a century afterwards, advocated by Nicholas Copernicus, who was born on the 19th day of February, 1473, at Thorn, in Polish Prussia. He was a Jesuit priest, but having a great taste for astronomy, went into Italy, where that science was taught with great success. And after attending the lectures of Regiomontanus, a celebrated astronomer, attended the lectures of another celebrated Italian astronomer, Dominic Maria, at Bologna, being desirous to render himself illustrious as an astronomer as well as a priest. Afterward he went to Rome, where his talents secured him a place as professor of mathematics and astronomy. While there he made many valuable observations and discoveries in astronomy. But he soon afterward quitted Rome and retired to Frauenberg, where his uncle, then Bishop of Warmia, made him a canon. It was in this retired abode that, by thirty-six years of observations and meditations, he established his theory of the motion of the earth. Newcomb, in his Popular Astronomy, speaks of Copernicus thus:

"The fundamental principles of the Copernican system are embodied in two distinct propositions, which have to be proved separately; and one of which might have been true without the other being so. They are as follows: 1. The diurnal revolution of the heavens is only an apparent motion, caused by a diurnal revolution of the earth on an axis passing through the center. 2. The earth is one of the planets, all of which revolve around the sun, as the center of motion. The true center of the celestial motions is, therefore, not the earth, but the sun. For this reason the Copernican system is frequently spoken of in historical discussions as the heliocentric theory."

This is a fair statement of his doctrines. As early as 1507, while teaching in the University at Rome, he had formulated his system; but it was not made public till about 1540, when his friend Cardinal Rheticus published a brief statement of his theory. And about three years afterward, and just before he died, his great work on the celestial revolutions was published by Cardinal Schomberg at his own expense, and dedicated to the then reigning Pontiff, Paul III. There was one thing which distinguished this philosopher from the ancient philosophers. He did not confound the physical evidence, which convinced him of the truth of his astronomical theories, with the moral evidence or faith by which divine revelation is established. But Tycho Brahe, who was a Dane, and born December 4, 1546, three years after the death of Copernicus, though a great astronomer, rejected the Copernican system; but his disciple, Kepler, did not. He was born December 21, 1571, in Wurtemberg, and died November 15, 1630. After he had received instructions from Tycho Brahe, he studied astronomy under the instructions of Mastlin, a Lutheran priest and professor of astronomy in the University at Tübingen, and an adherent of the Copernican theory. He established what are now known by astronomers as the three laws of Kepler, which are founded upon the system of Nicholas de Cusa and Copernicus. As stated by the astronomer Newcomb, they are: 1. The orbit of each planet is an ellipse having the sun in one focus. 2. As the planet moves around the sun, its radius-vector, or the line of joining it to the sun, passes over equal areas in equal times. 3. The third law of planetary motion is the square of the time of revolution of each planet and is proportional to the cube of its mean distance from the sun. This great astronomer and the result of his labors fell upon evil times. He was a Lutheran Protestant. Before his works could be published he was required to lay them before the Protestant Academical Senate of Tübingen, for their approval and approbation. The unanimous decision of the divines comprising the Senate was that Kepler's book contained a deadly heresy, because, as they claimed, it contradicted the teachings of the Bible in that passage where Joshua commanded the sun to stand still. To this Kepler replied, that as the Bible addressed itself to mankind, in general, it spoke of things in the life of men as men in general are accustomed to speak of them: that the Bible was in no respect a manual of optics or astronomy, but had much higher objects in view; that it was a blamable abuse to seek in it for answers to worldly things; that Joshua had wished to have the day prolonged, and God had responded to his wish; how this had happened was not a subject for inquiry. But this answer was not satisfactory; his book was condemned as heretical and he denounced as a heretic, and only the interference of the Duke of Wurtemberg saved him from the severest persecutions. While under the ban of persecution he wrote to Mastlin, his old master and friend, "that he held it for the best to imitate the disciples of Pythagoras, and keep silence on the discoveries he had made, lest, like Apian, he should lose his situation and be doomed to die of hunger." But he was, nevertheless, soon compelled to leave Wurtemberg and take refuge with the Jesuits at Gratz. Though he continued a Protestant to the last, he was honored by them for his great talents. Wolfgang Menzel, in his history of Germany, vol. ii, page 308, in speaking in relation to the persecution of Kepler, said: "His discovery was condemned by the Tübingen University as contrary to the Bible. He was about to destroy his work when an asylum was granted to him at Gratz, which he afterward quitted for the Imperial Court. He was, notwithstanding his Lutheran principles, tolerated by the Jesuits, who knew how to value scientific knowledge. He was persecuted solely in his native country, where he with difficulty saved his mother from being burnt as a witch." The Imperial Court referred to by this historian was the Court of Rudolph II of Bohemia, at Prague. But this royal patron failed to pay the poor astronomer his salary, and he died in want and destitution. But it will be observed that he held his scientific and religious theories independent of each other, as wisdom certainly dictated. The one was not made dependent upon the other.

We now come to the consideration of the case of Galileo, the great Italian mathematician and astronomer. While he made many valuable discoveries in astronomy, he did not discover the motion of the earth on its axis and round the sun, as has been supposed by some. We have seen that this discovery was made and maintained as the true theory of the constitution of the solar system, not only during the century preceding, but for many centuries before his time. But he was, with many others of his time, an advocate of this system; and his name was made more prominent in connection with it by reason of the condemnation by the Papal Court of his theological conclusions drawn therefrom. In this connection we quote from Hallam, who, in his "History of Modern Literature of Europe," vol. ii, page 248, says:

"For eighty years, it has been said, this theory of the earth's motion had been maintained without censure; and it could only be the greater boldness of Galileo in its assertion which drew down upon him the notice of the church. But in these eighty years since the publication of the treatise of Copernicus, his proselytes had been surprisingly few. They were now becoming more numerous; several had written on that side, and Galileo had begun to form a school of Copernicans, who were spreading over Italy. The Lincean Society, one of the most useful and renowned of Italian academies, founded at Rome by Frederic Cesi, a young man of noble birth, in 1603, had, as a fundamental law, to apply themselves to natural philosophy, and it was impossible that so attractive and rational a system as that of Copernicus could fail of pleasing an acute and ingenious nation strongly bent upon science."

The theory of Galileo was rejected by Lord Bacon

with great warmth and force of expression, as did Descartes and many other astronomers of the time reject it, and being pressed by the adverse criticisms of astronomers, he went to Rome, and at his request, Cardinal Bellarmine appointed a commission of the ablest astronomers of Rome to hear him in defense of his system, and after a careful consideration, the commission declared that the discoveries made by him were undeniable, yet they did not regard his proofs as demonstrative of the truth of the Copernican system. Though not satisfied with the result, he obtained the blessing of Pope Paul V, as was the custom of the times, and bidding farewell to his many friends, returned to Florence. If he had been content with that determination, he would have avoided all future trouble, but a few years afterward he conceived the idea of proving the truth of the Copernican system from the Scriptures as orthodox, and asserted that some portions of the Scriptures could not be satisfactorily explained unless his theory was admitted. A denunciation was drawn up against him, and he was formally accused of interpreting the Scriptures in a sense at variance with the teachings of the fathers. But the denunciation was quashed, in hopes that he would desist from confounding the teachings of the Scriptures with the scientific investigations of the stars. Many letters were written to him by his friends in Rome entreating him not to interfere with the Scriptures, but to confine himself to scientific argumentation. Monsignor Campoli wrote to him: "I have been emphatically assured by Cardinal Barberini that you will be put to no trouble, provided you do not travel out of the limit of physics and mathematics." But he paid no attention to this admonition. He knew that Cardinal Barberini was his warm personal friend and was fully satisfied of the truth of the Copernican system. The Cardinal belonged to the Lincean Society, the society mentioned by Hallam, and was himself an astronomer of the Copernican school and devotedly attached as a scientist to the theory. On the death of Paul V, he became Pope Urban VIII. Galileo presumed upon his relations with, and knowledge of, the scientific opinions of the Pope, who had just succeeded to the chair of Peter. He was not content, either, to hold his opinions as a philosophical probability, or to uphold them on merely scientific grounds. He would have them acknowledged as an unquestionable truth, and would have them determined and declared by the inquisition as conformable to Scripture. For this purpose he went to Rome again and was again well and warmly received; but here his troubles commenced. He was ordered by the Court to abstain from teaching as a demonstrated fact that the earth was in motion, as it appeared to be, against the words of Scripture, and sentenced him to remain a prisoner at the will of the Court. But the Pope did not approve the decree, so it never became ex cathedra. But he was permitted to retire to his villa on the banks of the Arno, with the promise that he would not teach that the Copernican system was established by the Scriptures.

However, subsequently, he did in a letter to the grand Duchess of Tuscany argue very elaborately to prove the truth of his theory from the Scriptures, but no notice was taken of it. If he had done as Kepler he would have had no trouble, but his impetuous disposition drove him beyond reason. The true point of dispute between the Papal Court and Galileo was not as to whether science furnished sufficient evidence to prove that it was probable that the earth revolved on its axis and annually around the sun, but whether the Scriptures furnished demonstrative evidence of the truth or falsity of the theory. But the controversy had one good effect. It established the fact that while the truth of revealed religion or the religion of the Scriptures and science were in nowise dependent, the one upon the other for the evidence of its truth; yet they may consist together; and this being established, when the conflict between the Papal Court and Galileo had ceased, revealed religion or the religion of the Scriptures and astronomical science, divorced from each other and unfettered, rapidly advanced forward on a line of progress to a high state of rational development, and the civilized world is enjoying its fruits. But in all ages of the world, both priests and philosophers have sought to discover in nature evidence to prove that there is a sentient or intelligent creator of the universe. For this purpose the starry fields of heaven have been explored for ages. The laws that govern the various systems of the worlds in their harmonious movements in illimitable space have been read in the book of nature with a hope to find a satisfactory solution of the question: Can these laws and worlds exist without a sentient or intelligent creator? But conjecture responds: Can they exist without a sentient or intelligent creator? So the priests and philosophers have unceasingly in times past observed and explored, and will continue to observe and explore the vaulted heavens for evidence to prove the existence of a living God. This branch of theology is closely connected with science, and evidence may be drawn from science in support of it, as well as the evidence to be found in Scripture, though the religion which rests upon revelation must stand on revelation alone; and this was the opinion of Cardinal Barberini, afterward Urban VIII.

In conclusion, we think it must be conceded that, taking a retrospective view of the history of astronomy, the conclusion results irresistibly that in seeking for evidence of the creator of the universe, the priests and philosophers of all ages have been stimulated to observe and contemplate the laws of nature governing the stars, planets and systems of worlds which move in illimitable space in the heavens; and this has led to the great discoveries in astronomy, only a few of which have been mentioned on this paper. The lay astronomers in both ancient and modern times adhered to the geocentric theory as they would believe nothing that did not appear to the eye to be so, but the theologians who gave attention to the science of astronomy drew their knowledge of truth as was their habit in all things from probabilities resting upon moral as distinguished from demonstrative evidence discovered the heliocentric theory of the world. Therefore, the inference is that the development of the heliocentric theory of the world has not been embarrassed, but aided by the votaries of theology.

Sleeping With the Head Toward the North.

The superstitious belief that human beings should sleep with their head towards the north, is now believed to be based upon a scientific principle. The French Academy of Sciences has made experiments upon the body of a guillotined man, which go to prove that each human body is in itself an electric battery, one electrode being represented by the head and the other by the feet. The body of the subject upon which experiments were made, was taken immediately after death and placed upon a pivot, free to move in any direction. After some vacillation the head portion turned towards the north, the pivot-board then remaining stationary. One of the professors turned it half way around, but it soon regained a position with the head piece to the north; and the same results were repeatedly obtained until organic movement ceased.

The essence of all fine breeding is the gift of conciliation. A man who possesses every title to our respect except that of courtesy is in danger of forfeiting them all. A rude manner renders its owner liable to affront. He is never without dignity who avoids wounding the dignity of others.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Mozart wrote his requiem under the conviction that the monument he was erecting to his genius would prove a monument to his own remains. When life was ebbing fast, he called for the score; and as he mused over it, he said: "Did I not tell you truly, that it was for myself that I composed this death chant?"

Most children who go on the stage at an early age are a good deal better there than they would be off it. The fact that they are put to work so young, is evidence enough that their earnings are needed in their families. Their duties are not severe enough to injure them; and, while their surroundings are not the best in the world, they are infinitely better than those of a factory, or any other place where they would be likely to obtain employment. In any event, it is much better that they should go on the stage than go hungry.

The Kentucky Legislature has been asked to strike a severe blow at the great American circus. A bill has been introduced in its lower house, making a circus liable for not presenting features which it advertises. The measure gives any circus-goer the right to complain, if he is dissatisfied. Just think for a moment what this implies. It compels the manager to print new posters if the fat man happens to lose suddenly a few pounds of flesh, or the living skeleton adds ten ounces to his weight by chance. If the tattooed man and the Circassian girl should happen to elope, the old posters at once become useless. Really, the Kentucky legislators should pause before they hit the circus so hard.

In connection with Strauss' Vienna orchestra, which comes to this country in May, the Treasury Department at Washington has been called upon to decide whether a musician is an "artist." There seems to be only one side to the question. Webster, under his definition of the word "artiste," cites a musician as worthy of that title. Worcester includes music in his list of modern arts. The ancients always considered music one of the arts. The fact that the Treasury Department once declared that members of a circus band were not artists, has nothing to do with the case. Circus posters are not works of art any more than circus Zulus are Africans. It takes an artist, however, to play in Strauss' orchestra.

Julia Marlowe has never undergone the terrors of the "interviewing" fiend, says the New York Star, and it remained for an ingenious Philadelphia reporter to make the last attempt—so far as is known. The fair star, when playing in that city, was in the habit of driving in Fairmount Park, and sometimes alighting at the "Zoo," where she enjoyed the antics of the various animals. The bear pit was a favorite spot, and here one afternoon the ingenious reporter had stationed his sister, with instructions to enter into conversation with Miss Marlowe, if possible, and to remember what she said, so the clever young man could get his "interview." The actress drove up to the scene, and presently began feeding cakes to the smallest bear, when the sister said: "What curious creatures! are they not?" "Very," murmured Miss Marlowe. "Why do you suppose they take such liberties with each other, and why don't the brown ones notice the black one?" persisted the impertinent miss. "Probably because they have never been introduced to each other, and they dislike impudence," softly said Miss Marlowe; and as the discomfited young woman looked ready to sink into the earth, the actress walked over and gave the baby bear a bun.

Book Chat.

Mrs. Humphry Ward, author of "Robert Elsmere" is one of the most accomplished dinner-givers in London.

Anelie Rivers-Chanler is not likely to return to this country for some years. She says that she will never write another novel.

Valdes, the Spanish novelist, is said to look more like a German than a thoroughbred Spaniard. His hair and beard are dark, but his face has a marked Teutonic cast.

Mr. W. A. Clouston, who has done much to give an English popularity to Oriental literature, will shortly issue a new volume under the title of "Flowers From a Persian Garden," the leading essay consisting of extracts from the "Gulistan," of Sadi. Other essays will deal in the same way with the well-known "Tute Nana," or "Parrot Book," the Arabian love story of "Majnun and Layla," Rabbinical legends from the Talmud and anecdotes of Oriental wit and humor.

Here's to Life and it's fleeting dreams,
Transient pleasures and idle dreams;
Here's to the struggle for wealth or fame,
Win or lose, it is much the same.
We'll pledge to-night in the rosy wine,
Who knows that to-morrow the sun will shine?
Then let us gather, as down we glide,
The flowers that bloom by the riverside.

Why should we murmur while bright eyes beam?
True, we are drifting down the stream;
But love is ours; and its scenes of bliss,
The smile of beauty and woman's kiss,
We'll pledge to-night.

The bell is tolling the years away,
So here's to Age and his locks of gray;
And a glass to Time—let him smile or frown,
Sooner or later he mows us down—
We'll pledge to-night.

Fill up to friends, to the old and new;
Drink to the hearts that are tried and true;
Life at best is a transient state,
With not a moment to spare for hate.
We'll pledge to-night in the rosy wine,
Who knows that to-morrow the sun will shine?
Then let us gather, as down we glide,
The flowers that bloom by the riverside.

Professional Chat.

Senator Vance says a constituent of his in a pine woods district of North Carolina, to whom he sent a copy of one of the patent office annual reports, spoke to him of the occurrence in this way: "General, I got them speeches 'o yours, but I couldn't read 'em through. Thar war a leetle too much Whig docterin into 'em."

Senator Evarts got off a good thing on a gentleman at a party in Washington about distinguishing between a canvas back and a red head. "An infallible test," he remarked, "is in the length of the bill." Just here he was completely broken up by a lady who leaned forward and interjected, "But, Senator, I neither serve canvas backs or red heads at my table with bills."

"Where are you Democrats going to let Reed drag you?" said a "Majali" to a Democratic Congressman in front of Willard's yesterday. "Don't ask me," replied the Congressman. "I am like the Irishman who was leading a bull into a small country town. Pat was going along smoking a short clay pipe, with one end of the rope wrapped around his wrist, the other end being attached to the bull's horns. Suddenly the bull threw up his head and started on the run down through the town. He first whipped Pat around one corner, and then around another. 'Where are you going, Pat?' asked one of his friends. 'Be Gad, I don't know; ask the bull.'"

Governor Beaver, of Pennsylvania, was known to be a strict disciplinarian during the war, as well as Commander-in-chief of the National Guard. While Lieutenant Colonel of the Forty-fifth Regiment, Beaver was one day sitting in front of his tent, when a slouchy-looking soldier with ill-fitting uniform came along, stopped and inquired: "Vere ish der doctor?" "Is that the way you address your superior officer, sir?" roared Colonel Beaver. The German stared at his superior officer in amazement, but said never a word. "Here sir; take this chair. You be the Colonel, and I will teach you how to address an officer." "Vas me der boss of der regiment?" "Yes; take this chair and I will show you how to act." The soldier sat down in front of the tent. Colonel Beaver walked off a few paces, turned about, returned to a position in front of the officer pro tempore, squared himself around, made a military salute and inquired: "Colonel, can you inform me where I can find the surgeon of the regiment?" The soldier arose, and looking seriously and straight at Beaver, replied: "D—d if I know where he is."

The distinguishing feature of Abraham Lincoln's law practice, in which, unfortunately, he had few imitators, was that he never took a case in which he did not fully believe. First and foremost he insisted that the right should be on his side. The elder Jefferson was a member of a theatrical corporation which built and fitted out a theater in Springfield. A religious revival was in progress in the town, and the big men of the churches induced the town trustees to pass an ordinance for a prohibitory show license. The company had invested all their funds, the legislature was in session, and the town was full of people. Strangers who yearned for the theater were being forced into the religious meetings or to cool their heels at the hotels. It was one of those periods of religious fanaticism which periodically strike small towns. Lincoln heard of the injustice and offered his services, win or lose, without pay. He went before the council and made what is now known as a Chauncey M. Depew speech, handling the subject with tact, skill and humor, and tracing the history of the drama from the time when Thespis acted in a cart to the stage in question. The council was in a roar, good humor prevailed and the tax was taken off, much to the chargin of the whilom religionists. The suit did much to establish Lincoln's reputation and to make him friends locally. As goes without saying, Jefferson never forgot the favor.

NOTES.

The latest political response from the oracle is, that the sage of Princeton, John Boggs, is to head the Democratic ticket this fall as candidate for Governor. And there are holy and outspoken men in those ranks, who swear by the holy Hindoos, that they will call a convention of "independents" if only to defeat him.

During the last two Presidential campaigns the paid and bigotted agitators were loud in their declarations: "We must destroy the Republican party to make prohibition a success." These senseless agitators never lose an opportunity to stab the Republican party, even in municipal politics, and the usual result is to foster the enemies of all temperance reform.

The fellow who wrote about what most pleases women came near the mark when he said: Women are happiest when they can lean their heads up against the shoulder of some great big man, tell of their woes and joys, be laughed at, kissed, be patted and assured of being "a ridiculous little donkey, but after all, a pretty good girl." That's what they like best.

A young lady artist wishing to show her admiration of the great English Premier made a pretty sketch of him sitting on the log of a tree which he had just felled, with Ariel, clothed as a female sprite, hovering over him. Mr. Gladstone acknowledged the receipt of the gift thus: "Dear Madam: Many thanks for your most pleasing drawings. I had always considered Ariel as masculine, but probably you are right."

That was a quaint and wierd contrast from the solemn offices of the chimnes and the devotions of a Christian church, where a demented tellow climbed up in the belfry and played the Devil's Dream on the bells during religious services. While engaged in this wild rhapsody the unfortunate mind-wrecked creature fell amid the startled congregation. It was a strange freak to ascend the tower and indulge in the Devil's Dream, so much at variance with Divine worship. Asmodeus, a fanciful creation of La Sage in Le Diable Boiteux, was pictured as flying from house top to house top, gaining through his devilish power, a knowledge of the secrets of the household of the king and the peasant. Perhaps this unfortunate being who climbed the belfry and indulged in the Devil's Dream was imbued with the spirit of Asmodeus to that extent, but met a mortal's fate in falling. An appropriate accompaniment to this wild rhapsody would have been a rendition of Byron's Devil's Drive.

In these days the "live" newspaper devotes more space and larger headlines to the man who develops the greatest brute force and power of physical endurance. Muscle, brawn, has the call on brains. If some fellow has developed his muscle so as to stand more punishment than some other fellow, and saves himself from getting "licked" or "knocked out," by "licking" or "knocking out" the other fellow, he is hailed as a great champion, and the newspapers devote columns to his glorious achievement. He is greeted by an exulting crowd—banquets are given him equal to that of some great conquering chieftain. The brainy man, who has revolutionized the world by some great invention, the author who has influenced hundreds of thousands for good, the statesman who has formulated plans of science of government and political economy, can travel the world over and not receive an ovation like those given to some pig-headed brute, who has trained his muscle so as to endure great punishment and strike a sledge-hammer blow.

Street Commissioner McLaughlin has adopted the right course in matters of street and sidewalk obstructions. The constituted authorities have a legal right to abate any obstruction of the public streets as a public nuisance. It is no answer to say that others in the past have obstructed the streets, therefore no notice should be taken of other obstructions being created. There must be a starting point in the enforcement of the laws concerning street obstructions. If a property owner has the right to encroach upon the street one foot, the right would, by the same reasoning, exist to extend structures to the middle of the street. The city is the owner of the streets, and has full control thereof. While there are many invasions of the public rights by street obstructions, these will in due time doubtless receive attention from the city authorities. Any attempted new structure that encroaches on the streets should be abated before it reaches completion. Prosecution under the penal laws are fruitless, for the reason that jurors are too easily influenced by sympathy, interest or other causes.

It is absolutely farcical to note the profound interest manifested in the moral welfare of San Francisco, by some of the leading newspapers. Column after column is written and published about the terrible effects of the ten-cent China lotteries. The courts are excited over this fearful encroachment on the rights of free American citizens. So great has become this evil that courts are engaged in criminating and recriminating one another at the bay city, for not being more severe on these violators of our penal laws. The whole police force of San Francisco has been importuned to suppress this great evil. Every day some poor devil of a heathen is brought before the avenging Nemesis—the police court—for having in his possession Chinese lottery tickets; and, in answer to the demands of the great dailies, the judge makes an example of the unfortunate possessor of these Chinese characters, called ten-cent tickets in their lotteries, and is fined the full penalty of the law. Now, the remarkable feature of this affair is the fact that these same papers, officers, and judges know of the existence of great lottery agencies, where hundreds of thousands of dollars are monthly invested by their citizens; and these same newspapers publish the lists of the drawings as an advertisement, and often comment on the lucky winners of prizes, and never a word against the iniquity. It does not come with a good grace, that fair and impartial administration of the law, that a favored few should escape the penalty of their acts, while the heathen, because he is a heathen, must be hunted, watched, and arrested for having a ten-cent lottery coupon. Consistency is, indeed a jewel; but our San Francisco officials and newspapers know not of consistency.

The government of the United States is in that condition of peace and good will with all the nations of the earth, that she can well afford to express herself in the matter of Russia's cruel and tyrannical behavior toward the Siberian captives. Our Congress should, at its present session, unanimously adopt resolutions emphatically condemning the method pursued by that remorseless power against her political and other victims, who are banished to the inhospitable salt mines of that barren waste that has become synonymous with all that is merciless, inhuman, and void of pity. If the present Congress contains a silent Clay, or Corwin, or McDuffie, he now has the opportunity of immortalizing himself and making his memory famous, by espousing the cause of those forsaken, wretched, and hopeless victims of a nation's blood-thirsty laws. Our country is ever ready by its representatives to extend the hand of congratulation to the nation that rises up and casts off the shackles of serfdom; especially when such people establish themselves as a republican form of government. Witness the joyous manifestations of Congress in the case of Greece, in 1823, when Henry Clay gave utterance to some of the grandest outbursts of eloquent patriotism that ever awakened a deliberative body. The South American States, too, found universal recognition in this country, in their heroic struggle for recognition in 1818, and our Congress took the lead among the powers of the earth in lending moral aid and encouragement to that grand step that finally eventuated in an overthrow of Spanish thralldom that for centuries had there dominated. Later down in history, the United States Congress was able to felicitate France in her happy substitution of the present republic for the ancient and effete monarchy that had so long lorded it over an unhappy people.

If, then, our government has in the past been able to express its fellow-feeling for those newly assumed national conditions, what is to prevent it from taking the initiative in most forcibly animadverting upon and condemning the damnable inhumanity that has long characterized the Russian empire, in its despotism toward those unfortunate enough to have come under the ban of its displeasure? An emphatic denunciation of the infamous conduct of the omnipotent Czar, on the part of our Federal Congress, would attract the attention of the organized governments of the earth and, no doubt, induce them to join their anathemas with those of the United States. At least, it would put our own nation on record as ever and continuously the unswerving friend of the oppressed, and the undying enemy of tyranny, wherever found.

Political.

A week ago THEMIS published a careful resumé of the politics of this city, and outlined the events that have happened in political circles. It has been said, and with truth, that politics makes strange bedfellows. It is a matter of some little astonishment that on the question of the composition of the Republican City Committee, so many gentlemen, who would be supposed to know better, should place themselves in a position of ridicule.

The caucuses were held in most of the precincts Thursday evening, and the main battle fought. As we go to press the primary is progressing. While much has been said and printed concerning the primary election and its preliminaries, it is apparent that the whole affair is but a repetition of what has often occurred in the past.

The history of Republican politics in this city in the last few years has been strange. We outlined it somewhat a week ago. A movement was inaugurated to correct abuses and it had a large following of conscientious citizens. The political raft that was then constructed floated for a time legitimately and successfully, but gradually its better passengers abandoned it, and under the flag of purity it was manned by an element that made little secret that they were on a cruise of political piracy. While the black flag with skull and cross bones could have been raised with propriety, the emblem of purity was floated, and made to stand sponsor for acts bordering on political crime.

The result of the caucus is no surprise to any intelligent citizen. Its meaning is simply this: The Republican party engaged in a house-cleaning; it is ridding itself of objectionable barnacles. It had come to be that men, whose morals and associations were not of the best, assumed to hold the yoke under which candidates would be required to bend; capacity and intelligence counted for nothing; coin ruled. It is not, therefore, surprising that rebellion came, and that the body of the party pronouncedly declared its independence.

Without doubt this pronounced action of the people was largely brought about by the fact that in view of the primaries and the city election the Great Register of the county was loaded down with names of objectionable characters, and under the auspices of men who made no secret they were in politics for gain. It is difficult to understand why the political blatants who have made themselves so conspicuous and obnoxious did not long ago foresee that the barometer of public opinion was rapidly falling and that a disastrous storm was impending. True it is that the offenders are few, and it is presumed they have remaining intelligence sufficient to understand what this thing means. As a rule gentlemen anyway sagacious saw the handwriting on the wall and got under cover. It is truly a matter of gratification that the party has rid itself of elements of impurity and that its members are now in a position to better understand each other.

We have an assurance that the convention that will be held Tuesday will be composed of representative Republicans, and of men whose standing will merit public confidence. We have outlined in former numbers what the ticket will probably be. From the material that will be presented no mistake can be made, and there can be no doubt of the success of the entire ticket.

As has been generally understood, the contest has been as to the composition of the Central Committee. Upon that subject we feel as we stated last week, that it is one not of particular consequence, and the remark we made that these bodies, as a rule, are composed of men whose minds are not broad enough to comprehend the party situation, but seem to have the idea they are selected for the sole purpose of representing some little faction, was quite forcibly demonstrated at the caucuses Thursday night. The rule has always been that the committeeman from a precinct shall call the caucus to order and preside until the selection of the chairman. In three instances the committeemen attempted by arbitrary and absurd maneuvering, to thwart the will of the people, and as could reasonably be expected, each was severely rebuffed. We are somewhat surprised at the action of these gentlemen, for they are prominent in business circles, and men of intelligence enough to have understood that the tactics they pursued have rarely been successful. It is no creditable reflection that at the same hour in three precincts of six in this city, a cut and dried programme was attempted to be engineered by the presiding committeemen. In each instance the presiding committeeman had two nominations for chairmen regularly presented, and in each instance the vote was arbitrarily taken on but one, yet by a very significant coincidence the people succeeded in seating the candidate ignored by the committeeman.

The gentleman who called the meeting to order in the third precinct sat in very many local and State conventions; the representative in 3½, though not so familiar with parliamentary rules, has had a wide experience, and is of unusual intelligence; the committeeman in 4½ served one term as Sergeant-at-Arms of the State Assembly, and of course had opportunity for becoming educated as to the rules of government of public bodies. There are many things in this world we can understand; halls are useful for appropriate displays. The enterprise of the Bee enabled the people of 3½ to know in advance of the meeting the programme that was intended to be carried out. It had been supposed in that precinct, that the stereotyped methods of running politics did not prevail, and the publication of the fac simile of the programme was a surprise to the people of the district. It had the result of attracting a very large number of citizens, who otherwise would have stayed away, and of course the cut and dried arrangement was severely voted down. The third ward has always been the most independent in the city; and in primary politics it has always been that the people would meet, and calmly and understandingly select their representatives. Particularly has this been the case in three and a half. Rarely before in its history has what is known as machine politics been indulged in. The publication of this programme in the Bee was very painful to the people, and in consideration of the excellent reputation of the ward, it is to be hoped such a proceeding will never again be attempted. The third ward has done more than any other to secure in this city pure politics, and therefore it is that this matter has hurt the feelings of the people there so badly.

The result of the caucuses has placed the Republican party in this city in the best possible position of advantage. In every precinct the voice of the great people has been heard; there can be no mistaking its tone. On every hand, attempts to exercise boss rule have been effectually crushed; the great people has assumed the bossship. The convention that will be to-day selected, will present the people a ticket against which no opposition will be seriously made; and the composition of the Central Committee will be such that will command the confidence of the people. The petty factional differences that have existed are wiped out; the bosses will be permitted to attend their own business, and the people will hereafter do their own thinking.

What Our Contemporaries Say of Us.

The neatest looking paper in the city is THEMIS. It is not only neat in appearance, but it is interesting in matter; and its editorials on local matters are always thoughtful, even if they occasionally lack judgment.—Evening Bee.

THEMIS, the weekly literary and political paper which was started in Sacramento one year ago, has entered upon its second volume. It is a bright and readable journal, and has published during the year several very valuable articles. It announces that it has entered the journalistic field to stay.—Record-Union.

The Sacramento THEMIS has just entered upon its second volume. It is one of the neatest weekly papers in the State, and ranks high in its literary features. We wish THEMIS continued success.—Newcastle News.

The Sacramento THEMIS, a literary journal of merit, has entered upon its second volume. It is edited by Major W. A. Anderson and Win. J. Davis.—Red Bluff Sentinel.

THEMIS, a literary journal published at Sacramento, has entered upon its second volume. It is published by Messrs. W. A. Anderson and W. J. Davis. As a literary edition it has few equals.—Chico Enterprise.

FLASHES.

All men are honest when they are well watched.

There is too much legal and legalized hypocrisy in our public affairs.

Nervousness is defined by a little girl as being in a hurry all over.

When a fellow is a little hoarse, a little pony is considered a help.

One of the old timers says he is for ballot reform, but against ballet reform.

Poker players are always attended during their games, with a female relative—their ante.

I never sausage weather, growled L. B. Mohr, the other day, while serving out a fine steak.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

A strange combination called "A Postage Stamp Company," is booked for Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Metropolitan. We know nothing of this company, and await developments. There is a brass band accompanying the troupe.

Fred Warde.

It would be a waste of words and space to enter upon a discussion of Frederick Warde's merits as an artist. The whole story can be told in a sentence: He is the greatest living actor in his line. He is like wine—improves with age. His rendition of that classical tragedy, Virginius, was the perfection of art. "Belphegor" is one of his masterpieces. In "Damon" he has no peer. To-night Damon and Pythias will be given in all the grandeur of dramatic art. We have spoken heretofore of the great merit of Frederick Warde, hence epitomize this by saying: He stands at the head of his profession.

The Uniformed Rank Knights of Pythias, Sacramento Division No. 7, installed their officers Thursday evening at Castle Hall. Col. A. B. Cheney officiated as installing officer. S. K. Captain, T. W. Stevens; S. K. Lieutenant, Abe Wilson; S. K. Herald, F. B. Birkenstock; S. K. Guard, J. A. Gibson; S. K. Sentinel, M. E. Hornlein; S. K. Recorder, W. B. Oldfield; S. K. Treasurer, S. Katzenstein. A social dance followed the ceremonies.

Our Homely Fare.

Count Gleichen, of the British Navy, in an article on New York in Murray's Magazine, says: It was 7 o'clock when I reached the hotel, and time for dinner. On the principle of eating foreign food in a foreign country, I ordered all the strangest sounding plates on the bill of fare; clam soup, pumpkin pie, hominy, buckwheat cakes, sweet potatoes, very nasty wild turkey, and cranberries. The result was a squashy, sloppy meal, at the end of which my stomach was full, but I didn't feel as if I'd had a square dinner. The only thing I did not follow the American system in was drinks, for they drink nothing but coffee and such-like slops at dinner, and then adjourn to a bar to correct their insides with cocktails.

After dinner to Daly's Theater, where the bills announced the first night of a new American piece, "An International Struggle," or some name like that. However, when I got there, the piece was not being given—it was "The Squire," by Pinero. As every one knows, the Daly Company is first rate, but still, I wished they would not spring surprises on one, and act one play when they have advertised another. Another slight surprise was that, having stood up in my place to let a lady pass, the next moment found me seated on the ground in an unbecoming heap, the seat of my chair having sprung up when I did. This is one of the innumerable Yankee "notions," and is all right when you know it, but you've got to know it first. Otherwise the theater is comfortable enough, and lavishly, not to say richly, furnished and decorated.

Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow; it strayed away one summer day, where lambs should never go. Then Mary sat her down, and tears streamed from her eyes; she never found the lamb because she did not advertise. And Mary had a brother John, who kept a village store; he sat down and smoked his pipe, and watched the open door. And as the people passed along, and did not stop to buy; John still sat down and smoked his pipe, and blinked his sleepy eye. And so the Sheriff closed him out, but still he lingered near; and Mary came to drop with him a sympathetic tear. "How is it, sister; can you tell why the other merchants here sell all their goods, and thrive from year to year?" Remembering now her own bad luck, the little maid replied: "These other fellows get there, John, because they advertise."

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188. *

Great Discoveries.

Valuable discoveries have been made and valuable inventions suggested by the veriest accidents. An alchemist, while seeking to discover a mixture of earths that would make the most durable crucibles, one day found that he had made porcelain. The power of lenses, as applied to the telescope, was discovered by a watchmaker's apprentice. While holding spectacle glasses between his thumb and finger, he was startled at the suddenly enlarged appearance of a neighboring church spire.

The art of etching upon glass was discovered by a Nuremberg glass cutter. By accident, a few drops of aqua fortis fell upon his spectacles. He noticed that the glass had become corroded and softened where the acid had touched it. That was hint enough. He drew figures upon the glass with varnish, applied the corroding fluid, then cut away the glass around the drawing. When the varnish was removed, the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground. Mezzotint owed its invention to the simple accident of the gun-barrel of a sentry becoming rusted with dew.

The swaying to and fro of a chandelier in a cathedral suggested to Galileo the application of the pendulum. The art of lithographing was perfected through suggestions made by accident. A poor musician was curious to know whether music could not be etched upon stone as well as upon copper. After he had prepared his slab, his mother asked him to make a memorandum of such clothes as she proposed to send away to be washed. Not having pen, ink and paper convenient, he wrote the list upon the stone with the etching preparation, intending to make a copy of it at leisure.

A few days later, when about to clean the stone, he wondered what effect aqua fortis would have upon it. He applied the acid, and in a few minutes saw the writing standing out in relief. The next step necessary was simply to ink the stone and take of an impression. The composition of which printing rollers are made was discovered by a Salopian printer. Not being able to find the pelt ball, he inked the type with a piece of soft glue, which had fallen out of a glue pot. It was such an excellent substitute that, after mixing molasses with the glue, to give the mass proper consistency, the old pelt ball was entirely discarded.

The shop of a London tobacconist by the name of Luudyfoote was destroyed by fire. While he was gazing dolefully into the smoldering ruins, he noticed that his poorer neighbors were gathering the snuff from the canisters. He tested the snuff for himself, and discovered that the fire had largely improved its pungency and aroma. It was a hint worth profiting by. He secured another shop, built a lot of ovens, subjected the snuff to a heating process, gave the brand a particular name, and in a few years became rich through an accident which he at first thought had completely ruined him.

The process of whitening sugar was discovered in a curious way. A hen that had gone through a clay puddle went with her muddy feet into a sugar house. She left her tracks on a pile of sugar. It was noticed that wherever her tracks were the sugar was whitened. Experiments were instituted, and the result was wet clay came to be used in refining sugar.

The London Marriage Market.

Canon Liddon yesterday made some strong observations from the pulpit of St. Paul's, on the marriage market of the modern Babylon. He had, no doubt, ample room for a picturesque satire in the familiar phenomenon of London society: "Eager mothers, like generals getting out on a campaign, prepared to undergo any amount of fatigue if only they could marry their daughters—not necessarily to a high-souled man, but in any case to a fortune. They could see, too, a group of young men, after, perhaps, a career of dissipation, thinking that the time had arrived for settling respectably in life and looking out—not for a girl whose graces and character would make her husband and children happy, but for somebody with a sufficient dowry to enable them to keep up a large establishment. They could not wonder, when the most sacred of human relations was thus placed on the brutal level of an affair of cash, that such transactions were quickly followed by months or years of misery, which, after seething in private, was at last paraded before the eyes of a wondering world, amid the unspeakable shame and degradation of the divorce court." "The brutal level of an affair of cash" is the level at which French marriages are arranged, without shame and without pretense. But are marriages arranged by parents, on the whole, more prone to end in the divorce court than when young people are left free to arrange their marriages themselves?—Pall Mall Gazette.

It is said that a rather pompous minister once met P. T. Barnum, the circus manager, and said to him: "Mr. Barnum, you and I have met before on the temperance platform, and I hope we shall meet in Heaven." "We shall," replied Mr. Barnum, confidently, "if you're there."

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

From this date all music, including all copyrights, will be sold at Cooper's music store to teachers and our customers, at and under Eastern and San Francisco prices. A reduction on all books as well. All we ask for breaking the high prices is your patronage.

EUGENE J. GREGORY

(Present Incumbent)

Candidate for Mayor.

Subject to the decision of the Republican City Convention.

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

920 and 922 K STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

Certificate of Partnership.

WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, DO HEREBY CERTIFY that we are partners, transacting business in the State of California, under the firm-name and style of BRAND, LAWTON, BARNETT & CO.; that the names in full of all the members of said partnership are as heretofore signed, and that all the members of said partnership reside in the city of Sacramento, county of Sacramento, and State of California. Witness our signatures this 20th day of February, A. D. 1890.

GEORGE ERNEST BRAND,
WILLIAM "D" LAWTON,
ROBERT AUGUSTUS BARNETT.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
County of Sacramento. } ss.

On this 20th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Chauncey H. Dunn, a Notary Public in and for said county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared George Ernest Brand, William D. Lawton, and Robert Augustus Barnett, known to me to be the persons described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the within instrument, and they acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the said county of Sacramento, the day and year in this certificate first above written.

[Seal.] CHAUNCEY H. DUNN, Notary Public.
Endorsed: Filed February 20, 1890.
mch 1, 5t By W. B. HAMILTON, County Clerk.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
mch 1—9t.

GO TO

Nolan & Son's

FOR

FINE SHOES,

BRANCH OF SAN FRANCISCO.

603 J Street, Sacramento.

The Only Retail House in Sacramento that manufactures their own goods.

Try Our Famous $3 Shoes.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from	25
Stylish Pants made to order	6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from	25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from	30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from	40

And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or.

P. H. RUSSELL

Importer and Dealer in

Staple and Fancy Groceries

719 J STREET.

Bet. Seventh and Eighth, SACRAMENTO.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

W. L. HELKE,

(Successor to J. C. Sepulveda.)

DRUGGIST and CHEMIST

N. E. cor. Second and K Sts., Sacramento.

Prescriptions a Specialty. A full line of Standard Preparations.

The "Bidding Wedding."

In certain parts of Pembroke and Carmarthen, in Wales, one of the quaintest of marriage customs used to be prevalent, and is said still to linger to a certain extent in some of the more remote valleys, but now curtailed and shorn of its pristine surroundings. This was known as a "Bidding Wedding," and was so replete of patriarchal times that it may be interesting to describe what is destined soon to become a mere memory of the past. Tradition is silent as to the origin of this custom of Cambria, so we may presume that it goes a long way back indeed.

In the first place, all who received invitations were expected to show their respect to the bride and bridegroom by bestowing such presents as befitted their station and means. We may remark that these weddings were generally restricted to the farmers and others of the more respectable class, so that to have a Bidding implied a certain social status, and that the young couple were both come of respectable families.

When two of this class made up their minds to get married, the first thing considered was who were to be invited to the festivities, a list being made out, varying according to the number of their friends and neighbors, from forty or fifty to upward of 200. Invitations were written or printed, and sent round to all those whose presence was desired. After these had been dispatched, the next thing was to send round the "Bidder," there being one person who filled this important post in every district.

The duty of this worthy was to go to all places where invitations had preceded him, there to advocate the claims of his clients to the best of his ability. The Bidder, as may be supposed, was generally a noted character, the local wit and orator, as no one could hope to fill the responsible position who had not "the gift of gab." In some instances, females held office for which they were undoubtedly as well qualified as their male rivals. These functionaries were generally cordially received, and were in the habit of specifying any particular article that they thought desirable, generally fixing their requests high, on the principle that they who ask for a sheep were likely to get a lamb at least.

On completing the rounds of calls, the Bidder gives in his report to his employers. The presents were sent before the wedding to the house of the bride, when a large company assembled to view them and discuss their value. From the fact that intended presents were all entered on the Bidder's books, there were seldom too many articles of one sort, a business-like proceeding which the fashionable world of to-day might save them from having so many "repeats" in their marriage presents.—Chambers' Journal.

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.
First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.
J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.
L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.
703 J Street, Sacramento.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA
sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

Notice of Sale.

PURSUANT TO A RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD of Supervisors, the following property will be offered for sale at public auction in front of the Court-house door, Seventh and I streets, at 12 M.

Tuesday, March 4, 1890.

One Boiler, Smoke-stack, Pipes, Flues, Fancets, Fire-brick, Fire-box, Feed Pump, and all Tools, Tongs, and everything belonging to said boiler that is now located at the County Jail yard.

Also, two Horses used for the chain-gang, and one Spring Wagon.

Also, lot of Luggage held for poll tax.

The above articles to be sold for cash, and to the highest bidder.

Attest: W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.

Lavenson's

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand

ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

E. FRANKS

ANNOUNCES HIMSELF A CANDIDATE FOR

CHIEF OF POLICE,

Subject to the decision of the DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Pacific Optical Institute

D. M. BISHOPP, Proprietor,

Has REMOVED TO 806 J STREET.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET. SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutler Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN. DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS, Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents. Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

Nov. 17, 1889.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6 50 A	Calistoga and Napa	11-40 A
3 05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7-25 P
11 00 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3-40 A
7 05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6-45 P
7 25 P	Knights' Landing	7-1 A
9 00 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9-5 A
8 00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6-25 P
12-01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6-00 A
3-00 P	Ogden and East	10-30 A
3 00 P	Oroville	10-30 A
3 00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10-30 A
10 40 A	Redding via Willows	4-00 P
6 15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7-25 P
6-50 A	San Francisco via Benicia	8-35 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11-40 A
4-00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10-40 P
*10-00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	26-00 A
11 25 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2-25 P
6-50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11-40 P
11 25 A	San Jose	2-25 P
7 05 P	Santa Barbara	9-55 A
3 05 P	Santa Rosa	11-40 A
9 00 A	Stockton and Galt	6-45 P
7 05 P	Stockton and Galt	9-55 A
8 00 P	Truckee and Reno	6-25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	6-00 A
12 05 P	Colfax	10-20 A
6-50 A	Vallejo	11-40 A
3 05 P	Vallejo	7-35 P
*12 15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	*10-25 A
*7 15 A	Folsom and Placerville	*2-40 P
*5 20 P	Folsom	*6-50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K. COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

APITAL NURSERIES.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

NOTICE.

HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KILGORE & CO., their interests in the grocery business, and reopened their old stand at the north-west corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.

T. H. COOK & CO.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, ETC.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.
FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.
Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars.
ROBERT ALLEN,
Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice, SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER,

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Oscar F. Flint

824 J ST.

Fine Candies

Family Orders for Ice Cream a Specialty.

THE ONLY MAKER OF COLT'S FOOT ROCK COUGH CANDY.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,

DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GAS-FITTING, AND ROOFING.
Jobbing a Specialty.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

FOR SALE.

Half Block

BETWEEN

Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth, V and W Streets

On line of Central Street Railway.

Apply to

FRANK HICKMAN,

1014 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

CANCERS,

Ulcers, Wens, Lumps, Eruptions, etc., Positively Cured or No Pay. No Knife Used.

As to the success of my treatment, I give the names of a few of the many cured. By addressing them they will give any information required—and it pays to investigate before being treated.

Mrs. O. C. Neilsen, Grass Valley, cancer.

John Service, Auburn, lupus.

Patrick Lynch, Sacramento, cancer.

Mrs. Jno. Shaw, Grass Val., birthmark removed.

N. S. Peck, S. P. R. R. Sacramento, cancer.

J. L. Woods, Washington, Yolo county, cancer.

John W. Douglas, Rocklin, cancer.

Miss Mamie Lynch, Yolo, tumor removed.

Chas. McLaughlin, Sacramento, cancer.

I might give many more. Those afflicted are invited to call and investigate for themselves. Consultation at office free. Send for circular.

Office, 426 K Street, Sacramento.

DR. J. H. SHIRLEY.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

HOME PRODUCTION.

—WE OFFER NOW OUR—

Newly Sugar-cured

HAMS, BACON

—AND—

SHOULDERS

—AS—

Superior to Any Other in the Market

—OUR LARD—

Is pure and fresh, and

—OUR SAUSAGES—

Cannot be excelled. All Hog Products are from grain-fed hogs only.

MOHR & YOERK.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

They Marry Later.

Says the shrewdest observer of metropolitan society: "New York women marry later than any other women in this country—not much under 30. They certainly are more charming than the buds, of whom the saying goes: 'In the first season they are good to look at; in the second to dance with, and in the third to talk to.' The New York woman at 20 is a dangerously fascinating creature, and knows it better than any one else. It is wonderful how they wear." Contrast this with a practice of unwise mothers who marry their girls from the school-room, only to have their husbands tire of them before they fade at 30.

My dear young woman, take a line from the New York girl's book, and don't be in a hurry to consider your chances lost if you have never found the "not impossible he" at 30. You have a good twenty years yet at your best if you take counsel, and twenty-five years to be charming and happy in after that before you are content to sink gracefully into decline, not eclipse. Do not be envious, or disheartened, or impatient, which make ugly lines in the face; but take care of your health and use your brain and your feelings. Do gentle, kind, generous things, with or without return for them. Study sincerity, and charity—when it is wise—judgment on persons and things.

You won't get credit for it—as Balzac says of gratitude, that would be expecting usury upon the good done; but there will be the freshness of hidden waters among herbage, serenity of nerve, clearness and steadiness of eye and the sweet pulsing of the blood from a warm heart, which physically works its part better than a formal one.—Indianapolis Journal.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

The People of the State of California, to John A. Steen, greeting:

You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 3d day of December, 1889, in which action Anna M. Steen is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and plaintiff, upon the alleged ground of habitual intemperance, and for the care, custody and control of the minor child, Gertrude D. Steen, and for general relief and for costs of suit; all of which more fully appears in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made.

And you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento; and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

In testimony whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 4th day of December, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL]
W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.
MATT. F. JOHNSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.
Feb 8-w9.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT H. WACHHORST

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

- a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
 b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
 c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
 d—The ugraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
 e—One of the buss or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
 f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
 g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
 SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
 No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

TO BE HAD ONLY AT

G. E. MOYNIHAN

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

MAGGI'S HOT BOUILLON!

Just Out: Maroon Marmalade

Willis & Ray

APOTHECARIES
 212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
 Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

WM. J. HASSETT.

A. J. JOHNSTON.

A. J. JOHNSTON & CO.

General Printers,

410 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Simon Sturmer,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER,
 No. 504 K Street, Pacific Hotel Building.
 HOLIDAY GOODS in endless variety. REPAIR-
 ING of all kinds done, and work warranted.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties
 Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
 of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
 Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
 Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
 No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

A. G. JOHNSON.

CLAUS ANDERSON.

ANDERSON & JOHNSON,

The † Leading † Merchant † Tailors,

SUITS MADE TO ORDER AT REASONABLE RATES.

No. 1014 Seventh Street, : : : Sacramento.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK.

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1890.

No. 3.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

THEMIS several weeks ago foreshadowed the result of the Republican caucuses, primary and convention; what we then said has become a part of the political record of the city and State. As we went to press a week ago, the votes were being dropped into the ballot boxes in the various precincts, and though not all in, and none counted, the management of this paper had a full understanding from the temper of the people of that which was to come. We then said that the party here had devoted a Saturday to house-cleaning, and that it had engaged to rid itself of objectionable barnacles; that boss rule would be effectually crushed out, and that the persons who had assumed dictatorship of the action of the party and who were in politics for coin only, would be dethroned. We rejoice at the result. It means purification. There can be no misunderstanding that this pronounced demonstration of popular censure was directed against a few men; they can be counted upon the fingers of one hand. When it had come to be that money was demanded to secure the nomination and election of gentlemen, and when it was quite generally known such demands were made, it is a matter of no surprise that a revolution such as we forecast came about.

The political events that transpired in this city will have an important bearing on county and state politics. We have the omen that next fall the tickets will be carefully selected; no mistakes will be made; the Democracy will encounter a tidal wave. The city, county and State are Republican. The people have that which is now assured—a fair chance of outlining the principles of the party and selecting the candidates. There need be no question as to the result when the votes are counted. The purification that has been brought about in the party in this city was not the work of a day. It had been considered for weeks by the leading members of the organization, who felt that unless some decided action was taken in the direction of reform, there would be a repetition of what had occurred in late elections, and particularly at the election last spring—that men who had assumed to manage Republican politics would turn against the candidates of the party, and on the day of election handle money to defeat them. The circumstances surrounding the defeat of John Stevens a year ago, had much to do with opening the eyes of the better element of the people, and the fact that within the last few months a number of persons were registered from disreputable quarters, and at the instance of men not the best, was very generally regarded as a menace. It simply meant that the corrupting influences were systematically laying in a stock of purchasable political merchandise. It is unnecessary to enter into details, and we are only surprised that the people of this city so long tolerated this system of bossism. That it has started let this good work go on. It has resulted in the cementation of the party and the retirement of perhaps half a dozen vultures.

The declaration of principles adopted by the convention intelligently covered the main questions of present concern, and the supplemental resolution pledging the candidates for Mayor, Chief of Police and City Attorney to a strict, vigilant and thorough enforcement of the laws against gambling and all other crimes, carries with it a meaning that can not be misunderstood in the light of recent local history. So long as laws exist they should be enforced, and it should not be that power, whether exercised through political influence or money, should interfere with strict penal regulation. As we intimated heretofore, the convention could make no mistake and the ticket nominated will of course be elected.

Eugene J. Gregory, the candidate for Mayor, was born in Sacramento city 35 years ago. His father, who was one of our pioneer merchants, established a fruit and commission house, and upon his death the management of the business devolved upon the sons. Mayor Gregory assumed control; the business is to-day one of the most extensive in the State. Three years ago the people of this city chose Mr. Gregory Mayor and he was elected to that high office by a vote of 3,202 as against 1,283 for John Q. Brown, who had filled the office two terms in succession. The administration of Mayor Gregory has been so satisfactory that the convention Tuesday night unanimously tendered him a renomination, and in addition, in the platform, declared:

We congratulate our citizens that under the able administration of our present Mayor, Hon. Eugene J. Gregory, the city has at last secured a permanently advantageous position regarding her bonded indebtedness, and that we are now able to look forward with confidence to a time in the near future when the city will be entirely free from this incubus, which has retarded her prosperity for so many years.

Such recognition comes only when deserved, and it is not at all probable any serious opposition will be encountered in his election.

Hon. E. C. Hart was unanimously nominated for City Attorney. He was born in the State of Nevada 34 years ago, and was reared and educated in Colusa county, where he learned the printing trade. He established the Willows' Journal and conducted it for several years with marked ability. Abandoning journalism, he studied law, and after admission to the bar located in Sacramento. In 1886 he was elected City Attorney and conducted the affairs of that office satisfactorily and ably. At the general election in November, 1888, he was elected to the Legislature from the 19th Assembly District by a flattering majority. While in that body he did much for the accomplishment of legislation beneficial to the State generally and Sacramento particularly. He is peculiarly qualified to fill the office of City Attorney, and will enter the position not untried.

Warren F. Drew, the nominee for Chief of Police, is a native of Boston, where he was born 36 years ago. He has resided in Sacramento 14 years, and is by occupation a steam-fitter and stationery engineer. For several years he was employed at the railroad works, in the department managed by A. J. Gardiner, and later was connected with the paid fire department as engineer of Company No. 1. Subsequently, and for over three years, he was engineer at the County Hospital, and succeeded M. A. Howard as United States Gauger. For two years, during the administration of M. M. Drew, he filled the position of Deputy Sheriff. His integrity cannot be impeached, and the flattering endorsement of the convention was in every manner deserved.

M. A. Howard, the candidate for Fire Commissioner, is 45 years of age, and has resided in Sacramento since 1863. He became identified with the Fire Department in 1865, when he joined the famous Young America Engine Company No. 6, and filled various important capacities in that organization; for several years he was its foreman. During his connection with the Volunteer Department he served for several terms as a member of the Board of Delegates—the Board that administered the affairs of the Department. Upon the organization of the Paid Fire Department in 1872, Mr. Howard became connected with it, and was elected Foreman of Engine Company No. 2, located in the old Young America house. He has been identified with the Paid Department almost continuously since. He is also a member of the Exempt Fireman's Association, and therefore comes within the wise provision of the Act of the Legislature creating the Paid Fire Department and establishing the Board of Fire Commissioners, which requires that to be eligible as a Commissioner, one must be an Exempt. In 1864 Mr. Howard apprenticed himself to the blacksmithing trade in this city and worked continuously at his trade until 1871. Since then for seven years he filled a responsible position in the United States Internal Revenue Collector's office, under the administration of A. L. Frost, now County Assessor. Mr. Howard also served several terms as a member of the Republican County Central Committee, and is at present a member of that body. Of late years he has been proprietor of the Eldred House. Thoroughly acquainted with the duties of the office, it is very evident that the convention made the best possible selection.

For Directors of the City Free Library, the members of the present Board—W. C. Fitch, S. H. Gerrish, L. E. Smith, A. S. Hopkins and Add. C. Hinkson—were unanimously renominated. These gentlemen were nominated without regard for politics, and according to the custom adopted by all previous conventions. The entire ticket is strong and commands what it will receive—the support not only of all Republicans but of very many Democrats. The whole ticket is an embodiment of young Republican manhood, ability and energy, and comes to the people without any taint or blemish.

Hon. Joseph McKenna, Congressman from this district, has been untiring in his efforts in behalf of Sacramento and her interests. He has just succeeded in securing a favorable report from the House Committee on Appropriations in favor of his bill to appropriate five hundred thousand dollars for a postoffice and Federal building in this city. It is hoped that he may be able to effect the final adoption of this worthy measure by Congress. It is to be noted that whenever anything is required in the interest of this city, or this congressional district, McKenna is earnestly and actively to the fore. While we do not wish to detract from the efforts of others in our behalf, we have observed that there is somebody in Washington who manipulates the coast dispatches, who is evidently partial to others, and who has recently endeavored to bestow the credit of obtaining aid and assistance for this city, upon others. Indeed, when the order was obtained, permitting the balance of the river improvement fund, amounting to one hundred and ten thousand dollars, to be used in the protection of our levees from the late great floods, some one diligently labored to make it appear that the credit was due to some other source. As a matter of fact, when that order was made it was through the effort of McKenna, who was present at the time; and those to whom the telegraph gave credit were not there. Of course, there was great assistance rendered by others, but not of the nature to warrant great telegraphic headlines, announcing that they, and they alone, were the authors of the project. We believe in giving credit where credit is due, even though the modesty of the real party prevents him from asserting his claim. If hard work and excellent judgment, as well as that influence that always comes to an honest, faithful man, can accomplish the passage of the bill appropriating five hundred thousand dollars for a public building in this city, it is certain that Joseph McKenna can do it.

There are some people who are so far inclined to look upon the dark side of life, that they declare the world is getting worse every day, and that the promised Millennium is receding instead of coming. We disagree with them altogether. We believe that the human race is growing better with every revolution of our planet. That the increasing facilities of intercourse between nations greatly lessen the probabilities of war. A war of conquest is now a thing hardly known. We believe that with the advance of civilization, men's hearts are becoming purer, their aspirations higher, and that far greater attention is paid to the amenities of social life than ever before. The surprising growth of fraternal organizations in the United States is a fact that greatly strengthens our position in the city of Sacramento. There are lodges representing probably twenty different societies whose solemn vows enjoin upon their members the duty of visiting the sick, relieving the distressed, burying the dead, and the protection and education of the orphan. Thus a broad charity is taught and exercised, which knows no political party, no sect or creed of religion, no occupation or condition of life. Loyal to government, charitable to mankind, the influence of such societies cannot but improve the moral condition of the whole people. Let us frown upon the pessimist, and always look for the brighter and happier side of life.

SOME UNWRITTEN HISTORY.

Sacramento in Embryo—How Government was Established from Chaos.

PART X.

At the time John A. Sutter conveyed his rancho New Helvetia to his son, John A. Sutter, Jr., to prevent the Russian-American Company from proceeding to collect its money by a sale of the rancho (October 14, 1848), he also assigned to his son all his personal property at and near his fort, consisting of horses, 1500 head; mules, 50 head; sheep, 2,000 head; hogs, 100 head; saddles, 20; bridles, 20; wagons, 6; launch, "Sacramento."

This property was also put into the hands of Peter H. Burnett, with the real estate, for sale, with instructions to settle with the Russian-American Company on the best terms attainable. Sales of land and personal property made by Burnett, in the name of John A. Sutter, Jr., went forward rapidly, and early in 1849 he opened negotiations with the principal creditor of John A. Sutter, looking toward a compromise, with such success that, prior to June 25, 1849, that company received from Burnett the sum of $14,448, in full satisfaction of its claim, and thereupon released John A. Sutter from further liability on his contract of December 12, 1841 (see THEMIS, June, 23, 1889).

Thereupon, on June 25, 1849, John A. Sutter, Jr., reconveyed to his father all the Rancho New Helvetia remaining then unsold, and thereafter the sales went forward in the name of the original proprietor.

Sacramento city, at the time of which we now write, was an established fact. All gold-seeking immigrants made it their headquarters and point of departure for the gold diggings. The future dominant race of the country flocked to this locality. The old settled sections of California were but little regarded. The immigrants coming here in 1849 were intelligent, hardy, industrious. The sluggard hardly started for California before he dropped out of the tide of emigration. The weak fell by the wayside; the infirm of purpose deserted their comrades and failed to come. Those who arrived were prepared for vigorous action. Those who went to the mines were not afraid to work, and those who remained in Sacramento to build up their fortunes by commerce or other avocations, were prepared for any emergency, from daily labor with their hands, to the construction of constitutions and framing of laws to govern a free people.

We published in THEMIS (February 1, 1890) an account of a public mass meeting held at the embarcadere (where the old waterworks building is now situated), pursuant to notice, presided over by Henry A. Schoolcraft, with James King of William and E. J. Brooks, Secretaries. This meeting was called to elect eleven legislators, with full power to enact laws for the government of the city and district. The word district was undefined, and its boundaries were not limited by the call nor by the meeting. This may be considered the first effort of the new immigrants to form for us a code of laws, and those who took part in the meeting considered the time ripe for such action.

The legislators so elected met in session on May 1, 1849, at the room in Sutter's fort, fitted up as a saloon and occupied by Peter Slater (marked b on diagram of the fort, published in THEMIS November 23, 1889). Present: John McDougal, Peter Slater, Barton Lee, Henry Cheever, Wm. Pettit, Wm. M. Carpenter, Charles Southard, M. M. McCarver, and James King. Absent: Samuel Brannan and J. S. Fowler.

The legislature organized by the election of M. M. McCarver, speaker, and James King as clerk pro tem. The body proceeded to act by the adoption of Jefferson's Manual as their rule of procedure. Legislation being the object of the body, a committee, composed of Brannan, Cheever, and McDougal, was, on motion, appointed, whose duty it was to procure a statute book. Thereupon Dr. Carpenter was recognized by the speaker, and he stated that Mr. Bates, first alcalde, desired to communicate a matter of importance to the house; and he was, on motion, appointed a committee of one to call on the alcalde and request his attendance before the legislature.

The legislature continuing its business, the Speaker appointed the following Standing Committees: On Revenue, Brannan and Lee; on Judiciary, McDougal, Fowler, and McCarver; on Public Buildings, Slater; on Crimes and Punishments, King, Cheever, and Carpenter; on Indian Affairs, Pettit and Southard. Special Committees: To procure a clerk, King and Carpenter. To procure a room for meeting of the legislature, Slater. At this point legislator Carpenter returned from his interview with the alcalde; and, instead of making a report to the legislature, whispered something in the ear of the Speaker, and thereupon the legislature adjourned. What it was that Alcalde Bates had to communicate may never be known. It had the effect to dissolve the legislature; it never met again. No rooms were procured for further meetings; no statute book was brought; no plan was devised by Messrs. Brannan and Lee to raise revenue to support the government; the judiciary was left as it was, to be administered still under Mexican laws; no new crimes were defined, and punishments therefor devised, and Indian affairs were left with the Federal government.

A movement was then on foot, under guidance of Governor Riley, for the formation of a State, but it had not taken shape, and it was only known to the few. To have proceeded to enact laws of the scope indicated by the committees appointed, would necessarily conflict with the more general movement contemplated. And we may imagine that Alcalde Bates, being advised of the more general movement, after hearing Mr. Carpenter on the subject of the Legislative Assembly, and learning that its purpose was to enact general laws and provide for their enforcement spoke about in this wise: "The purpose you entertain is dangerous. The friends you depend on uncertain. The time itself is unsorted, and your whole plot too light for the counterpoise of so great an opposition as you will be bound to meet from the Federal Government, backed by the old settled districts of the territory already moving in the same direction." What the world has lost by this untimely taking off will never be known.

The legislators went their several ways and each made his mark in other walks of life. Slater continued to sell liquor, and later bought a tract of land lying north of the slough opening from the Sacramento river, about thirty feet south of the south side of the Yolo and Sacramento bridge (Sutter slough was not then land-locked) and projected and established Slater's Addition to Sacramento. Lee became a banker, and until he failed late in 1850, handled an immense amount of money and gold dust. Brannan is too well known to require mention here. McDougal became one of the founders of Sutterville. McCarver we are unable to trace. King became historic as the founder of the Bulletin. Cheever was later a wealthy resident of San Francisco, and Pettit and Southard we are unable to trace. Dr. Wm. M. Carpenter came to Sutter Fort early in 1848, rented a small room in the fort and commenced the practice of medicine, boarding at the hotel (marked A on cut in THEMIS of November 25, 1889), rooming with Peter H. Burnett, after his arrival at the fort, sleeping in the same rude bed and dividing the labor of taking care of their room; Burnett cutting the wood and making the fires, whilst the doctor swept the office and made the bed. Dr. Carpenter at this time made about six hundred dollars a week in the practice of his profession. His charge was sixteen dollars for each dose or vial of medicine or box of pills. He was a well known, rather an eccentric resident of Sacramento until 1856.

When business left the fort and went to Front street, early in 1849, Dr. Carpenter bought lot 8, in the square bounded by J and K, Second and Third streets, and built on it what was then considered an aristocratic residence and office. It was twenty feet long by twelve feet wide, with a cloth partition, making two rooms 10x12. In the rear room Dr. Carpenter kept his office and store of medicines. The front room was occupied by Peter H. Burnett as a lawyer's office. The building was constructed by putting up six strong posts, made from the trunks of small trees and flattened on two sides with a broad-axe, one at each corner and one at each end of partition. Between these posts were placed smaller posts, flattened on one side, about two feet apart. The tops of these posts were capped with plates, hewed flat, extending along each side and securely nailed to the tops of the posts, the lower ends of which were well let into the ground. Two higher posts were set in the middle of each end of the house and a ridge pole was securely nailed to these higher posts, and rafters were then placed about two feet apart. The frame was then covered with one yard wide brown cotton cloth, tacked on. The floor was mother earth, made smooth. The lawyer's writing desk was a large empty dry goods box and his seat a smaller one. The doctor kept his medicine on shelves, and his seat was very primitive. Esculapius seems to have made that lot famous and some of his votaries have ever since made it their headquarters.

After Dr. Carpenter came Dr. John F. Morse, a prominent physician of early days, and one of the historians of our city. He established a drug store on the lot, which has been continued down to the present time under different owners. Dr. Cluness has maintained his headquarters there for a time, whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, and Dr. Baldwin has his office also on the same lot.

The Earth's Money.

Herr Ottomar Haupt, an acknowledged authority on the production, present supply and consumption of gold and silver, has just issued his annual statement of the amount of precious metal in the great banks and treasuries of the world. His figures are as follows:

	Silver in millions of Francs.	Gold in millions of Francs.
Associated Banks of New York	-----	391
Other American Banks	-----	55 40
American (United States) Treasury	-----	1,560 1,628
Bank of England	-----	445
Scottish banks of issue	-----	125
Irish banks of issue	-----	83
Other banks in Great Britain	-----	200
Bank of France	-----	1,247 1,273
Italian note banks	-----	33 168
Italian National Bank	-----	31 178
Italian Government Treasury	-----	12 103
Belgian National Bank	-----	35 65
Swiss banks of issue	-----	24 59
Grecian National Bank	-----	3
Bank of Spain	-----	118 102
Bank of Algiers	-----	16 17
Bank of Holland	-----	152 128
Bank of Roumania	-----	32
Bank of Portugal	-----	28
Bank of Sweden	-----	5 24
Swedish National Banks	-----	23 59
Bank of Norway	-----	67
Bank of Denmark	-----	75
Bank of Russia	-----	4 841
Russian Government Treasury	-----	24 144
Austro-Hungarian Bank	-----	340 135
German Imperial Bank	-----	240 716
German note banks	-----	5 95
German Government Treasury	-----	150
Total	-----	3,956 7,342

The corresponding totals one year previously were 3,750 millions of francs silver, and 7,160 millions of francs gold, showing an increase of about 200 millions of silver, and about 180 millions of gold for last year.

To this statement Herr Haupt appends the following comments: "The steady increase of the visible supply of gold proves once more how wrong the bimetalists are in prophesying an approaching scarcity of gold. The stream of the precious metal (gold) does not apparently flow with the same freeness for all the great countries. Nevertheless, my figures show that since 1886 this stream has been augmented by almost 700,000,000 francs. Therewith, however, the statistics on the question at issue are by no means exhausted. At the end of November the Brazilian National Bank had 60,000,000 francs in gold. Thus we have 760,000,000 francs increase in gold since the year 1886, or about 200,000,000 per year, which may be regarded as the net annual product after the subtraction of the consumption in the arts. This sum must be considered only the minimum, however, for undoubtedly great quantities of gold have been coined and put in circulation which we cannot get at for our estimates. It is well known that from 70,000,000 to 90,000,000 francs of gold are taken annually by India for hoarding purposes. The lion's share of last year's gold increase fell to France, whose bank added about 260,000,000 to its supply. The German Imperial Bank had, according to my calculation, some 830,000,000 francs gold at the end of 1888, of which it has lost 110,000,000 during the last year. * * * Finally the Bank of England has decreased its supply of gold by about 40,000,000 francs since 1888."

The Songs of Auld Lang Syne.

"The mothers of to-day do not sing as the mothers did in lang syne," said a man whose business cares have never overcome and crowded out the soul of poetry and the memory of a happy boyhood. "You seldom hear a woman sing about the house now."

So it is. The modern mother does not sing as our dear, old-fashioned mothers used to sing. She has little time to herself, and if she did not have the advantage of a musical education she says she cannot sing.

Then, too, the songs of to-day are not like and never will be like those old songs. They do not touch the heart and give the heart's feeling utterance through the lips. There are beautiful songs set to music, of course, and wonderful voices sing them on the stage and in the drawing-room, but how seldom it is we hear a song that thrills and charms us and brings the "pearls of feeling" to our eyes. A voice pleases us and we bear home the satisfaction of having heard an artist of artists, but we will forget the singer and the song long before we forget one word or one note of the one who sang "Bonnie Doon" and "Annie Laurie."

There are those of us who will never forget the summer evenings, the ripple of the brook in the distance, the stir of the woodbine leaves around the window, the sweet fragrance of the "birk" from the neighboring wood, when the mother sang "Afton Water" and rocked her baby to sleep.

And then there were other songs that stirred our childish hearts. "The Soldier's Dream"—

"Our bugles sung truce, for the night cloud had lowered
And the sentinel stars set their watch in the sky;
When thousands had sunk on the ground overpowered,
The weary to sleep and the wounded to die.
Reposing that night on my pallet of straw,
By the wolf-scaring faggot that guarded the slain,
In the dead of the night a sweet vision I saw,
And thrice ere the morning I dreamed it again."

Our childish imagination could picture the soldier, always handsome in his uniform, lying down on the field of battle to sleep under the stars, the pine knots blaze, scaring away the prowling wolves, and he dreaming of hearing his "own mountain goats bleating aloof," and of hearing "the sweet song that the corn reapers sung."

There was another song, old, very old, "On the Lake Where Drooped the Willow," the story of a girl who died in autumn, and "I'll Hang my Harp on the Willow Tree," which Bacon-Shakspearians tell us was dedicated to Her Majesty, Victoria. There was "Jeanette and Jeanot," "Old Kentucky Home and Suwanee River," and to-day we cannot listen to—

"O take me to my kind old mother,
There let me live and die."

whether sung in the soft, weird tones of a jubilee singer, the pathetic ones of little Kavanagh or of the everyday street Arab without a rush of tender feeling.

There was another song, a regular bedtime song, in its wooing sweetness. It was "The Cuckoo:"

"When winter comes the woods is my home,
In the summer I sing in the meadows."

How we liked to hear about the little bird that hid itself away in the brush in the winter, and in the spring-time its plaintive "cuckoo, cuckoo," was the sure harbinger of soft south winds and warm showers.

And last and best of all was that song of "Clari, the Maid of Milan:"

"Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble there's no place like home."

No, there is no place like home, and there are no songs like those of the old time, and there is no music half so sweet as the memory of those tender notes.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Queen Victoria invited no clergymen to the amateur theatricals at Balmoral, because she does not approve of clergymen attending such performances.

Yeast—"What's Smithers playing in now?" Crimsonbeak—"Hamlet." "Does he enter into the spirit of the piece?" "Oh, yes; he is taking the part of the ghost."

Mrs. Shaw, the whistler, is making great social conquests in London, and every time she finds a dukelet at her feet she petrifies him with a low, coquettish whistle of indifference.

It should be construed as a direct insult to a theatrical audience to have the actors joke among themselves—we mean the perpetration of senseless gags. It mars the play and offends the audience.

Mrs. A.—"So your daughter is studying for the stage?" Mrs. B.—"Yes, and she is progressing very rapidly." Mrs. A.—"How far has she got?" Mrs. B.—"She has already had her photograph taken as Lady Macbeth."

Queen Victoria and the Princess Louise play the piano-forte and organ; the Prince of Wales the banjo and the Princess the piano-forte; the Duke of Connaught is counted a fine flute player, and the Duke of Edinburgh an accomplished violinist.

The Social Session combination which played at the Metropolitan on Monday and Tuesday evenings was something of a surprise. While the play had no plot, there was an excellent variety and specialty performance. In the company are some first class artists. The orchestra was very superior. This company was an exception to those which are heralded by flaming posters and a brass band.

Phoebe Davies and Jos. Grismer were always favorites in this city. On Wednesday and Thursday the company presented The Tigress and The Burglar to good houses. Our little Phoebe was complimented each evening by calls before the curtain. Grismer has a strong company in support. The business would have been better had not there been other attractions and many calls on theater goers within the past two weeks.

No one needs to be reminded of the increasing importance of the actor. This is, in part, a consequence of the larger share which the drama itself is beginning to occupy in the daily life of the world; but it is also to be attributed, in some degree, to a new conception of the relations between the actor and the drama. This conception would have been quite impossible in the days of the stock theater; it is a direct outgrowth of later methods; it descended from the "stars," and it is an important article of faith in stellar philosophy. For now we see that on the stage of to-day the play is no longer the thing, but the player; art is less than the artist, and the work of art is sacrificed to its interpreter.—Edw. Fuller, in Dramatic Mirror.

While Rossi was at Rio de Janeiro slavery was not yet abolished, and sometimes his enthusiastic hearers from the back country imagined that instead of offering bouquets or other testimonials of their satisfaction, they could offer one of their slaves to the tragedian. One certain night after the performance of Othello, a mulatto woman, carrying a child in her arms, approached Rossi, and with tears in her eyes she put the child in his hands, saying: "He is yours. I am his mother. They bought him from my master in order to offer him to you, and they told me to bring him here." While speaking, she forced the baby into Rossi's arms, and gave him the legal deed of sale, duly covered with the proper stamps. Othello was very much embarrassed, but he suddenly reached a solution of the problem. He gave two big kisses to the child, and surrendering him back to his mother, said: "Hold on! Take back your son. He is yours now, and do your best to make of him a manly being."

"It is quite true, as Lydia Thompson has said, that I played the part of her mother in Little Treasure," said Mrs. Kendal to a New York Times writer, as she looked up from her knitting with a bright smile. "It is quite true. I was playing first and second old woman when I was thirteen years old, and I was doing that line of business at Devonport when William Rignold was playing Claude Melnotte. I was Dame Melnotte and I dressed the character in my mother's old clothes. I remember once that George Rignold 'made up' my face for the part, and he filled me with so many wrinkles and made me look so terribly old that William became angry and ordered my 'make up' washed off. Then you can imagine how I looked in my mother's clothes with my girlish 13-year-old face. It is not surprising that Lydia Thompson can say that I played the part of her mother so long ago. In the old English stock companies, if an actor or actress had a child of any dramatic promise, the child was 'thrown in,' like a piece of bread, to make weight. Such a child was worth just so much additional salary to its parents. I was valued at 10 shillings a week at that time, and began at 13 with first and second old woman. At fifteen I was a leading lady, and at that age I played Lady Macbeth with Phelps. Indeed, I was not quite 15. I played the part in February and my birthday was in March. So you see," said Mrs. Kendal, as she again raised her eyes from the ever-present knitting, "I am proud to acknowledge the truth of Lydia Thompson's story."

Professional Chat.

Justice Lamar, who never accepts a pass or present of any kind, tells of himself this one: "Down in the locality I call my home lives old John Dillard. Some years ago John presented me with a very fine Alderney cow. I said: 'John, I never accept presents.' 'Well,' he replied, 'Lamar, just give me your note, and as you will never pay it anyway, you will be nothing out and a cow ahead.'"

The lawyer had been badgering the witness for some time, and finally asked: "Was any member of your family ever hung?" "Yes, sir." "Ah, ha! I thought as much. Now, sir, who was it?" "Myself." "Yourself? Do you mean to say that you have been hung and are alive to tell it?" "Yes, sir." "Come, now, no trifling. Tell the jury what you were hung for, and how you happened to be alive to-day?" "Well, sir, a man was killed, and I was suspected of having committed the crime. A mob took me out, put a rope around my neck, and had just hauled me up to the limb of a tree, when some one in the crowd shouted that the murdered man had been a lawyer. They couldn't cut me down quick enough! I was filled up with the best whisky the place afforded and given a banquet, as the greatest public benefactor in the history of the town."

An ordinance of Charles VI of France, in 1413, says that "Advocates, as well as attorneys, in all the courts of the kingdom are accustomed to extort from our poor subjects too great fees and profits which they have not earned, and in the matter of written proceedings, which they make longer and more prolix than necessity requires, and we forbid the aforesaid advocates and attorneys, on the oaths they have sworn, and under pain of exemplary punishment, to take any other fees than such as are moderate, or to use prolixity in their writings; but they must make them as short as the case will allow. And if it is found that they do the contrary, we strictly enjoin on the members of our present and future parliaments and upon all to whom it may appertain, to punish and correct the aforesaid persons vigorously, and in such a manner that it may serve as a warning to all others."—Green Bag.

A little story is told of Congressmen Caruth and McCreary of Kentucky, illustrative of sectional peculiarities, says the Washington Star. The nativity of a business man in the mountain region, who had gone into the State from Indiana a dozen years before, was questioned, McCreary holding that he was a Kentuckian, and Caruth taking the opposite ground, and $5 was ready for the winner. A few days afterward the three men met at a hotel and the two statesmen told the business man that they had a bet on him. "Well, what is it?" he said, good naturedly, at the same time taking off his overcoat and handing it to a colored boy with the remark: "Be careful, Henry, and don't let the pistol in that outside pocket knock against the bottle of whisky and break it." But neither man answered him, and Caruth finally handed a $5 bill over, saying: "That settles it, I have sworn in any court, though, that he wasn't a Kentuckian." The business man explained later, and then McCreary put his five with Caruth's and they had champagne with their supper.

One of the most striking cases of facial resemblance in public life, is that of Congressman Goodknicht, of Kentucky, and Postmaster General Wanamaker. Mr. Goodknicht was in the house restaurant to-day drinking a glass of the famous beverage of his State, when an elderly and spectacled man approached him and exclaimed: "Why, Mr. Wanamaker, what are you doing?" "Simply taking a drink of whiskey," said the Congressman. "Then—then you do drink whiskey, Mr. Wanamaker?" gasped the old gentleman. "Why, certainly?" The stranger lifted his hands in holy horror, and, apparently overcome by the discovery, muttered that "the folks up in Philadelphia won't believe it when I tell them," and moved away. "That is the only way in which I can get even with Mr. Wanamaker for looking like me," said Mr. Goodknicht. "This is the third or fourth time I have been mistaken for the Postmaster General while taking a drink, and I have not exerted myself very much to correct the mistake. But I suffer through the resemblance of our faces fully as much as Mr. Wanamaker does. People mistake me for him, and fail to ask me to take something with them."

It is pretty hard to tell a new story about Tom Corwin, the Ohio statesman of twenty-five years ago, but there is one that has never passed the limits of the village where it occurred, says the New York Tribune. Corwin was making a good Whig speech one day in Elysia, O., a town in the Western Reserve. It was before the war, and in those days the audience used the right of free speech to the extent of interrupting a speaker at any point with a question. Of course the subject most discussed at the time was slavery, and politicians thought themselves lucky if they escaped without being called upon to give their views. Mr. Corwin had reached the middle of his speech, and the rapt attention of the intelligent Yankees of that section had elated him so that he was pouring forth a perfect flood of eloquence. There was a hush, one glorious platitude had been rolled forth and he was just beginning another when a thin, shrill voice called out: "Mister Corwin, what do you think of the slavery question?" People who remember this brilliant orator say his complexion was swarthy, almost Ethiopian in hue, and this fact he cleverly used to rescue himself. "Gentlemen," said he quickly, "I am surprised you should ask such a question of a gentleman of my color." The shrewd Western Reserve farmers saw the joke and "Tom" was not interrupted again that day.

Book Chat.

The wife of Senor Aguirre of Honduras is an American lady, who as Miss Gertrude Garrison is well known in the West for her literary work.

Alphonse Daudet's new novel is to be called "The Caravan," and is to be based upon the adventures of a young couple who took their wedding journey about France in a gypsy wagon.

Do you think you can read all the new books? In England last year the books published numbered 6,067. Of them, 1,373 were new editions, and 4,604 new books. Add to this the new publications of Germany, France and America and you can readily see how impossible it is to keep up with the press.

The late Robert Browning's manuscripts are soon to be sold. Proofsheets with the author's corrections of "Jocasteria," "Ferishtah's Fancies," "Agamemnon of Æschylus," "Aristophanes Apology" and others will be put up at auction. The Browning Society at Boston is anxious to obtain some of the relics.

Andrew Lang, the leading literary man in London, is tall, spare and dark, with a fine forehead, dark eyes and a massive jaw. His hair is thick and is streaked with white. He is very nervous and does not look robust. He has the Oxford drawl and an irritating laugh. He said recently: "Rider Haggard and I have been talking about going to America on a joint lecturing tour. At one time we had it all made up that I was to lecture on the subject of 'Book Hunting,' and that Haggard was to follow with a lecture upon 'Rat-Hunting.'"

A prominent literary man who resides on Staten Island has a curious collection of old Shakesperian translations and critiques, in which appear four distinct instances of national appropriation of a universal genius. In a translation of "Romeo and Juliet," at Paris in 1794, the bard's name is spelled "Shakespierre;" an article in a Berlin review calls attention to the immortal "Schakspere;" to Danish readers he becomes familiar as "Shakspior," while in the first collected edition of the poet's works in Spanish he blossoms forth to the Spaniards under the title of "Guillermo Shakespare."

A curious paragraph has been going the rounds of the press to the effect that the widow of Gen. Grant was to publish a volume of the dead warrior's love letters to her. There is not a scintilla of truth in it. Mrs. Grant is possessed of all the letters written by her husband, but she is not the woman to make such delicate missives public. She possesses abundant material for a book that would be highly entertaining to the American public and would be remunerative besides—odds and ends of papers, stories about famous men and women who were intimate with her husband, and bits of unwritten history about the great rebellion. These she may publish at a later day when her health is fully restored.

Dead in his chair. The sun's expiring rays
With crimson glow light up the rigid face,
And in the inclosed eyes that look afar,
A blood-red sunbeam finds a resting place.

Dead! with the pen still clutched in pulseless hand,
With letters filed before his sightless gaze,
One nerveless arm clasped 'round the office chair,
While at his frozen feet a kitten plays.

Dead! Can it be—with children's shouts without?
So still he sits. How painful is the light;
And deeper grows the crimson on his face,
The sun has set. Good night.

NOTES.

The Democratic political blood is very much impoverished, yet it is not the proper thing to prescribe iron, because the party is very rusty already.

It is not always the dashing society girl that gets married first. The demure little girl who sits quietly in the corner with one young fellow who she hangs on to, is the one that first departs from single blessedness.

It takes a woman to remember all the anniversaries in a neighborhood. She can tell us every birthday, wedding and death anniversary in the whole circle of her acquaintances. Lordly man never could do anything like that.

When we see a man envious and jealous of his neighbor's success we can be sure there is a black place in his heart, and that he has more foes in himself than exist elsewhere. Yet there are hundreds who, because they cannot prosper in the same degree with their neighbors, actually hate the successful.

Pope Leo is said to be designing his own monument, which will be a statue of himself, placed over a sepulchral urn, with colossal statues, representing religion and justice on either side. It is well and thoughtful of the Pontiff to attend to this matter in life. In these degenerate days, after death we only build monuments on paper and by resolution.

Astronomical calculations show that we shall witness a most interesting phenomena during the year 1890. The Star of Bethlehem, which led to the birth place of the Savior, will appear. This prominent event has given life to some fanatical cranks in the Western States where second advent societies have been organized. In one or two places they have already persons who claim to be the Messiah.

W. D. Comstock, the Democratic nominee for Mayor, is an estimable gentleman, and for many years has been one of our leading merchants. Should it please the Fates to allow him to become our chief executive in municipal affairs, we can be assured of having an honest administration. Between such men as Eugene J. Gregory and W. D. Comstock the people will be in no danger of dishonest conduct in local self-government.

We have read and re-read and criticised Bellamy's work called Looking Backward. While it is not original, and the ideas, if ideas they can be called, have been announced for, we might say hundreds of years, still we have been curious to know or understand why he ever called his book Looking Backward, when in fact it is a proposed view into the future. Looking Forward would have been more appropriate.

An enthusiastic Native Son in making a speech in favor of his favorite candidate in the Republican City Convention, became so eloquently imbued with scriptural precepts that he charged the Creator with committing a grievous error in creating man, and pictured the great law giver, Moses, as knocking water from Mt. Shasta. As a justification for his scriptural ideas he claims to be a disciple of Tom Paine. A surly critic remarked "that from the spirit of his address he must have been rather a disciple of Jerry Payne."

While "Lige" Hart was making a little canvass yesterday, he entered a corner grocery kept by an old German, with whom he was not acquainted, and addressed him thus: "I am a candidate for City Attorney; call the boys up to drink." "Well," said the German, "shust you gou away out. Henry Schumley says Hart is a goot man, an' you has no shance mit him." "Well," said Hart, "this fellow Hart is a bad man; you must not vote for him." "Shust get out," said the barkeeper; "vat Schumley says ish all right, and we votes mit Hart." After this proclamation "Lige" tried to explain matters, but the German saloon keeper would not believe him, and insisted that he "go away out." Lige left, chuckling to himself that he was solid in the down town German districts.

A lady of this city had an article in one of the daily papers last Monday, in which she tearfully beseeches the good people of Sacramento to at once erect an asylum here for the care and proper comfort of little floaters, such as was deposited by its inhuman parents on the doorsteps of one of our upright citizens about two weeks ago, and cruelly abandoned by them, and which finally died. The lachrymal letter calls on the generously disposed to fly to the work at once, and be prepared for like future occurrences. The Samaritan soul who wrote that note concludes, inferentially, that there is soon to be a continued and never-ending epidemic of infant abandoning in town. Let us pray that it is but a false alarm, and that the few helpless innocents who are deposited on the front steps or back stoops of our houses will find ample care and protection in the hospitable residences of a Christian-like community; but above all let us not entertain the unkind idea that the vile practice is to grow so common in this moral town as to necessitate the building of a special hospital for the convenience of the little ones who had no share in their own unfortunate production.

Some of the goody-goody people, including two well known generals in the army, are again temporizing on the Apache Indian question. These murderous red devils are incapable of gratitude, and only await the opportunity to murder and pillage. General Miles understands the situation, and his practical good judgment should prevail. Either keep these demons on some secure reservation or annihilate them.

It is evident that the reports started by the self constituted advocates of the unemployed, to the effect that there are 25,000 people destitute in San Francisco, are for the purpose of bringing those obscure creatures to the front on the eve of a political contest, in the hope of riding into public position. There is no unusual destitution at the Bay City—no more than any hard winter brings. Perhaps there are a few hundred unemployed people who are in need, but these can be attended to by the local charities. The demagogues who are seeking to make capital for selfish purposes will meet with a merited rebuff.

United States Senator Hearst and Congressman Clunie appear to be the Siamese Twins at Washington. Did you ever take notice of their letters, communications or telegrams since they have been at the National capital this winter? With what fraternal regularity they unite each other's name whenever they announce any effort on the part of either for the benefit of California. The Senator says "General Clunie and I did so and so," then the genial General in the next dispatch plays the return game of "you tickle me and I'll tickle you" with the Senator when he says, "Senator Hearst and I have seen the Secretary, and the country is safe." And thus "we apples float."

If the charges of cruelty made by the unfortunate sailors against Commander McCalla before the Court of Inquiry at New York, and against Captain Healy of the Revenue cutter Bear at San Francisco are substantiated by the evidence of the witnesses, then no punishment would be too rigid or severe for them. It is too often the fact that far out at sea, the masters of our war vessels turn to devils incarnate, and it is equally too true that they are permitted to escape just punishment. If this conduct much longer continues our navy, such as we have, will soon lapse into a state of barbaric discipline such as disgraced the English navy sixty years ago.

Last Sunday's Chronicle contained an illustrated article on the exchange and transfer of prisoners between San Quentin and Folsom. If the reading public of the State did not know so well the aversion the Warden at San Quentin has to seeing his fame heralded in print, one would be almost led to the belief that the article was inspired by some one anxious to fan into flame that gubernatorial ambition that a few months ago startled the political quid nuncs and set the jealous ones agog. The article represented the stalwart, elegantly uniformed officers in charge of the picked prisoners of San Quentin, who likewise, were in their Sunday best. A covert and unkind comparison is made between the prisoners of the two places, an unjust parallel between their management, to the detriment of Folsom and its officials. It is insinuated that the latter place is poor in its provender and niggardly in its distribution of clothing to the prisoners. Certainly one whose first official genius, aside from his military fame, was achieved at Folsom and who there acquired a wide repute as the first of penologists of the century could not so soon forget the scene of his early greatness, and by insinuation traduce the branch prison unless it was absolutely made necessary through jealousy of its success or because of a waning notoriety ambitious to maintain the front rank among prison governors in the nation. Surely the place that gave him the opportunity to conquer the blood-hunting Schmidt and subdue him by the sole power of a determined eye and hold him spell-bound to the spot till the armed guard could return the culprit to his dark cell there to remain, should be held in grateful memory by the Warden, even though this same gory Schmidt was afterward taken from that dark cell by the present Warden at Folsom and put as foreman over a gang of his fellow convicts. No, it cannot be that the "powers that be" at San Quentin are at all jealous of the very successful government of the prison at Folsom, and we can only attribute the "fling" to the spleen of some unthinking scribe who may not have found the bill of fare so elaborate and appetizing at Folsom as that invariably met with on the damasked mahogany at San Quentin.

The Antelope Tragedy.

The murder that was committed at Antelope night before last is one of the most remarkable that has ever fallen under our observation. Under any circumstances the taking of human life is bad, but there can be some palliation when it is the result of heated passion; and possibly a little when the motive is cupidity, jealousy, or revenge. In this case there is an absolute lack of reasonable motive; and if the facts are true, as we heard them testified to at the inquest, the case falls in the category of malice which the law defines as being prompted by an abandoned and malignant heart.

The testimony showed this state of facts: A weak, unoffending man, far gone in consumption, was cooking for a crew of farm hands. He was so weak that he panted pitifully from any exertion, and some of the more humane assisted him to do his work. The testimony showed that the incentive for destroying him, was that he coughed at night, and kept the others awake. At 10 o'clock at night he was awakened, and told that his time had come, that he would never see the light of another day. He pleaded to be permitted to live out his little remnant of earthly existence—it was apparent that disease would soon terminate it. He was dragged from his bed by a powerful man, carried into the yard, where there was a barrel of water, and placed head down in it. The testimony showed that the creature who did this thing held his victim until his struggles ceased, and death relieved him. The body was left in the water.

Assuming these facts to be true, and with no disposition to influence the action of courts, it must be pronounced one of the most malignant murders that ever darkened the annals of crime. We believe we are able to write without prejudice. After the inquest a man was arrested by Sheriff McMullen, charged with this crime. The body of the unfortunate was brought out in a temporary coffin and placed in a farm wagon, to be prepared for the grave. As the wagon drove off the prisoner stood in the crowd on the store platform and shouted at the driver, in effect: "Look out for that fellow; he might wake." It is but just to say that when that remark was made it fell from the lips of a drunken man.

Death of Mrs. J. H. Pond.

Mrs. J. H. Pond, wife of Prof. Pond of the High School, died in this city yesterday, after an illness of several weeks. She was an accomplished lady, and her death is regretted by a large circle of acquaintances.

Democratic Nominees.

Last night the Democratic Convention nominated W. D. Comstock for Mayor, H. F. Dillman for Chief of Police, W. S. Church for City Attorney, J. L. Goode for Fire Commissioner, W. C. Fitch, L. E. Smith, A. S. Hopkins, Add C. Hinkson and S. H. Gerrish were endorsed for City Library Directors.

Republican State Convention.

A call has been issued for the meeting of the Republican State Central Committee at San Francisco on April 15, 1890. The object is to make arrangements for the call of the State Convention and apportionment of delegates. It must be said that the outlook is greatly in favor of Republican success this Fall. There is but little chance to make any mistakes, for the party is in harmony. In this county the work of solidifying the party has been consummated.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

For Sale.

Twelve second-hand square and upright pianos, in good condition; eight second-hand organs. The pianos consist of Mathnsheks, Knabe, Steinway, Weber, Chickering. All at bargains. Inquire at Cooper's music store, Mathnshek piano agency. *

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Engineer Staples of the Buffalo Brewery met with a serious accident yesterday by having his arm crushed in the machinery.

A couple of footpads made an attack on William H. Young on Thursday night and left him with a very sore scalp. They did not succeed in robbing him.

R. G. Breckenridge announces himself as the workingmen's candidate for Chief of Police. He says he is certain of the united support of the labor element.

The Robert Emmet Club gave an entertainment on Tuesday in honor of the birth of Robert Emmet. Musical and literary programme, followed by banquet.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

The Rudolph Aronson Comic Opera Company will appear at the Metropolitan on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next in some of the latest successes of the New York Casino. Nadja and Ermine will be presented.

The Fisk University Jubilee Singers of Nashville, Tenn., will give two of their enjoyable and unique concerts at the Congregational Church, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, March 11th and 12th, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. It is a worthy cause and should receive liberal patronage. It is said the music and songs of the combination are of the finest order.

The Deestrick Skule, an old fashioned dramatic production, will be presented at the Congregational Church on March 20 and 21. The management is under Albert Hart and the dramatis personae are some of our most prominent ladies and gentlemen. The proceeds of these entertainments go to the church.

Maggie Mitchell did not have the audience her talent deserved last night. Ray was the attraction, and it is a clean pretty drama. Maggie Mitchell in the title role disclosed her genius in this line of art. While her voice was a trifle husky from a slight cold, she disclosed the fire or her art and captured the audience from her first appearance on the stage. In Fanchon we find her in a character of her own creation. She always has been considered the greatest Fanchon on the stage. Miss Mitchell will give this popular personation to-night. The support is excellent.

The appearance of Maggie Mitchell brings to mind the great success of Alice Kingsbury in the same role during the year 1867. At that time Alice Kingsbury was supported by John McCullough, Dave Anderson, William Barry and a splendid company. To Miss Kingsbury's Fanchon, McCullough was "Landry," Anderson, "Father Barbeaud," and Barry, "Didier." It was a great cast. At the close of the engagement Miss Kingsbury was presented with a magnificent Masonic diamond jewel by the order, Judge H. H. Hartley making the presentation speech. Afterward, a society reception was given the little artist. Miss Kingsbury soon after retired from the stage and resided in San Francisco. Maggie Mitchell was at that time the model Fanchon, Crickel and Little Barefoot.

While sitting in the Metropolitan Theater last Sunday night, our memory recalled the scenes of many years past. Here on Sunday night Fred Warde, one of the greatest dramatic artists, was playing that superb classical tragedy Virginia, to an admiring audience. Twenty-seven years ago, a fine company played upon the same stage and were arrested and prosecuted for breaking the Sunday law. Morris M. Estee, then District Attorney, now a distinguished statesman and politician, and E. H. Heacock, then City Attorney, now a Senator from Santa Barbara, prosecuted the members of the company. The defendants were represented by those bright lights of the bar, Hon. J. W. Coffroth and J. C. Goods (both now dead.) Judge S. Solon Holl presided on the bench. The case was tried before a jury and a conviction obtained. Just at that period there was something of a spirit of intolerance in the community. Judge Holl was then quite prominent as a temperance advocate and lecturer. What changes time works on men and communities!

FLASHES.

Don't tell everybody your business.

Any barkeeper can make "it hot" for you.

Woman may be a puzzle, but we won't give her up.

A grass widow can be said to be in the hey day of life.

Many men who cannot sing a note, can run a score on the bar.

A chemist should be a witty fellow—he is always ready with a retort.

When we hear of the future success of messenger boys, we realize that it pays to go slow.

The up town politicians feel like the fellow who had been "called" on a "big play," and could only show down a "four flush."

The fashionable girl may be dazzling and bright, but the little home maid is the one to delight.

"Random Shots."

We have received from L. F. Moulton, of Colusa, a little pamphlet entitled "Random Shots at Past Follies of Reclamation." Col. Moulton is an enthusiast on the subject of the wanton destruction of our rivers and valley lands by hydraulic mining, and is against any proposition like damming or impounding debris, and anything that has a tendency to permit the continuance of hydraulic mining. His ideas take a somewhat wide range, but there is much that strikes the center.

Some Thoughts—Labor Congress.

The proposed German Labor Congress is a step of so much importance as to command universal attention. The motive which may have induced the Emperor to call the convention is not a matter of much importance. The Congress has been called, and will be participated in by representatives of the principal States of Europe. England, Switzerland and Italy have already signified their intention to send delegates. Austria will be likely to give her assent later on. The acceptance, by President Carnot, of the Emperor's invitation to send commissioners may result in the overthrow of the Tirard Ministry, but unless all reason has forsaken the French people, that nation will be represented in the Congress.

It is difficult to see how the convocation could be made to serve a political purpose, except so far as it might show that Bismark is willing to maintain the peace of Europe so long as he is allowed to have his own way.

But, assuming that the Congress will devote its attention to the consideration of measures for the amelioration of the condition of the labor classes, it will be a remarkable assembly. It will be the first conference of the kind ever held in Europe. The descendant of a line of rulers, which has done more than all other causes put together to make Europe an armed camp, the exponent of a military system which consumes the best seven years of the life of every male citizen of the empire in the army, calling a Congress of powers to take counsel as to the welfare of the work people! It is less than thirteen months since Bismark asked the Reichstag for two new army corps and 80,000,000 marks, and got them. It is a proceeding which disposes one to speculation.

The resolutions that are to come—and that they will come is absolutely certain—will relate to economic and social conditions. Theological controversies as to the nature of God have ceased to sway the minds of men. There has been no abatement of anxiety as to what shall become of us in the next world, but there is a growing belief that a condition of comfort on earth is not incompatible with salvation hereafter. Men have ceased to believe that poverty and toil and a comfortless life are the best conditions for the nourishment of a Christian spirit. Seeing that the churches teach that the least shall be the greatest in the kingdom of heaven, and that all shall be equally rich, men are constantly inquiring why there should be such disparity of conditions in this life. The desire for future happiness is undiminished, but there is an increasing demand for a more equal division of God's bounty among men while they remain on earth. We do not wish to be irreverent or to offend any one, but there are millions of fairly moral people who believe that men would be better fitted for Heaven if they were allowed more comforts and pleasures on earth. There are but few minds that conceive of Heaven without associating it with the conditions which exist in this world. Such is the view entertained by all people of average intellect. And men are constantly asking themselves why it is that if a person is to have all his reasonable wants gratified in the future life, he should be doomed to privation while on earth.

It may be wrong, but it is true all the same, that the labor people who bear burdens during twelve or fourteen or sixteen hours out of the twenty-four question the justice of the Almighty in respect of the unequal manner in which He divides his bounty. They even question the fairness of a plan of salvation which enjoins contentment under privation as a means of future grace. Theological disputes or new discoveries as to the meaning of scripture do not influence this class of people. They are longing for a religion which will put clothes on their backs and food in their stomachs, and which offers them the assurance of a few hours respite from toil in which to enjoy the felicity of domestic life.

The work people of America know nothing of the stress of privation that their brethren in Europe endure.

The labor classes throughout the world are looking for a system under which it will be possible to bring men and women under the humanizing and christianizing influences of domestic life. Right family relations, the cultivation of the domestic virtues and the nurture of children are impossible under the existing labor systems of the world. Writing upon this subject recently, Cardinal Manning drew the following picture:

The condition of the wage-earning people of every European country is a grave danger to every European State. The hours of labor, the employment of women and children, the scantiness of wages, the uncertainties of employment, the fierce competition fostered by modern political economy and the destruction of domestic life resulting from all these and other kindred causes have rendered it impossible for men to love human life.

How can a man who works fifteen or sixteen hours a day live the life of a father to his children? How can a woman who is absent all day long do the duties of a mother? Domestic life is impossible, but on the domestic life of the people the whole political order of human society reposes. If the foundation be ruined what will become of the superstructure? Emperor William has therefore shown himself to be a true and farsighted statesman.

But the great prelate fails to offer a remedy. But surely there is enough wisdom in man to provide relief. The disintegrating influences of their hardships—the loss of love of life—are driving the working classes into State communism. The dreadful competition which they are waging against each other is forcing them to accept Bellamy's theory of nationalism as the only means of escaping their bitter fate.

But what plan of relief will the German Labor Congress offer to the work people of Europe? The military system of the Continent stands as an insurmountable obstacle to any reasonable relief. Statistics were published at Berlin a few days ago, showing the war expenditures of the five great European States during the last three years, to be as follows: France, $1,270,000,000; Russia, $813,000,000; Germany, $860,000,000; Austria-Hungary, $338,000,000, and Italy $313,000,000, or a total of $3,594,000,000. During the same period England's expenditures for military purposes amounted to $612,000,000. Until this enormous draft upon the earnings of the work people is abolished, all amendment to their condition will be impossible. The disarmament of Europe would be the beginning of hope for the labor classes.

But it is best not to be too positive on a question of this sort, seeing that as yet no one has found a substitute for labor or a remedy for poverty.

The holding of the German Labor Congress will be a highly important step. No one expects that a means of relief will be found right off. The conference, however, will stimulate investigation and increase hope.

John Jacob Astor died in New York the other day leaving an estate of $140,000,000 to a single son. And if he had discovered a way by which a person might support himself and family upon the reward of eight hours' work a day, his name would have been perpetuated to the remotest time.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K Street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Faucy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

REGULARREPUBLICAN TICKET

FOR

First Trustee EUGENE J. GREGORYChief of Police WARREN F. DREWCity Attorney E. C. HARTFire Commissioner M. A. HOWARDDirectors for City Free Library,

W. C. FITCH, L. E. SMITH, A. S. HOPKINS,

ADD. C. HINKSON, S. H. GERRISH.

By order of the Republican City Central Committee

A. J. JOHNSTON, Secretary. A. J. GARDINER, Chairman.

Eugene J. Gregory,Regular Republican Nominee for MAYOR.*W. D. Comstock,*Regular Democratic Nominee for MAYOR.*Warren F. Drew,*Regular Republican Nominee for CHIEF OF POLICE.*E. C. Hart,*Regular Republican Nominee for CITY ATTORNEY.*M. A. Howard,*Regular Republican Nominee for FIRE COMMISSIONER.*GO TO*Nolan & Son's*FOR*FINE SHOES,*BRANCH OF SAN FRANCISCO.*603 J Street, Sacramento.

The Only Retail House in Sacramento that manufactures their own goods.

Try Our Famous $3 Shoes.GRAND OPENING AT*JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from	$25
Stylish Pants made to order	6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from	25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from	30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from	40

And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or.

P. H. RUSSELL

Importer and Dealer in

Staple and Fancy Groceries719 J STREET.

Bet. Seventh and Eighth, SACRAMENTO.

Fine Table
Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill FeedN. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

D. H. QUINNHATTER,*401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

W. L. HELKE,

(Successor to J. C. Sepulveda.)

DRUGGIST and CHEMISTN. E. cor. Second and K Sts., Sacramento.

Prescriptions a Specialty. A full line of Standard Preparations.

Tell me not that advertising,
Is at best an empty dream,
For its charms are more surprising
(And everybody who has tried it wisely and well, will acknowledge that its effects are far more astonishing.)
Than its dull, old-fashioned practitioners could ever deem.

And whichever way thou turnest
Thou wilt find, upon the whole,
Those who advertise in earnest
Yes; we have only to glance at our wealthy commercial firms and we shall admit that those who do the thing properly.)
Soonest reach the wished for goal.

Table Customs of the Ancients.

It was one of the ancient customs to recline at the feast; and the banqueting rooms gorgeously carpeted, were fitted up with luxurious couches. Heracles says that the Persians were the first who engaged artistic experts especially to arrange these couches, and that on one occasion, Artaxerxes presented his friend, Timagoras, the Cretan, with a tent of great size and beauty, and a couch with silver feet, with an accompanying message, saying: "I send you, O, Timagoras, the couch and coverlets and a servant to arrange them, as this is a matter the Greeks know not of." It is related of this same Cretan, that he had so completely secured the favor of the Persian King that the latter invited him to a banquet of the royal family, an honor never before paid to any Greek.

Here is another custom of the ancients, and one in which we can see the origin of our menu cards. Each guest, as soon as he had settled upon his couch, was handed a paper upon which was written the name of every article to be served—a convenient, if not an indispensable custom; indeed, in the present day, we would be apt to look upon the omission as barbarous, for what could be more so than to keep a man of moderate gastronomic capacity in ignorance of some coming delicacy, and thus allow him, in the dark, to crowd it out with some previous dish or dishes, which he may tolerate rather than fancy.

From a boy's composition in the New York Herald: "A hen is an animal made by the Creator of the universe, which is covered with feathers and has a bill. The hen stands on two feet except when she is tired, and then she stands on one and eats corn with her bill. When the hen sits down she sits down to lay, and when she lays down she lays down to set. The hen's eggs are good to eat unless they haven't been set on."

BEFORE BUYING STOVES CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,
920 and 922 K STREET,
—And You Will Save Money.—
H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'
Verbine COUGH Balsam

WILL CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA
sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER
LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Stude-
baker Wagons and Buggies,
Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT
BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

MICROBE KILLER

WITH RADAM'S
In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.
It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.
L. L. GODDARD & CO.,
703 J Street, Sacramento. Agents.

R. DAVIS,
NOTARY PUBLIC,
Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:
Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh,
Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.
1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's

THE LARGEST AND
MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,
218 Bush St.,
SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES
and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand
ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing
of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets.
Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT
from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,
Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents.
Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.
Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDougall,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars,
Whips, Spurs, Brushes
Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth
Repairing Neatly Done.
Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKEL, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties
a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company
PACIFIC SYSTEM.

Nov. 17, 1889.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at
SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6-50 A	Calistoga and Napa	11-40 A
3-05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7-25 P
11-00 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3-40 A
7-05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6-45 P
7-25 P	Knight's Landing	7-40 A
9-00 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9-55 A
8-00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6-25 P
12-01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6-00 A
3-00 P	Ogden and East	10-30 A
3-00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10-30 A
10-40 A	Redding via Willows	4-00 P
6-15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7-25 P
6-50 A	San Francisco via Benicia	8-35 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11-40 A
4-00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10-40 P
10-00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	25-00 A
11-25 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2-25 P
6-50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11-40 P
11-25 A	San Jose	2-25 P
7-05 P	Santa Barbara	9-55 A
6-50 A	Santa Rosa	11-40 A
3-05 P	Santa Rosa	7-25 P
9-00 A	Stockton and Gall	6-45 P
7-05 P	Stockton and Gall	9-55 A
8-00 P	Truckee and Reno	6-25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	6-00 A
12-05 P	Colfax	10-20 A
6-50 A	Vallejo	11-40 A
3-05 P	Vallejo	7-35 P
12-15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	10-25 A
7-15 A	Folsom and Placerville	2-40 P
5-20 P	Folsom	6-50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday ex-
cepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers
and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

NOTICE.

HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KIL-
GORE & CO., their interests in the grocery
business, and reopened their old stand at the northwest corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.

T. H. COOK & CO.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,
PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.
CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.
FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER,

1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER,

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

George F. Flink

824 J ST.

Fine Candies

Family Orders for Ice Cream a Specialty.

THE ONLY MAKER OF COLT'S FOOT ROCK COUGH CANDY.

Trees! Trees! Twelve Million Machines

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.

J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 400 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,

DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GASFITTING, AND ROOFING. Jobbing a Specialty.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

FOR SALE.

Half Block

BETWEEN

Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth, V and W Streets

On line of Central Street Railway.

Apply to

FRANK HICKMAN,

1014 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

HOME PRODUCTION.

—WE OFFER NOW OUR—

Newly Sugar-cured

HAMS, BACON

—AND—

SHOULDERS

—AS—

Superior to Any Other in the Market

—OUR LARD—

Is pure and fresh, and

—OUR SAUSAGES—

Cannot be excelled. All Hog Products are from grain-fed hogs only.

MOHR & YOERK.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

A Magazine Romance.

A romantic story was told by a co-ed one of the largest magazines in the country. "Almost two years ago," he said, "a short story of considerable merit had been submitted to the magazine by a young woman, quite unknown to us or to fame, and had been accepted and paid for. It was filed away with other accepted articles, to be used when its turn came. A short time ago came a letter from a young girl asking modestly if the story might not be printed soon, but giving no reason for the request. Two months went on and then a second letter, written in the same hand but in weaker characters, as if the hand that held the pen were scarcely able to guide it. This letter asked again that the story might be printed soon, if possible. 'My physician tells me,' it said, 'that I cannot live but a few months. I had hoped to live to do a great deal of good work of this kind, but you have my first and last piece. I have cared so much for it that I think I could be happier if I might see it in print before I go.' The magazine for the coming month was bound, so nothing could be done with it. The sheets for the second month were printed and ready for binding, and the matter for the third magazine was well under way. We had a short consultation, the result of which was that the story was set up and the sheets containing it substituted for certain sheets in the magazine for the second month. It was no small matter to make the change so late in the day, but we did it, and the letter we received from the girl, who died shortly afterward, more than paid us."

Certificate of Partnership.

WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, DO HEREBY CERTIFY that we are partners, transacting business in the State of California, under the firm name and style of BRAND, LAWTON, BARNETT & CO.; that the names in full of all the members of said partnership are heretofore signed, and that all the members of said partnership reside in the city of Sacramento, county of Sacramento, and State of California. Witness our signatures this 20th day of February, A. D. 1890.

GEORGE ERNEST BRAND,
WILLIAM "D" LAWTON,
ROBERT AUGUSTUS BARNETT.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, } ss.
County of Sacramento, }

On this 20th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Chauncey H. Dunn, a Notary Public in and for said county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared George Ernest Brand, William D. Lawton, and Robert Augustus Barnett, known to me to be the persons described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the within instrument, and they acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the said county of Sacramento, the day and year in this certificate first above written.

[Seal.] CHAUNCEY H. DUNN, Notary Public.
Endorsed: Filed February 20, 1890.
mch 1, 5t By W. B. HAMILTON, County Clerk.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbets, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
mch 1—9t.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

The People of the State of California, to John A. Steen, greeting:

You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 3d day of December, 1889, in which action Anna M. Steen is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and plaintiff, upon the alleged ground of habitual intemperance, and for the care, custody and control of the minor child, Gertrude D. Steen, and for general relief and for costs of suit; all of which more fully appears in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made.

And you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento; and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

In testimony whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 4th day of December, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.
MATT. F. JOHNSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.
feb 8—w9.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT H. WACHHORST

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano when will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

- a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
 b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
 c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
 d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
 e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
 f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
 g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

H. WACHHORST

Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

TO BE HAD ONLY AT

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

MAGGI'S HOT BOUILLON!

Just Out: Maroon Marmalade

Willis & Ray

APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

WM. J. HASSETT.

A. J. JOHNSTON.

A. J. JOHNSTON & CO.

General Printers,

410 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Simon Sturmer,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER,

No. 504 K Street, Pacific Hotel Building.
HOLIDAY GOODS in endless variety. REPAIR-
ING of all kinds done, and work warranted.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties
Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS

Agents for Rockford Watch Co.

No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

A. G. JOHNSON.

CLAUS ANDERSON.

ANDERSON & JOHNSON,

The Leading Merchant Tailors,

SUITS MADE TO ORDER AT REASONABLE RATES.

No. 1014 Seventh Street, Sacramento.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK.

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MARCH 15, 1890.

No. 4

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The defeat of Mayor Gregory was indeed a surprise. It was admitted by all that he was an excellent public servant, and personally popular. It was not any particular popularity or merit of his opponent that brought to him the majority vote. The underlying cause was without doubt the dissatisfaction engendered by the manner of nomination. The independent element in the Republican party took affront at the apparent interference with their rights by certain arbitrary powers. This, coupled with the bad feeling heretofore and evidently still existing between the two contending elements of the party, brought down the vengeance on Gregory's head, on that principle in politics called "getting even." One of the strange features of this election was the contrast with that of one year ago, but where the result was the same—the election of a Democrat. John Stevens was defeated by the saloon element and disappointed Republicans, because it was charged that he was in favor of high license. W. D. Comstock was and is publicly known to be a high license advocate, and yet the same men who defeated Stevens elected Comstock. We felt that all differences in the party councils had been discarded, and that harmony would henceforth prevail, but it seems there is yet discord in the ranks, and that something will have to be done by wise and cool heads to dispel the clouds that hang over the party in this city. The State and county election approaches. The party convention will probably be called early in July. In this convention there must not be any of the elements of discord. Factional contests must be adjusted so that harmony shall prevail and the ticket selected shall receive the united support of the whole party. Sacramento county has a round Republican majority of 1700, and it should be given to the whole ticket, State and county. In order to insure such a success, every candidate must have a fair chance. No particular element or person should be permitted to dictate to the convention assembled. To accomplish this end, as we have in former issues of this paper suggested, each precinct should be allowed to select its delegates, which would prevent any one person or power from having too great a trading capital. A fair apportionment on this basis would tend greatly to bring about an adjustment between the contending factions. We want harmony. Without it there will be a constant recurring of the events of the past two years, which have resulted in giving the ever alert Democracy the entire control of our city government, notwithstanding our 1500 Republican majority.

The members of the Federal Senate are luxuriating just now in a kettle of hot water, of such dimensions as to give every one of them ample room in all directions. Every mother's son of them is as busy as a beaver trying to find the leak through which the proceedings of executive sessions find their way into the newspapers. The Senate may go into secret session in the afternoon to consider a treaty on the matter of confirming some nomination, and the next morning they will read an account of everything they have said or done in the newspapers. So the Senate is in an unhappy frame of mind. And when people get ruffled they are dead sure to do absurd things. What could be more ridiculous, for instance, than the putting of Senators under oath and questioning them as to whether they have disclosed the secret proceedings of the executive sessions? Still, Senator Dolph's Committee of Investigation has been engaged in this business for a week. The examination proceeds somewhat in this way:

Senator Dolph: "George F. Edmunds, William M. Evarts, Leland Stanford, Wade Hampton and George F. Hoar, stand up and be sworn to tell the truth touching the matter of telling tales out of school."

Could anything be more ridiculous? It's enough to make a monk die of laughter. And then what a sense of dignity it adds to the senatorial office for a senator to be called up and sworn and catechised as to whether he has been leaking. Fancy the state of mind that Morgan of Alabama or Cullom of Illinois would be in when he is called up, like a schoolboy in knickerbockers, and asked to repeat what he may have said to outsiders as to the business transacted in executive session. Likely enough Ingalls, the waspish Kansas statesman, will put a fresh aloe in his mouth when he is called upon to depose touching his fidelity to his official honor. In effect, every senator, at the time he is sworn into office, takes an oath to keep the proceedings of executive sessions secret. The inquisition which Senator Dolph's committee is conducting would lead to the belief that there is a strong suspicion that some one has either fallen down or slopped over.

There is another branch of the executive session question which is of the highest interest, namely: The right of the Senate to imprison a newspaper reporter for refusing to disclose the sources of his information as to what may have taken place behind closed doors. When Editor Frank Hatton of the Washington Post was before Statesman Dolph's Senatorial Leakage Committee, he was asked as to what instructions he gave his reporters. His reply was "they are instructed to get every thing that's going, and if they are very successful their salaries are raised." He was then asked if his reporters told him from whom or in what manner they got their information as to what takes place in executive session. He stated that they did tell him, but he instructed them not to tell anyone else—that they should go to prison first. And as for himself, he said he was ready to be hanged, but wouldn't tell how his reporters got their news. Upon this state of facts a discussion has been going on in executive session, from time to time, for as much as two weeks. The debate, of course, turns on the question of the power of the Senate to imprison a newspaper man for refusing to tell how he came into possession of certain facts. Evarts and Vest, and Edmunds and George have all spoken on the question, and other senators are anxious to be heard. It is clear, however, that it would be impossible for the Senate to discuss the question of its right to imprison a person for refusing to comply with its order in the respect mentioned, without discussing the more important question of confidential communications as that subject is related to the press. And the secret executive session has deprived the public of the benefit of this discussion. The subject must have been well handled, considering the ability of the senators engaged in the debate. The point under consideration, however, does not include the whole question, or its most important features. It might be that the Senate would decide that it has power to send a person to jail for refusing to obey an order with respect to a particular matter. And it might be that the courts would uphold the Senate's decision. But it is clear that a ruling upon this point would not be conclusive as to the matter of confidential communications. And it is the latter branch of the subject which has forced the Senate to consider its decision with much caution. There are innumerable instances in which the newspaper editor is placed in a position as sacred as that occupied by the physician or the clergyman. And this very question is bound to command the attention of the courts before long. Its solution will not depend so much upon statutory regulations as upon the moral sense of what ought to be done in a particular case. A person, believing himself to be at death's door, confesses to a minister of the gospel. Another person discloses to a physician the cause of his ailment. And in either case the law prevents the communication from being dragged into publicity. The newspaper man often becomes the involuntary keeper of secrets, whose publication would ruin whole families and blast the characters of public men. As to the use that the possessor of such knowledge might make of it, is a question not pertinent to the matter under discussion. The main inquiry is as to what good or useful purpose would be subserved by compelling a disclosure of such knowledge. This question is bound to assume prominence in the future.

It is stated that no two senators are of the same opinion as to their power to compel newspaper men to stand and deliver. And this has led to a search for a means of punishment by a power other than the Senate. It is stated that the newspaper reporters are to be handed over to the courts to be tried for sedition. This is a new view of jurisprudence, truly. The reporters evidently got their information as to what took place in executive session either from the senators themselves, or by listening at a keyhole. Whether it is worse to listen to a senator talk or to put one's ear to a keyhole, is a matter upon which there is a great diversity of opinion. But how either proceeding might be construed to amount to an attempt to upset the government, we are unable to perceive. It is difficult to give a popular definition of sedition. However, it may be stated to be an effort to overthrow the civil authorities which occupies a position about midway between a riot and an insurrection. It is a bigger thing than a tumult and a good deal less than a rebellion. There is no standard legal writer who lays down the proposition that the mere listening to an American Senator tell what he oughtn't to tell, is equivalent to engaging in a riotous proceeding. And there is no authority whatever for maintaining that the putting of one's ear to a keyhole is tantamount to taking part in an insurrection. However, the Federal Senate seems to be engaged just now in making a voyage of discovery, and THEMIS supposes that the matter will come out all right.

It is a pleasure to record certain facts which are destined to lead to the rout of all pessimists and false prophets. Indeed, there is abundant evidence to support the belief that the reign of all foreboders of evil is about at an end. General Ben Butler has had a tuck taken in the lid of his left eye, and since the operation was performed that eminent statesman has made up his mind that life is worth living. Butler now thinks that the world is a much better place than he has heretofore thought it to be, and seeing that he is plodding along in his seventy-second year, the case of the Essex statesman offers great encouragement. Mrs. James Brown-Potter has taken a dislike to Kyrle Bellow, and sighs for the sweet delights of domestic life, which she so thoughtlessly abandoned. But a still more important conversion has occurred. Governor Hill of New York has made public proclamation that he is sick of peanut politics. Putting the cases of the Brown-Potter person and the New York Governor together, it would seem as if Satan were losing some of his best helpers. Whenever a boodle politician and a runaway wife begin to repent, there is good reason to believe that the millenium is something more than a myth. Senator Morgan of Alabama has abandoned the idea of deporting the southern negroes to Africa, which is another good sign. Rev. Pentecost has repented of the desire to blow up the Czar with dynamite, which is not a matter of much importance, seeing that the Czar and the Rev. Pentecost have mighty little to do with the progress of the world. The most surprising, as well as the most promising conversion, however, is the ease of Amelie Rives Chanler. This person elevated herself to a position of doubtful fame a short time ago through the publication of an erratic novel entitled "The Quick or the Dead." She has resolved to write no more novels. Her "Quick or the Dead" inoculated tens of thousands of young people with the most vulgar and sensual thoughts. Whether she has become convinced that she has done as much harm as one person ought to do, or whether marriage has worked a change in her moral nature, is not a matter of any consequence. She has abandoned novel writing, which is proof positive that the devil is losing ground in the world. We might adduce further evidence in support of our position that there is a moral uplifting going on all along the line. But having shown that General Ben Butler, "Dave" Hill, the Brown-Potter person and Amelie Rives Chanler have forsaken the ways of the ungodly, we think we have established our case. The pessimists and prophets of evil are away below par.

The proceedings attending the trial of Mrs. Terry in the United States Circuit Court at San Francisco were a scandal upon the judiciary and upon judicial methods. The trial will be quoted far and wide as evidence of the low ebb to which the American judiciary has fallen. The only question to be decided was as to whether Mrs. Terry had been guilty of resisting and assaulting a Federal officer—the United States Marshal—in the performance of his duty. It was the duty of the Court to compel the attorneys in the case to confine their arguments to the one question, and to suppress all reference to irrelevant and inflammatory matters. When ex-Judge Louderback attempted to deliver a eulogy upon Judge Field, Judge Ross very properly stopped him by making the inquiry as to what Judge Field had to do with the case. "Leave Judge Field out of this case," said Judge Ross. When, however, the same attorney referred to Mrs. Terry as a "lewd and indecent person," he was permitted to go on without rebuke. This was unpardonable in Judge Ross and brutal in Louderback. We choose our words, and state our position in such terms as the facts justify. And we have no fears that we will not be sustained by every highminded jurist in the country, whether he occupies a position on the bench or at the bar. Mrs. Terry's character for chastity or decency was not an issue in the case. Let her character in respect of those qualities be what it may, it had not the remotest relation to the crime for which she was on trial. If evidence had been offered as to her reputation upon either of these points, it would have been ruled out without ceremony. This is so plain as to be comprehensible to the common mind. The question is often asked as to why the common people are losing respect for the judiciary and losing confidence in the courts. The rowdy proceedings which were permitted to go on in the Federal Court at San Francisco, without rebuke, are one reason. People do not require the aid of judicial interpretation to tell them that in a case where a person is charged with resisting or assaulting an officer in the discharge of his duty, her reputation for chastity or the want of it, can have no effect upon the question of her guilt. The evidence that was introduced on the trial of Mrs. Terry was read by a hundred thousand people in this State, and they know that not a witness was called to testify as to her personal character. And these people, both men and women, are asking each other why it was that a judge, whose duty it is to preserve, not only the forms, but the substance of decency, and to guarantee fair play to every accused person that comes before him, should permit such brutality to be exhibited in his presence without reproof. All the circumstances leading up to the Terry tragedy are familiar to the public, and opinion has settled down as to where the responsibility belongs. The whole affair is now looked at from a dispassionate standpoint, and enlightened public opinion will not sanction judicial dereliction which amounts to indifference to common decency. THEMIS looks at matters of this sort through a clear atmosphere, without fear or favor. And it is a proper question to ask why an attorney was permitted to exploit his opinion as to the private character of Mrs. Terry, whereas he was called to order when he attempted to extol the fame of Judge Field, seeing that neither question had the least relevancy to the case. The question as to what the real character of Mrs. Terry may be has nothing to do with the case. She was not on trial for lewdness or indecency, and her character in respect to those matters could have no bearing upon the question of her guilt or innocence of an assault upon Marshal Franks. The very first injunction of legal ethics is that every lawyer shall deal honorably in conducting every case. And this Louderback did not do. And Judge Ross is equally guilty with Louderback, for he permitted the abuse to go on when he might have stopped it.

That was an eloquent tribute by Judge McFarland to his dead friend, Judge A. C. Niles. It is indeed a beautiful poem. The closing part we give as a model of choice literature: "For a long time Judge Niles was financially in easy circumstances; during the last few years of his life he was what the world calls poor. The failure of a moneyed institution undermined his fortune, and it speedily disappeared. But he always had an estate in things real and personal which breaking banks and shrinking values do not touch, and which the assessor does not schedule; in the sunset and the stars; in the shores of the deep-sounding sea, and in the broad ocean itself, on whose breast he loved to be 'borne like its bubbles onward' in landscapes variegated with tree and grass and flower, and musical with the voices of birds and brooks; in the companionship of genial friends; in the bright and wise sayings of sages and philosophers and poets of all times; in the rich thoughts of his own mind; in the choice works of the sculptor and the painter; and in the love of the beautiful and the grand, wherever found in nature or art or man. And from this estate he derived an income more valuable than the overflowing revenues which often come to duller men from the ownership of stocks and bonds and from titles in fee to broad acres and brick blocks. Ah! how hard it is to tell who makes the most out of human life! And if there be another life; if Plato's dream of immortality be not as unsubstantial as were many of his 'ideas'; if the expectations of millions of Christian men and women be not utterly baseless; may we not hope, at least, that our departed friend has entered upon a sphere of higher existence, with faculties and capacities more suited to its conditions and demands, than those possessed by many who still linger here on this bank and shoal of time, waiting for "The tide returning hearse

To sweep them from our sight." "

The cynical Talleyrand once said that theologians were very much like dogs who gnaw large bones for very little meat. Col. Ingersoll in the North American Review for March, declares that the Christian religion rests on miracles. Credulity without reason, which believes everything but the truth. To annihilate the doctrines of the theologian, he calls science to his aid in his masterly line of argument. There are miracles in the realms of science, none in nature. Under like conditions like results will always follow. The moment we understand a question or subject there is no longer room for the miraculous. All religions are claimed to have been miraculously founded, miraculously preserved, and miraculously propagated. It resolves itself into a belief in the supernatural. Under the idea of the Christian belief every law, every fact in nature was and is violated. Children were born without parents; men lived for thousands of years; others subsisted without food or sleep; thousands were possessed of evil spirits, controlled by ghosts. These delusions took possession of all classes, peasants, nobles and kings. Inspiration is one of the corner stones of religion, and the so-called inspiration is one of the miracles which reason denies. The gifted agnostic says that to-day the intelligence of the world denies the miraculous. Ignorance is the soil of the supernatural. The natural is true—the miraculous false.

A CELEBRATED LAW CASE.

The great Frederic passed through many interesting vicissitudes in his eventful life. While yet a youth, an officer in the Potsdam guards, he came near being shot by order of an irate father for desertion, and only escaped by aid of foreign influence with absolute submission to the will of the king, and after a long imprisonment. Assuming the reins of his government on the death of his father in 1740, he showed himself equal to every emergency, and on the death of the Kaiser, he hurled defiance in the teeth of the Austrian, invaded Silesia, and after a series of brilliant marches, sieges and battles, won it from the Roman reich. After a second Silesian war in 1744-5, and the seven years' war, 1756 to 1763, the King of Prussia turned his attention more to the civil government of his kingdom. The true greatness of the man then became more apparent, as he set about restoring Prussia, brought to the verge of ruin by the combined forces of Austria, France and Russia. Among other things, he established a system of laws contained in a code prepared by the wisest men in his kingdom, and put its administration in the hands of his ablest jurists, to be administered in the name of the king, but on a theory wholly independent of the sovereign. This Codex Fredericianus is by competent judges pronounced superior to the Code Napoleon, and it is, with amendments, the law of Prussia to this day. In 1779-80, under this Code there came into the law courts a proceeding called the Miller-Arnold case, which is still worthy of note. In the sandy moors near the borders of Silesia at Newmark, on a brook trickling into the Oder, was a mill for long generations held by a line of dusty Arnolds, who laboriously for toll ground into meal the ryes, pulses, barleys and wheat of that dim region.

From the old law papers of that case we fish up a few salient facts. In 1762 young Arnold got married to a wife with a portion, bought the mill from his father, he and wife co-owners henceforth, she a most shifty litigant as it proved. In 1770, Freyherr Barm von Gersdorf, whose land lies higher up stream, bethinks himself of fish husbandry, and makes a fish-pond to himself, and for a part supply thereof lays a weir across the brook and thereby diverted a part of Arnold's water. In 1773 the Arnolds fell into arrears of rent, and land-owner Schmittan said I must have my rent. How can we pay? Gersdorf with his fish-ponds spoils our water. Prosecute Gersdorf then, but pay you must. I give you time to prosecute. After waiting four years Major von Schmittan had them up in his manorial court before Schlecker, Judge. The Major had his eye on his Judge and Madam Arnold had strong suspicions that the Judge was prejudiced and so said in open Court, and thereupon Schlecker orders her locked up for contempt of Court. This precedent was not, but might have been cited in the late Sharon-Terry-Sawyer-Field imbroglio, in our Circuit Court, to support an order committing Mrs. Terry for contempt. Certain it is that Schlecker's Court decided every point against Frau Arnold. Pay Schmittan or disappear. And as the Arnolds could not pay, the officer of Court sold the mill for $600, September 7, 1778, and the Arnolds were an ousted family. The Arnolds made several appeals to the College of Judges, but without result. Schlecker right in every point; Gersdorf right; go, will you? A mill forfeited and fallen to the highest bidder, and von Gersdorf purchaser. Hah, said the rural public, this smells bad; von Gersdorf proprietor of both pond and mill? The Courts went into all manner of questions, and cited authorities from Grotius down, that landlords have rights on private rivers and riparian rights on all rivers. That by law of 1566 he had the right to put down his fish pond. The real questions of how much water was taken, how much damage the Arnolds had sustained, whether Gersdorf was liable, were not touched on. Three commissioners sat on the case and had all the hydraulic sages before them with the same result.

No wonder Frau Arnold got disgusted, and in 1775 she presented her petition to the king: "Oh just king, please appoint a military commission to investigate our business; impartial officers will speedily find out the facts and decide what is just, and set the judicial wigs at some business they understand. In 1779 the Arnolds presented to the king another petition of like kind with no better results. They next tried Grand Chancellor Von Fürst. See great law gentlemen come to reform abuses. Can that possibly be law? If so is it not injustice as well? answered Fürst, and flung the petition into the waste basket. They next applied to Prince Leopold, nephew of Frederic, and he applied to Fürst. There must be some defect of equity. The Arnolds had their water stolen and have lost their mill thereby; send down a neutral commission to search this matter. Tush, Prince, every one to his trade; and that came to nothing. Leopold mentioned the matter to the king. This proved the saving clause to the Arnolds. Frederick kindled into hot anger, rectify me all that straight way, and relieve those Arnolds of their injuries, you pettifogging pedant knaves, bring that Arnold matter to order, will you! you had better. A new commission was appointed, one or more lawyers in it, one hydraulic gentleman. These gentlemen investigated and found Arnold entitled to 6 l. 12 s. value of corn left, clearly Arnolds that. And so the Arnolds did not get their mill but they again (Nov. 12) petition the king. Fredrick's patience with his courts is worn out.

The papers, you say, are at Cüstrin. Send for them by express; have them here in one day. The appeal is to our Court of Kammergericht, at Berlin. Chancellor Fürst is unwilling, but send he must for the papers and they are brought to Berlin, and in harrow loads dumped on the floor of the Berlin court. You, Judge Rannslehen, down upon them. Let us have your report to-morrow. Rannslehen makes his report in two sections, one Arnold vs. Schmitt, the other Arnold vs. Gersdorf, affirming the decree of the Cüstrin Court. December 10 Fredrick gets the decree. He was then lying ill of gout in the Schloss at Berlin, and in bad temper with his judges. Attend me here with the three judges who signed the report, at 2 P. M. to-day.

The cüstrin judgment right in every particular and this too in the King's name. The Chancellor Fürst and three judges are now on trial before the King. The Chancellor came in first, then Judges Ruth, Friedel, Graum and Rannslaben ranged in a row, the King lying in his easy chair, his gouty feet resting on cushions and one hand in a muff; in the other he held the judgment of the court. The King: Come nearer. They advanced to within two steps of the King. Is it you who drew up the judgment in the Arnold case? Yes! To give sentence against a peasant from whom you have taken wagon, plow, everything that enabled him to get a living and pay his rent and taxes, is that a thing that can be done? No! But here now is a nobleman wishing to make a fish pond; to get more water for his pond he has a ditch dug to drain into it the water from a small stream which drives a water mill. Thus the miller loses his water and cannot grind. Yet in spite of all this it is pretended that the miller shall pay his rent quite the same as when he had full water for his mill. Of course he cannot pay his rent, his income is gone. And what does the Cüstrin Court of Justice do? It orders the mill sold that the nobleman may have his rent. And the Berlin tribunal (here the Chancellor suggests Kammergericht).

The King to Fürst: Go, you, sir, about your business, on the instant. Your successor is already appointed. Disappear. Chancellor Von Fürst laying aside the font of Jove assumed by him in pronouncing his judgments, slunk silently away and is heard of no more.

King to the other judges: The Kammergericht confirms that judgment. That is highly unjust and contrary to my notion of equity; and you used my name, too, in rendering this unjust judgment, and so myself finds my royal office cruelly abused by my highest court. My name to such a thing? When was I found to oppress a poor man for love of a rich? When did I follow wiggeries and forms with solemn attention, careless what became of the internal fact. What has the act of 1566 to do with it? Wretched mortals had you wigs a fathom long and acts of 1566 by the hundred weight they should not be used as an excuse to trample such rights underfoot. I will make an example of you one and all. Out of my sight! The Judges were, however, detained in the Schloss by order of the king, and presently there came an aid de camp who took them in a carriage to the town prison. On December 13, 1779, the king made a cabinet order appointing a commission to try the Judges for malfeasance in office, and therein commanded beforehand that the sentence of each should be: 1st. Imprisonment in a fortress not less than a year. 2d. Dismissal from office. 3d. Payment to the Arnold people for all the losses they had sustained. The Arnolds by the judgment of the Court were afterwards also restored to their mill, with full supply of water. Afterwards, when Fredrick was appealed to for a remission of the sentence of the Judges, denied it, saying: I know your advocates slight of hand, and won't be taken in. An example has become necessary here. These scoundrels having so abused my name to practice injustice. A judge that goes upon chicanery should be punished more severely than a highway robber, for you have trusted the one and can't protect yourself from him; as to the other, you can be on your guard. This Miller-Arnolds case attracted the attention of all Europe. In Russia, the Czarina Catrina sent to her senate a copy of the Friedricks judgment on December 11th, as a noteworthy instance of royal supreme judicature. This happened just at the beginning of the French Revolution, and prints illustrating it were placed in the shop windows. But the upper class of Prussian society never approved the severity of the proceeding against the judges.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Richard Stahl, the composer, is at work on a wedding march. He should be able to work in some realistic effects, as he has been married three times, divorced twice, and sued once for alimony.

Among the actors there are many who bid fair to carry their fathers' talent on to the next generation. The younger Southern certainly shows that he is no unworthy successor of Lord Dundreary and Coquelin's art of pleasing an audience. Alexander Salvini, although a mere youth, has begun a stage career that promises to equal that of his illustrious sire, and Henry Irving, Jr., has appeared with credit to himself on the English stage. And in the Booth, Davenport and Thorne families striking instances of hereditary histrionic talent may be observed.

Actors lead a more or less adventurous life, and naturally they have many good stories to tell. John Gilbert, one of the "old-timers" of the profession—he was born February 27, 1810—has an almost inexhaustible fund of anecdotes. One of them, relating to the elder Booth, is especially good. The tragedian was not abstemious in his use of liquor, and one evening when a large audience had assembled to enjoy his rendering of "Richard III," he came to the stage door so drunk that he could not walk straight. He had often been in a similar condition before and yet performed his part on the stage creditably, so the manager on this occasion did not feel greatly alarmed. Booth was hastily taken to his dressing-room, his head bathed in cologne, and everything done to revive him. These efforts were partly successful, the curtain was rung up, and Richard pushed on the stage. The sight of the audience sobered him somewhat, and, seeing by his dress that he was to play Richard, he collected his thoughts and went on. The audience failed to see that anything was wrong, and all went well during the first scenes. Then Booth gave signs of collapsing, but the play could not be stopped. Gilbert, who took the part of the sick King Edward, made his entrance accompanied by the Queen, Dorset, Rivers, and Hastings, and as usual, was conducted to a couch in the middle of the stage. Then, after a few speeches by the King and other characters, Buckingham spoke the line: "And in good time here comes the noble duke." This was the cue for Richard's entrance, and Booth was pushed on the stage. But for once his wit failed him. Instead of saying "Good-morrow to my sovereign King and Queen," he staggered over to where Gilbert was reclining, looked at him a moment, winked, and said in a tone which could be heard all over the house: "Get up, John, and let me lie down." Shouts of laughter greeted this unexpected speech, and the scene and play closed in the midst of great confusion.

With the exalted idea and high appreciation of the art entertained by our esthetic, music-loving people, it is more than astonishing that there has not been established in our city one of the world's famous Italian or German opera troupes. Not elsewhere on earth, we opine, are to be found such genuine, cultivated, polished critiques of the classic in music, vocal or instrumental, as are resident here, the light of their genius hidden from the world simply because unkind fate keeps from them the occasion of exercising those God-given talents. How entrancing, how soul-stirring to sit lingering and listening to one of those literati who, on returning from San Francisco where he or she has been to hear Patti, gives a graphic recitation of that songster's influence over the soul of the man so unfortunate as to be able to hear her. Oh! but it is almost next to hearing the songstress to listen to the learned recitation of one truly competent to judge and fully capable of understanding, and withal, learned enough to describe her empyreal, heavenly flights into the realms of music. "Oh," begins the entranced one, "you ought to have been there; I never saw such a crowd in my life; the jam was awful! It took us half an hour to get inside the door, but fortunately we had our tickets beforehand and did not have to wait at the box office. But when we got to our seats some one else had taken them, and the usher had to call a policeman before we could be seated. I tell you the ladies were dressed 'beautiful'; low necks and short sleeves seemed to be the fashion, and I felt so out of place; the diamonds and jewelry must have represented millions of dollars. But I never saw such an ugly set of women in one audience in my life before. And yet they were all dressed 'rich' and they all seemed to be there to show off their clothes. The men were perfectly 'horrid.' Just to see 'them' snips of boys in evening dress puffing cigarettes in the 'corridors' and blowing the smoke in your face. They haven't got a bit of manners. Oh! I never saw so many fine dresses in my life; the women in San Francisco do dress 'elegant,' there's no use talking. What did I think of Patti? Oh! she's 'lovely' and she acts so 'nice.' Don't she?" This runs on by the quarter hour this wise, one fresh from the opera, never once thinking of the diva or her imperishable genius or the God-given talent that had made her little less than superhuman in her sphere. And the auditor of this embryo critique's recital sighs to think he, through poverty, lost an only chance to see Patti "act."

Book Chat.

A little crib. A tiny babe. A mother's lullaby.
A gracious ray of sunshine from a bright, unclouded sky.
A breath of light and loveliness. A cherished hope, a prayer.
Dropped down into the present from that strange, mysterious where?
A cold, white stone. A little mound. A mother's grief and tears.
A shadow reaching out across the sunshine of the years.
A voice unanswered evermore, an echo of despair;
Gone from the living present to that strange, mysterious where?

The late Earl of Sidney was the original of Chas Dickens' Sir Leicester Dedlock, in Bleak House.

"Chinese" Gordon's letters and journals have at last reached publication, and the work is now announced to appear this month.

Maud Banks, the promising young actress, is turning to literature, and her impressions of stage life will soon appear in an article which she has just finished.

Latin ceased to be spoken as a language of the people in Italy about 581. It was first taught in England in the seventh century, and speedily became the learned language of the kingdom, and the one in which English literature and law were expressed.

Philosopher Herbert Spencer, who lives in boarding houses, has had two little buttons designed by an artist and made exactly to fit his ears, by which ingenious means he avoids the miscellaneous clatter and inane chatter at the table d'hôte. Here is a hint to the unfortunate critic sent out to "do" a Wagnerian concert.

Andrew Lang, the great English critic, proposes to follow the example of Astronomer Richard A. Proctor and Novelist Robert Louis Stevenson, and settle in New York. He is the most versatile of all the British writers, and enjoys a popularity there like that of Eugene Field in this country. He has learned to his sorrow that literature does not pay as well in the markets of John Bull as those of Uncle Sam, and proposes at the eleventh hour to cross the sea in pursuit of larger sales and heavier profits.

Olliver Weudall Holmes, Jr., is a popular and erudite judge in Boston, and Sir Hallam Teunison is an interesting figure in the political and literary life of England. Julian Hawthorne has many of the qualities that made Nathaniel Hawthorne one of the few original writers in American literature. Robert Browning's son is an artist, as was Maurice Sand, who inherited much of the artistic excellence that gave the world Consuelo. Charles Dickens Jr., is editor of a London literary journal and a very cultured and agreeable gentleman. Charles Lever, one of the best known electrical engineers in England, who died the other day, was a son of Charles Lever, the Irish novelist.

Our poets, as a rule, strangely enough, use the pen almost without an exception. Mr. Lowell, Dr. Holmes and Mr. Whittier never think of the pencil as an instrument of composition. Mr. Aldrich, also, uses the pen, as does Margaret Deland, and likewise Edmund Clarence Stedman. The poet Stoddard will vary between the pen and the pencil, as the mood may seize him. Robert Louis Stevenson, on the other hand prefers a pencil, although he has written the complete manuscript of a novel with a pen. Mrs. Burnett also uses the pen, although during her recent illness she used a pencil almost exclusively. George William Curtis is loyal to the pencil in his rough drafts. Mr. Howells thinks he writes easier with the pen. What little manual literary work is done by Frank Stockton he does by the pen. Edgar Fawcett uses the pencil almost exclusively, as also does Anna Katharine Green, who writes best with a pad on her knee, and rarely uses a desk or a table. But the pen seems to have the advantage with authors for actual composition, and this is not strange unless one has accustomed himself to the pencil.

Mr. Henry Russell, the well known composer of "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," was walking through Ipswich, England, a short time ago, when he saw the following announcement placarded upon the entrance of the town hall: "Lecture on the late Henry Russell." Much interested, he walked in, took a seat, and quietly listened as the eloquent lecturer, whom he had never seen before in his life, proceeded after this fashion: "I can scarcely describe my feelings as I stood by the open grave and watched the coffin that contained all that was mortal of my dear old friend lowered into the yawning gulf beneath. Ere it was quite lost to sight I dropped my humble tribute, a simple wreath, the last testimony of my affection for the composer of 'Woodman, Spare the Tree?' and of many other songs we know and love so well." At this point Mr. Russell, convulsed with laughter, darted from the hall, leaving behind him an irate lecturer and a scandalized audience.

Professional Chat.

Secretary Balfour, while in Dublin, recently met a Catholic priest who did not belong to the Nationalist party. "Are the Irish people as bitter against me as certain newspapers say they are?" asked Balfour. "Since you have asked me I will tell you the truth," answered the priest. "If our flocks hated sin half as cordially as they hate you there would be no use for priests in Ireland."

Doctors, as a rule, are reticent about their fees; but there is a story, probably authentic, that Dr. Willard Parker was paid $100,000 for the successful removal of an excrescence from the face and neck of the son and heir of one of the wealthiest families in the vicinity of New York. Commodore Vanderbilt bequeathed $20,000 to one of his doctors; but millionaires seldom remember the physician in their wills. They leave that to be settled by the executors. Dr. Parker's fee in the case alluded to is probably the largest ever paid, in this country at least.

The court-room is frequently the scene of comical events and dry wit. Last week, during the hearing of the Probate calendar in Judge Van Fleet's department, Robert T. Devlin asked leave to call a probate case, but stated that he had no positive proof of the death of the party on whose estate he wished to administer. He called witnesses, however, who testified that they did not see the party dead, but believed from what they had been told he was dead. After this testimony was a number of times repeated, Judge Van Fleet, in his dry and quizzical way remarked to the counsel: "Do you think the party is still dead?"

Charles J. Bonaparte is the grandson of a King and the grandnephew of an Emperor, but he is a plain American lawyer. Although a millionaire he rarely entertains; dresses plainly, lives plainly, looks plain and is plain. He is short, stout and swarthy, and his appearance on the street is very remarkable. His head shakes from side to side like the pendulum of a clock. He is married, but has no children, and unlike his brother, Jerome Napoleon, he does not pose before the world as an imperialist Bonaparte. His ambition is in the way of his profession. He would like to be a judge and is something of an orator.

Junius Henri Browne, the veteran journalist, is still quite lively for his age. He has not forgotten the months he spent in that log hut, in the Salisbury prison, with the brilliant and unfortunate Albert D. Richardson, when both were civilian captives of the Confederacy. Many a sad scene was witnessed from the window of the old log hut, which stood not far from the dead line, as the line of demarcation was called, which no prisoner could pass, save at the forfeit of his life. The story of the daring escape has been told before. Of the participants in that brave adventure, all have passed away except Mr. Browne.

NOTES.

Now is the season when the policeman is on the anxious seat. About the only genuine activity displayed by that body of men in the past two years, now begins to become manifest. This activity is only equalled by that which could have prevailed in drawing their salaries, had they been permitted so to do.

An Eastern paper says that Joaquin Miller does not know how to spell. Neither did George Washington, nor the Duke of Wellington, nor the Duke of Marlborough. Even the great Cæsar wrote the worst Latin that ever perplexed a poor devil of a student. The immortal Shakespeare, if a copy of his last will and testament is any guide, was an abominable speller.

Now that the spring election is over, let us settle down to legitimate business. Let us devise ways and means by which our streets can be put into decent condition, and by which other internal improvements can be made. Let us above all else disperse the crowds of laboring men who daily stand on the corners by giving them employment.

Commenting on the report that slogger Jackson is dissipating in the East, the Alla suggests to him that "he should drink milk and go to bed with the chickens." It may be all right for Peter to make a milk-sop of himself and a bed "with the chickens," maybe a feather bed, but don't it strike you it would be rather contracted for Jackson's long legs?

A gleeful donkey, Bennett by name, is scouring Oakland on a bicycle exhorting that unwashed population to "flee to the Berkeley hills," as a tidal wave of the Almighty's wrath is promised to engulf that village and San Francisco on March 16th. Will not brother Bennett and his male and female fellow-fools postpone the show to the 17th, so that we may avoid expense by having it and St. Patrick's Day together?

Martin L. Fritch, minister of the gospel at Reading, Pa., has been caught stealing gimlets and other hardware. Verily, it must be a very poor congregation that would compel its pastor to steal for a living. Else he must have had a hard-headed set to deal with, and it required the services of a gimlet to penetrate their thick skulls on his way to their souls with his "apostolic blows and knocks."

An over-enthusiastic admirer of Major E. W. Jones, President of the Los Angeles Board of Trade, urges him as a suitable Republican candidate for gubernatorial honors. In doing so it is related that "he was Major in an artillery regiment during the war, and an efficient officer." Let us whisper very kindly that the war is over, and that Major Jones is no more entitled to be Governor because of his military prefix than if he had been a bull-puncher in the ligera days of '49. Besides, if we were looking for a candidate with a military knob to his name, we would climb up higher and take a colonel at least. And then think of the scandalous example it would set; the Democratic party would be nominating Colonel Jones, of Oroville. Oh, no; a plain Mr. makes a good enough Governor.

Several months ago we took occasion to give some reasons why the Federal Supreme Court should be released from the great volume of work now and constantly accumulating. By the telegrams this morning we learn that a bill was introduced yesterday in the Senate providing for the creating of Circuit Court of Appeals, to consist of three Judges. The terms of this Court are to be held in the several judicial districts. It shall have final jurisdiction of all cases arising in District and Circuit Courts, except where constitutional questions are involved, and in all cases of patents and copyright. This will have the effect to relieve the Supreme Court of much labor. Jurisdiction over railroad and insurance contests should also be included in this jurisdiction, where the question of non-residence arises.

If ever there was a latent doubt of the political ambition of General E. S. Salomon, of San Francisco, that doubt is put to rest by a series of resolutions adopted by the "Rank and File Veteran Association" and by "General Alger Camp No. 1, Incorporated Army and Navy Republican League," both of San Francisco. They scorch the General for his self-assumption of leadership in those ranks, and the last named organization says: "We do not consider it for the interest of the party or the citizens of this State that E. S. Salomon should receive political recognition at their hands; and we deem it our duty to do all in our power to prevent his nomination to any office he may aspire to, as we do not consider him a representative citizen or soldier." Thus he dies by the hands of his family right at the hearthstone of his own home.

What fearful and wonderful changes take place in the history of the world from one century to another could not be more forcibly illustrated than in the scenes witnessed in Rome last Monday. Think, oh ye antiquarians, of the almost blasphemous profanation of those sacred surroundings so famed in story! That spot on earth, above all others, that is surrounded by a glorious halo commemorative of all the perfect achievements of man in arms, in literature, in music, in painting, in sculpture, in all else that made her mistress of the world, and at whose altars all the universe bent in combined admiration. Who, in the days of the mighty Cæsars, returning from conquest laden with the wealth of overthrown dynasties, would have contemplated the sights of Monday's exhibition, headed by a Buffalo Bill of the Western hemisphere, surrounded by a band of Rocky Mountain Sioux and gorgeously arrayed cowboys of the plains? But Yankee pluck and enterprise will conquer worlds. Three cheers for Buffalo Bill and his outfit. He and Stanley are the first men in the United States to-day.

One of the strong men of history was a Roman Emperor, Maximus, who was born in Thrace, near the close of the second century. From his earliest boyhood he was celebrated among the lads of his neighborhood for marvelous feats of strength and agility, and one day, when the Emperor Septimius Severus was passing through Thrace on his return from the East, his attention was attracted by the young shepherd's fleetness of foot and other remarkable feats in athletics. The young Thracian was over eight feet in height, and was a perfect model of physical manhood. He was offered a place in the army of the Emperor and accepted. Although a barbarian he rose from rank to rank, and was finally proclaimed Emperor of Rome. He reigned for many years, hated by everybody, and was finally killed by his own soldiers. It is related that in one day Maximus overthrew twelve of the strongest men that could be produced. On his thumb he wore his wife's bracelet, and it took ten pounds of meat a day to appease his appetite.

So the Permanent Exhibition Building has come to an end. Well, it is about time that the managers concluded it is a farce. What good did or could it ever accomplish? A little, brightly painted pagoda, erected near the depot to announce to in-coming strangers what Sacramento is worth, and what kind of oranges, lemons and apples grows in her soil! Did it not look like child's play? People do not want to look into a little pavilion with some of the local products on exhibition to get an idea of the merits of a community. They prefer to see good streets, substantial buildings, factories, men employed, children going to school, street corners free from loafing gangs of dissolute men, firm, honest and efficient officials, few but effective laws well enforced, a small public debt with a good prospect of liquidation, and a generally happy, pushing, industrious population. Then the visiting stranger will halt long enough to look about for himself and inquire what causes all this thrift and activity, and he will soon learn that we have an interior country to back us up in our existence. If he settles and is satisfied, he will invite his friends to come and make their homes. A permanent exhibition hall would stand till the call of Gabriel, and in the end would have resulted in nothing but the ill-suppressed grin of our enemies.

The San Francisco papers are fretting themselves into high fever about spurious bonds taken by the courts in Chinese cases, as if that fact was a novel or late one and confined solely to Chinese culprits. It is safe to say an average of one-half the bonds in criminal cases in this State are void either for informality or the irresponsibility of the bondsmen, and especially in the cases of white offenders. In fact, it is a study of the friends of the white culprit whose guilt is evident and the chances of his conviction quite certain if he should ever come to trial, to give "straw bail" so that the opportunities of recovering on the bond are nullified. The office of the District Attorney of San Francisco is crowded with worthless bonds that have been filed there for the purpose of bringing action against the sureties, but which is found to be impossible, as they are worthless and impecunious or have no existence except in name. The way to remedy the evil is to make the prosecuting attorney responsible on his official bond for the worth of every bail bond filed in his court. Then he would give some attention to the qualification of those offering to become bondsmen else pay the loss himself, and besides he would be more apt to follow for perjury that class of professional bondsmen who are so common.

One of the brightest and most readable literary journals that comes to our exchange desk is THEMIS, published in Sacramento.—Gridley Herald.

An Interesting Review.

A few days ago we had occasion to examine the register of criminal actions of Sacramento county for the year 1889, and were surprised at the large number of persons that have been charged with the crimes of grand larceny and burglary. A closer inspection of the register revealed the fact that all the persons so charged, with two or three exceptions, have been tried, found guilty, and safely landed in the penitentiary. This shows the fact to be that the judges, prosecuting officers and juries have been doing their whole duty, and we congratulate both courts and juries upon the successful issue of so many prosecutions. Curiosity led us to then examine whether these persons who had been thus sent to the penitentiary were natives of the United States or foreign born, and we ascertained that a large percentage of them were of foreign birth and that the majority of those left after excluding those of foreign birth were the children of parents who were born in other lands. What is true in this respect of Sacramento county is also true of every large city in the United States. Statistics also prove that the percentage of the class of crimes enumerated above is greater in the United States in proportion to the population than in any country in Europe. The question then arises: Why, in the United States, where every facility is furnished for all to acquire a fair education at the public expense, where it is so easy for every man to obtain by hard work a living for himself and family, and we might add, by economy and industry, a competence? Why, we ask, are there so many men who are evidently determined to obtain a livelihood by preying like wild beasts upon their neighbors? Are we not forced to the conclusion that these men are natural born criminals? That the only schools which they have attended in the old world are schools of crime. That a number of the nations of Europe have made the United States a dumping ground for their criminals and paupers. Upon reflection we know this to be true.

We remember how in the early days, California was flooded with convicts and ticket-of-leave men who had been transported from Great Britain to Australia, who were allowed to leave Australia providing they went to the United States. These men, who were known as Sydney ducks, swarmed all over California. Murder and rapine were rampant. Men were robbed and murdered in broad daylight upon the streets of our cities. It was unsafe for any one to travel alone from one part of the country to another if it was known that he had gold dust or money upon his person. Citizens were forced to carry arms; miners were compelled to stand guard at all times over their sluice boxes, and in many places, even during the day time. A reign of terror existed. These convicts were so numerous, that with the aid of the native vicious element, they were able to carry the elections in San Francisco and place men of their own class in the various city offices. The whole country became aroused. Vigilance committees were organized in the State. Trials were had, and executions followed. This deplorable condition of affairs existed but a short time, when the good men and true again obtained supremacy and law and order reigned. There was somewhat of an excuse for this state of affairs in those days. Everything was unsettled. The machinery of the courts was not fully adjusted. Many men, too, in the excitement attending the pursuit of gold became crazed and committed deeds that they would never had done had they been pursuing their usual avocations at home. This condition of affairs has been true of the most parts of the United States at the period of the early settlements. But now, with the exception of a few isolated portions of the territories, this is all changed. The country is settled; churches and school houses dot the land everywhere, and what is true of Sacramento county is true in nearly every State of the Union. Even handed justice is meted out to criminals. Still the fact remains that crimes of this nature are steadily on the increase. Again we ask why? Every few months we read that England has sent a ship-load of thieves and paupers to Castle Garden; Germany, France, Italy and Switzerland have followed in England's wake. These countries say if you desire immigrants we will furnish them. Investigation shows that many European countries have said to their convicts and paupers, "We will furnish you with clothes and passage money. Leave us and be happy in free America."

It is true that some effort has been made to keep out this class of immigrants. That a few ship loads have been sent back—but in the main part these people have been allowed to land and are now a part of our population. They are the ones who have filled the ranks of the Molly Maguires of Pennsylvania, of the Clan-na-Gael of Chicago, of the societies of the Hungarians, of the Socialists and Anarchists of all the great cities of the United States, and last but not least, the highbinders of California. These organizations have laws unto themselves, and are bound by horrid oaths to carry out their determinations. Within their secret conclaves men are tried for opposition to their societies or to themselves; their death decreed and their execution carried out with merciless certainty. The questions discussed by these men are not whether others have broken the laws of the land, not how they may advance the weal of the nation, but rather how they may further their own interests; how they may obtain something for nothing. We believe in all sincerity that it is time we should defend ourselves. Laws restraining immigration should be enacted so severe that none should be allowed to come to our shores who cannot produce a certificate of good character from the country from whence they come. They should be men of some means, men of education, men who have shown by the lives they have led at home to be fitted to become good American citizens. While our land is broad and we still have millions of acres waiting the plow share, let us see to it that those who are permitted to come here from foreign lands to settle upon it and enjoy it, shall be men worthy to become an integral part of our nation.

The Incoming Mayor.

We have received several communications this week, asking us to give an explanation of the election held Tuesday. As we view the situation, after shaking the snow off, it is quite evident there was a slight difference of opinion between this journal and the great people, and that the rest of the people are more numerous than we are.

W. D. Comstock will become the head of our municipal government next month. From a personal acquaintance with the new Mayor of over twenty years, we know him to be of strict honesty and integrity. We felt, however, some question as to the policy of selecting a new man and initiating him into the intricacies of our local government. However, we doubt not, from the composition of Mayor Comstock, that he will administer the city's affairs in the difficult particulars, upon a judgment founded after careful investigation and deliberation.

FLASHES.

Love kisses are full of electricity. That is why old maids call them shocking.

While love may be blind, it knows when the gas is too high.

A fellow should not boast before he wins. Surely not after he wins.

Soft words belong to the imposter and the lover.

The Gubernatorial monnt—Mt. Gregory.

The woman who makes a garden always lives next door to the woman who raises chickens. Result, war.

To use a vulgarism, Sacramento has had too much "chin music" and not enough of legitimate enterprise.

We are accustomed to speak of "unemployed working men." Can men be unemployed if they are working?

Stein-Jacobs Engagement.

Miss Hannah Stein, the daughter of Samuel Stein, a prominent business man of this city, will celebrate a nuptial engagement with Mr. A. Jacobs of San Francisco to-morrow evening at the residence of her parents, No. 714 P street. The reception will be held between the hours of 6 and 10 o'clock P. M. There will be no special invitations—all the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Stein and his family are cordially invited to be present. We extend our hearty congratulations to the happy young couple.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

The Clunie Opera House will be opened on the 1st of April for the summer season.

The Hole in the Ground did not receive its usual patronage. The company has some new members and new business.

On April 1st and 2d The Deedstrict Skute. "Doings" will take place, old times will be renewed and the characters localized.

On Wednesday and Thursday of next week Chas. H. Hoyt's Tin Soldier will appear at the Metropolitan, followed by James O'Neil in Monte Christo.

The Fisk Jubilee Singers gave two of their concerts on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Congregational church, which were largely attended. The numbers were well rendered, and deserved the hearty applause bestowed upon them.

Fred Warde will return to this city next week, when the great Shakespearean creation, Richard III, will be given with a strong cast. Warde needs no commendation. He stands at the head of the profession. We have never seen him in "Gloster," but from his ability in other great personations, he cannot fail to be great.

The Aronson Comic Opera Company, known as the road New York Casino Company, gave us two splendid renditions of comic opera. On Tuesday night Erminie was presented. While there are no great voices in the combination, it is evenly balanced. Miss Emma Hanley, Miss Helen Lamont, Robert Graham and Louis DeLange make a whole team themselves. Wednesday Nadja was produced for the first time on this coast. It is a pleasing little opera, clean and abounding in wit and humor. The gem of the opera was rendered by Ross David as "Count De Rosen." Graham, De Lange and Miss Hanley gave life to the opera. Bob Graham has improved greatly since he was with Alice Oates ten years ago. De Lange has just recovered from a severe spell of illness. The company will return here on the 25th of April, when The Black Huzzar will be produced.

The 17th of March.

Division No. 1, A. O. H., will give their 19th annual ball in Armory Hall on Monday evening next. A most enjoyable time is anticipated by the members of the order, who have been untiring in their efforts in making arrangements for the entertainment of their guests on that evening.

Will Soon be Here.

The baseball season opens up on Sunday, March 23d, the San Francisco and Stockton clubs playing at the Haight street grounds, and the Oakland and Sacramento nines contesting at Snowflake Park. It is to be hoped that the Sacramento team will make a better showing in the struggle for the pennant than they did last season, so that at the end of the race they will not "come in at the heel of the hunt."

The Weather.

The highest and lowest temperature during the past week, was 66° on Friday and 36° on Monday, on which day there was a light frost. The total rainfall for the week was .60 of an inch, as against 4.05 inches for the corresponding week last year. The highest and lowest temperature for the same time last year was 67 and 45. We are now having a high barometer, northerly winds, and cloudless skies.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Summer has evidently arrived. The big beetles attacked the electric light in clouds. Last night was, indeed, of a balmy, spring nature.

Judge Armstrong yesterday rendered an important opinion on the question of serving an alias summons, holding that no summons is authorized to be served after the expiration of one year subsequent to the date of filing the complaint.

Weight of Snow.

A cuss who likes to figure for no earthly purpose has been calculating on the weight of snow. He calculates that at the time the snow lay deepest, about eight feet, each square foot of ground sustained about 50 pounds weight of snow. A space a little more than six feet square sustained a ton. On one acre there would be 2,178,000 pounds, or 1,089 tons of snow. On a square mile there would be 1,494,920,000 pounds or 746,960 tons. Any reader who wants to figure how many tons of snow he shoveled from his woodshed can figure it out for himself. Or if he desires, how long it would take a man shoveling at a railroad snow shovelers rate of speed to clear off all the snow on the Sierra Nevada mountains, he can do so; but we will not agree to publish the result. There is not enough figures in this office.—Truckee Republican.

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

For Sale.

Twelve second-hand square and upright pianos, in good condition; eight second-hand organs. The pianos consist of Mathusheks, Knabe, Steinway, Weber, Chickering. All at bargains. Inquire at Cooper's music store, Mathushek piano agency.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

Bachelors in Washington.

"If I were a young bachelor—more particularly a poor young bachelor—I would certainly live nowhere else than in Washington," said a society matron to a Star writer the other evening. "In this town a young gentleman encumbered matrimonially, occupies a singularly desirable position. Of course bachelors are in demand, socially speaking, everywhere, but no where so much as at the National Capital. Thus it happens that any passably agreeable youth is sure to have life made very pleasant for him. It is not accustomed to be said here of a poor young man that he is a 'detrimental'—meaning that he is merely a fellow without the money necessary to render him an available party, and at the same time sufficiently attractive to keep off practical suitors. Indeed, as you are very well aware, there are scarcely any young men who go out in Washington society who are not poverty stricken. Therefore discrimination on that score is out of the question. One must have young men at one's parties, you know, or else the girls would not have any sort of a time. The situation is an unfortunate one from some points of view, but what are you going to do about it?"

"Nothing that I can see," said the writer for the Star, to whom the lady was speaking. "But I don't exactly see why the young men should be poorer in Washington than anywhere else."

"Don't you? Why, it's very simple. In the first place this is not a town in which young men can make a living, unless in the hopeless situation of department clerks, where they literally dare not seek advancement beyond a certain point lest their places should be sufficiently desirable to make it worth while for the first new Administration to grab them. Most of the men one meets here, more especially the unmarried ones, are in Uncle Sam's employ. Then, again, the rich people who come here, while they always bring their daughters with them, very seldom fetch their sons—partially because Washington is generally imagined to be a dissipated city. So, to sum up, few young men come here, and those native to the place who do not go elsewhere to seek their fortunes, usually remain poor—too poor, indeed, to venture upon matrimony. Thus you observe the spectacle of a society in which the young women greatly outnumber the young men, and the latter are, generally speaking, not available for marriage. The anomaly of the situation is rather aggravated than otherwise by the fact that so many of the girls are rich, either actually or in prospect, and, though things might be fixed delightfully by the rich girls marrying the poor men, things do not go that way. I have heard it said that $50,000,000 of prettiness in petticoats was sometimes seen at once in a Washington ball room, and I shouldn't wonder if it were true. But the men, poor as they are, are so few as to be prized as rarities, and the result is that they are the worst spoiled lot of young fellows I have ever seen. They are apt to have an excessive notion of their importance."—Washington Star.

That brightest of weeklies, the Sacramento THEMIS, has entered upon its second volume. Those who delight in reading choice literature and clean-cut, independent opinions on the topics of the day, should subscribe for this publication. It fills the bill. Fall River Advocate.

That handsome little gem of journalism, THEMIS, of Sacramento, completed its first volume with its issue of last Saturday. The editorial ability of THEMIS is a credit to journalism in Sacramento, and the editors and publishers have reason to feel proud over the success attending their efforts in establishing a first-class literary weekly at the Capital city.—Galt Gazette.

The Sacramento THEMIS has entered upon its second year. Its keen editorials, sparkling wit, and high literary character, has won for it many admirers among the best class of society.—Gemtown Gazette.

The THEMIS of Sacramento has entered a new volume. It is a literary newspaper of considerable merit, not at all backward in expression in reference to local affairs, and its articles have the true ring that must carry conviction.—Redding Free Press.

THEMIS was a year old the other day, and has carried its lustre and general interest clear through the long year. THEMIS is a most agreeable half-way house between weekly newspaperdom and first-class magazine and one that many readers like to stop betimes. It is a healthy and robust yearling, and one of which both editors and owners may well be proud.—Colusa Herald.

Public Administrator's Report.

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estate of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin		123 87
Estate of Jas. Russell	700 00	82 32	100 53
Estate of A. Fly	182 60	182 60
Estate of A. B. Ropes	655 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, County of Sacramento, } ss.

George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term hereinbefore named. That he is not, and was not at any time, interested in the expenditures of any kind made on account of any estate he administers, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890. Wm. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public. [SEAL.] mch15-6t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within — months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 501 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

ANNIE KANE.

Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased. Dated March 13th, 1890. mch15-5t

DR. H. H. PIERSON.

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

ANGLO-NEVADA ASSURANCE CORPORATION

OF SAN FRANCISCO.

FIRE.—Cash Capital, $2,000,000—MARINE. Sacramento Branch.

No. 1018 SECOND STREET.

JOSEPH STEFFENS, Manager. HOWARD KIMBROUGH, Local Agent.

CANCERS,

Ulcers, Wens, Lumps, Exerescences, etc., Positively Cured or no Pay. No Knife Used.

As to the success of my treatment, I give the names of a few of the many cured. By addressing them they will give any information required—and it pays to investigate before being treated.

Mrs. O. C. Neilsen, Grass Valley, cancer. John Service, Auburn, lupus. Patrick Lynch, Sacramento, cancer. Mrs. Jno. Shaw, Grass Val., birthmark removed. N. S. Peck, S. P. R. R. Sacramento, cancer. J. L. Woods, Washington, Yolo county, cancer. John W. Douglas, Rocklin, cancer. Miss Mammie Lynch, Yolo, tumor removed. Chas. McLaughlin, Sacramento, cancer. I might give many more. Those afflicted are invited to call and investigate for themselves. Consultation at office free. Send for circular. Office, 426 K Street, Sacramento.

DR. J. H. SHIRLEY.

GO TO

Nolan & Son's

FOR

FINE SHOES,

BRANCH OF SAN FRANCISCO.

603 J Street, Sacramento.

The Only Retail House in Sacramento that manufactures their own goods.

Try Our Famous $3 Shoes.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from..... $25
Stylish Pants made to order..... 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from..... 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from..... 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from..... 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreth building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or.

P. H. RUSSELL

Importer and Dealer in

Staple and Fancy Groceries

719 J STREET.

Bet. Seventh and Eighth, SACRAMENTO.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the ECLIPSE CHAMPAGNE, 530 Washington St. SAN FRANCISCO.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

D. H. QUINN HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

W. L. HELKE,

(Successor to J. C. Sepulveda.)

DRUGGIST and CHEMIST

N. E. cor. Second and K Sts., Sacramento.

Prescriptions a Specialty. A full line of Standard Preparations.

A Nobleman's Strategy.

That was a pretty story, worth retelling, which was cabled under the sea from London the other day. When the last spark of interest in love's romances dies out in the breast, then we are ready to be laid away for our long sleep—we have tired of the world and the sweetest things in it. But to the story—the bit of a prelude was but to nudge you, that you are to be interested.

Earl Russell is a nobleman who has a business head and a kind heart, along with his title and wealth. He is partner in the Teddington Electrical works, and went in workman's garb with his workmen to the home of the aristocratic Lady Scott, to oversee the putting in of some electrical fittings.

"Baby" Scott was the petted young lady daughter of the house, and she straightway fell into conversation with the handsome and intelligent "foreman," and shocked the whole family by inviting him to supper with them, instead of leaving him with the work people and servants. "Baby" always had her way, and the scoldings were hushed as the young man took his place with remarkable ease and grace at the family table, near the imperious young woman.

Clandestine meetings with the usual result followed, and the proud house was shaken to its foundation by Miss Baby Scott's announcement that she should wed with the young mechanic.

Then the irate mamma ordered her carriage, and flew to the electrical works to acquaint Earl Russell with the impudence of his foreman, and to demand his discharge.

It's all right now, and Earl Russell and his bride are enjoying their honeymoon. He explained to the astonished mamma that he wanted to be loved for himself alone; and the bride made the same plea.

A stream near Benton, Tenn., is said to be full of phantom fish. Standing on the rocks and looking down into the water, the eye can see hundreds of trout, some of them remarkably large, darting about the pools or resting with the gentle motion peculiar to their tribe. The angler casts his line in one of these pools, literally swarming with fish to all appearances, and no matter how attractive the fly or how skillful the fisherman, he never gets a bite. As plentiful as they seem to be, no one has yet been able to catch a trout in that stream. The fish pay no attention to the hook or line, and when the bait is thrown at them, or an attempt is made to spear them, the instrument has the appearance of passing through the fish, but he is not caught. When the barb or spear is removed he is still there.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.

703 J Street, Sacramento.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street,

Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS, Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents. Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel,

Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company PACIFIC SYSTEM.

Nov. 17, 1889.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:50 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
11:00 P	Asland and Portland via Chico	3:40 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6:45 P
7:25 P	Knights Landing	7:40 A
9:00 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6:00 A
3:00 P	Ogden and East	10:30 A
3:00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willow	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7:25 P
6:50 A	San Francisco via Benicia	8:35 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
4:00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10:40 P
10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	36:00 A
11:25 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
11:25 A	San Jose	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara	9:55 A
6:50 A	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa	7:25 P
9:00 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno	6:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno	6:00 A
12:05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:50 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo	7:35 P
*12:15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	*10:25 A
*7:15 A	Folsom and Placerville	*2:40 P
*5:20 P	Folsom	*6:50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

NOTICE.

HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KILGORE & CO., their interests in the grocery business, and reopened their old stand at the north-west corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.

T. H. COOK & CO.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, ETC.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER,

1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg. BOHEMIA PILSENER, BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Pearl F. Flink

824 J ST.

Fine Candies

Family Orders for Ice Cream a Specialty.

THE ONLY MAKER OF COLT'S FOOT ROCK COUGH CANDY.

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.

J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,

DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GASFITTING, AND ROOFING. Jobbing a Specialty.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the Hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

FOR SALE.

Half Block

BETWEEN

Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth, V and W Streets

On line of Central Street Railway.

Apply to

FRANK HICKMAN,

1014 Fourth Street, Sacramento

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

HOME PRODUCTION.

—WE OFFER NOW OUR—

Newly Sugar-cured

HAMS, BACON

—AND—

SHOULDERS

—AS—

Superior to Any Other in the Market

—OUR LARD—

Is pure and fresh, and

—OUR SAUSAGES—

Cannot be excelled. All Hog Products are from grain-fed hogs only.

MOHR & YOERK.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

Frequent rubbing of the face with the hand or a soft towel, is a sure preventive of wrinkles. A coarse towel should never be used for the face, as it makes the skin coarse. In case of extreme dryness, a little cold cream or vaseline rubbed on at night is excellent; but for this purpose the white vaseline should never be used, it is less pure than the yellow, and is apt to make the skin coarse. A well-known doctor advised a lady, who was just beginning to show those odious wrinkles about the eyes, to wash her face every night in boiling hot water, just as hot as she could bear it, in which is a little bi-carbonate of soda. Bathe the face in this thoroughly, and hold it in the steam for some time. After drying the skin it should be well rubbed with olive oil. This prescription, faithfully followed every night, will, he says, not only prevent wrinkles, but will send away those that have already come.

It is told of a magistrate whose knowledge of law was not as deep as a well, that he was once induced to discharge a man arrested for drunkenness by the plea of a glib attorney, who urged some doggerel as "He is not drunk, who from the floor

Can rise again, and still drink more."

It rhymed, and the magistrate, after a moment's deliberation, exclaimed: "That goes."

W. A. Anderson, one of the editors of the Sacramento THEMIS, one of the ablest edited weeklies in the State, which has just entered upon its second volume, has received the appointment of Census Superintendent of the Second Census District. —Biggs Argus.

Certificate of Partnership.

WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, DO HEREBY CERTIFY that we are partners, transacting business in the State of California, under the firm-name and style of BRAND, LAWTON, BARNETT & CO.; that the names in full of all the members of said partnership are as heretofore signed, and that all the members of said partnership reside in the city of Sacramento, county of Sacramento, and State of California. Witness our signatures this 20th day of February, A. D. 1890.

GEORGE ERNEST BRAND,
WILLIAM "D" LAWTON,
ROBERT AUGUSTUS BARNETT.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, } ss.
County of Sacramento.

On this 20th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Chauncey H. Dunn, a Notary Public in and for said county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared George Ernest Brand, William D. Lawton, and Robert Augustus Barnett, known to me to be the persons described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the within instrument, and they acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the said county of Sacramento, the day and year in this certificate first above written.

[SEAL.] CHAUNCEY H. DUNN, Notary Public.
Endorsed: Filed February 20, 1890.

mch 1, 5t By W. B. HAMILTON, County Clerk.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.

By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
mch 1—9t.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

The People of the State of California, to John A. Steen, greeting:

You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 3d day of December, 1889, in which action Anna M. Steen is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and plaintiff, upon the alleged ground of habitual intemperance, and for the care, custody and control of the minor child, Gertrude D. Steen, and for general relief and for costs of suit; all of which more fully appears in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made.

And you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento; and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

In testimony whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 4th day of December, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.
MATT. F. JOHNSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.
feb 8—w9.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

H. WACHHORST

Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

- a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
- b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
- c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
- d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
- e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
- f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
- g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

H. WACHHORST

Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN. TO BE HAD ONLY AT G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

MAGGI'S HOT BOUILLON!

Just Out: Maroon Marmalade

Willis & Ray

APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

WM. J. HASSETT. A. J. JOHNSTON.

A. J. JOHNSTON & CO.

General Printers,

410 J STREET, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Simon Sturmer,

WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER,

No. 504 K Street, Pacific Hotel Building.
HOLIDAY GOODS in endless variety. REPAIR-
ING of all kinds done, and work warranted.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties
Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS

Agents for Rockford Watch Co.

No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

A. G. JOHNSON. CLAUD ANDERSON.

ANDERSON & JOHNSON,

The Leading Merchant Tailors,

SUITS MADE TO ORDER AT REASONABLE RATES.

No. 1014 Seventh Street, Sacramento.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK.

FAIR DEALING! LOW PRICES!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1890.

No. 5.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The taking of the census this year is of incalculable importance, and the Department of the Interior is extremely particular in its instructions in matters of detail. In all cities having over 10,000 inhabitants by the census of 1880, the enumeration must be completed in two weeks. These cities will have to be divided into districts so as to enable the enumerators to comply with their instructions. In rich agricultural regions 2,000 or 2,500 inhabitants may be included in one district, and thirty days' time will be allowed to complete the enumeration. Only thoroughly competent men or women must be appointed for enumerators. The more quickly the census is taken, the better. It is necessary to ascertain separately the population of every county, every civil division of the county, every municipal incorporation, and the wards of every city. The population of each unincorporated place must be taken with regard to the limits of such place. All appointments must be non-partisan, and shall be designated to the Superintendent of Census at Washington for his approval. The Supervisor of Census must be the judge of the qualifications of enumerators and whether they would be advantageous to the district. The work of taking the census must not be allowed to stop when once begun, and incompetent enumerators must be promptly removed. When enumerators are appointed they cannot refuse or neglect to perform the duties of the position and cannot retire at their own pleasure. The census will include social statistics relating to the population—agricultural statistics, general manufactories and industries. With regard to the latter it is announced by telegram this week that special enumerators will be appointed for the duty. The returns must contain a statement of all persons who have died during the census year, also schedule showing persons mentally or physically defective, crippled, maimed, or deformed or temporarily disabled by sickness or disease, including paupers and criminals. A special schedule is required relating to surviving soldiers, sailors or marines in the war of the rebellion, or the widows of soldiers, sailors, or marines of that war. Very much valuable information concerning the prosperity of the country and what advancement or falling off in the matter of population, manufacturers and industries has occurred since 1880. Concerning the census questions, the Washington correspondent of the Boston Traveler writes as follows: The Government Printing Office is now engaged in filling one of the largest orders in its history. This is for 18,000,000 blanks for the use of the 40,000 enumerators of the eleventh census who will begin work in May. It will take 15,000 reams of paper, and twenty presses will have to be worked twenty-two hours each day for six weeks before the order will have been completed. Here are the twenty-nine questions in order: "Christian name in full?" "Surname?" "Whether a soldier, sailor or marine (United States or Confederate), or widow of such person?" "Relationship to head of family?" "Whether white, black, mulatto, quadroon, octoroon, Chinese or Indian?" "Sex?" "Age at nearest birthday. If under one year give age in months?" "Whether single, married, widowed or divorced?" "Whether married during census year (June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890,)" "Mother of how many children, and number of these children living?" "Place of birth?" "Place of birth of father?" "Place of birth of mother?" "Number of years in the United States?" "Whether naturalized?" "Whether naturalization papers have been taken out?" "Profession, trade or occupation?" "Months unemployed during the census year?" "Attendance at school during the census year?" "Able to read?" "Able to write?" "Able to speak English. If not, the language or dialect spoken?" "Whether suffering from acute or chronic disease, with name of disease and length of time afflicted?" "Whether defective in mind, sight, hearing or speech, or whether crippled, maimed or deformed, with name of defect?" "Whether prisoner, convict, homeless child or pauper?" "Is the home you live in hired, or is it owned by the head or by a member of family?" "If owned by head or member of family, is the home free from mortgage incumbrance?" "If the head of family is a farmer, is the farm which he cultivates hired, or is it owned by him or by a member of his family?" "If owned by head or member of family, is the farm free from mortgage incumbrance?" "If the home or farm is owned by head or member of family, and mortgaged, give postoffice address of owner." It may strike some people that several of these questions are impertinent, but they will all have to be answered, and will be asked of every person in the United States from the President to the peasant.

Now that we have disposed of the city election attention should be paid to the fall battle—the more important one—at which full tickets for State and county offices will be selected. At the last Presidential election, Mr. Harrison received 4768 votes in Sacramento county, and Mr. Cleveland 3447. Mr. McKenna received 4850 votes, to 3371 for Mr. Morgan. The American ticket then received 76 votes, the Prohibition 108, and 60 scattering. We assume that Mr. Harrison's majority, 1321, is the fair normal Republican majority, yet on the county ticket but three of the candidates received a vote equal to or higher than that cast for the Presidential nominee, while the others in some instances fell short several hundred. The campaign was conducted vigorously and the local ticket was exceptionally good. The reasons for these results are very generally understood, and it is apparent trouble may reasonably be anticipated this year, unless effective steps be taken to heal differences that now exist, in advance of the primaries. Largely the troubles in the past come from arbitrary action on the part of the Central Committees in the adoption of unfair apportionments, and from the impolitic acts of men who assumed to boss the party. The result of the last three city elections is a lesson and should be heeded. In each case the head of the ticket was defeated, and in a measure can the losses be laid to attempts to thwart the will of the body of the party. The matter of one sided primaries, and of arranging the ticket in advance of the meeting of the conventions has proved very unsatisfactory, and ever will so prove. It is extremely unfortunate there are men in the party who think that the temporary power acquired by the control of the organization is of more importance than to permit a fair expression by the people and the election of the nominees. The intolerance that has been exercised by the few leaders of the contending factions—and those on one side are equally open to censure with those on the other—would be bad enough if they fought among themselves, but they are constantly endeavoring to involve the great mass of the people, who desire to see the party successful. The people have alternately condemned both sets of bosses, but the rebukes that have been so pronouncedly administered seem not to have had the effect that reasonably could be expected. It is apparent that the Democracy are perfecting the organization of their party here, and that with them party discipline is more generally respected than with us. It is not uncommon to find a Republican, after accepting the test at the primary pledging himself to support the ticket, voting against the candidates at the election, and instances are not rare where men who have served as delegates in the convention have openly cut particular candidates. The natural result follows. The defeated candidates and his friends await the opportunity for revenge, and at the next election the persons who had used the knife fall beneath the stroke of the blade. Precisely what satisfaction comes from acting the role of the executioner one year and suffering decapitation the next cannot be understood. Experience is a severe teacher, yet some, it would seem, cannot be educated. It is very apparent that unless some fair understanding will be brought about, the fall campaign will be apt to furnish additions to the political graveyard, and the Central Committee and others interested in the success of the party should early take steps to bring about an adjustment. The small feelings of the few may involve the defeat of candidates for State offices, as well as those who will run in this county.

The last county convention very wisely laid down a code of rules for the government of future committees in the matter of the apportionment and election of delegates, and that matter alone, in our judgment, will have the effect to relieve the fall primaries of many of the causes that engender feeling. The convention adopted the following, which is now the law of the party:

Resolved. By the Republican Convention of the county of Sacramento:

That the Republican County Central Committee, in the calling of future primaries, shall be governed by the following rules:

That in all instances where delegates are to be selected to State or County Conventions, they shall be selected at primary elections.

That all primaries of the party shall be called in strict accordance with the laws of this State relating to primary elections.

That the officers of such primary election shall be selected of men who enjoy the full confidence of the people, and if there be two tickets run at any precinct, each ticket shall be allowed a representative upon such election board.

That the basis of apportionment of delegates to future conventions shall be as follows: Based upon the Republican vote cast at the Presidential election next preceding such primary; that each precinct in the county as established by the legal authorities of the county, shall be entitled to one delegate at large.

That in the precincts of the county outside of the city the basis of representation, in addition, shall be one delegate for each twenty Republican votes cast at such Presidential election, and one delegate for each fraction of eleven votes or over, and that in the precincts of the city of Sacramento, the basis of representation shall be one delegate for each thirty Republican votes cast at such Presidential election, and one delegate for each fraction of fifteen votes or over.

The same convention also declared: We look upon corruption in politics as pernicious, and equal to dishonesty in any other of the affairs of life; and believe that in all matters of a party nature there should be fairness and honesty, and that every man having an ambition to serve the people should have a fair recogdition and an equal opportunity to present his claims without the dictation or interference of party bosses.

The Republican vote in the city at the last Presidential election was 3463, and in the county outside of the city, 1305. The next county convention will be composed of 223 delegates—131 from the city and 92 from the country. In the city the apportionment will be: First Supervisor district—Precinct 1, nine; precinct 2, twelve; precinct 3, twelve; precinct 4, nine; total, forty-two. Second Supervisor district—Precinct 1, seven; precinct 2, eight; precinct 3, eight; precinct 4, nine; precinct 5, nine; total, forty-one. Third Supervisor district—Precinct 1, nine; precinct 2, nine; precinct 3, seven; precinct 4, seven; precinct 5, nine; precinct 6, seven; total, forty-eight. In the country the Fourth Supervisor district will have forty-two delegates and the Fifth, 50. The largest Republican vote cast in any precinct in the city in 1888, was 336, and the smallest, 169. The city will be divided into fifteen precincts, and each will return its delegates independently of the others; therefore if fraud should occur in one, the taint will not attach to the delegation of an entire ward, as has at times happened in the past. It is not at all likely that any set of men will control the action of a convention the size this will be and selected under those circumstances. The committee are relieved of the vexatious question of making the apportionment, and the primary being held strictly under the law, and supervised by responsible men, we can see little excuse for dissatisfaction, yet it will be wise for the committee to consult early and adjust such differences as may be manifested.

The defeat of the Blair Education Bill in the Senate on Thursday, by a vote of 37 to 31, is a significant event in legislation. The New Hampshire Senator changed his vote to the negative side of the column, and gave notice of reconsideration, but there is little doubt that the measure is doomed. The vote was fourteen short of a full Senate, but on all matters of as much importance as the Blair bill, the absent Senators are usually paired, so it may be taken for granted that the measure will not make its appearance again at the present session of Congress.

The fate of the Blair educational scheme is an impressive illustration of how public opinion changes under the pressure of discussion and criticism. When the New Hampshire statesman introduced his bill six years ago, public sentiment at the North was undoubtedly favorable to its object. The same may be said of the general feeling at the South. But the measure never had the support of the trained educators of either section. The opinion which advocated the measure was general rather than select. At the start, the masses in the West very generally sustained the measure, but the public school teachers have been its opponents from the beginning. Inasmuch as the plan was not intended to affect academic education, the college professors took but little part in the discussion for some time after the bill was introduced into the Senate. After a time, however, they joined forces with the public school teachers, and the league thus formed has waged a continuous and effective contest. This looks to be an anomalous expression of the highest order of intelligence, but the public school teachers and college professors have given the most persuasive reasons for their opposition to the scheme. When asked if it is not desirable to have an abundance of money with which to sustain the public schools, they have replied, certainly it is; but it is of equal or greater importance that the people who have a local interest in the public schools should raise the money themselves. They maintain that self-reliance and local pride are quite as essential to the make-up of a good citizen as is the matter of education. Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, explained this point with great force the other day in his speech against the bill. "Wisconsin," he said, "is a bright example of what a self-reliant, self-helping and self-respecting people can make of themselves. We would like to have better school facilities than we possess, but we would not exchange the sense of pride which we experience in knowing what we have made of ourselves for all the money that this bill carries. I voted for this measure when it passed the Senate some years ago, but I have had abundant reasons to convince me of my error." Senator Hale, of Maine, who also voted for the bill, expressed himself in much the same way. The reaction against the plan has been general. The change has been most noticeable in the case of the press.

An important element in the discussion has been the admitted necessity of educating the colored race. But opinion upon this point has experienced a decided alteration. It is as manifest as ever that the negro must be educated, but it is equally manifest that he must make an effort to help himself. That he is making such an effort is obvious to every one, and it would be little short of a calamity to check his expanding energies. There are many things the Federal Government can do better than the States, but the determination of the character of the common school system is not one of them. The bill was not defeated by a party vote, a result upon which the country should be congratulated. George, of Mississippi, and Daniels, of Virginia, supported it, while some of its strongest opponents were northern senators.

There is something of a convulsion in Europe on account of the retirement of Bismarck from his position as Prime Minister of the German States. While it is conceded that the "Iron Prince" is a great statesman and has for many years been the actual ruler of Germany, it must suggest itself to thinking minds of the present day that very many of his ideas are not up to or in accord with the progressive notions of the times. Bismarck ruled with an iron hand in the past, but latterly there was, on occasions, a decided velvet covering. The iron will of the great Chancellor could control in the past, but there is an evident restlessness under this iron rule which has become manifest since the young Emperor ascended the throne. The people have shown a decided antagonism to the rulers by electing legislative representatives directly opposed to the manner of government. All these things seem to be a direct blow towards Bismarck's administration. The young Emperor has observed this and is trying to avert the impending storm by making concessions to the people. The great conference was opposed by Bismarck, but William overruled him, and the Congress is a fixed fact. It is noticeable that England and the old monarchical advocates are very much exercised at Bismarck's course in resigning, which is an omen that is only one more step in the direction of Republican government. The great majority of the German people have spoken at the recent elections, and this verdict is against Bismarck's iron policy. Young William is designated as a hot-headed fellow and lacking in judgment, but unless we mistake the signs of the times, he has a very keen foresight and is getting closer to the people than the arbitrary old Chancellor ever thought of doing. This idea of liberal government has seized upon a number of monarchical governments, and the people thereof are asserting their rights, even in the face of such iron wills as that of Prince Bismarck. It is to be observed that Jules Simon, another iron-willed man, has deprecated the retirement of Bismarck. This, to our mind, is rather a reason why these old fellows with their ancient arbitrary notions should give way to the young blood of the present. The German people are among the most enlightened in the world, and when a great majority of that people pronounce against any policy of the rulers, it is quite certain that it is an intelligent protest. William is, in our judgment, right in acceding to the people rather than adhering to the "Iron Chancellor." This is another case of the application of that old precept, Vox Populi Vox Dei.

The Tudor exhibition now in progress in London has brought out many anecdotes of that vigorous race of sovereigns. Queen Elizabeth was so dissatisfied with her portraits that she issued a proclamation forbidding the issue of any without her special license, on the ground that "none of them did justice to the original."

An inventory of the wardrobe of Queen Elizabeth, made in the year of 1600, recently published, shows that the Queen then had 99 robes, 126 kirtles, 269 gowns, 136 "foreparts," 125 petticoats, 27 fans, 96 cloaks, 83 safeguards, 85 doublets, and 18 lap mantles. The gowns appear all to have been of the richest materials.

All a Mistake.

"I dare say all my relations will think it very silly of me," said Miss Morris, "but I really think I am old and experienced enough to manage these affairs for myself."

Miss Mary Morris (generally known as "Mally" by her friends and acquaintances) was sitting on a hard chair in the coffee room of the little country inn at Darton-in-the-Willows.

The omnibus had been in for an hour, at least, and Miss Morris was tired of waiting.

Presently the landlady asked her if she would dine. "I don't expect to be here to dinner," said Miss Morris with dignity.

"Oh!" said the landlady.

"My friends will doubtless be here to meet me in a very few minutes," explained the lady, glancing at the clock.

"Ah!" said the landlady.

But this was where Miss Morris had intrenched somewhat on the strict truth.

She had no friends at Darton-in-the-Willows.

She had come there—under our breath be it spoken—with the desperate resolve to answer a matrimonial advertisement.

She had seen it in the paper, and she had, so to speak, taken her fate in her own hands, and come boldly to the out-of-the-way village.

But now, as the moments sped by, she was beginning to wax secretly uneasy.

But just as she was beginning to make herself thoroughly uncomfortable, there came a tap, tap at the door, and in walked a short, stout man, with a red necktie and a countenance to match.

"Lady from London?" said this personage, without the least embarrassment.

Miss Morris rose with dignity.

"Yes, sir," said she.

He was not exactly aristocratic looking; there was no mistake about that.

But Miss Morris bethought herself of the old proverb about the deceitfulness of appearances, and plucked up spirit.

"You saw the advertisement, I suppose," said the stout man.

"I did, sir," she replied.

"Think you'll suit?" questioned the stout man.

"Sir?" said Miss Morris.

"Because he's a little peculiar," explained the man, "and it ain't everybody meets with his views, you see."

"Oh!" said Miss Morris, a light breaking in upon her darkness; "then you are not the party himself?"

"Oh, no," said the stout man, "no. I'm the business man; I settle everything for him."

"I should prefer negotiating with principals," said Miss Morris, drawing herself up.

"It's the usual way we does it," remarked her interlocutor.

"The usual way?" repeated Miss Morris, more puzzled than ever. "May I ask how often the gentleman has been married before?"

"Never in his life," said the stout man. "Circumstances was against it, you see."

"Oh!" said Miss Morris.

"He ain't hard to manage," said the stout man. "Them as he takes a fancy to can do most anything with him. Did you bring references?"

"References?" she echoed.

"Ever had any experience?" he went on.

"Sir!" said Miss Morris. "I really don't quite understand—"

"Your age seems quite suitable," said the man. "I calculate you're about 40, ain't you? We couldn't give you many holidays nor Sundays out, but for a good reg'lar, steady place—"

"Stop!" cried Miss Morris, "do stop! I don't at all know what you're talking about. Holidays—Sundays out! I'd have you to know I'm no housemaid looking for a place. And as for being 40 years old, my appearance must be very deceptive if you take me for anywhere near that age. I am only 36."

"Three or four years one way or the other don't make much difference," remarked the stout man with the bristly hair. "Our last was 60, and she had a pretty tidy notion of her business, too, only—"

"I thought I understood you to say that the gentleman had never been married," said Miss Morris.

"No more he has," said the man. "I ain't talking about wives. I'm talking about nurses."

"What?" cried Miss Morris.

The stout man looked hard at her for a minute or two.

Then he plunged his hand deep down into his coat pocket, and extracted thence a slip from a newspaper.

"It's all writ down here in black and white, plain enough," said he.

"Wanted—An experienced and trustworthy attendant for a gentleman of infirm mind. To the right person a liberal remuneration will be offered. Apply on Wednesday next, between the hours of 10 and 1, at the Alton house, Darton-in-the-Willows."

"But that isn't the advertisement I saw at all," said

Miss Morris, growing alternately pale and red in her consternation.

"It was in the Daily Visitor," said the stout man, "as we put our notice."

"And it was the Morning Patriot that I saw," cried Miss Morris. "A Mr. French, of the Grove, Darton-in-the-Willows, who wanted—"

"A wife," said the stout man, with twinkling eyes. "I thought so! I seen his carriage go by half an hour ago, with a pretty little black-eyed woman in cherry-colored ribbons and—"

"And Rob Roy plaid polonaise?" almost screamed Miss Morris. "And a black parasol lined with scarlet?"

"Some sort of a rig of that description, said the stout man.

"The bold, pert, unfeminine thing!" said Miss Morris, vehemently fanning herself. "She's the very one that came down in the 'bus with me!"

"She's got the clear start of you, it seems," said the stout man, as he rose up and looked around for his hat. "Well, if you don't like the idea of my situation—"

"I decline it, most certainly," said Miss Morris, precipitately. "Landlady!"

"It would not be such a bad idea," coaxed the stout man, "if—"

"Landlady!" repeated Miss Morris, more energetically than ever; and the stout man went out, thrusting his hands in his pockets as he did so.

The landlady bustled in.

"A carriage, please, to the station," said Miss Morris.

"Won't you wait for the omnibus, ma'am?" said the landlady. "It will be here in half an hour."

"I wouldn't stay here another five minutes for all the gold of the Golconda," said Miss Morris.

So the only trap of the establishment was prepared, and Miss Morris, shedding secret tears of vexation and disappointment behind her veil, went back to town.

And when her nephews and nieces asked about her sudden journey to Darton-in-the-Willows she told them she had been to look for summer lodgings.

"And weren't you suited, auntie, dear?" said the youngest and prettiest of the nieces, who had seen the Morning Patriot, with the printed slip missing from the list of advertisements, and could put two and two together as well as any one.

And Miss Morris answered sharply that she was not suited at all.

He Saved Her Hat.

"Illustrative of the regard felt by the fair sex for dress, I can tell a little experience of my own," said a gentleman to the walking delegate of the Cincinnati Times-Star. "It was while I was courting the girl that I afterwards married, and if she were here I would probably defer the story. One night Maud and I had been to church, and she had aroused the admiration of the men and the jealousy of the women by a beautiful new spring bonnet. Naturally she came home well pleased and my suit was progressing at a strong engine pace, when the alarm of fire was tolled from the city bells. I released myself from Maud and threw up the window, out of which we leaned, to discover the locality of the fire. What was our surprise to find that the house immediately adjoining was in a blaze and that the flames almost reached the spot where we stood. Maud gave one screech and jumped to the middle of the room, where she paralyzed me by an exclamatory appeal to me to save—what do you suppose?" "Herself or her parents, I presume." "Nothing of the sort. 'Oh, save my new hat, Henry,' she cried; and you bet I saved it. It happened that my innamorata's house didn't burn, and I gained cheap honor by carrying her magnificent headgear into the back-yard in safety."

A Village of Log Huts.

Many of the villages on the upper Congo consist merely of fifty or sixty log huts, two-thirds of the population being generally women. In many districts women are considered a currency, their value increasing as they attain a greater degree of corpulency.

Each chief has as many wives as he can afford to buy or marry, which is only another form of purchase. Early in the morning few of these women are to be found in the villages, as they start off at daybreak to work in their plantations, and do not return until noon. However, a few always have to remain to attend to the necessary domestic items of life, such as cooking and their toilet.

In another part of the village are seen some villagers engaged in making fishing nets and basket-work, and being helped by the young boys of the village, who become initiated into these crafts at a very early age.

Again, under some shade trees, in another corner of the village, some natives will be engaged in the manufacture of pottery. In this they display a great knowledge of their work, mixing the different clays so as to stand firing. They have no molds—nothing but the practiced eye and hand to assist them, and it is really wonderful to see a lump of clay, in the hands of an African savage, moulded, in the space of a few minutes, into a useful article of pottery, rendered really artistic by its neatness and tasteful design.

A busy nook in a village is always the blacksmith's shop, generally a grass roof supported on bare poles, writes Herbert Ward in February Scribner. Like the corresponding institution in civilized life, it is the resort of local gossipers.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

She came into the theater,
And down she proudly sat,
Then tooted forth the orchestra:
"Where did you get that hat?"

Old Mr. Frontrow says he is for ballot reform, but against ballet reform.

Evens and Hoey are to retire The Parlor Match, having secured a new play from a well known author.

Bobby Gaylor, who made his first hit in eccentric Irish character, in this city, will "star" next season in An Irish Arab.

George C. Staley, who was a member of the Clunie Opera House stock company and a Sacramento lad, is making a success of his play, A Royal Pass.

The San Francisco Music and Drama says there is one thing in favor of eastern actresses who visit that city, and that is they never wear a straw hat with a sealskin.

It is announced that Ada Glasca, one of the brightest artists on the comic opera stage, has retired from Conreid's Opera Company, where she had a leading role in The King's Fool.

In a theater recently the orchestra between the acts was playing very loudly, and two ladies in a front row were endeavoring to converse at the same time. They had to raise their voices considerably, and as the orchestra suddenly reached a low passage the voice of one of the ladies became cruelly distinct just as she remarked, "I wear silk underclothes."

A Boston lawyer tells a good story of the late Charlotte Cushman. One icy night she and Lawrence Barrett came out of the theater together. The steps were dangerously slippery and it was with difficulty that they kept their footing at all. As they gingerly descended the steps, the great actress said to her companion, with the air and tone of Lady Macbeth: "Take a good grip on my arm, Lawrence, and if I slip, hold on like grim death; but if you slip, in the name of heaven, let go!"

Harold Russell, the handsome, devil-may-care fellow, who plays "Lord Isley" to Cora Tanner's "Lady Madge" is the hero of a ride that rivals Paul Revere's in some points. While Mr. Russell was a member of a stock company in St. Paul, Crane was playing an engagement in the town. As the two were walking down town one day, Crane said: "Well, Hal, how do they use you here?" "Oh, I own the town," replied Mr. Russell. "Get in and I'll show you." Before the owner who stood beside it could realize what was being done, Crane was hustled into a hack without knowledge how he got there, and Mr. Russell was on the box whipping off down street. Away they tore, the blanketed horses presenting a wild appearance that gained right of way for the vehicle without an objection. Even a rip roaring cable car stopped short to let a wild whip pass. All the while Crane was leaning out of the door begging for his life, and when his host finally stopped in safety before his hotel, the famous comedian had just breath enough left to gasp: "Let us pray." Mr. Russell was a trifle late in appearing at the theater that night. It was Mr. Crane who bailed him out in time to appear at all.

Book Chat.

The memoirs of the late Empress Augusta have been handed over to her imperial grandson, the reigning Kaiser, who will see that they are kept out of print during his lifetime—a fate which will probably delay the publication of her letters, of which she left a large collection.

Emile Zola is going to follow his "Bete Humaine" with a book entitled "Argent," which will be devoted to the Bourse speculations and speculators. After this will come "Débacle," which will deal with the Franco-Prussian war of 1870. He will then close the Rougon-Macquart series with "Docteur Pascal."

Is it worth while that we jostle a brother,
Bearing his load on this rough road of life?
Is it worth while that we jeer at each other,
In blackness of heart that we war to the knife?
God pity us all in our pitiful strife.

Were it not well, in his brief little journey,
On over the isthmus down into the tide,
We give him a fish instead of a serpent,
Ere folding the hands to be and abide Forever and aye in dust at his side?

In the room of the house at Stratford-on-Avon in which Shakespeare was born there is a framed autograph production of Washington Irving's which illustrates the growth of some well-known lines. This is a copy of Irving's first attempt at celebrating in verse the birthplace of Shakespeare: Great Shakespeare's b

[Then a line is wholly erased.]
The house of Shakespeare's birth we here may see,
That of his death we find no trace,
Vain the inquiry, for Immortal he.

Beneath the above failure Irving happily wrote this:

Of mighty Shakespeare's birth the house we see;
That where he died in vain to find we try;
Useless the search, for all Immortal, He;
And those who are immortal never die.

This is historically correct. The little dwelling so famous as Shakespeare's birthplace is standing. The house in which he passed his last years and died became the property of the Rev. Mr. Gastrell, who cut down and burned the old mulberry tree, planted by the "Immortal" hand, and razed the house more than a century ago.

It is said that the highest priced book ever sold was the vellum missal presented to King Henry VIII by Pope Leo X, which brought $50,000.

Bronson Howard, writing from Europe 'o a friend in this country, and speaking not of poker, but of politics, expresses the opinion that the day of kings and queens are passed.

In this age of many books, when the best books and periodicals are as cheap and as easily obtained as the bad, there is no reason why the trashy and vicious books should be bought or read. Many read half way bad books, decolette books so to speak, just fairly hinting at the low and vulgar. They are often as vicious as worse books, for the reason they get hold of pure minded people, who would refuse to harbor an openly vicious volume. That greater care should be taken to direct the minds of young people in selecting their every day reading is simply a truism. The literature a boy or girl reads during the formative period of life shapes all the life after manhood or womanhood has been reached.

Professional Chat.

The Nizam of Hyderabad is about to appoint women commissioners to take testimony in the harems. They must possess a knowledge of law and of the Urdu, Persian, Arabic and English languages. They will receive a handsome salary and a guarantee of employment for a term of years.

The Mexicans have no confidence in a young doctor until he has had a couple of years' practice. Then they make an inventory of his patients, and if he has cured more than he has killed they recognize him, no matter whether he has a diploma or not. This is not altogether an objectionable method, especially the latter feature, which might, perhaps be advantageously extended to other countries.

Mr. Pyne, the distinguished Irishman, is said to wear a watch upon the face of which is engraved the motto, "Pay no Rent." When a tenant comes to him complaining about some act of his landlord, and asking for advice, Mr. Pyne says: "I cannot give you advice on that subject, because Mr. Balfour says it would be illegal, but I can tell you the time of day." Then he pulls out his watch and shows it to the tenant.

Much has been written of late about the decline of oratory in the legal profession. It is undoubtedly true that the spread eagle style of oratory is now very rarely heard, but any one attending a trial in any of the leading courts will be impressed by the intense earnestness displayed by the counsel of the respective parties, although the same is attended with perfect self-control and a quietude of demeanor that belong to the perfect orator. Only when we confuse lofty sounding words, uttered in thundering tones with true oratory, can oratory be said to be no longer heard in our courts of procedure.

I have been told a new story, says a New York Tribune correspondent, illustrative of the ready wit of Representative Mason, of Illinois, whose personal influence was largely responsible for many of Chicago's votes in the World's Fair contest. The incident occurred when he was, years ago, a lawyer in Des Moines. He was defending a man named Spencer in an action for divorce, brought by his wife. After the evidence had all been taken, the opposing lawyer summed up for the prosecution and handled Spencer's testimony without gloves. The defendant, enraged, blurted out suddenly: "You are a liar!" Immediately the court became so quiet that you could have heard the traditional pin drop, and the Judge, scowling, seemed to be thinking of a suitable punishment for such unprecedented contempt. At any rate it looked as if Spencer had irrevocably prejudiced his case. Mason was the first man to recover from the shock, and he began at once in his sweetest tones. "I presume, may it please your honor, from the silence which has fallen upon the court, that my client's language has been misconstrued. Know, then, that he is an ardent admirer of music and is strangely affected by it. When my learned friend opened his mouth and I heard his first eloquent words, I feared that his musical voice would be too much for my client. Nor was I mistaken, for it made such an impression upon him that, forgetting that it was directed against him, he exclaimed in admiration: 'You are a lyre.' Yes, your honor, he said 'lyre,' but it was merely a musical metaphor. His passion for music was too great. He meant lyre, but lyre with a 'y,' may it please your honor." In the laughter which followed both Judge and lawyer forgot and forgave the offense, and as Spencer's astonishment had prevented a reiteration of his statement, he escaped punishment.

The lack of conventionality in Judge Gresham's court frequently results in some amusing situations. The other day the Judge was in his room in the Federal Building hearing an argument by A. C. Harris in an important case, when the door opened and in walked a countryman from Harrison county, Judge Gresham's old home. The visitor was a well-preserved specimen of an independent farmer. His face, unshaven, was round and chubby; he wore a broad white hat; he was without collar, and his clothing and shoes showed yellow clay. He spit some "amber" when inside the door, and then, without noticing attorney Harris or the other occupants of the room, stalked up to Judge Gresham with: "Well, how air you Judge? How's all the folks? I was in town on a little business, and I knew the folks down home would like to hear from you, so I come up to see you a little while." Attorney Harris halted at a period in his argument, when, with both arms outstretched, he was about to clinch a point; he looked at the intruder a moment, who had not removed his hat, and then beckoned to Deputy Marshal Conway to have the man take off his hat. Judge Gresham apparently did not notice the embarrassment of the attorneys and spectators. He arose from his chair, took the visitor by the hand, called him by his given name, asked him all about his family, also calling them by name, and said he was glad he had come in. He chatted pleasantly with the old gentleman for several minutes, asking about many Harrison county people, and seemed to enjoy the call. All this time the attorneys and the Deputy Marshal were bewildered. The latter half feared it was his duty to prevent such an interruption of court, but he hesitated about moving. The farmer stood talking with the Judge as freely as he would have conversed with his nearest neighbor over a rail fence, and when he was ready to go, he said: "Well, good luck to you, Judge, come down and see us." And he walked out as independently as he had come in. The Judge resumed hearing the case as if nothing had happened.

Singular Judicial Construction.

It appears that a gang of White Caps of St. Landry Parish, Louisiana, set out to regulate the morals of the community. While engaged in this lawful and praiseworthy enterprise, they went to the residence of a man named Duplechin and forcibly took therefrom a woman named Tillie, with whom Duplechin was living. The purpose in obtaining possession of the person of the woman Tillie was to administer corporeal discipline as a means of compelling her to desist from leading what the gang claimed to be an immoral life. As might have been expected, Duplechin resisted what was a clearly unauthorized encroachment upon his personal rights, and for attempting to defend the woman, who was under his protection, the gang shot him. The woman was taken out and given a sound beating, while Duplechin was left wounded in his house. The White Caps were put upon trial for, and convicted of assaulting the woman Tillie, and feloniously shooting Duplechin. It was shown upon the trial that Duplechin and Tillie were living together without legal sanction—that they did not offer to go into society or flaunt themselves in the face of the public. Duplechin is a person of French descent, while Tillie is what would still be called a quadroon. It was proved that the White Caps were a combination of lawless ruffians who set themselves above all authority with the view of reforming society. Well, a jury, composed of about equal numbers of white persons and negroes, convicted every scoundrel of the lot. And these night-riders were convicted notwithstanding they were permitted to show that they were engaged in laudable and moral enterprise, and entertained no criminal intent in beating the woman or in shooting Duplechin. The contention that these proceedings were in conformity with the principles of their organization was of no avail before a jury or a nisi prius Court. It was all-sufficient, however, in the Supreme Court to secure a reversal of the judgments of the inferior tribunal. It is impossible to bring this decision of the Appellate Court into alignment with common sense. It is conceded that the White Cap organization was an illegal combination, engaged in enforcing its unauthorized regulations by violent means. This being so, they had no right whatever to interfere with Duplechin or the woman Tillie. They were usurping the functions of the civil authorities, and in all such cases the law implies a criminal intent. It does not belong to a band of outlaws to determine the moral relation which should exist between the sexes. Two of the judges of the Louisiana Supreme Court, Chief Justice Bermudes and Associate Justice Todd, are jurists of high reputation, but, all the same, THEMIS would like to have them explain the principles upon which the White Cap case was decided. If there is a want of power in the law to infer a criminal purpose in a case where a gang of outlaws break into a person's house in the night time, and take a woman out, and flog her half to death, and shoots the man who makes an attempt to defend her, popular faith in the jurisprudence of the country will be greatly weakened.

The layman is often made sensible of the poverty of his resources in attempting to follow the reasoning of judicial tribunals. Thus a person of ordinary powers is made to doubt if he is in the enjoyment of a state of rationality, if he endeavors to master the argument employed by the Supreme Court of Mississippi in its decision in the case of prize-fighter Sullivan. The court first directs its attention to the law under which Sullivan was convicted. It is held that the statute does not define what a prize fight is, nor denounce any punishment against those who engage in that christianizing pastime. Fairly construed, the decision holds that prize-fighting is not a crime in the State of Mississippi. Still, the nisi prius court is directed to hold Sullivan on bail to answer any indictment that might be found against him by any future Grand Jury. This process of reasoning is so lucid as to raise the question whether it is a necessary element of sanity for a person to be able to distinguish his right hand from his left. If the statute neither describes prize-fighting as a crime nor provides a punishment for those who engage in such knock-outs, what would be the use of another Grand Jury finding a new indictment? The decision becomes more luminous and explicit as it proceeds. The court next takes up the indictment upon which Sullivan was convicted, and holds it to be fatally defective in two important particulars. The information is declared to be faulty, first, because it does not state that Sullivan fought Kilrain or any one else. How could the omission of such a fact as this prove fatal to the indictment, when the statute itself contains no definition of what shall constitute a prize fight, or whether two or more persons must engage in the contest? It is declared, secondly, that the indictment is defective because it fails to state that the fight was conducted publicly. How could the statement of such a fact help the case, seeing that there is no punishment for prize-fighting whether the fight be conducted publicly or privately? This decision is destined to upset the gravity of every undertaking into whose hands it may happen to fall, and should be kept out of all books that pretend to treat upon logic.

NOTES.

John C. Emerson of Company I, of the famous Stevenson regiment of 1847, died March 6th at Bath, New York. He was one of the early printers of California.

President Harrison went out duck shooting on Thursday last. He could have found plenty of geese in Washington, but they are not as game as ducks. Bear are also said to abound in that locality. Tigers can be found there. Genuine large sized larks are not uncommon. In fact, there is very much to make game of.

The lack of money, not the love of it, is the cause of the greatest evil in the world. Poverty is a strong temptation to transgress in order to secure money to keep body and soul together. One may love money to such a degree that he or she will not stop at crime to acquire it, but hunger of self and those dependent often leads a worthy man from the paths of rectitude.

The New York World lauded Nellie Bly so much that she became greater than her employers. After the return from the World trip she desired to own the World. That is, she wanted a greatly increased salary on account of her greatness. The World people thought they had done about enough for the fair Nellie, so declined to accede to her demands—hence she left the World. Thus it is in this World, when we give others prominence, they want more.

Twenty-five years ago it was a rarity to see a woman wearing more than one ring on either hand, but now the more that can be crowded on her fingers the better they seem pleased. Diamonds, rubies, emeralds, garnets, are placed there in ridiculous confusion. Such profusion only destroys the effect and beauty of a diamond. A solitaire is only pretty when it stands out alone. A ruby or emerald will spoil the effect of a brilliant diamond by casting its shade over the diamond. The old custom was the best.

AN EISS-OMETRIC POEM.

A man drank warm wine and weiss,
For which he shook and threw the deiss,
Until he saw a lot of things tweiss,
And began to see a lot more threiss,
And—well—he got sick in a treiss.
Next day he felt long ways from neiss,
And remarked—I've had enough to sufficeiss,
Henceforth, no matter what may enteiss,
I'll remember my drinks never to spleiss.
*The moral lies in this bit of adveiss,
Some things are n. g. unless you use eiss.*

When trouble is brewing, keep still. When slander is getting on its legs, keep still. When your feelings are hurt, keep still—till you recover from your excitement at any rate. Things look differently through an unagitated eye. In a commotion once I wrote a letter and sent it, and I wished I had not. In my later years I had another commotion, and wrote a long letter; but life had rubbed a little sense into me, and I kept that letter in my pocket against the day when I could look it over without agitation and without tears. I was glad I did. Silence is the most massive thing conceivable sometimes. It is strength in its very grandeur. It is like a regiment ordered to stand still in the mid-fury of battle. To plunge in were twice as easy. The tongue has unsettled more ministers than small salaries ever did, or lack of ability.

Now that the "Iron Prince" Bismarck has retired from the head of the German nation, it is said that an American woman is at the bottom of the trouble between Bismarck and the Emperor. The Countess Waldersee, it is said, was a great favorite with the young Emperor, and she also had a pique against Herbert Bismarck, the son of the great Chancellor. That by consummate skill and woman's diplomacy she brought on a rupture between the Emperor and his Prime Minister. Of course this is some romance, still there might be very much in this idea after all. A sharp, keen American woman can create the devil's own amount of mischief with our monarchical cousins when she sets her head about it.

That was a thrifty undertaker in London who was called in to perform the last sad rites at Minister Lincoln's. He was determined not to permit an opportunity to pass whereby he might advertise himself, even at the expense of a shock to the sensitive nature of the bereaved family. The infernal boor got up some tawdry cards of vulgar design, and sent them to the friends of the minister, who of course were shocked, but at once devised that they emanated from others than the family of Mr. Lincoln. There are vulgar people engaged in business enterprises on this side of the Atlantic, but for sublime impudence our English neighbor bears the palm.

The Record-Union following THEMIS complains because the audiences at our theaters enter long after the play is announced to begin, thus keeping the prompt arrivals waiting the pleasure of the tardy. This cannot be remedied, since some of our "fashionable" ladies have been to San Francisco recently, and returning home have given it out among their fellow-fashionables that it is the latest "fad" down there for the top crust to enter the theater half an hour after the curtain should be rung up. If the "society" people of our city heard or found out that it is the proper figure for the ladies to go to the theater in spike-tailed coats, there would be found those ready to try the caper. Such toadies be we.

The results of that short-hand tournament in London were certainly remarkable; but it is not much harder to believe that Bernard de Bear could write 2,000 words (ordinary newspaper matter) in ten minutes than it is to believe that any one could distinctly dictate to him with that rapidity. And when one hears that he transcribed his notes into long-hand at the rate of 2,000 words in forty minutes "without a single error," why, then, one is reminded of the old story, "I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it." An Eastern exchange has the above. It is nothing remarkable. The State test here for short-hand Court reporters is 150 words per minutes for five consecutive minutes on new matter. Very many reporters can write 200 words in a minute. There are several typewriter operators here who are able to turn out work at the rate of 50 words a minute.

A young woman of the name of Miss Mabel Jenness has set out to accomplish a momentous task. She is going to startle New York society. Miss Jenness may succeed in her undertaking, but if she does, she will be the most amazed person on the Western continent. It would take more to startle the upper ten of Gotham than this young woman ever dreamed of. Curiously enough she expects to accomplish her purpose by riding horseback, with one leg on each side of the horse. Seeing that this mode of exercise is coming into fashion among most civilized peoples, THEMIS does not see how the wickedest city on earth might be astonished by such a performance. The news-gatherer, however, who has given the public a description of Miss Jenness' riding outfit, has effected something in the way of amazing people. This person lays double stress on the fact that Miss Jenness will wear trousers of such a cut as will allow one leg of the trousers to each leg of the young woman. This is a highly important piece of information, but what dwellers along the shores of the Pacific would like to have is a brief and accurate description of a pair of trousers cut in such a fashion that both legs of the wearer have to go into one leg of the trousers. If Miss Jenness would array herself in a garment of this sort, the New York Four Hundred would take a back seat.

Mr. Kenna's Labors.

The following is from the Hayward Journal: In conversation with a prominent Republican of this county Tuesday, in regard to Congressman McKenna, he said: "I believe it would be a great calamity to this district not to renominate Mr. McKenna this fall. He has proven himself a hard worker for our interests, and has done more for us than any other Congressman. The recent appropriation of $300,000 for the Oakland post-office was largely through his influence, and this idea of shelving a tried and faithful representative for an inferior man, is foolish indeed. In the Southern and Eastern States they keep a representative in office term after term, thereby reaping the benefit from their long experience in Congress. Why should we not do likewise, and retain a good man, who is now of the greatest importance to us?" We think the gentleman's remarks extremely timely and hit the nail square on the head.

Since the above publication, Hon. Joseph McKenna has secured the passage of the appropriation bill, allowing $300,000 for a Federal building in this city. He has also obtained, as a member of the Ways and Means Committee, some great concessions to the fruit and wine interests of California. We look upon Mr. McKenna as an untiring advocate of our welfare, and his endeavors have uniformly been successful. It is now in order to have the work commence on the proposed Federal structure as early as possible, and which will serve to relieve the wants of many of our unemployed workingmen. By all means, let the leading citizens take prompt action, and we can have the work commenced at once.

Placer's New Reporter.

On Thursday, Judge B. F. Meyers appointed Warren E. Doan Official Reporter of the Superior Court of the county of Placer. Mr. Doan passed more than successfully the severe test which the Code lays down, as follows: "The test of competency shall be as follows: The party examined must write in the presence of said committee (meaning the examining committee of members of the bar) at the rate of at least 150 words per minute, for five consecutive minutes, upon matter not previously written by or known to him, immediately read the same back to the committee, and transcribe the same into longhand writing, plainly, and with accuracy." This test means about two and one-half words a second. Mr. Doan acquired his knowledge of shorthand in Sacramento, and in 1881 became connected with the office of Winfield J. Davis, the Official Reporter of the Superior Court here, as amanuensis. He perfected himself in shorthand and has practically been the reporter of one of the departments for several years past. He served in the reporter's office here under Judges Denson, McFarland, Armstrong and Van Fleet, and performed the delicate duties of his profession in such a manner that he received their confidence, both as to his integrity and ability, as well as the confidence of the members of the bar. Shorthand, practically, is an art difficult of acquirement, and about which the general public have but little conception. A reporter can judge of the qualifications of another in his line of profession. One of the editors of this paper is a shorthand reporter, is thoroughly acquainted with the qualifications and strict integrity of Mr. Doan, and is under obligation to him for the years of faithful service he performed in the office of the Official Reporter of this county. While this appointment will necessitate the removal of the appointee to Auburn, it is understood that his professional services will be available in the courts of this county whenever he is not actually employed in Placer.

Fire Commissioner.

Governor Waterman on Monday appointed Wm. Beckman a member of the Board of Fire Commissioners to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mayor Comstock. The appointment of Mr. Beckman is particularly satisfactory to the people. He has been prominently identified with the material interests of the city, county and State for many years, and filled several important positions creditably. A careful business man of unquestioned integrity, he will administer the affairs of the department to the best possible advantage to the people. With Weil, Howard and Beckman—all successful business men—the Board is just about as strong as it can be made.

State Library Catalogue.

We have received from Hon Talbot H. Wallis, State Librarian, the catalogue by authors of the general department of the California State Library. It is a handsomely printed and bound volume containing 1,172 pages. The catalogue of the law department was issued in 1886. The work just published is exhaustive, and the first to cover the general library that has been compiled and printed since 1870. It affords a complete description of the contents of the library, and evidences painstaking and scholarly labor.

J. J. Nagele, a member of the Republican City Central Committee, has instituted proceedings in the Superior Court, contesting the election of W. D. Comstock as first trustee. A special session of the Court will be held April 7th, to hear the matter. Judge Van Fleet will preside. Major W. A. Anderson is the attorney for the petitioner, Nagele.

Visiting Pioneers.

We have received from Francis D. Clark of New York, Secretary of the Associated Pioneers of the Territorial Days of California, a copy of a circular issued on the 10th instant, announcing an excursion of California Pioneers residing in the Atlantic States, to this coast, under the auspices of the society named. The excursionists will leave New York, Boston and Portland, Me., July 28th, and assemble at Montreal the following morning. They will leave that city the same evening by a train of Canadian Pacific palace cars for Vancouver, Puget Sound cities, Portland, and thence to San Francisco. Upon arrival at San Francisco, about August 10th, the members will register at the Pioneer Hall, after which about thirty days will be at their disposal to visit such portions of the State as they may desire. On September 8th they will reassemble at San Francisco to participate in the celebration of Admission Day on the 9th. The circular recites: "Our brethren of the Sacramento Society of California Pioneers also extend to us the right hand of fellowship upon the occasion of our visit to the State Fair in their city. The latch string of their hall will hang outside." The visit to Sacramento will be about September 11th. From here the members will return East at their leisure, the tickets being good until December. We can assure the visitors they will be well received here, yet such assurance is not needed to Secretary Clark, for he evidently recollects his reception by our Pioneers on the occasion of his last visit to this city, and will have no trouble to find the latch string. The following is a list of the California Pioneer Societies in the Atlantic States, and of their officers:

"Western Association of California Pioneers," Chicago, Ill.; Dr. J. Ward Ellis, President; Charles P. Jackson, Secretary. "Maryland Society of California Pioneers," Baltimore, Md.; Otto Sutro, President; John L. Stieff, Secretary. "Washington Society of California Pioneers," Washington, D. C.; Hon. Geo. C. Gorham, President; Hallett Kilbourn, Secretary. "Society of California Pioneers of New England," Boston, Mass.; Capt. Wm. H. Thomes, President; Hon. Benj. F. Whittemore, Secretary. "New England Associated California Pioneers of '49," Boston, Mass.; Samuel Snow, President; George G. Spurr, Secretary. "The Associated Pioneers of the Territorial Days of California," New York City; Hon. Mark D. Wilber, president; Francis D. Clark, Secretary.

Sacramento's Mayors.

The following is a list of the Mayors of Sacramento city since its organization:

Hardin Biglow, elected April 1, 1850; died of cholera at San Francisco, November 27, 1850; vacancy temporarily filled by the President of the Council. Horace Smith, elected at special election December 14, 1850; J. R. Hardenberg, elected May 5, 1851; C. I. Hutchinson, elected April 5, 1852; J. R. Hardenberg, elected April 4, 1853; R. P. Johnson, elected April 3, 1854; James L. English, elected April 2, 1855; B. B. Redding, elected April 7, 1856; J. P. Dyer, elected April 6, 1857; Dr. H. L. Nichols (President of the Board of Supervisors), elected May 3, 1858; William Shattuck, elected September 7, 1859; reelected September 4, 1861; Charles H. Swift (First Trustee), elected May 5, 1863, reelected March 13, 1866 and March 9, 1869; Christopher Green, elected March 12, 1872; reelected March 9, 1875; Jabez Turner, elected March 12, 1878; John Q. Brown, elected March 8, 1881, reelected March 11, 1884; Eugene J. Gregory, elected March 8, 1887; W. D. Comstock, elected March 11, 1890. Biglow died as we have stated. Smith died at Virginia City, Nev., December 4, 1863; Hardenberg afterward removed to San Francisco, and filled several important Federal offices. He died at East Oakland, May 30, 1885. Hutchinson was for many years a member of the insurance firm of Hutchinson & Mann of San Francisco, and died there September 22, 1884. Johnson died at the Bay May 1, 1886. Redding was afterward Secretary of State and for many years land agent of the railroad company; he died at San Francisco August 21, 1882. Shattuck died at Newcastle, October 10, 1885. Swift was for years President of the Sacramento Bank, and died at San Francisco, July 15, 1885. English was afterward State Treasurer, and died here May 29, 1889.

Grand Army Relief Fund.

The Grand Army organizations of the city announce that a prisoner at Andersonville prison, and who succeeded in escaping and was taken into the presence of President Lincoln in the condition in which he was found, will give a lecture or recital of his experiences at the Sixth street Methodist Church next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings for the benefit of the general relief fund of the G. A. R. The recital promises to be thrilling and exciting throughout and portray the actual scenes of Andersonville prison, but avoids any illusion that may have a tendency to arouse sectional feeling.

FLASHES.

When we jump at conclusions there is usually a fall.

Hot curling irons produce gray hair faster than any other cause.

The difference between summer and winter courtship—gate—grate.

Many men who attempt to live by their wits fail for the want of capital.

There is such a thing as a man being so upright that he leans backward.

Hogg, Bacon and Lamb is the kind of literature a hungry fellow likes.

Hypocrites are everywhere—in religion, politics, aye, even at one's hearthstone.

Senator Stanford commenced life selling horse radish; now he sells redish horses.

The newspaper that tries to get along without offending anybody does not deserve to live.

To let politics become a cesspool and then avoid it because it is a cesspool is a double crime.

An Excellent Appointment.

At the opening of the Police Court on Monday morning, Judge Buckley received and accepted the resignation of the Clerk, John N. Larkin. The Judge stated that he had tendered the appointment to George Newman, but that gentleman had transmitted to him the following letter:

SACRAMENTO, March 17, 1890.
To Hon. H. L. Buckley, Police Judge, Sacramento, Cal.: DEAR SIR:—I have the honor of acknowledging with feelings of gratefulness your offer to appoint me to the position of Clerk of your honorable court, vice J. N. Larkin, resigned. While I appreciate fully the tender to me of so high a compliment, I am constrained to say that my business interests are such as that I could not accept the honor proposed to be conferred on me without serious disadvantage to myself. I, therefore, respectfully decline to accept the appointment. Respectfully, GEORGE NEWMAN.

Judge Buckley then tendered the appointment to E. F. Duden, and that gentleman was sworn in. Mr. Duden, the new Clerk, was born and raised in this county. He learned the trade of carriage painting, then studied short hand, and for the past three years has been connected with the office of the official reporter of the Superior Court. He is indorsed by the bench and bar, and his appointment is satisfactory.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Minnie Maddern has abandoned the dramatic stage, and has entered upon the great stage of matrimony. She married Harrison Gray Fisk, editor of the New York Dramatic Mirror. She still holds her place, however, as leading lady in the drama of life.

The ever popular McNeill Club will inaugurate the present season by the production of that grand spectacular opera, Falinitza, on April 7th, 8th and 9th at the Metropolitan. The cast includes E. B. Carroll, Mrs. A. E. Brune, Miss May Kewen, Miss L. Lynn, Miss N. Young, Elwood Bruner, Miss May Casedy, R. T. Cohn, Miss M. Alys Pullman, Miss Adolph Kaibel, Mrs. George Hansbrow, Miss Hattie Wheat, C. T. Milliken, George R. Hansbrow, W. E. Lovdal and H. R. Blair.

Fred. Warde will play Richard III on Monday night at the Clunie Opera house, and on Tuesday Damon and Pythias. We have so often expressed our admiration of the talent and genius of Mr. Warde, that there is nothing more to say. His company has been augmented by Emma Wilmot, a sterling actress, and who was an alternate leading lady with Louise Hawthorne in the old Hooley Company, which comprised such membership as James O'Neil, W. H. Crane, Kitty Mayhew, A. D. Billing, and other distinguished members of the dramatic art.

A Tin Soldier was given on Wednesday and Thursday nights. The company in no respects compares favorably with the original. Any way the public has had a surfeit of Hoyt's farces. They did their service long since and should be relegated to oblivion. We have laughed at these absurd creations until their reproduction have become a bore. Even with the old cast, it is certain that none of the older productions would draw. Perhaps The Texas Steer might rally a reception, as it has not yet been presented to a Sacramento public. Let Mr. Hoyt put on his comedy cap and give us something new.

Our Wines.

A glance at the list of Arpad Haraszthy & Co's. California wines, cannot fail to convince the most skeptical devotee of good wines, that we produce the finest and purest wines in the world. It may take age to mature them, but for elegant flavor and tone there is in fact no wine produced in Europe to excel them. Our champagnes are rapidly coming to the front, and in many of the States on the other side of the Atlantic, are taking precedence to the imported article. A visit to Arpad Haraszthy's wine depot at San Francisco, would be argument conclusive of this fact.

The citizens of Sacramento have cause for congratulation that Wm. Schaw, Wm. Ingram, Jr. and John H. Batcher are to remain here. These gentlemen are among our most successful merchants, and we feel sure that the new firm, Schaw, Ingram, Batcher & Co., in which they are now interested, will reap a rich harvest from their united efforts.

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

For Sale.

Twelve second-hand square and upright pianos, in good condition; eight second-hand organs. The pianos consist of Mathusheks, Knabe, Steinway, Weber, Chickering. All at bargains. Inquire at Cooper's music store, Mathushek piano agency.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE
SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY MARCH 23, 1890

Oakland vs. Sacramento

Game called at 2:30 P. M.

ADMISSION FIFTY CENTS

LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 1:30, 2:00. Stop at 3d, 10th and 18th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts.

Public Administrator's Report.

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estate of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin		123 87
Estate of Jas. Russell	100 00	82 32	100 53
Estate of A. Ely	182 60	182 60
Estate of A. B. Ropes	655 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, } ss.
County of Sacramento, }

George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the estates hereinbefore named. That he is not, and was not at any time, interested in the expenditures of any kind made on account of any estate he administers, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.
Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890.
[SEAL.] WM. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public.
mch15—6t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED.
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.
ANNIE KANE,
Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 13th, 1890. mch15—5t

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

GO TO

Nolan & Son's
FOR FINE SHOES,

BRANCH OF SAN FRANCISCO.

603 J Street, Sacramento.

The Only Retail House in Sacramento that manufactures their own goods.

Try Our Famous $3 Shoes.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from $25
Stylish Pants made to order 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Marinosa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or.

P. H. RUSSELL

Importer and Dealer in

Staple and Fancy Groceries

719 J STREET.

Bet. Seventh and Eighth, SACRAMENTO.

Fine Table
Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

D. H. QUINN
HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

W. L. HELKE,

(Successor to J. C. Sepulveda.)

DRUGGIST and CHEMIST

N. E. cor. Second and K Sts., Sacramento.

Prescriptions a Specialty. A full line of Standard Preparations.

The other day, writes a Philadelphia Times correspondent, a woman suffragist entered a crowded "bob-tail" car, and, hanging by a strap, glared at the seated gentlemen and gave full vent to her expressions of woman's equality, winking up with the declaration that "a woman can do anything a man can do." Presently one wretch of male persuasion inquired:

"So you think a woman can do anything a man can?"

"Certainly, sir, certainly," was the quick rejoinder.

"Very well," quietly continued her opponent, as he nonchalantly crossed his feet. "Very well; stand, then. That's what men do in a crowded car." And she stood for the rest of the journey.

When false hair first came into fashion it is not easy to say. It certainly dates back more than a century, as old books cite many instances of women selling their tresses for money. Along about 1825 the market for this commodity in England seems to have been good, the demand exceeding the supply. On March 12, of the year named, a curious scene was witnessed in one of the London police courts. The room was thronged by poor women who seemed excited and uncomfortable. They finally deputed one of their number to be spokeswoman for the rest. She told the magistrate that Thomas Rushton, a barber, called at her house one day and politely asked to look at her hair. She took off her cap, and he professed to be in raptures over the beauty of her locks, offering her a guinea for them. Being poor, she accepted the offer, and the fellow took out his scissors and cut off her hair. He then put the hair in his hat, the hat on his head, and hastily departed without paying her a penny. "See, your worship," she exclaimed, "what he has done." The magistrate could scarcely keep from laughing when he saw her shorn head. All the other women in the room had been defrauded out of their tresses in the same way, and probably on the same day, as the rogue could not afford to wait until news of his exploit had been spread. The women all declared that when they came to show their husbands their cropped heads they had been made miserable, as well might be surmised.

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,
813 and 815 J STREET,
—And You Will Save Money.—
H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'
Verbine COUGH Balsam
WILL CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA
sure, or money refunded.
A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,
DENTIST,
CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER
LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

KILGORE & CO.
—DEALERS IN—
Oliver Plows and Extras, Stude-
baker Wagons and Buggies,
Hardware, Etc.
Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.
S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road
AND BE SURE AND STOP AT
BILLY GROENVELD'S
Sutterville House
And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE, Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.
Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.
M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

WITH RADAM'S
MICROBE KILLER
In the house you will have no use for any
other remedy.
It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.
L. L. GODDARD & CO.,
703 J Street, Sacramento. Agents.

R. DAVIS,
NOTARY PUBLIC,
Real Estate and Insurance Agent.
Representing the following companies:
Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh,
Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.
1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's
THE LARGEST AND
MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell
MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,
218 Bush St.,
SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES
and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand
ECLECTIC!
The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento
Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of
all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables
And GENERAL PRODUCE.
Careful attention paid to the selection and packing
of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets.
Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co
Established 1852.
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,
126 and 128 J STREET,
San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN
Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS
601 J STREET. SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,
San Francisco and Sacramento,
Importers and Jobbers of
Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,
MACHINERY
And Agricultural Implements.
Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.
W. A. ANDERSON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,
Attorney at Law,
Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,
PLUMBER,
—Gas and Steam Fitter.—
Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.
810 K STREET, Telephone 226.
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.
JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT
from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled
SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.
To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,
Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents.
Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDOUGALL,
Merchant Tailor,
617 K STREET,
Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,
Manufacturer of and
dealer in Saddles, Har-
ness, Robes, Collars,
Whips, Spurs, Brushes,
Currycombs, etc.
1130 J Street, near Twelfth
Repairing Neatly Done.
Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,
FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.
(Successors to L. Payen.)
No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.
Family Entrance on Fifth Street.
Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties
a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER
DEALERS IN
ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.
New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.
N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.
Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester
DEALERS IN
IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,
Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,
SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.
Southern Pacific Company
PACIFIC SYSTEM.
Nov. 17, 1889.
Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at
SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6.50 A	Calistoga and Napa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7.25 P
11.00 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3.40 A
7.05 P	Denning, El Paso and East	6.45 P
7.25 P	Knights Landing	7.40 A
9.00 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9.55 A
8.00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6.25 P
12-01 A	Central Atlantic Express Ogden and East	6.00 A
3-00 P	Oroville	10-50 A
3.00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10.50 A
10.40 A	Redding via Willows	4.00 P
6.15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7.25 P
6-50 A	San Francisco via Benicia	8.35 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 A
4-00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10-40 P
*10.00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	26.00 A
11.25 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2.25 P
6.50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 P
11.25 A	San Jose	2.25 P
7.05 P	Santa Barbara	9.55 A
6.50 A	Santa Rosa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Santa Rosa	7.25 P
9.00 A	Stockton and Galt	6.45 P
7.05 P	Stockton and Galt	9.55 A
8.00 P	Truckee and Reno	6.25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	6.00 A
12.05 P	Colfax	10.20 A
6.50 A	Vallejo	11.40 A
3.05 P	Vallejo	45.35 P
*12.15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	*10.25 A
*7-15 A	Folsom and Placerville	*2.40 P
*5.20 P	Folsom	*6.50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday ex-
cepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.
A. S. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent

California State Bank
DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.
Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
of the World.
OFFICERS:
PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER
DIRECTORS:
C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.
Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers
and Shippers.
PROPRIETORS OF
CAPITAL NURSERIES,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.
ESTABLISHED 1860.
REAL ESTATE
AND INSURANCE AGENTS.
FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.
Catalogues issued monthly.
No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

NOTICE.
HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KIL-
GORE & CO., their interests in the grocery business, and reopened their old stand at the northwest corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.
T. H. COOK & CO.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,
PHARMACISTS,
S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.
CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.
Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.
FOR THE COUGHS and COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar
A Speedy and Effectual Cure.
Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSNER, BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Oscar F. Flinn

824 J ST.

Fine Candies

Family Orders for Ice Cream a Specialty.

THE ONLY MAKER OF COLT'S FOOT ROCK COUGH CANDY.

Trees! Trees! Twelve Million Machines

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.

J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,

DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GASFITTING, AND ROOFING.

Jobbing a Specialty.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

FOR SALE.

Half Block

BETWEEN

Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth, V and W Streets

On line of Central Street Railway.

Apply to

FRANK HICKMAN,

1014 Fourth Street, Sacramento

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night.

EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

HOME PRODUCTION.

—WE OFFER NOW OUR—

Newly Sugar-cured

HAMS, BACON

—AND—

SHOULDERS

—AS—

Superior to Any Other in the Market

—OUR LARD—

Is pure and fresh, and

—OUR SAUSAGES—

Cannot be excelled. All Hog Products are from grain-fed hogs only.

MOHR & YOERK.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

Woman's Ways.

The things that a woman prays for goes out and fights for.

If you don't think that a woman can keep a secret tell her something that it would be to the advantage of a rival for her to tell.

Dress makers say they do their greatest amount of work during lent; that when women do not go out into society have to have something to occupy their time, so devote their attention to the new fashions.

People are very much inclined to wonder why some men can marry such homely women. It is more of a source of wonder why so many pretty women marry so many homely men. The men are homelier than the women when they are homely.

How can a man say that a woman has nothing to do. In one year she gets dinner 365 times, washes the dishes 1,095 times, gets the children ready for school twice a day for 180 days, gets the baby to sleep 1,460 times, makes about 300 calls, and, as she wishes for something she hasn't every minute, she wishes sixty things an hour, or 4,380 things in a year. Who says that a woman has nothing to do.—Atchison Globe.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Certificate of Partnership.

WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, DO HEREBY CERTIFY that we are partners, transacting business in the State of California, under the firm-name and style of BRAND, LAWTON, BARNETT & CO.; that the names in full of all the members of said partnership are as heretofore signed, and that all the members of said partnership reside in the city of Sacramento, county of Sacramento, and State of California. Witness our signatures this 20th day of February, A. D. 1890.

GEORGE ERNEST BRAND,
WILLIAM "D" LAWTON,
ROBERT AUGUSTUS BARNETT.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, County of Sacramento. } ss.

On this 20th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Chauncey H. Dunn, a Notary Public in and for said county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared George Ernest Brand, William D. Lawton, and Robert Augustus Barnett, known to me to be the persons described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the within instrument, and they acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the said county of Sacramento, the day and year in this certificate first above written.

[Seal.] CHAUNCEY H. DUNN, Notary Public.
Endorsed: Filed February 20, 1890.
mch 1, 5t By W. B. HAMILTON, County Clerk.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
mch 1-9t.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

The People of the State of California, to John A. Steen, greeting:

You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 3d day of December, 1889, in which action Anna M. Steen is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and plaintiff, upon the alleged ground of habitual intemperance, and for the care, custody and control of the minor child, Gertrude D. Steen, and for general relief and for costs of suit; all of which more fully appears in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made.

And you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento; and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

In testimony whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 4th day of December, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.
MATT. F. JOHNSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.
feb 8-w9.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT H. WACHHORST

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

- a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
 b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
 c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
 d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
 e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
 f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
 g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
 SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
 No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray

APOTHECARIES
 212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
 Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

WM. J. HASSETT.

A. J. JOHNSTON.

A. J. JOHNSTON & CO.

General Printers,

Lithographers, Electrotypers, Engravers, Book
 Binders, Blank Book Manufacturers.

410 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties.
 Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
 of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
 Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
 Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
 No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

A. G. JOHNSON.

CLAUS ANDERSON.

ANDERSON & JOHNSON,

The Leading Merchant Tailors,

SUITS MADE TO ORDER AT REASONABLE RATES.

No. 1014 Seventh Street, : : : Sacramento.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK.

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MARCH 29, 1890.

No. 6.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

Max Nordau, a modern German essayist, writing of Paris and the French, expresses the opinion that the language they speak is year by year growing weaker. Every Frenchman anxiously avoids strong, vigorous words, and tries in his writings and speech to employ substitutes more or less witty and pleasing, but indirect and confusing. This may grow out of an excessive politeness in the French. Two Frenchmen, facing each other with rapiers, will invariably bow with as much politeness and appearance of good-will as though their intentions were not deadly. The true Frenchman will never tell you this or that is not true. He will, instead, say it is inexact, when his meaning is clear that you are not telling the truth. The former is a deadly insult—the latter is accepted with a smile. This tendency to circumlocution in the language extends to the scientists as well as to current literature or spoken sentences, and usually the language itself grows weaker and less and less direct; the strength in expression yielding to mere politeness. This tendency may be noted in the French language since the time of Rabelais and the French language has developed constantly in that direction. It has grown away from truth and naturalness, constantly striving after more and more delicate subtleties of speech, artificially refined out of its primitive substantial structure.

Rabelais wrote in the first half of the sixteenth century, and his works are perfectly free from the vice pointed out. His satire on human life, as he saw it, is full of wit and well pointed. An abbé himself, he yet was merciless to the clergy. Profoundly erudite, he scored the savant without stint. Statesmen had a full share of his attention. He pointed out the pretenses of the medical fraternity and the greed and chicanery of the lawyer, and his satire on the judges and judicial proceedings of his time may now be read with profit. Bridlegoose was a judge of the highest court in the realm. He had grown old in his office, his sight had failed and his place was wanted by and for a younger man. He had in his old age decided a case against Toucheroude, whom we may suppose to have been wealthy and influential, and he was brought before the superior tribunal for trial. No matter on what charge, for when it is once resolved upon that an innocent and helpless creature must be sacrificed it is easy to pick up sticks enough in any thicket where it has strayed to make a fire to offer it up with. Present at the trial Trinquamele, president, with other regular members of the court, and Pantagruel specially sitting as advisory Judge, and Judge Bridlegoose was asked to explain how he happened to enter such a decree. "Thus, I beseech your worships, [quoth he] to take into your serious consideration and to have the more favorable opinion of my uprightness, notwithstanding the prevarication whereby I am accused, that at the time of that decree's pronouncing, I only had made use of my small dice, and your worships know very well how, by the most authentic rules of the law, it is provided that imperfections of nature should never be imputed to any one for crimes and transgressions as approveth by" [citing authorities]. Trinquamele: "What kind of dice do you mean?" Bridlegoose: "The dice of sentences of law decrees and peremptory judgments, authorized by [citing authorities] and which your worships use as well as I in this sovereign court of yours, as do all other righteous judges in their decisions, observing that which hath been said thereof by our great law authority, D. Herri Ferrendat, when it is shown that chance and fortune are good, honest, profitable and necessary for ending and putting a final closure to dissensions and debates in suits at law as is more clearly set forth in the de Leg. si duo." Trinquamele: "How is it you do these things?" Answer: "I act according to the following law authorities [citing]. My practice is the same as that of your worships, and as the custom of the judiciary requires unto which our law commandeth us to have regard and by the rule thereof to direct and regulate our procedure for having well and exactly seen, surveyed, overlooked, reviewed, read, reread, turned and tossed over and fully examined the bills of complaint, citation, mandates, commissions, warnings, notices, allegations, depositions, cross-complaints, dilatory pleas, exceptions, answers, demurrers and other such confects and spiceries on both sides, I deposit on the end of a table in my closet all the pokes and bags of the defendant, and then allow unto him the first hazard of the dice, according to the manner of your worships. That being done, I lay down upon the other end of the table the bags and satchels of plaintiff, as your worships do. Then do I likewise and similarly throw the dice for him and give him his chance. I, as your worships do when there are many bags on each side, use my small dice, as is customary with you, and in obedience to the law [citing]. I have other large dice, fair and goodly ones, which, as your worships do, I use when the matter is more clear, plain and liquid; i. e. when there are fewer bags. And I give out sentence, as your other worships do unto whom hath befallen the best chance by dice as our laws command." Bridlegoose, questioned by Trinquamele, gave at great length his reasons why he does not give his judgments immediately on the throw of the dice. He cites his authorities at great length, and the common practice of the court before which he pleads is fully cited and condensed. His reasons may be stated thus: (1) For formalities' sake. (2) The delay is useful and steady in lieu of other healthful occupations. (3) Time ripeneth and bringeth all things to maturity; maketh it manifest and patent, and time is the father of truth and virtue; therefore, I defer, protract, delay, prolong, intermit, surcease, pause, linger, suspend, drive out, wire draw, and shift off the time of giving definitive sentence, to the end that the suit being well winnowed and tossed to and fro may by success of time come at last to its full maturity by means whereof, when the fatal hazard of the dice ensueth the parties cast by the chance will with greater patience and more mildly and gently endure and bear up the disastrous load of their misfortune than if they had been sentenced on their first arrival into court." How little is this world changed since Rabelais wrote his satirical work, the history of the giants Gorgantua and Pantagruel. The office of a Judge sitting in a case involving immense fortunes is not a bed of roses. It requires patient labor.

Old Judge Bridlegoose made it one part of his defense that his decisions always followed honestly the throw of his dice. He was getting old and his eyesight had somewhat failed him, so that when the bags were full of papers and he used his small dice he might have failed to read them aright, but this arose out of his misfortune and it should not be charged against him as a fault. He also took credit to himself that his dice were never loaded; they were good honest dice, furnished him by the government, and when the Great God who presided over judicial tribunals, and was Himself the fountain of justice, directed the fall of the dice, the judgment must sure be right. It was surer than the wager of battle resorted to by other tribunals in other governments, for there the contestants were not always equally skilled, armed, or mounted, and the physical powers of the two contestants were often unequal. But here, in the honest throw of the dice there was no such difficulty, and an overruling Providence must sure place the dice so that justice may be done to the litigants.

In our system of jurisprudence it may well be doubted whether the judicial dice thrown by the judges are always unloaded. The Federal Judiciary system is different from that of our State in this, that the judges are appointed, not elected, and for life; not for a short term, at the end of which they must run a race (often hotly contested) for reelection. His salary has been so small that his family has been compelled to economize to an extent bordering on parsimony to enable the incumbent of our higher courts to meet necessary expenditures. If he has thrown his judicial dice honestly, unloaded, he may find the losing litigant in power and that power is used to his defeat. An instance of this may be found in In re Buckley (10 Pac. Rep. 69): Chris Buckley was cited to appear before the Supreme Court to answer for contempt, in claiming to have an influence with the Court to such an extent that he was able to obtain a decision in favor of one Bonnet. Bonnet says Buckley told him he could get the Court to decide his case in his favor and have it dated on the next day. Bonnet consented and gave Buckley his note for $500. A majority of the justices deemed the case against Buckley not made out beyond a reasonable doubt, and acquitted him; but Mr. Justice McKee dissented, and in an able opinion insisted that Buckley's statement of the facts were too improbable for belief, and he thought Buckley should be punished. Note how Judge McKee was handicapped, and what inducement he had to throw loaded dice in that case. He was a Democrat. His term of office expired at the next election. He had been on the bench nearly his whole business life. He was dependent on his position for his living. His honesty was proverbial, and socially no man had more friends. Buckley was the boss Democrat of San Francisco, and in the next Democratic State Convention boasted of his 104 followers who would do his bidding, and notwithstanding the personal popularity of Judge McKee, and simply because he cast honest dice in his decision, and refused to fall down and worship the leader of his party, his judicial career then terminated and he was relegated to private life.

If judges were appointed for life, and a provision were made to retire them on salary when too old, there might be fewer cases tinged with political prejudice. Good honest dice would be cast in all such cases in giving judgment. But there are other matters loading down the judicial dice cast in certain cases which cannot be traced to political or any other prejudice. The various phases of the Hill-Sharon imbroglio may be taken as a sample. As tried before Judge Sullivan the dice used at the trial before him were weighted by the $15,000,000 of the defendant, by the police force of San Francisco, under the guidance of Captain Lees, by the Tyler-McLaughlin-Barnes $25,000 episode, and by the thousand and one matters forced into the case by the sheer power of money. But in rendering the judgment it is evident the judge used the honest dice. In the Supreme Court of the State it is difficult to tell what dice were used, as the decisions (for there were many) were so various that they cannot be accounted for except by supposing that the magnetic needle supposed to point with inerring certainty to the pole star of truth, must have been disturbed by an electric storm. Take the Jessup case for illustration. The succession to a small amount of property was to be determined, the question whether a claimant had been acknowledged by the intestate as his son. In our Supreme Court the honest judicial dice fell his way and he became heir to a handsome property. About that time it became apparent that a property of several millions in the Blythe case might go to an heir similarly constituted if the opinion in the Jessup case should stand as law. A rehearing in the Jessup case was granted by a throw of the judicial dice and by another throw the young aspirant to a competency in the Jessup case is sentenced to go through life nullus filius, poverty stricken, nameless, and the Blythe case is set at large, its millions the property of no one, to be eaten into by costs, expenses, lawyers and brokers, the case to go into history as the counterpart of Jarndyce and Jarndyce.

Sancho Panza used no dice in his aid when deciding cases as Governor of the Island of Barataria. In deciding the case of the countryman against the tailor, he followed the precedent of the celebrated case, the disputed oyster, where the shells were given to the litigants, the judge taking the oyster. In his next case one old man had loaned another ten crowns. The lender demanded them again and the borrower said he had paid. The lender said if the borrower would swear to it he would proceed no further. The borrower held in his hand at the trial a cane which he handed to the lender to hold and then swore he had returned the ten crowns to the lender. Sancho noting that the borrower took his cane and went away exulting, had him called back, took his cane from him, broke it in two, and there found the ten crowns which he gave to the lender. The borrower swore the truth, but the lender would have been cheated but for the quickness of Sancho. He took no time to throw dice in that case. A herdsman was brought before him charged with rape. He claimed that the dame had lied, but Sancho Panza ordered him to produce twenty ducats which he did, and they were given to the woman, who left, with thanks to the Governor. Sancho then ordered the herdsman to follow the woman and take the ducats forcibly away from her. Both soon again appeared, the woman demanding justice because the varlet had forcibly to take away the ducats. "Has he got the purse from you," demanded the Governor. "No he shall sooner have my life than my purse." The herdsman confessed that he had not the strength to take the purse from her. Sancho: "Give me the purse." She gave it up and he quietly handed it to the herdsman, saying: "Sister mine, had you shown but half as much courage in defending yourself, as you have in defending the purse, the strength of Hercules could not have harmed you."

Events of unusual importance have taken place at home and abroad during the past week. The current of movements has been such as to affect all manner of interests. With us the tendency of proceedings and discussion has taken a political course mainly, with an occasional divergence in the direction of national matters, as in the case of the debate in the Federal Senate upon Sherman's anti-trust bill, and the argument before the Ways and Means Committee upon tariff affairs. In England and on the continent the steps which have been taken embrace all groups of conditions.

The promulgation of the new extradition treaty between this country and England will recall the relations which have subsisted between the two countries for the last forty-five years with reference to the surrender of persons charged with crime. The last treaty was ratified in 1841, and a study of the provisions of that convention and of the provisions of the present one will show in what degree the sentiment of respect and of international obligation has increased and strengthened between the two nations. It is one of the anomalies of modern times that so defective a compact as that of 1841 should have survived the growth of a feeling of amity, and the expansion of a vast and increasing commerce between peoples speaking the same tongue, possessing the same literature and maintaining the same system of jurisprudence. There is no doubt that a feeling of hostility toward England pervades the people of this country, but it is no such sentiment as existed in 1841. Perhaps the word hostility is too strong to express the feeling which exists. We feel toward England as one person feels toward another, who in former years flouted him and treated him with contempt, but upon whose utmost efforts he can now look with equanimity and unconcern. In 1841—as late as 1861—England assumed to dictate to us. But, as Lord Salisbury told the conservative members of Parliament in his address at the Carleton Club the other evening, the time has gone by when Great Britain could negotiate with America at the top of her voice.

In 1841 we dreaded England's power and treachery. Now, we half distrust her honesty and despise her power. An extradition treaty is a reciprocal arrangement. What one party to the convention does, the other must do. So the compact of 1841 enumerated only a few crimes—and these were mostly offenses against the person—for which the accused person might be surrendered. England was willing to extend the list of extraditable crimes, but we were not. England was holding the world very level in 1841 and we distrusted her.

By 1860 we had grown a good deal stronger than we were in 1841, and a sense of strength is a great mollifier of resentment. But in 1860 we had a row of our own on hand, and then it was that England made the treachery which we suspected in 1841 as plain as day. She turned her ship-yards in the Mersey and in the Clyde over to the agents of the Confederate States and allowed them to fit out cruisers against our commerce. In vain did Minister Adams appeal to Earl Russell, telling him that the policy of his government was in violation of the law of nations. In vain did John Bright pour forth his eloquence in the House of Commons, telling England to her face that she was the most perfidious nation on earth—that she was the abettor of a revolutionary government whose cornerstone was human slavery.

The animosities which two wars had engendered had nearly faded away, and the dictatorial spirit which England observed had ceased to offend us. But her Punic faithlessness from 1860 to 1865 revived all our hatred. What a monstrous crime the English Government, under Russell's administration, committed against human liberty during this period. But this was twenty-five years ago. Now England lowers her voice to the tone of a modest nation when she wants to talk to us upon international business. Sir Julian Paunceforte has a talk with Secretary Blaine every few days. Sometimes it is about codfish in one ocean, and sometimes it is about fur seals in another ocean, but no difference what the talk is about, the British Minister behaves himself in a modest manner, as the representative of a modest power.

But would England treat us differently if she thought it would be to her interest to do so? International friendship is a myth mainly. England would stand on tiptoe and yell at us, if she dared to. She would treat us just as she has been treating Portugal for the last six months. As an agency for the spread of civilization, and as a promoter of commerce, England surpasses Rome, and as the exponent of treachery, Carthage must yield her the palm.

But our relations with England are very pleasant, and will continue in the same state, so long as she refrains from elevating her voice when she wishes to speak to us on matters of business. The only happy marriages that our young women have made have been with Englishmen. Lord Randolph Churchill took one of our best girls, and Commoner Joe Chamberlain took another. THEMIS would have been better pleased if they had married well-bred, industrious Americans. But their choice goes to show that, when a young woman makes up her mind to get married, the treachery of a foreign power towards her own government does not amount to much.

As for the new extradition treaty, it is a broad, sensible and just convention, and is wholly the product of the Republican administration. The treaty goes into effect the 4th of next month, and inasmuch as its provisions cover the cases of boodle aldermen, defaulters and embezzlers, the colonies of American thieves at Montreal and Quebec will receive no considerable accessions after that date. The only regret is that the treaty was not made retroactive in the case of John C. Eno. That villain is rioting at Quebec on a million of stolen money, mostly the savings of working men and working women. If England had lowered her voice to a moderate tone twenty years ago, that scoundrel would now be mending shoes in the Sing Sing penitentiary.

It is an ancient, and yet perhaps a true apothegm, that "there is nothing new under the sun." We daily realize its verity in our reading, especially of antique literature, where we are frequently confronted with sentences and sayings and expressions that were in vogue centuries ago, and which we of modern days still adhere to and adopt as of very recent origin, and which few—not an average of one in ten thousand, persons—know to have had their origin when the language was in its cradle, wrapped in its swaddling clothes. This fact appertains more essentially to hundreds, thousands of the "sayings," "by-words," "witticisms," etc., that we use in conversation, often palming as our own or surreptitiously inserting in our composition without due credit to the author. All the great writers have left to us legacies from which we daily filch, without even so much gratitude as "by your leave."

In casually reviewing some of the ancient English classics, we chanced to take up a volume of Dean Swift's works. It was the twenty-second volume of an edition published in 1813. In that volume the erratic Dean has thrown together what he entitles "A Complete Collection of Polite and Ingenious Conversation in Several Dialogues." If his account be really a "full, true and correct" report of tea-table conversation in what was in those days the polite and refined of the English Four Hundred, then, indeed, may we felicitate ourselves that there has been a wonderful innovation and improvement in the art; for certainly much of the language then used and the expressions made by both "ladies" and "gentlemen," for they purport to have been among the nobility, would not bear repeating, not by the most depraved of our lowest sets of either sex. But let us see if we can recognize old friends among some of the chestnuts, and let it be borne in mind that what is here given occurs at only one sitting "around the mahogany," and the quotations here given are from sentences in the conversation of the guests; of course, all the conversation is not given: "It is an ill wind blows nobody good;" "As the good woman said when she kissed her cow;" "The sight of you is good for sore eyes;" "Come, a penny for your thought?" "It is not worth a farthing, for it was thinking of you;" "'Tis as cheap sitting as standing;" "They say butter is gold in a morning, silver at noon, but it is lead at night;" (in modern days we say this of certain fruits: "We are neither sugar nor salt; we were not afraid the rain would melt us;" "The devil was beating his wife behind the door with a shoulder of mutton;" "You stand in your own light;" "I believe your father was no glazier;" (this is said of one who stands in the light of another;) "Will you have it now or stay till you get it?" "I don't lie, I sit;" "Enough is as good as a feast;" "Maids should be seen, not heard;" "Don't throw water on a drowned rat;" (President Andy Johnson, in his public speeches, was wont to say of a political opponent, by way of derision, that he "did not waste his ammunition on dead ducks;" "You frighten me out of my seven senses;" "Kissing goes by favors;" "Ill words grow apace;" (we say "bad words grow fast;" "I do love it, but it does not love me;" (when certain dishes disagree with us:) "You are in a brown study;" "Cry my eyes out;" "'Tis folly to cry for spilt milk;" "Why, if things did not break or wear out, how would tradesmen live?" "I love everything that's good;" "Why, my lord, I suppose because they pull the ropes;" (This in reply to the question of one of the tea-party: "I wonder what makes those bells ring?") "She will say anything but her prayers, and those she whistles;" (one of the young ladies asks a "Colonel" to give her his pretty pen-knife; he refuses because it will cut love. The silly of our own time object to making a present of a sharp edged instrument because it "cuts friendship;" "Cast a sheep's eye out of a calf's head;" "To sharpen the edge of his wit;" "One fool makes many;" "Went to see and to be seen;" "I swear she's no chicken;" "Why, they say she's one of the chief toasts in town;" (spoken of a popular lady;) "She looks as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth;" "The lord of the Lord knows what;" "Her dancing days are over;" "Coming; aye, so is Christmas;" "Aye, thou hast a head; so has a pin;" "Promises and pie crust are made to be broken."

Senator Blair has lived to see his pet scheme, the National Education Bill, killed by the hands of those from whom he had hoped better things. For years he has surrendered thought of all else, and devoted his existence to putting in shape and in preparation for his argument in its advocacy before the Senate. He has lived and struggled in the fond anticipation that this act would revolutionize affairs in this government, and that his name would go down to succeeding ages as one of the greatest statesmen of this century. But he was not broad enough across the forehead and he finds himself as small a toad in the pond as he was before he conceived the amazing idea of making a general pedagogue of the United States. But the fear is that this is not the last of Blair and his bill, for it is within human probability that his chagrin at defeat may lead to his insanity. A recent dispatch says: "Senator Blair's wife told a friend a few days ago that she dared not think of the effect upon Senator Blair if his educational bill was defeated. His whole mind, she said, had been so centered on it that fears had been expressed that his brain might be affected." The dispatch goes on to say that the Senator's eccentricities have been increasing of late, and he has become a monomaniac on the subject of his hobby, so much so that he believes there existed a conspiracy among his fellow-members in the Senate to kill the measure. And that is the timber out of which United States Senators are made of late years. Ex-Senator Jones, of Florida, hectoring a poor girl to death out West because she will not love him; Blair skulking about Washington, like a gawky schoolboy who has missed his lesson, because the Senate did not believe with him as to the only measure he has ever introduced since his election to that body by New Hampshire; George Hearst, of California, spending most of his time with the stable-boys and jockies of the country; Jones, of Nevada, assiduously at work putting mining futures on the New York stock-boards; Dolph, of Oregon, watching the interests of all that concerns the Northern railroads that run into his State, and of which roads he is the retained and high priced attorney; Call, of Florida, and Bill Chandler, of New Hampshire, scolding and "cussing" each other like a couple of fish-wives; Ingalls, of Kansas, trailing his Prince Albert about the Senate floor, begging anyone on earth to tread on it that he may have a fight on his hands; Evarts, of New York, and Edmunds, of Vermont, keeping daily watch on the Supreme Court calendar, that they may pick up fat fees from those wealthy enough to have litigation in that tribunal; Gorman, of Maryland, on the fly between the sachems of Tammany in New York and the Democrats of Washington, in his effort to pick proper timber for the next Democratic Presidential nominee, and the balance of the Senators entertaining in "society" or putting up jobs before the departments, all make a fine representative batch that forms that modern Millionaire Club. Take ten out of the eighty-four, deprive the others of their wealth, call them home, and they would not be thought of for membership in the State Legislature; a shame at present for the United States, which will grow into a curse very soon.

How Monkeys Catch Crabs.

The way in which monkeys catch land crabs is described by a sportsman who made an expedition to the jungles around Singapore, and there enjoyed the sport which makes the contemporaneous records of Indian experiences pale into significance. The monkey lies down on his stomach feigning death. From the countless passages piercing the mud in every direction thousands of little red and yellow crabs soon make their appearance, and after suspiciously eyeing for a few minutes the brown fur of the monkey they cautiously and slowly sidle up to him in great glee at the prospect of a big feed off the bones of Master Jocko. The latter peeps through his half-closed eyelids and fixes upon the assembled multitude. When the crab comes within reach, out dashes the monkey's arm, and off he scampers into the jungle with a cry of delight to discuss at leisure his cleverly earned dinner.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Hanlon's Fantasma will be here next week. When last here there was splendid patronage bestowed.

The Cleveland Minstrels will perform to-night and Sunday night. The combination is said to be great.

William Pinero, the playwright, is lying dangerously ill at Folkestone, England. One of his most successful plays was "Sweet Lavender."

Tamagno, the tenor, used to be a baggage porter. He does not favor his former craft when on his travels. If a porter demands too much for carrying his trunk he calmly shoulders it himself.

It is said that negotiations are pending between James O'Neill and Sarah Bernhardt to secure that actor to play his original part in the version of "The Passion Play," which the French actress expects to produce in Paris.—San Francisco Music and Drama.

Nadage Doree, a very pretty and clever young actress, who was unfortunate enough to provoke the ire of Mrs. Langtry, who, it is said, grew jealous of the young actress, is going to star next month in her French society play called "Natasqua." While Miss Doree's former star is starring in London in the English, "As You Like It," the younger actress will be doing the same here in the French "Natasqua."

Louise Michel has just sold the libretto of a comic opera called "Vie dans la Lune" for 2,000 francs. The story hinges on the supposition that all the female inhabitants of the moon are dead of la grippe except two hags, and in consequence our satellite is threatened with utter depopulation, till suddenly an air-ship freighted with beautiful damsels, arrives in triumph and everything is serene again. The dialogues and lyrics are said to be clever and witty.

Miss Carrie Turner has gone over to Paris with Miss Grace Hawthorne to be introduced to Victorien Sardou, writes Eugene Field to the Chicago News. Grace and Victorien are very chummy. Grace's manager is W. W. Kelly, a hustler from Hustlerville. "Kelly," said I the other night, "how did you happen to come to London?" "We were doing a poor business in the Missouri Valley," said he. "One day at Atchison, sitting in the Patriot office, I saw a map of the world. I noticed that London was the biggest spot on it. That night I said to Miss Hawthorne: 'Let's go to London.' 'Why?' she asked. 'Because it's the biggest spot on the map,' says I. 'All right,' says she. We started next day and here we've been ever since."

Fred Warde's Richard III was not a great creation. While he showed the fire of art, there was something lacking to create enthusiasm. It is possible the poor support had much to do with casting a shade over Mr. Warde's dramatic genius. There are plays where the star can shine alone and not be affected by contrast, but in Shakespeare's plays each character becomes a potent factor in making the "star" shine. It is worse than folly to attempt any one of the works of the Bard of Avon without an appropriate cast. Fred Warde is a great actor and will in due time make a great Richard, but he suffers now in comparison with Barry Sullivan and Edwin Booth.

Book Chat.

Mrs. Samuel Clemens, Mark Twain's wife, has written a novel under an assumed name. We shall await the verdict with abated breath. Which of the latest is the one?

Mr. Andrew Lang has written an introduction to Charles Lamb's "Adventures of Ulysses," which scholars believe to have been the incentive to Tennyson's "Ulysses," and of which a new edition is to be published, under the supervision of Mr. Edwin Arnold.

The Sultan is said to be a poet as well as a musician. Literary people will no doubt remember him as the author of the celebrated rhyme:

Harem
Scarem.

Oran Follet, 94 years old, is still doing active editorial work at Sandusky, O. He can remember when some of the current newspaper jokes were new.

Alphonse Daudet, probably the most popular living novelist, is thus described: "Daudet is one of the most remarkable looking men in Europe. His head is one of great beauty, exquisitely shapen, long, dark locks falling over a white, broad forehead, eyes as black as any coal, but brilliant with the light of Southern suns, the face itself a perfect oval, a full, dark beard and mustache, and a delicate, finely chiseled mouth."

Orthodox ministers, as a rule, deprecate novel reading, but the following is from the pen of a distinguished divine: A celebrated English statesman, so the story runs, once said, "Bring me a good book, a true one, and not a history." He asked for and was given a novel. Novels are profitable reading for they aid in developing character by showing the differences in human nature. Novel reading also forms a rest to the mind if it is not carried to such an extent that all interest is lost, and another reason for novel reading is that we read the best writings of the best authors. Scott, Elliott and Dickens all wrote fiction, but, nevertheless, it was the best of their writings. The reading of fiction has its perils as well as its benefits, and not over one-third of one's reading should be fiction, for he is apt to lose all interest in other works which would be of benefit to him.

Of Mme. Olympe Andouard, the French writer who recently died in Paris, says the Chicago News, they tell an interesting story. One summer she went to Baden-Baden and ensconced herself in a pretty villa. Returning from a drive one day, she handed the cabman what she deemed a reasonable fare, but that person seemed to object, and a comical parley was precipitated, madame knowing no German and cabby no French. In the midst of it all a tall, erect, white-haired gentleman came from the villa across the way and said in French: "Madame, perhaps I can be of service to you. How much do you want to give this man for his pouboire?" "I am willing to give him 2 francs," said madame. "No, that is too much; one ought not to be extravagant," said the old gentleman. "What, and are you miserly, and that, too, with other people's money?" cried the little French woman. "Miserly, no; but careful. People thank me for being careful." Well, the old gentleman finally paid the cabman the exact amount due and a few pence (pfennigs) for drink money, and so the matter ended. That evening, however, Mme. Andouard attended a grand concert in the town and she was presented to the King of Prussia, whom she recognized as the handsome old gentleman who had come to her rescue in the afternoon. "Do you not really think, madame," said the King, slyly, "that I am quite right to be economical, since it is the money of my subjects that I spend?"

John Boyle O'Reiley, prose writer, poet and editor of the Boston Pilot, came to this city last Monday to lecture. His subject was announced as "An Evening with the Irish Poets," a theme sufficiently attractive for anyone admiring the sweetest song ever sung by human voice or indicated by inspired pen. No country has given to the world such a wealth of sad song, or story of love, or tale of undying patriotism told in verse as has Ireland; no one so capable of speaking of it as John Boyle O'Reiley. He as soldier and all but martyr, has helped make and illustrate that country's story of woe. Monday night he was greeted by less than quarter of a hundred people! Scattered over the theater there looked to be a dozen. The highly cultivated literary taste of the citizens of this town could not brook the idea of being bored for an hour with selections from Swift, Moore, Davis, Sheridan, and others whose fame is unequalled and whose poetry is unsurpassed; "it would be such a bore, you know." But if Mr. O'Reiley had only been heralded by flaming posters, illustrating the dead walls, announcing that he would lecture on the "Pigs in Clover," "The Runtly Swine of the Arkansaw Swamp," "The Old Maid's Last Stocking," or any kindred subject of like literary merit, doubtless there would not have been standing room when the lecturer appeared, and he would have coined money, instead of being obliged to return it to the auditors as he did Monday.

Professional Chat.

Gov. English of Connecticut, never had a serious ailment until his last and fatal illness. A short time before he was taken down with this last sickness he felt a little indisposed and a physician whom he met gave him a prescription. "What shall I do with it?" said the Governor. "Take it home and frame it," replied the doctor. "Men who have lived as you have lived need no doctor."

"I heard," writes a correspondent of the Star of London, "a curious and characteristic story of Disraeli the other day. Once Lord Derby—then prime minister—found fault with something Disraeli had done. Disraeli at the time was chancellor of the exchequer for the first time, and he was peremptorily summoned to St. James' square. At once Lord Derby, who had a sharp tongue and a fierce temper when he gave way to it, poured on Disraeli a lava-tide of reproach. Disraeli sat absolutely silent until Lord Derby, in final exasperation, said: 'D— it, man, have you nothing to say?' Disraeli got up and left the house, never saying one word. It was this marvelous self-control that probably accounts for his strange success."

"Yes," said Representative Boutelle, of Maine, to a correspondent of the Chicago News, "I shall get up in the middle of the night during the next campaign so as to keep my appointments on the stump for Harrison. He's so grateful for every thing I have done for him. After all my work in Indiana two years ago and in previous campaigns he appointed the biggest enemy I have in the world as Supervisor of Census in my district, although I protested again and again, and the man is now searching in every town for people who hate me or have grievances against me to make them enumerators. Thus the entire power of the government in my district is engaged in trying to prevent my nomination. Of course I'm an Administration man!"

Judge William Louis Kelly of the District Court, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press, is acquiring a reputation for wit on the bench. A young lawyer in the German-American bank building tells the following: Various jurors were waiting before the judge, as is the custom at every term of Court, to be excused from service. A meek looking man came up in his turn and asked that he might be let off. "You can't get off without a good excuse," said the judge. "I have a good reason." "You must tell it or serve," said the Judge. "But, your honor, I don't believe the other jurors would care to have me serve." "Why not? What's your excuse?" "Well—I—" (hesitating). "What is it?" "I've got the itch." "Mr. Clerk," said Judge Kelly quickly, "scratch that man out."

The features, it is said, are developed by the mind. A child that is reared amid pleasant surroundings, and whose mind is filled with pleasant thoughts, will have a pleasing face. The shape of the nose and chin will depend entirely upon the strength and character of the mental faculties. At 10 a boy's nose may be small and turned up at the end, at 15 it may have grown larger and straight on top, and at 25 it may be a pronounced Roman. It all depends upon his mind. The Romans had big noses, with high bridges, because they were a steady and determined race of people. Sturdiness and determination will give a man a Roman nose, no matter how little or how stubby it may have been when he was born. The Greeks had straight, delicate, finely-chiselled noses because their tastes were artistic and poetic. Did you ever see a poet or an artist with a Roman or snub nose. On the other hand, it would be hard to find a general with any other than a genuine Roman proboscis. Get pictures of Alexander the Great, Caesar, Frederick, the Great Napoleon, Wellington, Washington, Lee, Grant or Sheridan, and see if they haven't all got noses of the big, strong Romanesque type. These men were not great generals because they had Roman noses, they had Roman noses because they were great generals.

NOTES.

The Bay papers, speaking of the Choyinski-Turner fight soon to take place at one of the punching-peus down there, say that Turner will enter the ring in the pink of perfection. A pink nigger will be a queer sight, but if Choyinski can only give him a sly kick in the shins, he will win the fight in short order.

The Iron Dollar, of Fall River, Shasta county, has entered upon a new volume. We are pleased at the success of the dollar, even if we own it not. To the credit of our deservedly successful contemporary, we will say it is composed and printed in its own office; it is edited with ability; the Iron Dollar is not rusted.

Apples, in the old traditions, were the food of the Gods. A good ripe apple is one of the best diets for the stomach and aids digestion. The thick parings of an apple laid on hot are a great remedy for inflamed eyes. A poultice of rotten apple is also good for weak eyes, so also is roasted apple.

"To eat an apple on going to bed,
Will make the doctor beg his bread."

In 1790, one hundred years ago, the Russian Admiral Kruse secured the supremacy of the Baltic, and Russia has maintained that supremacy ever since. While the Russian fleet was greatly inferior to the Swedish navy, it still managed to defeat the latter—this was in May, 1790, when the fleet of twenty-nine vessels attacked the Russian fleet of seventeen vessels. The fight lasted two days and resulted in a sanguinary victory for the Muscovites. May 23d is the anniversary which is celebrated at St. Petersburg.

We read of a man by the name of Sig. Succi who claims to have invented a method of living without solid food. This cannot imply that the usual "liquid refreshments" are alone sufficient to support life. This wonderful discoverer is now in London. There are plenty of half-starved people in that city upon whom he can practically demonstrate his new notion. Succi is a very appropriate name for such a discovery. We are making rapid strides in new discoveries, but doing without eating is rather beyond mortal power.

So Senator Hearst voted for the Blair National Education Bill. What will the Democrats of California now think of Uncle George's Democracy? Certainly that party all over the country has been sufficiently loud in its curses of Blair and his bill, for the Democratic Senator to have heard them at Washington. And he gave his vote for the measure in the face of the fact that he told a Courier-Journal correspondent that he would vote against it as "his people" did not want it. Wonder if the Senator ever read the bill?

The Willows Republican, published in Colusa county—a county that gave Mr. Cleveland 894 majority—announces that when the Republican State nominations take place it purposes to issue a daily. Pluck is admired. The Republican is fighting against odds, but it valiantly declares: "We want the support of all Republicans and will spare no pains to keep abreast of the Democrats, if not a little ahead." It is but right that the members of the party in the county should especially give the paper support. Its vim and bravery deserves success.

"The soothing effects of hot water are not fully appreciated," said a physician one day recently. "I recommend it to many of my patients suffering from insomnia, produced by nervous irritation of the stomach, and also for certain forms of indigestion. Many of them object to it at first, but soon come to like it. A glass of hot water now and then will work no appreciable good, of course, but a steady habit of hot water drinking once formed and sustained regularly for a few months, works wonders with certain constitutions. I generally recommend its use before going to bed. It is a great soothing."

Very much has been written of the peculiar privileges of newspaper reporters. Particularly what peculiar privilege a man is entitled to over ordinary people, because he writes for the press cannot well be understood. We learn by the dispatches that some fellow connected with the World concealed himself behind a curtain in the jury room in New York, and was there discovered when the jury in the Flack case retired for deliberation. The New York judge reprimanded and released the reporter, "as there was no law to cover the offense." While it is said that California borrowed her laws largely from the Empire State, we are improved in their administration, and it is not at all likely that such an idiotic attempt at journalistic enterprise would escape appropriate punishment here.

Sacramento's sprightly weekly, THEMIS, has just completed its first year. It has been bright and independent, and has, in all truth, filled "a long felt want." Considerable bravery is required in these days to conduct a really fearless newspaper, and this characteristic has been evidenced in every issue. We wish it success, not only because it is this, but for the further fact that it is a Native Son production.—Golden West.

Our contemporary is in some respects correct, that THEMIS is a Native Son production; but when it comes down to solid California history, we very largely call on the members of our force who are pioneers. Our office has representatives both of the old and new era—on the principle of old men for counsel; young men for war.

Two boys, three lucifer matches and one gopher cost the farmers in the neighborhood of Burlingame, Kansas, $250,000. The boys stuffed a gopher hole full of prairie grass, and touched a lighted match to it, and a slight breeze did the rest. Seventy-two farms were burned over, and fifty farm houses destroyed. Events of an equally disastrous nature took place in other localities. For instance, one school-mistress and an insurance agent destroyed a prosperous church at Flora, Pennsylvania, by an unknown means. It is well enough to keep up with such happenings as these, if one wishes to be informed as to what is going on in the world. There would seem to be an entire want of congruity between the disruption of a church organization and the smoking of a gopher out of its hole, but it will be observed that the breeze was the efficient cause of calamity in both cases.

It appears that the penal statutes of New York divides larceny into four degrees, the duty being devolved upon the jury to determine the grade of the crime in each case. The penalty which may be imposed upon a person depends upon the degree to which the jury may assign the offense. Thus a heavier punishment is visited upon persons who are found guilty of larceny in the first degree than is visited upon persons who are found guilty of larceny in the second degree and so on down to the fourth degree, in which case the penalty is rather mild. Well, a member of the Buffalo Board of Trade, of the name of Sherman, stole 800,000 bushels of wheat from an elevator, and a jury found him guilty of larceny in the third degree. Here is a case for the casuists. If a person who steals 800,000 bushels of wheat is only guilty of larceny in the third degree, how much wheat would a person have to steal before a jury would be warranted in finding him guilty of larceny in the first degree?

Queen Victoria has the reputation of being a person of dignified civility, but if reports be true, Her Majesty treated Mr. Charles Cooper quite ungraciously during the past week. Mr. Cooper called at the Buckingham Palace with the view of informing the Queen of the exact whereabouts of Jack the Ripper. He was denied audience. The Queen is reported to be suffering from rheumatism worse than ever, and has determined to go to Aix les Baines on Monday, and this may have had something to do with her denial of a hearing to Mr. Cooper. But if Her Majesty had listened to a recital of the exploits of Jack the Ripper, and had received definite information as to his present habitation, it might have obviated the necessity of going to Aix les Baines. Many an old lady has been cured of rheumatism by listening to stories about the horrible. But the worst part of the business was that Cooper was ordered to be locked up in jail. There is no charge that the man is out of his mind, so the proceeding would seem out of the usual course. It might be that Cooper knows all about the Ripper. Gabrielle Bompard, for instance, knew all about Evvard, the garrotter. But Gabrielle was in jail; so she was allowed to tell all she knew, and there was no great ado about it.

There are two prominent figures in Democratic politics, whose future careers will be watched with unusual interest. We refer to Governor David B. Hill, of New York, and Senator Arthur P. Gorman, of Maryland. Hill is known to be a candidate for the nomination for the Presidency, while Gorman wants to be returned to the Federal Senate in 1894. Each of these statesmen, so far as words go, is an advocate of a pure ballot, and never weary of reproaching Republicans upon what they claim to be the corrupt practices of their party. The ballot reform movement is in full swing at the East, but as strange as it may appear, the New York Governor and the Maryland Senator obstruct its progress wherever they can. The Legislatures of the two States are in session, and each has a ballot reform bill under consideration. The Maryland bill is modeled after the Massachusetts law, and, as introduced, was as nearly perfect as experience has shown a law could be made. If it had been allowed to become a law in the shape in which it came from the hands of its author, it would have dethroned the Baltimore heelers and ward bosses. But this would have crippled Gorman's power, so he left his seat in the Senate and went to Annapolis, and remained there until the bill had been stripped of its force by amendments. So, if it should be passed in its present shape, it would be of very little use as a means of preventing fraud. The Saxton bill has been before the New York Legislature for two sessions. It is a thoroughly good bill, and under its provisions the decent voters of New York and Brooklyn would have a chance to win once in awhile. At least, they would have the satisfaction of knowing, after the election was over, that they had not been defeated by fraudulent votes. The bill was passed last winter, but the Governor vetoed it. It is before the Legislature now, and in still better shape, and is certain to pass, and if the Governor should veto it, the step would kill him as dead as Moses. In effect, the Governor is between the devil and deep water. If he should approve the bill, Tammany Hall would throw him overboard, and if he should veto it, decent people would repudiate him. In this quandry he has sent a message to the Legislature, asking that body to pass a joint resolution requesting the Court of Appeals to pass an informal opinion on the constitutionality of the measure. Still, Hill and Gorman are great statesmen, and friends of a pure ballot.

THE MASCOT COIN.

I have a coin that is a mascot!

You might guess for many hours,
And never guess how it was got—

How it acquired its magic powers.

I have a sweetheart—she's a queen;

I use the term advisedly.

If you my queen had ever seen,

You'd agree with me decidedly.

One day an ancient coin I had,

I let my sweetheart view it.

Said she: "You know the latest fad?

I'll tell you how to do it."

"You put the money—now don't grin—

Inside my collar here before.

I'll make it follow down within,

Until it falls upon the floor."

"A kind of nickel-in-the-slot machine," she said.

Then, smiling at her random jest,

She spoke again, and turned a little red,

"If you will risk the coin, I will risk

the rest."

With me, to mention was to do;

The coin was started there and then;

The moments that elapsed were few,

Before I had the coin again.

I will tell you what I saw—

No! I'll show; I will not tell.

Perhaps I oughtn't; but then—pshaw!

You are a friend I know so well.

The coin was large—you please will note,

And in placing where intended,

Required some loosening at the throat,

And I saw what's here appended—

So much has been said of Miss Fowler or Sister Gertrude and her mission to the lepers of Molokai, that an inquiry into the motives actuating her in her choice of a life work may not prove amiss. Why did this young and accomplished woman enter upon such a course? The desire to assist a helpless class of humanity is the reply. But why should she attempt to help those who are admittedly beyond human aid? Why did she find it necessary to traverse two oceans in order to find an opportunity for the exercise of womanly compassion? Is there no poor and suffering humanity in her own land? Have those of her own blood and race no need of her ministrations? What has become of the wretched of London? Has Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool no little ones to whom she could convey help and comfort? Has a panacea been found for the ills and sorrows of the English poor? The condition of the laboring and destitute poor has been and is an ample field for the exercise of the talent and tender pity of all of England's Miss Fowlers, and there should be a strong protest raised against the loss of such women to the English people. What an influence for good do such women exert, and why should a hopeless leper be preferred to the little children of the poor of her own land as objects for whom that influence should be extended? Is it because their condition is not sufficiently revolting and hopeless, or because Miss Fowler has seen in dreams her name blazoned high on fame's golden temple as the martyr of the nineteenth century? Surely, Sister Gertrude might have found suffering and disease enough in her own country upon which to exercise her skill, and soothe by her compassion. "The pity of it! Horatio, the pity of it." There is danger too of this species of self-sacrifice becoming epidemic, and what a spectacle society would present in that event. All England's loveliest and best bitten with this madness. Homes desolated, drawing-rooms depopulated, five o'clock tea made an impossibility by the dearth of fair women. And where, oh, where, would be the mothers of the future race? Echo answers, where?

[FOR THEMIS.]

Work—Dream Not.

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground?"

Oh, swiftly passing seasons of life. There was a time when men seemed to be sincere, when thought was nourished on friendship, kindness, love; when dawn still kept its brilliance, and the night its peace. I can, the soul said to itself, and I will. I will do all that is right and all that is natural. But soon resistance, difficulty unforeseen coming, we know not whence, arrest us, undeceive us, and the yoke lies heavy on our neck. Thence forward, we become merely sharers in the common woe. Hemmed in on all sides, we feel our faculties, only to realize their impotence. We have time and strength to do what we must, never what we will. Men go on repeating the words work, genius, success. Fools! Will all their resounding projects, though they enable us to cheat ourselves, enable us to cheat the icy fate which rule us and our globe? Wandering forsaken through the vast silence of the heavens. It is only too true, we have only time to do what we must, never what we will, and it is only by the most untiring industry that we even accomplish what must be done. How these lovely spring days invite one to repose. The sky is blue, the air is soft and warm, the lawn looks inviting, and you wish you could forget there was ever such a thing as work and care, lie down on the grass and dream the afternoon away. But it will never do, there is work that must be done and you have no time to spend in doing what you would. Nature's working season has begun, and she is as busy as can be. Although the birds are singing and flitting about so merrily, while buds on tree and vine are daily growing larger, soon to burst into leaf and flower, and wild flowers are dotting the plains with bright colors of every hue, they are not idle, but industriously performing the work nature has assigned them. And men and women must work, and fortunate indeed are they who can choose their work, for the great majority have only time and strength to do what must be done. Men talk of genius, but with many genius is but another name for ceaseless, untiring work, and even then so much that we think must be done to-day has to be left until another time. We have overrated our strength, or something foreseen has happened which has spoiled all our plans. On the morrow we think we will do what we will, dream the whole day through if we please. But when the morrow comes that phantom work again stares us in the face, saying this and that must be done. And though it seems so pleasant out in the bright sunshine, the green fields look so inviting, as if saying come out and walk, and the air is resonant with the melody of birds and the hum of bees. So we take up the burden again, the book you would like so much to read lies unopened on the shelf, the walk or the ride you had promised yourself must wait upon what must be done. We may say "I can and I will," but how futile are our efforts when we strive to do what we will, for we find out at last that we have only time and strength given us to do what we must. For it is part of the great creator's plan that we should be compelled to work, and the decree, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," has proven a blessing instead of a curse, and it is well perhaps that our work is marked out for us. If left to do as we choose, many would choose to do nothing at all. For the wicked wight stands ever ready at the gates of the "Castle of Indolence" endeavoring by his sweetest songs to beguile us into entering within the charmed portals when we are lost, for idleness is but another name for crime. Though we may never have time and strength to do more than what must be done, that is all that will be required at our hands.

E. P. D.
Sacramento, March 16, 1890.

FLASHES.

There is one plant that blooms at night—the electric plant.

Fellows may dote on their girls, but matrimony is a great anti dote.

In order to get up in the world we must get down to work.

Most of our Chinese population observe Lent—they take their meals in a basement.

The small politician who sells his friend for a few dollars is on the lowest level of humanity.

Honesty, like beauty, is only skin deep; the more honest one appears, the more likely he is to skin you.

It is better to be alone than in bad company. Sometimes we find people who are in bad company when they are alone.

Some men are only honest when Death calls and they obey the cue, There is a strict accounting then, And they give the devil his due.

PIONEER JURISPRUDENCE.

Official Neglect in 1850 Defeats a Land Title in 1890.—A Case Reminiscent of Noted Men.

A civil law case bearing the modest title of Mayo against Kane, and involving the title to a portion of a lot between O and P, Front and Second streets, in this city, was tried before Judge Van Fleet Wednesday. It resulted in the plaintiff losing because of a defect in his title growing out of the loose practices that prevailed in this country 40 years ago. The title came, of course, from the United States government to John A. Sutter; thence passed to John A. Sutter, Jr. P. B. Cornwall then purchased this, with other property, for the then prominent banking house of Priest, Lee & Co., composed of Cornwall, Albert Priest and Barton Lee. On April 10, 1850, the members of that firm conveyed the property to William Paty. The next instruments introduced were an order of sale, an order of confirmation of sale, and a deed from the administrators of the estate of Paty to Washington Meeks in 1858. Thence the title passed through B. C. Whiting, Cornelius Cole, from Cole by Julius Wetzlar, his attorney in fact, to A. C. Freeman, and subsequently to Mayo, the plaintiff. The defendant introduced in evidence a certified copy of a petition for letters of administration on the estate of Wm. Paty applied for by his brother, John Paty, February 23, 1850, and filed before John W. Geary, Alcalde and Judge of Probate in and for the district of San Francisco, and sworn to before H. L. Dodge, Probate Clerk. This petition recited that Wm. Paty died at San Francisco, February 14, 1850, and, with the other papers in the matter of his estate, showed that he was in fact dead at the time the Sacramento banking house executed the deed to him on April 10, 1850. Of course, a deed can not be delivered to a dead man, and that break in the otherwise perfect chain of title to the plaintiff, operated to lose him the case. It appeared that proceedings were instituted in February, 1850, to administer on Paty's estate; that they were not closed until 1858; that two months after his death the deed to this property was made by the banking firm to him, and that in the final winding up of the affairs of his estate, the property was inventoried among his assets, and sold with his other belongings.

Aside from the novel legal features the case presents, it is a matter of curious study to consider the persons whose names are connected with it.

John White Geary was one of the most remarkable men of his day. He was born near Mount Pleasant, Pa., December 30, 1819, and died at Harrisburg, in that State, February 8, 1873. He was sent to Jefferson College, but the death of his father required him to shift for himself at an early age. While clerking in a mercantile house he studied law, was admitted to the bar, but never practiced. Afterward he was employed as a civil engineer on railroad work. On the declaration of the Mexican war in 1846 he was commissioned lieutenant colonel of a regiment of infantry volunteers, and was severely wounded at Chapultepec, but did not relinquish his command. For this service he was promoted to colonel. When peace was declared he marched his regiment from the City of Mexico to Pittsburg, 3000 miles, and they were enthusiastically welcomed on their arrival. On January 22, 1849, President Polk appointed Geary the first postmaster of San Francisco, with power to put into operation the postal service throughout the territory. After a trying trip by sea and across the isthmus, he arrived with his family on the coast on April 1st, and established his postoffice in a room about 8x10 at the corner of Montgomery and Washington streets. His first mail for distribution consisted of some 5000 letters. Having no boxes, he drew lines on the floor, forming squares, which were alphabetized, in which the letters were arranged. The mail was delivered through a hole in the window, made by the removal of a pane of glass. Resigning the office, he entered the auction and commission business with Wm. Van Voorhies, afterward Secretary of State, and O. P. Sutton. Soon after, an election was had for first Alcalde, and on August 2, 1849, he was chosen to that office by 1516 votes—being the whole number cast. On August 6th Governor Riley appointed Geary Judge of the Court of First Instance for San Francisco district. The office of Alcalde combined the authority of Sheriff and Probate Judge with that of Mayor, and the Court of First Instance had civil and criminal judicial jurisdiction. It was while occupying these offices, and before the machinery of the new State government came into operation, that Geary had presented to him the petition for letters of administration in the estate of Paty, that cut so prominent a figure in the determination of the lawsuit we have referred to. On May 1, 1850, Geary was elected the first Mayor of San Francisco, the charter of the city having been adopted at the same election. In February, 1852, he returned to Pennsylvania. In 1856 he was appointed by the President territorial Governor of Kansas, and held that office one year, during very trying times. At the outbreak of the Civil war he raised a regiment; on April 25, 1862, was commissioned Brigadier-General, and in 1865 a Major-General by brevet. His military career in that war is spoken of in terms of high compliment in the published works of Generals Grant and Sherman, who were in positions to form correct judgments. In 1866 Geary was elected Governor of Pennsylvania and held the office until two weeks before his death. In recognition of his services to the State and nation, the legislature of Pennsylvania erected a monument over his grave at Harrisburg. His eldest son was killed at the battle of Lookout mountain, October 28, 1863, at the early age of 18, and while holding the position of lieutenant.

P. B. Cornwall arrived in Sacramento in August, 1848, and was a member of the first city council and of the first legislature. He was one of the first to establish business here, but has for many years been a prominent citizen of San Francisco.

Barton Lee was a leading merchant and banker, and the father of Bruce B. Lee. He was a native of New York and died here December 1, 1856, at the age of 46. His death was occasioned by injuries received from falling through the planking of a sidewalk; whereby he broke one of his legs.

B. C. Whiting was a State Senator in 1854 and 1855, and a lawyer of prominence. He died at Los Angeles, June 7, 1871.

Cornelius Cole was born at Lodi, Seneca county, New York, September 17, 1822, studied law in the office of William H. Seward; commenced to practice in his native county in 1847; admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court in 1848; came to California in 1849, reaching Sacramento on July 24th; mined for a time; practiced law at San Francisco; removed to Sacramento in 1852; became editor of the Sacramento Daily Times in August, 1856; elected District Attorney of this county in 1859; removed to Santa Cruz in 1862; elected to Congress September 2, 1863; elected United States Senator December 16, 1865. He is still in the law practice.

Julius Wetzlar died here April 30, 1878. He was born in Hanover in March, 1812, and educated for mercantile pursuits. Early in life he entered business as a maker and importer of laces in Leipsic, Germany. In 1836 he established branches in England and New York, and ten years later located in New York City permanently. On the breaking out of the gold fever he sold out his business and joined a company that purchased a ship and sailed for California. D. O. Mills was one of the party. The ship arrived at San Francisco in 1849. Wetzlar located in Sacramento and remained here until his death. He first engaged in business as a member of the firm of Samuel Brannan & Co., at the fort and in the city. In 1856 he engaged in the insurance and real estate business, and in 1869 originated the Capital Savings Bank, of which he was president until his death. In connection with Brannan, Samuel C. Bruce and James S. Graham, on June 20, 1850, he purchased the title of John A. Sutter Jr., to much of the site of this city. This purchase created considerable litigation, but it finally resulted in favor of the title.

A. C. Freeman is too well known here as a lawyer and text book writer to need particular reference.

John Paty was one of the old time captains of an ocean steamship.

In the trial of the case before Judge Van Fleet two of the lawyers—W. A. Anderson and A. P. Catlin—were of the persons who arrived in Sacramento in 1849.

FAITH.

The treetop, high above the barren field,
Rising beyond the night's gray fold of mist,
Rests stirless where the upper air is sealed
Perfect silence, by the faint moon kissed.

But the low branches, drooping to the ground,
Sway to and fro, as sways funeral plume,
While from their restless depths low whispers sound—

"We fear, we fear the darkness and the gloom;

Dim forms beneath us pass and reappear,
And mournful tongues are menacing us here."

Then from the topmost bough falls calm reply—

"Hush, hush! I see the coming of the morn;
Swiftly the silent night is passing by,
And in her bosom rosy dawn is borne.

"Tis but your own dim shadows that ye see,
"Tis but your own low moans that trouble ye."

So life stands, with a twilight world around,
Faith turned serenely to the steadfast sky;
Still answering the heart that sweeps the ground,

Sobbing in fear, and tossing restlessly—
"Hush, hush! the dawn breaks over the Eastern sea,

"Tis but thine own dim shadow troubling thee."

—E. R. SILL.

Gemlets From the Ocean,
OR WORDS TO THAT EFFECT.

The voyage was awfully rough,
The waves ran mountains high,
All hands felt terrible tough;
Some of them wanted to die.
Towards the harbor they drove,
No pilot came into view,
Passengers came up and hove,
And the ship hove to.

Each was the other's best,
They stroll'd along the sand,
When they stopped to rest,
Each held the other's hand.
"Why is ocean angry, dear?"
Maiden asked in accents soft,
Lover said—"Because I fear,
It is crossed so oft."

Light-house on jutting land,
Reveals its tall, symmetric form,
Its strength sufficient to withstand,
Fury of an ocean storm.
It gives the mariner instruction,
Neglect not or plans disjoint,
Near at hand awaits destruction,
The mariner sees the point.

—John Audley.

Game Birds.

Hon. Jos. Routier, President of the State Fish Commission, has distributed the Chinese quail in over fifty different localities. He has complimented David Johnston with twenty-six of the little game birds, to be placed on his farm in El Dorado county. These birds are now on exhibition at Christianson Bros., on J street, between 7th and 8th, in this city. Mr. Routier is now negotiating for the importation of some Eastern pheasants, to augment the sportsman's delight in this State.

Brains—Enterprise—Beer.

There is no diadem that sits so gracefully on an individual or a community as enterprise. When we witness the results of enterprise, it is strange that we do not find more of the genuine article displayed in our cities, counties and State. For months past there has been disclosed in our midst a particular enterprise which by its quiet and unostentatious manner of procedure, has attracted little attention, but which in fact comes under the head of a great enterprise. When we consider the quantities of lager beer that is drunk in this State which is imported from the Eastern cities, it is a wonder that the project had not long ago been formulated and consummated. A company was at length organized, comprising some of our go-ahead citizens, and now the work of constructing one of the finest breweries in the United States has almost been completed. The Buffalo Brewing Company have the latest and finest machinery in America. In fact all the works are as complete as science and skill and architecture can make. The manager is Herman H. Grau, an experienced brewer. The general brewer is B. Nieren-dorff, who attends to all the details of this extensive manufactory. The board of directors of the company are Newton Booth, Fred Cox, W. E. Gerber, Herman H. Grau, Adolph Heilbron, Louis Nicolaus and Frank Ruhstaller. A. Heilbron, President. The malt house is said to be the most complete and perfect in America. Like the main structure it is four stories high, and has the latest improvements in the brewers' art. The main structure is of iron, stone and brick, and so constructed as to defy the element of fire. To enumerate the various kinds and uses of the machinery would be the work of days, and embrace a volume to describe it. The arrangements are so perfect that a simple touch of a key or knob sets all at work, or stops the whole system of machinery. By this machinery heat and cold are produced at pleasure, and at the same time. The two splendid engines for manufacturing and for general use besides, are models of the advancement in mechanical skill. By each one of these from 30 to 45 tons of ice can be produced daily, besides freezing the several cooling rooms. Forty immense tanks are now filled with that glorious liquid extract of hops and malt in its pure and unadulterated state. That which has always heretofore been a problem—"Why can we not make as good lager as that of Europe?" has been solved, and we have in this brewery as pure and palatable an article of beer as can be produced in the Fatherland. The water is pumped from a well 150 feet deep, and is remarkable for its purity. The city water is also utilized. A large bottling house adjoins the ice house, both of which are nearly finished. Unless we are greatly mistaken, the beer from the Buffalo Brewery will far outstrip any other on this coast. While that now on hand has not reached the full degree of excellence, it is the most palatable article we have ever drunk. That which is made from Bavarian hops surpasses anything we have ever seen or used. When the works are fully completed we will take a pride in giving an accurate and detailed description.

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables at the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188.

This Will Interest You.

In a few days J. F. Cooper will receive, direct from the publishers, a choice lot of standard and popular music which will be sold at ten cents per copy. Ten thousand free catalogues of the same. Call or send for one. Cooper's Music Store.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

Comparative Heights of Mountains.

In the following list, compiled from many sources, and more or less approximate, as a comparison of authors would show, is given the heights of the loftiest summits of the world:

Everest, in the Himalayas	29,000
Aconcagua, in the Andes	23,000
Tupungata, in the Andes	22,450
Chimborazo, in the Andes	21,424
Hindu Kush, Asia	20,593
Mount St. Elias, Alaska	19,500
Kilimanjaro, Africa	17,800
Popocateptl, Mexico	17,853
Orizamba, Mexico	17,176
Mount Crook, Alaska	16,000
Mount Brown, British Columbia	16,000
Mount Crillon, Alaska	15,900
Mount Marchison, British Columbia	15,789
Montt Blanc, Savoy	15,781
Mount Hooker, British Columbia	15,700
Mount Fairweather, Alaska	15,500
Mount Rosa, Switzerland	15,223
Mount Whitney, California	14,522
Mount Harvard, Colorado	14,452
Mount Tacoma, Washington	14,440
Mount Shasta, California	14,440
Mount Cook, New Zealand	12,460

The mountain peaks of Asia are the highest in the world; following these are the summits of the Andes. The highest peaks of the United States, although far from being the leaders in the list, belong to the first rank of nature's most stupendous works.—New York Tribune.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL McKEE, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Julia McKee, administratrix of the estate of Samuel McKee, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the law office of A. J. and Elwood Bruner, at the Court-house, Seventh and J streets, Sacramento, Cal.

Dated March 28th, 1890.
A. J. & ELWOOD BRUNER,
Attorneys for Estate.

mch29—4t

Fine Table
Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

WM. H. BRADLEY,
(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,
Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

W. L. HELKE,
(Successor to J. C. Sepulveda.)

DRUGGIST and CHEMIST
N. E. cor. Second and K Sts., Sacramento.

Prescriptions a Specialty. A full line of Standard Preparations.

Wonderful Finger Rings.

Medicated rings, having the supposed power of alleviating or curing disease, can be traced into the misty past back as far as the time of Marcus Aurelius. Troian, a physician of the fourth century, possessed a signet ring upon which was engraved a representation of Hercules strangling the Nemean lion, and which was reputed to be a certain cure for colic. The English King, Edward the Confessor, was presented with a ring of remarkable powers. It was a never failing cure for the epilepsy in any of its stages. After the death of Edward it was kept in Westminster Abbey for several centuries. In the cathedral at Perugia is still shown a ring said to have been the wedding circlet of Mary, the mother of Jesus. The remarkable cures attributed to this wonderful little talisman were the subject of a book printed in the latter part of the seventeenth century.

Other marvelous powers besides the curing of diseases have been attributed to rings. Omet, King of Lombardy, was the happy owner of one which would always—no matter where he wandered—direct him to the right path. Drometius' has always been the envy of all lovers of fairy lore; and where is the boy, girl or adult who has not sighed for the use of Aladdin's ring for a few moments?

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

ADMINISTRATRIX OF THE ESTATE OF SAID DECEASED.
Dated March 13th, 1890. mehl5-5t

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.

703 J Street, Sacramento.

R. DAVIS.

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS, Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents. Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDougall,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

Nov. 17, 1889.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6.50 A	Calistoga and Napa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7.25 P
11.00 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3.40 A
7.05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6.45 P
7.25 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6.45 P
9.00 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9.55 A
8.00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6.25 P
12.01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6.00 A
3.00 P	Ogden and East	10.30 A
3.00 P	Oroville	10.30 A
10.40 A	Red Bluff via Marysville	4.00 P
6.15 A	Redding via Willows	7.25 P
6.50 A	San Francisco via Benicia	5.35 P
3.05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 A
4.00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10.40 P
*10.00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	26.00 A
11.25 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2.25 P
6.50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 P
11.25 A	San Jose	2.25 P
7.05 P	Santa Barbara	9.55 A
6.50 A	Santa Rosa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Santa Rosa	7.25 P
9.00 A	Stockton and Galt	6.45 P
7.05 P	Stockton and Galt	9.55 A
8.00 P	Truckee and Reno	6.25 P
12.01 A	Truckee and Reno	6.00 A
12.05 P	Colfax	10.20 A
6.50 A	Vallejo	11.40 A
3.05 P	Vallejo	18.35 P
*12.15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	*10.25 A
*7.15 A	Folsom and Placerville	*2.40 P
*5.20 P	Folsom	*6.50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.

T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

NOTICE.

HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KILGORE & CO., their interests in the grocery business, and reopened their old stand at the north-west corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.

T. H. COOK & CO.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Pine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET.

Next door to Postoffice, SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg. BOHEMIA PILSENER, BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

824 J ST.
Fine Candies

Family Orders for Ice Cream a Specialty.

THE ONLY MAKER OF COLT'S FOOT ROCK COUGH CANDY.

Trees! Trees! Twelve Million Machines

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.

J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET.

SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,

DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GASFITTING, AND ROOFING.
Jobbing a Specialty.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

P. H. RUSSELL

Importer and Dealer in

Staple and Fancy Groceries

719 J STREET.

Bet. Seventh and Eighth, SACRAMENTO.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

HOME PRODUCTION.

—WE OFFER NOW OUR—

Newly Sugar-cured

HAMS, BACON

—AND—

SHOULDERS

—AS—

Superior to Any Other in the Market

—OUR LARD—

Is pure and fresh, and

—OUR SAUSAGES—

Cannot be excelled. All Hog Products are from grain-fed hogs only.

MOHR & YOERK.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

Public Administrator's Report

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman.....	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estate of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin.....	100 00	123 87	100 53
Estate of Jas. Russell.....	182 60	82 32	182 60
Estate of A. Ely.....	655 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, County of Sacramento, } ss.

George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the estates hereinbefore named. That he is not, and was not at any time, interested in the expenditures of any kind made on account of any estate he administers, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890. WM. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public.

Certificate of Partnership.

WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, DO HEREBY CERTIFY that we are partners, transacting business in the State of California, under the firm-name and style of BRAND, LAWTON, BARNETT & CO.; that the names in full of all the members of said partnership are as heretofore signed, and that all the members of said partnership reside in the city of Sacramento, county of Sacramento, and State of California. Witness our signatures this 20th day of February, A. D. 1890.

GEORGE ERNEST BRAND,
WILLIAM "D" LAWTON,
ROBERT AUGUSTUS BARNETT.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, County of Sacramento, } ss.

On this 20th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Chauncey H. Dunn, a Notary Public in and for said county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared George Ernest Brand, William D. Lawton, and Robert Augustus Barnett, known to me to be the persons described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the within instrument, and they acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the said county of Sacramento, the day and year in this certificate first above written.

[SEAL.] CHAUNCEY H. DUNN, Notary Public.
Endorsed: Filed February 20, 1890.
mch 1, 5t By W. B. HAMILTON, County Clerk.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.

By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.

TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.

mch 1-9t.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to John A. Steen, greeting:

You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 3d day of December, 1889, in which action Anna M. Steen is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and plaintiff, upon the alleged ground of habitual intemperance, and for the care, custody and control of the minor child, Gertrude D. Steen, and for general relief and for costs of suit; all of which more fully appears in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made.

And you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento; and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

In testimony whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 4th day of December, A. D. 1889.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.

By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.

MATT. F. JOHNSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.

feb 8-w9.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT H. WACHHORST

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

- a a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
 b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
 c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
 d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
 e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
 f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
 g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

H. WACHHORST

Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK.

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray

APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES, of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813 Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS

Agents for Rockford Watch Co.

NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

A. G. JOHNSON.

CLAUS ANDERSON

ANDERSON & JOHNSON,

The Leading Merchant Tailors,

SUITS MADE TO ORDER AT REASONABLE RATES.

No. 1014 Seventh Street, Sacramento.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

GO TO

Nolan & Son's

FOR

FINE SHOES,

BRANCH OF SAN FRANCISCO.

603 J Street, Sacramento

The Only Retail House in Sacramento that manufactures their own goods.

Try Our Famous $3 Shoes.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from $25
 Stylish Pants made to order 6
 Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from 25
 Stylish English Walking suits made to order from 30
 Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from 40
 And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondrock building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

DR. H. H. PIERSON.

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, APRIL 5, 1890.

No. 7.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

One of the greatest social problems of the age is that of the labor question. Hardly a month passes that we do not read of organizations of laboring men demanding that they be treated fairly by their employers. Statesmen and philosophers have pondered long upon the various questions presented for their solution by the working men of the world. To the student of history what a difference appears between the nineteenth century and all other periods of the world's history. The masses are now able to bring their grievances to the ears of their rulers and are awarded a respectful hearing without the accusation of either committing treason or attempting to overturn the government. What a spectacular effect is produced by the autocratic Emperor of Germany calling an International Labor Congress to assemble in the proud Capital of the Kaisers. There has been no incident of such importance since the Czar of all the Russians manumitted the serfs. The Emperor has called this convention when his power is at its maximum. At the head of the most powerful military organization the world has ever seen—beloved by his people and the idol of his army, he could crush for the time being all opposition. He has done this, too, against the advice, we might almost say the command of the old Iron Chancellor, he who has created out of chaos United Germany, he who stands preëminently the greatest living European statesman—the Richelieu of the nineteenth century. Why has the Emperor done this? Because he can hear even within his castle walls the constantly increasing growlings of discontent of the substratum of his people. He hears them cry: "We must have something more than mere bread; something more than a common education; something more than the privilege of working for our masters." These people say to him, we are human beings like yourself; we have the same aspirations; we demand an equal chance in the struggle for the amenities, the luxuries of this life, and this proud, self-willed, haughty young Emperor, a Hohenzollern, the synonym of stern inflexible rule, has sent invitations to all the nations of Europe, including his hereditary enemies, France and Russia, to attend this congress.

The question that is agitating the statesmen of the world is, has the Emperor been wise in listening to the clamors of his people? Bismarck says no, and in consequence has resigned the helm of State. The crowned heads of Europe tremblingly send delegates because they dare not refuse. Let us examine the condition of affairs. Europe is a vast camp. Germany with a population of 47,000,000, is able to throw 3,000,000 of trained soldiers completely equipped upon the frontier in forty days; Russia, with 100,000,000 of people, claims to be able in the same length of time to place 4,000,000 of armed men upon her frontier; France and Italy each 3,000,000; Turkey, Montenegro, Servia, Bulgaria, Belgium, Denmark, The Netherlands each have as great an army in proportion to their population as Germany and Russia. Contemplate, then, Europe with a population of 320,000,000 people prepared to launch upon the field of battle at least 20,000,000 of armed men fully equipped with all the costly munitions of war. Then in addition, the tens of thousands of men who are constantly employed in making and maintaining the necessary military stores, the line of fortifications that have been built along the frontier of each country, the military roads constructed over the mountains and across the valleys, the supplies of food and clothing that have been and must be furnished to all those under arms. Is this not sufficient of itself to cause the discontent in Europe? But we have seen but a portion of the picture.

The people are compelled to maintain in royal splendor, emperors, kings, queens, princes, nobles of all degrees, with all the vast army of retainers and parasites attendant upon their courts and governments. When we reflect that all this must be done upon a continent peopled with more than eighty persons to the square mile, and that, too, when the young, the vigorous, the flower of each country must serve from three to seven years in the army, we find still greater reason for discontent. But this is not all. The major portion of each country is owned by the nobility and comparatively few capitalists. The lands are rented to tenants, and it is from these tenants and from the middle and lower classes that the money must be wrung to maintain this civic and military pageant. These burthens are being borne—not by savages, not by semi-civilized peoples, but by well-educated races. The Germans are admittedly the best educated nation in the world. Pride of race, enmity of foreign countries has formerly sustained them; but there is a limit to human endurance, and we believe that that limit has now been reached.

In former times the agitations of the lower and middle classes were necessarily local. The only means of gaining correct information the people possessed was by private correspondence and personal intercourse. A complete censorship of the press was exercised by the various governments. Nothing could be published inimical to the ruling classes. Now each man reads daily at his fireside the happenings of the world the day before. We read of the rising of the Jaquarie in France in 1358, who driven to despair by the rapacity of their nobles and the burthens imposed upon them by the war with England, arose in their might 10,000 strong, destroyed 200 castles and mansions and spread disaster and terror far and wide. We read of the great Revolution of France in 1789, when Mirabeau sent his famous message to Louis XIV:

We are here by the power of the people, and we will not be driven hence save by the power of the bayonet.

There is no question but what there would have been similar uprisings in Europe within the past fifty years had it not been for the fact that just when the people were ripe for revolt a war would spring up which for the time being would divert the attention of the masses from their own sufferings. There is a wide spread belief that Napoleon III inaugurated the war with Germany for the sole object of strengthening his hold upon the people of France, and not from either a financial or real casus belli against that country. The Czar is constantly engaging the attention of his people by conquering new countries in Central and Southern Asia, and calling attention to the threatening attitude of Turkey and England, and holding up to the eyes of his people the vision of a Pan-slavic Empire which shall in the end be the arbiter of the destinies of the world.

The young German Emperor recognizes this condition of affairs. He sees that the United States under a Republican form of government has advanced in material prosperity more rapidly than any nation in modern or ancient times. That Brazil, by a peaceful revolution in one day, has changed from an Empire to a Republic; that Austria with her heterogeneous population of Slavs, Magyars and Germans is tottering to its fall; that the advanced thinkers of Spain, Italy, in fact all of Europe, are demanding that the people shall have a greater share in the control of their governments; in short, that the tendency of the age is towards instituting Republican forms of government. Looking at the picture more closely, he views the Czar about to destroy the liberty of the Finlanders and thus crown his tyrannous rule by breaking the solemn pledge of their liberties, which even Alexander I respected; that he is filling Siberian mines and dungeons with political exiles. To add to the Emperor's discomfiture the War Minister of Denmark declares that no socialist workmen shall be employed in the State workshops because they are subject to foreign influence. In Milan thousands of the unemployed laboring men are parading the streets holding aloft the red flag of anarchy. He recognizes that there is a bond of sympathy between the laboring men of all countries; that the doctrine of socialism is rampant all over Europe; that the people of Germany have been educated to such a standard that it is impossible to further blind them to their own interests. After calmly surveying the situation he has come to the conclusion to try to do something towards retaining his hold upon the affections of the lower classes, that it is better to lead than to be led.

We believe that the young Emperor is right from a moral standpoint. That much good will result to his people, in fact the people of the whole world, from the deliberations of this convention; that he will gain much knowledge in regard to the treatment of the economic questions presented for his solution. We do not believe for an instant that he has been impelled to call together this congress from a desire to pique the old. That he will gain much knowledge in regard to the treatment of the economic problems presented for his solution, is beyond question. We do not believe for an instant that he has been impelled to call this congress from a desire to pique the old Chancellor. He believes himself to be the German Charlemagne. His ambitions and methods are much akin to those of his grandfather. He is determined at all hazards to retain Alsace and Loraine. Nor do we believe that he has agreed to restore to the Duke of Cumberland a portion of the Hanoverian estates, or made overtures to the Vatican, merely because Bismarck is opposed to this policy, but rather that young as he is he sees with clearer vision than the statesmen of the old school the handwriting on the wall; that the status and condition of the working classes must be relieved. That Germany has within her borders many explosive elements, anarchists, socialists, and last, but not least, the clerical party, which is completely under the dictation of Rome; that within a few months there must be either a disarmament of Europe or the most fearful war of ancient or modern times. For either event he is preparing. If war ensues he is still at the head of a United Germany; if peace, that he may dictate its terms. We believe that in calling this convention he has taken a step which will eventually deprive him of many of his prerogatives, but that at the same time it is a step which will eventually add the laurel wreath to his crown.

Last week the members of the annual convention of the American Society for the Education of Colored Youths called at the White House, and in the course of a short address which he delivered, the President said: "I have a firm belief that the rock of our safety, as a nation, lies in proper education." This is a general statement of the educational question, and is valuable as showing how universal the belief is that the permanence of our institutions depends upon the training of the masses. The President went as far probably as the occasion warranted, but his observation was only a general and inconclusive definition of a profoundly important question. There is urgent need of an explanation of what constitutes proper education. We all concede that moral discipline and intellectual instruction are indispensable to the make-up of a good citizen. It is the general belief, moreover, that, when the mind has been given a certain degree of expansion and been trained in the exercise of certain reasoning processes, and been made acquainted with certain principles as to moral conduct, a person's education has been completed. This is the prevailing belief, but it is a most erroneous conception as to what constitutes a proper education. You might familiarize a person with the noblest system of ethics, and broaden his intellect to the highest standard, and still, without further equipment, he would be unable to earn his living. Experience has shown, and is showing, that mere intellectual instruction is not a certain safeguard against crime, nor is the best understanding of what constitutes moral duty a defense against crime. There must be something more than these to make up a proper education. No education can be said to be proper, much less complete, unless a person is equipped to earn his own support. Taking people as they come, the highest standard of morality is found among the classes who follow bread-earning callings.

We have a right to be proud of our common schools, but it is as certain as anything that can be that we are educating the heads of our youths at the expense of their hands. Let anyone look around him and see how many of our boys from sixteen to twenty would be self-supporting if they were thrown upon their own resources. The curse of any country is a vast army of healthy, non-producers, capable of supporting themselves if they were trained to do so. That we are creating and augmenting an army of this sort is plain to every observant person. Two boys out of every five in California are as incapable of earning a living as if they were destitute of hands. And what is true of California is largely true of the rest of the country. When a boy has completed the usual course of instruction in our public schools he is nearly a man, but he is no more fit for playing a man's part, in the sense of supporting himself, than if he were still in knickerbockers. The peril of this country is its swarms of idle youths of both sexes.

All the talk about the improvement of our streets is beginning to take upon itself formidable proportions, which may be attributed in a great measure to the persistence and energy of Mr. D. A. Lindley. In the course of his remarks before the Street Improvement Company recently, he took occasion to animadvert in just and fitting terms upon the manner in which some of our citizens, who never miss an opportunity to throw a wet blanket over any enterprise which may be projected for the public good. This opposition to Sacramento's prosperity comes in exceeding bad taste from those who should be amongst the foremost to draw their checks in aid of all such public spirited undertakings.

No city on the coast offers to capital such inducement for investments as does Sacramento. A glimpse at a map of the State and a slight knowledge of geography will convince the most skeptical of the truthfulness of this assertion. And the question naturally presents itself to the inquiring mind: Why is it that Sacramento does not avail herself of the opportunities for becoming a great inland city? Chief among the many reasons for this seeming apathy is the cold neglect which every mooted enterprise is met with on the part of her business men; no unity of action; no steadfastness of purpose on their part to bring about a different order of things than existed in the gold-seeking days of California. The stranger, in looking at the city's business blocks, mirrors in his mind the miner's cabin, the trading post, the dance and gambling halls of the early times. When informed of the fact that Sacramento is the second city of commercial importance in California, he concludes that there are but two cities in the State and wonders what the first is like. A walk through our residence streets is more convincing proof that our citizens need a vigorous shaking to wake them up from their sleep. In the winter season, mud and water everywhere; our street crossings in such a condition that we make the passage of them in a manner reminding us of a circus tight rope performance.

This condition of affairs is directly traceable to the management, or rather mismanagement, of our municipal affairs. Men selected for the office of Trustee have entered upon their duties with the avowed and evident intention of acting for the best interests of the city, but their intentions have been diverted by persistent importunings for political favors, until their duty to the people is entirely ignored, and the counsel of the petty politician prevails in all their official acts. Our citizens should lend all their aid and encouragement to the work proposed to be done by the Street Improvement Company in the matter of beautifying and otherwise improving our streets. The company is in dead earnest, and in a short time will make such a showing of their work that the entire community will be loud in their praises over the obstacles surmounted and the good work accomplished by the company.

GLEANED FROM THE PAST.

Killing of "White Horse" by Pickett at Sutter's Fort in 1848—A Novel Trial—Career of the Philosopher—Death of an Early Pioneer—First Published Notice of Sacramento.

We had occasion recently to look over the files of the first newspapers published in California, and now in the State Library, and came across an account of the killing of "White Horse," by C. E. Pickett, at Sutter's Fort, in 1848, reference to which was made in Part VI of "Some Unwritten History," published in THEMIS, November 23, 1889. Our account was correct, but we knew not then the name of the party slain, and the contemporaneous publication contains some details which we deem worthy of republication. The following extract is from the San Francisco Star and Californian, of December 16, 1848.

MURDER AT SUTTER'S FORT.

SUTTER'S FORT, December 8, 1848.

We have been in a state of considerable excitement for the last two days, which is the result of the death of a man, in consequence of a gunshot from Mr. Pickett. Pickett and the man (Alderman, from Oregon) had had some difficulty about an enclosure in the fort, and, as I learn, the matter had twice been decided in Pickett's favor by the Alcalde. It seems Pickett had hired an enclosure, into which Alderman had a door opening. Pickett forbade the use of the door, and nailed it up on the outside.

The man (Alderman) came with an ax into the enclosure (perhaps to open the door) while Pickett was there, and Pickett shot him with a double-barreled gun, loaded with buckshot. Ten shot (or shot holes) were found in his right arm, three in his right side, and one in his breast. He died about half an hour after the shot. It does not appear that Alderman assaulted P. at that time, but it is said he had threatened his life.

The Alcalde was a partner of Alderman, in business, and delegated to the second Alcalde the authority to act in the case, and he admitted the prisoner to bail in the sum of $10,000 for seven days.

This tragical scene transpired towards night on the 6th. To-day it was understood that the second Alcalde had resigned, and that the first persisted in not acting in the case, and the people held a meeting this evening to adopt some measures for bringing Pickett to trial. It resulted in their choosing Mr. Blackburn (former Alcalde of Santa Cruz) as a special Alcalde for the case, and a resolution to stand by him in the performance of his duty. He was not present at the meeting and it is not certain that he will act, and I fear he will not. Should he not act I do not know who will. Public opinion seems strong against Pickett, and I fear he will not be able to justify himself.

In connection with the foregoing we learn (says the editor) verbally, that Mr. Blackburn declined acting in the case, and thereupon an election was held for the purpose of selecting a judge, on the afternoon of the 9th. That election resulted in the selection of Samuel Brannan Esq., before whom the prisoner appeared and took his trial that evening. The jury, after being out an hour, came into court and reported that they could not agree, whereupon they were discharged, and the prisoner was held to bail in the sum of $10,000, to appear and answer when called for. It is understood that four of the twelve jurors were in favor of acquittal, considering it a case of justifiable homicide; two or three were in favor of a verdict of manslaughter, and five or six deemed it a wilful murder.

In the meantime a new venire has been issued, and the prisoner will again be put upon his trial, so soon as the necessary jurors can be summoned from the surrounding country.

In the issue of the same paper of December 23, 1848, the editor wrote: "We learn verbally, from gentlemen lately arrived in this place from Fort Sacramento, that the trial of Mr. Pickett, charged with the murder of Mr. Alderman, resulted in his acquittal and discharge by the jury."

Pickett was one of the earliest immigrants to the coast, and came by way of Oregon. He was a native of New York, and at the time of the killing of Alderman was one of the leading merchants at Sutter's Fort. Before that he practiced law at the Bay, and his professional card is as follows, as copied from Sam Brannan's paper, the Star, of January 9, 1847:

A CARD.

C. E. Pickett, attorney-at-law, having located himself permanently in the town of Yerba Buena, will practice his profession in all the Courts of this department, and also act as agent for the collection of all debts intrusted to his care.

Pickett practiced law and journalism, and was a voluminous writer of pamphlets. He was noted for his eccentricities and was called the "philosopher." In an attempt to right a supposed public wrong he assumed the seat of Mr. Justice Crockett on the Supreme Bench of the State, and was convicted of contempt, fined $500, and sent to jail for six months. He was not, however, required to serve out the full term. Mr. Pickett died at Mariposa, November 16, 1882.

In the Star and Californian of November 18, 1848, appears the following death notice of Captain Grimes, to whom we made reference in the paper on "Unwritten History," published January 25, 1890:

OBITUARY.—Died, in this town (San Francisco), on Tuesday evening, 7th ult., Capt. Eliab Grimes, senior partner of the late firm of E. & H. Grimes, aged 69 years. Capt. E. Grimes was born in Pitchburg, Mass., A. D. one thousand seven hundred and eighty, March 20th; he was a very efficient ship-master for many years; and for nearly the last twenty years of his life as a resident merchant in Honolulu, Oahu, Sandwich Islands. He was always looked up to as an honorable, upright and just man, and his death will be deeply felt and much lamented by his relatives and friends.

On December 23, 1848, this pioneer journal published the following, which is perhaps the first notice that was printed of what is now the city of Sacramento:

THE NEW TOWN OF SACRAMENTO.—It will be found by referring to our advertising columns that the proprietor of this admirable town-site designs offering the lots included in the survey recently made at public auction on the eighth day of January next. All of our readers who have visited Fort Sacramento will concur with us in the opinion that no portion of the great Sacramento valley could have been selected, so eminently favored, with advantages so well calculated to the founding of a city promising of first magnitude, as the grounds and premises of the Fort. It is superior as an elevated, and therefore healthy position, is desirable as a central location, and one of great beauty, capable of accommodating the population of years. To the Sacramento mining district it has been, and must continue to be a point of infinite importance, whence are chiefly derived supplies, and where, during the past season, an almost incredible amount of business has been transacted. Some twenty stores have vigorously flourished, and shipments of goods from this town takes place every day. The Sacramento is navigable in all its stages to the embarcadero included in the survey of the town, and vessels of eighty and an hundred tons birthen have this summer held that point in communication with San Francisco.

We will not attempt to enumerate the advantages or depict the natural endowments so choice a locality possesses; we must believe them readily appreciated at a glance, and the site generally admitted favorable to a commercial city of the first water.

[Written for THEMIS.]

"Life Is A Dream."

"Life is a Dream." Stay, my friend, is it so? Is the great drama which is constantly being enacted on the stage of life, but a fantastic vision, which shall fade away and leave no trace behind when the flood-gates of Eternity shall be opened, and the resplendent light of the World where comes no night, shall dispel the shades of mortal life? The sweet unfoldings of the youthful bud—the untrining action of maturer thought—the rich possessions which may crown the ripened age, are these of no account? Oh, yes; most truly they are, for life is no dream; it is a solemn reality, and naught should hinder its being as beautiful and harmonious as it is solemn and real. We are to act, then, not as listless voyagers on the sea of life, but with energetic power; with elevated aim; and with unflinching faith, are we to work our way to higher points of intellectual worth and purity of soul. We are too apt to forget that such should be our aim, and so we wander carelessly on, plucking, it may be, now and then, an unfolding bud of truth, or gathering a scanty store of Wisdom's priceless fruits, content to leave the richer blooms and riper stores for those who may not think "Life is a dream."

To those who are thus allowing the precious hours of this short but momentous life to glide away in ignoble ease, a voice from every flying moment seems to cry: "Oh, dreamer, wake to dream no more." Let not the frivolities of fashion or the glitter of gold forever fill the heart and eye; for this life will soon pass away to make room for a nobler, more extended sphere of action. When once the Dark River is passed, then will the soul, freed from the bonds of clay, wing its upward flight, circle above circle, in the unending realms of Wisdom, and bask forever in the loving presence of Deity. And for such a destiny is this life the preparatory school. Is it becoming, then, with such a destiny before us, that we have no settled purpose in life; that a being created in the image of God, and endowed with a mind, lasting as eternity, should have no thought but for the present enjoyment; that all the rich mines of wealth which are garnered here should lie unheeded; the precious talent, bestowed for worthy use, be laid within the napkin to rust itself away? No; for each attainment we make, each problem we solve, each noble thought we clothe in words "fitly spoken," each triumph we achieve over the allurements of sin—all, all tell on our future destiny. How great, then, is the inducement to systematic action. No listless dreams, no careless thought, no heedless words, no squandered time—for each dream, each thought, each word, are tracing impressions on the mind, lasting as eternity itself. And should it not thrill every heart with joy that what is once learned is learned forever? Should it not be our delight to cultivate to the highest degree of excellence those powers which are destined to live and improve when time itself shall be no more? It has been well said that "the whole of our life is of mingled yarn, good and ill together; our virtues would be proud if our faults whipped them out; and our crimes would despair if they were not cherished by our virtues." If it be true that we may superintend the weaving of the fabric, let us endeavor to have the golden threads of truth unbroken throughout the whole length of life's changeable web. Truth, like a beautiful flower, will shed a healthful fragrance around our pathway, surrounding us with a halo of glory more bright and enduring than the diamond points which gem the vault of night. We must scatter here and there, in the woof, kind words and little acts of love like stray sunbeams, whose mellow light will irradiate with joy the hearts crushed with disappointment and anguish. Kind words are priceless pearls, which, if freely used, will make this earth a beautiful place—one such as angels love to visit, but if withheld by a miserly spirit, it becomes a place over which angels may well shed the bitter tears of pity.

Some one has very truthfully said, "If we would have a sweet and pleasing echo, we must speak sweetly and pleasantly ourselves." Instead of speaking harshly and angrily to those we meet in life's busy thoroughfare, we should speak "sweetly and pleasantly," and every passing breeze will return to us echoes fraught with joy and happiness. Let us ever be possessed with that spirit of benevolence which seeks the good of others. This should be our highest aim—the glorious summit to which our ambitions should aspire.

All worldly joys are less Than the one joy of doing kindness.

If we would have the good overshadow the ill in the web of life, we must weave in the silken threads of charity, "which endureth all things." Bharity, the vertical top of all religion, a union of joys concentrated in the heart and reflected from all the angels of our life and intercourse; a rejoicing in an overruling Power, a gladness in our neighbor's good, a pleasure in doing good.

As each word, thought and deed will appear with distinct outline, when the fabric is held up to the gaze of an assembled universe, should it not be our ceaseless endeavor to keep it free from the dark and forbidding figures of falsehood or unkindness, so that when our Father pronounces the work complete, we may have to present to Him a web all "pure and spotless," with truth for the substance and kind deeds the ornaments. Truly, "Life is not a dream," but it is a stern reality.

The Man in the Moon.

The "idea of the man in the moon" seems to have arisen from the fact that the depressions on the moon's face—the great valleys that are there—appear to our sight like the form of a man. The figure seems, according to the way in which our fancy regards it, to be either carrying a bundle or drawing a bow like an archer and to be attended by a dog. This is a very old notion, and it is common to nearly every country. Barbarous tribes have something to say about it as well as civilized races. It used to be said that the man in the moon was the offender mentioned in Numbers, who was brought before Moses for gathering sticks on the Sabbath day, but an ancient tradition on the subject speaks also of the figure as being Cain carrying a thorn bush with a dog at his heels, the bush representing the burden of sin and the dog the evil spirit that took possession of Cain. One of our earliest poets (Chaucer) speaks of the man as having stolen the bush, and Shakespeare in one of his plays, "Midsummer Night's Dream," says, "This man, with lantern, dog and bush of thorns presenteth Moonshine." It is said in Holland that the figure is that of a man who was found stealing cabbage on a Christmas eve, and who so annoyed his neighbors by pilfering in their gardens, while they were enjoying themselves, that they wished him far enough, and as their far enough was the moon, thither, as the story runs, the culprit was taken, as quickly as might be, on the back of the north wind before he could say a word in his own defense. It is said in some places that he was more than a cabbage stealer, that the cabbages were meant as a tempting bait with which to entice sheep away and that a great many sheep were lost before the thief was discovered and sent where he could find neither animal nor vegetable life. We all know that the attractive power of the moon affects the watery masses on the earth and causes the rise and fall of the tides; and this scientific fact comes out in a peculiar way in one of these moon traditions. Thus in Norway and Sweden there is a story that the man in the moon is a giant who is in the habit of slowly bending down and as slowly rising again. The ocean is said to swell up to full tide when he stoops and to ebb when he stands erect. The Russians say that there was once a man who went about looking for a land in which there was no death, that in the course of his wanderings he came to the moon, where he lived a hundred years before Death found him out, and that then he and Death had a great struggle, in which the man in the moon was conqueror. The Greenlanders speak of the sun and the moon as a brother and sister, who once lived on this earth. One day, we are told, the sister took a trip into the sky to escape from her brother, who was teasing her. She flew so far that she became fixed in space and remained there as the sun. Her brother sought to follow her, but could only go part of the distance, and took his place in the sky as the moon. And we are told, also, of the moon brother that when he gets in his last quarter that he is tired and hungry and that he then leaves his house on a sledge harnessed to four dogs and hunts for several days, and that on his return he feasts so greedily on what he has captured that he soon grows into his full size and strength. So far as the moon is concerned, there is a grain of science in this story also, for some of our astronomers believe that the moon was at one time, untold ages ago, thrown off from this earth, and that since then it has gradually been going further from us and nearer to the sun.—Leeds Mercury.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

She has caught the fever fierce and stroug,
And declains with vigor all day long.
Before the glass she delights to pose,
And is sure she has a Siddon's nose.

She walks the floor with a tragic stride,
But a stage shriek is her joy and pride.
And she faints—with such abandon, too,
From head to foot she is black and blue.

She falls in love with each "leading man,"
And copies his gestures—if she can.
She buys his photographs by the score,
Till her room is like a high art store.

She attends the best dramatic school,
To "do" the emotions all by rule.
For she knows that she will prove a star,
As big and bright as they always are.

But John comes along some pleasant day,
And smiles in a tender, winning way.
And the "star descends to common life,
To fill the prosaic role of—wife.

An opera singer always appears lighthearted because "she sings at her work."

Augustin Daly has a theatrical library which is said to be the finest in America.

Christine Nilsson is to come out of her retirement to sing at the farewell concert of Sims-Reeves in London in June.

Miss Emma Juch has purchased real estate in nearly every growing city in the West, but not even the real estate agents can pronounce her name correctly.

Lotta is rated as the richest single woman in the world who has earned her own money. Her wise mother, who is an excellent woman of business, watches the markets and invests the actress' funds as fast as she receives them. The little "Marchioness" owns a hotel in Boston, an apartment house in New York, and other real estate in Washington, Chicago and Long Branch, besides stocks and bonds.

There is to be a new drop curtain at the Baldwin Theater, San Francisco; it represents the last scene in Hamlet. The death scene of some tragedy would be preferable to that eye strainer which now mars the effects of the footlights at the Metropolitan in this city. While "Paradise and the Peri" might be pleasant reading, in the form of such a picture as that which does service as a drop curtain, it has no charms, rather does it cast a shade upon the beautiful creation of Tom Moore. It is said that there is some kind of an obligation between the artist who painted this unsightly thing and all other artists, that it should not be replaced without his consent. This is an obligation which public policy should and would abrogate, even if it did exist. While every other department and compartment of the theater is perfect, this one blemish still exists for some unaccountable reason.

Book Chat.

Princess Theresa, daughter of the Prince Regent of Bavaria, is the author of a book of travels that has attracted great attention throughout Europe.

A woman, says Sheridan, may be idle, but she is never a loafer. She cannot knock a man down, but she can break his heart, and when disappointed she goes to God, while a man goes to the devil.

Helen Allingham, widow of William Allingham, the poet, has received a great compliment. She is the first of her sex to be elected a member of the English Royal Society of Painters in Water Colors.

Literary men make few cries in these days. Sir Edwin Arnold is in Japan, Rider Haggard in Asia Minor, Robert Louis Stevenson in Samoa, Lafcadio Hearn on his way to Japan and Edgar Saltus in the soup.

Miss Brandon, the novelist, is described as fair, flaxen hair and a stout figure. She is a collector of bric-a-brac, a lover of Dickens and an accomplished cook. She was fortunate enough to marry her publisher.

Colonel R. M. Johnson, the author, was formerly professor of English literature in a Georgia college, and is now a resident of Baltimore. He is a man of dignified presence, with the courtly manners of a gentleman of the old school.

All France is laughing over the following announcement that lately appeared in one of the journals: "M. Erst Zola, inventor of the spring handcuffs, notifies his customers that he has nothing in common with his namesake, Emile Zola, writer."

A recent auction sale in New York City of pictures by leading American artists emphasized the sad fact that canvases are not sold here on their artistic merits. The name of a fourth-rate French or English artist is worth more at a New York art sale than a meritorious picture by a first-rate native painter. "What's in a name?" asked Shakespeare. "Boodle" is the answer from the art auctioneer's standpoint.

Professional Chat.

In 1389 a horse was solemnly tried before the magistrate and condemned to death for having killed a man.

Baron Dowse, the joking Irish Judge who died the other day, once told an American that it was better to have a small career in Ireland than a great one in England, because in Ireland when one said funny things people understood them, and that made life worth living.

Cross Examining Counsel—Isn't your husband a burglar? Witness—Yes. Cross Examining Counsel—And didn't you know he was a burglar when you married him? Witness—Yes; but I was getting a little old and I had to choose between a burglar and a lawyer, so what else could I do?

During the fourteenth century oxen and cows might be legally killed whenever taken in the act of marauding, and asses, for the first offense, had one ear cropped, for a second offense the other ear, and if after this they were asses enough to commit a third offense, their lives became forfeit to the crown.

The latest reminiscence of the caustic wit of the late Sergeant Ballentine, writes Eugene Field in the Chicago News, is as follows: "He never spooks ill of any man," it was casually remarked of the leader of the bar. "No, of course not," added the Sergeant, "for he never talks of anybody but himself." This recalls what was once said of our own Horace Greeley: "He is a self-made man and he worships his creator."

Is progressive euchre gambling? Judge Ryland, of Marshall, Mo., holds that it is, and in his recent charge to the Grand Jury called their attention to the violation of the gambling law and informed them that playing progressive euchre for prizes was such a violation of law and punishable. This ruling will probably not create a panic among the lovers of this game in Brooklyn, but the little bell at the first table will continue to tinkle, the players will change, and the prizes, excepting, of course, the booby prize, will continue to be sought after.

That grizzled old warrior, General Sherman, is an enthusiastic patron of theatrical performances. He has the entree to every theater. He likes a seat well down in front, for his eyesight and hearing are not as good as they were when he marched through Georgia. An expression of solid satisfaction and hearty enjoyment fills his face as he watches the show. He is a good listener, and follows closely the unfolding of the plot. For the good looking girls of the company, too, he has an appreciative eye. Nothing delights him more than to be taken back of the scenes and be introduced to some performer who has caught his fancy. In his applause he is generous. He always appears in evening dress, and his well-known rugged face, prominent nose and closely cropped white beard look much more familiar in a swallow-tailed coat in these days than if gold braid and epaulettes were beneath them.

To place General John C. Fremont on the retired list as a Major-General, in accordance with the bill now being considered, would be a just and appropriate thing for a Republican Congress to do. Born at Savannah, Ga., his father a Frenchman and his mother a Virginian, he became an instructor in the United States Navy in 1833, and in 1837-8 a famous explorer. He married the daughter of Senator Thomas H. Benton, of Missouri, and Jessie Fremont became famous alike for her beauty and her intellectual gifts. In 1842 Fremont began his surveys in the new Western country which earned for him the name of "The Pathfinder." He assisted in the conquest of California, was appointed its Military Governor, and after its admission as a State became one of its first United States Senators. So important were Fremont's explorations that he received, in 1850, a gold medal from the King of Prussia and another from the Geographical Society of London. He was the first Presidential candidate of the Republican party and received 114 electoral votes against 174 given for Buchanan.

Evangelist Sam Small, says the Chicago Tribune, has been in Missouri lately, and one night lectured in a town near Lathrop, the place where the women made a crusade upon the saloons and assisted the men in managing public affairs. Some of the men down there used help, Mr. Small thinks. He found some who had not heard of the Johnstown flood. In a backwoods town Mr. Small had a funny experience. He was advertised to give a "bright talk, to be strictly original." The town hall was crowded and the audience was appreciative. To illustrate a certain point the speaker referred to the Prophet Daniel and briefly gave a history of the heroic Bible character. During this part of his talk Mr. Small noticed a tall, broad-shouldered granger with stubby whiskers who appeared displeased with the lecture. After the talk was over and Mr. Small left the platform this granger approached him with the request: "Say, I want ter get my money back." "What is the matter?" asked Mr. Small. "Why, the show wasn't what you advertised. Them big handbills on the town hall said 'twas going to be an original lecture and nothing old. I didn't fork over a quarter to hear a lot of chestnuts." "What displeased you?" "Why, you told that tale about this man Daniel and the lions." "Yes." "Well, I seen that in a Chicago paper nigh onto twenty years ago. You must think us folks down here ain't posted."

NOTES.

Young Herbert Bismarck has married Princess de Cousolates. Even that he has been deposed from his high official position, he is not now dis-consolate. Not even the many youthful indiscretions of this scion of the Iron Chancellor, dis-consolates him, for he has taken to himself de Cousolates.

The Boston people who visit our magnificent Capitol building, and look upon the statue of Columbus, which is so prominent in the rotunda, are extremely jealous, because Columbus came over long before the Boston Mayflower pedigree began. The first families do not relish anything that is a reminder of their comparative short pedigree.

A newspaper offers a prize for the best spring poem. When the literary editor gets through looking over the copy of the candidates for poetic fame and is held responsible for rejected manuscript he will be like the boy who approached too near the business end of a mule—not so handsome as he was but possessing a d—d sight more sense.

The man who takes a newspaper from the postoffice with no intention of ever paying his subscription would be highly indignant and grossly insulted if he were called a thief. Yet a court in Ohio recently convicted forty men of that caliber and allowed the publisher, who brought the suits, judgment to the full extent of the bill in every case. The crime charged was larceny. A few more cases may boom the collection business and cause legions of poor editors to rise to sudden affluence.

Edward Strauss, "Royal Court Ball Director" of Vienna, is about to visit the United States, to introduce into our society what he is pleased to call "terpischorean revolution" in the waltz. He says of this innovation that during the "introduction and finale the young people will have an opportunity to converse and coquet, and will not be obliged to dance till they drop dead." If his improvement on the old waltz is to bring couples closer together and aid them to additional opportunity to inflame the unholy passion, and invite more libidinous action, then his presence here is not desirable; we are getting along well enough without his tuition.

Right Rev. Father Bessioines, V. G., upon the occasion of celebrating the semi-centennial of his church work in Indiana, was remembered by Mrs. Gov. Hendricks, who sent him a check for $100, while Mrs. Gov. Morton presented him with a large crayon portrait of her distinguished husband, now dead, the same handsomely framed. Both of these ladies expressed the warmest sympathy for the good priest, whose life-work in that State is familiarly known to them. In what noble contrast the Christian-like appreciation of those two distinguished widows with those carping cranks, both male, and female, who live but to execrate those who differ from them in religion. Both of those ladies are distinguished members of the Protestant church. But the widows of such husbands could not be otherwise than generous of heart and noble of soul.

Representative Taylor of Ohio made a very happy observation upon the easy-going methods of the Federal Senate the other day. The bill for the admission of Wyoming as a State was under discussion in the House, and Washington of Tennessee was delivering a speech in opposition to the measure. It seems that the Wyoming Constitution contains a provision admitting women to the exercise of the ballot on the same footing as the men, a condition of things which the Tennessee statesman thought would be intolerable. He concluded a brilliant period with the remark—"Why, they might send a woman to the Federal Senate." This brought Taylor to his feet. "May I ask the gentleman from Tennessee a question?" he inquired. "Certainly. I am always delighted to answer questions from my friend from Ohio." "Well, don't you think a good woman in the Senate would help it some?"

The political drums of warning to politicians to rise and buckle on their armor for the fall fray are beating all over the State, and candidates are beginning to array themselves in line for inspection. The very latest information from the Democratic camp is that Hon. C. P. Berry of Sutter county is assuredly and without doubt a candidate for Governor. And a clean cut, unobjectionable candidate he would make for that party; he has fought a hundred battles for it and not one against it. If the Democrats are to be in the fight we know of no better citizen they could select than Mr. Berry, and in saying he is a good citizen we convey every exalted idea that can be conceived of a man. It is seldom we can say anything good of a Democrat from a party view, but of this gentleman it would be impossible to say anything derogatory, either as a citizen or a politician.

The fashion of writing post-mortem poetry has grown into a nuisance, only comparable with the disgusting habit of inserting cards of thanks to the friends and people who had the decency to attend the funeral. How this card freak ever came into vogue, it would be as hard to say as to find out who invented gum chewing. To think it is necessary to extend public acknowledgment to the mourners at a funeral, is only absurd; it is not presumable that those who follow the hearse desire to be reminded that their attendance was appreciated. It smacks too loudly of the gratitude of the actor who has had a benefit thrust upon him by his fellows.

The great statue of Liberty on Bedloe's Island is said to be sinking, and has already sunk eight feet. Possibly Liberty is so shocked at the iniquities of New York, that she desires to hide herself, and thus is gradually vanishing from the gaze of corruption and crime so rife now at the great metropolis. By the way, we read some years ago, that the whole State of New Jersey had sunk about eight feet. This particular figure seems to be convenient for sinking purposes in and about New York. We suspect this rumor is something like those which used to be circulated about the Capitol building in this city, a number of years ago, when the removal of the seat of government underwent its triennial discussion. Often have we read newspaper accounts of the Capitol building disappearing in a mud hole, prompted by rival candidates for the seat of government.

We have always entertained a secret desire to know why the inventors of phrases ever hit upon the term "brown study." Thus, when a person encounters an unusual state of facts, and falls to thinking, he is said to be thrown into a brown study. Why mightn't he be thrown into a violet study, or an orange study, or a bright red study, or into any other sort of study, instead of one of a brown color? Is the mind strengthened or quickened in any way by working out its processes in a brown color? Brown is an indifferent and sombre sort of hue at best. It would seem that one might think just as well in a blue as in a brown color. At any rate, the layman is often set to thinking in all sorts of colors when he comes to consider the degree of punishment that is apportioned out for the various grades of crime. Thus, Sheriff Flack, of New York city, set up a conspiracy against his wife, suborned a number of witnesses, corrupted a Court and procured a fraudulent divorce, for all of which he was sentenced to pay a fine of $500, and serve two months in the county jail. The crime of this scoundrel was against the sanctity of the marriage relation, and against the purity of the courts, and yet he was let off with a lighter punishment than is often imposed upon a person who steals a loaf of bread. Flack concocted a suit against himself on behalf of his wife, and secured a divorce without the knowledge of the person who was nominally prosecuting the case. He procured his own son to testify that he, the father, had been unfaithful to his marriage vows—he bought a Court Commissioner, and presumably a judge, besides gathering other persons to swear falsely, and was permitted to pay off the larger part of the punishment with money which he secured by blackmailing litigants or persons accused of crime. It is said that the law is at fault—that no greater punishment is provided than was imposed. Excuses of this sort will not satisfy the layman. The average man is conscious that there is a grave fault somewhere, and he rises to inquire why he may not do his thinking in a deep red color. On the same day that Sheriff Flack received his sentence, a Chicago gentleman, of the name of Jerry O'Donnell, was adjudged to spend three years in a penitentiary for attempting to pack the Cronin jury, and on the following day Judge Shafter, of San Francisco, Superior Court, sent a boy to the House of Correction for three years for stealing a four-dollar coat. The San Francisco judiciary sentenced the boy for five years in the first place, but, finding that he had exceeded the limit of the law, he revised his judgment, and cut off two years, making the sentence an even three years. If the law had permitted a nine years' sentence, it is reasonable to suppose that the boy would have got the benefit of it. It requires a good many colors for one to think in to do justice to matters of this sort. The whole range of hues displayed in the solar spectrum is hardly sufficient. Citizen O'Donnell got three years for a bare attempt to pack a jury, whereas Flack got only two months for buying a whole court, while the San Francisco lad might have got nine years if the law had allowed it, for taking a four-dollar coat, without the consent of the owner. Measured by the severity of the punishment that has been awarded in the two cases, the larceny of an article of personal attire of trifling value is eighteen times more heinous than false swearing or the corruption of a court of justice. It is a consolation, however, to know that it is not worse than an attempt to pack a jury to acquit as dastardly a gang of villains as ever swung from ropes' ends. A good deal can be done when one falls into a brown study, but a proper solution of such matters as we are considering requires the aid of all varieties and shades of color.

Several questions of unusual delicacy have arisen in California during the past week. There is a matter under advisement in Tulare county of such a mixed nature that it has attracted a good deal of attention. There is so much conflict of opinion as to the jurisdiction to which the case should be assigned that there is a strong disposition to call upon Congress to settle the affair. It appears that a young woman school teacher is the cause of the whole trouble. This person is a singer of great range of voice and extraordinary delicacy of tone, besides being master, so to speak, of a half-dozen musical instruments. She manages the banjo and the harp with great skill, is a fine cornet player, and can get more music out of a flute than a person might hear in the best orchestra-furnished church in the country. It might be thought that a person thus accomplished would delight in displaying her skill on all occasions, but our Tulare school teacher is not inclined that way. She is very gracious in private, but won't sing a note or whistle a tune in public. They had a school exhibition a short time ago, and she refused to take any part whatever in the musical exercises. The School Board expostulated with her, but she was obstinate, and told them that she had made up her mind in regard to the matter and wouldn't yield an inch. School Superintendent Wallace took the case in hand and wrote to the Attorney-General asking what might be done with such a young woman. The correspondence between these two officials is highly entertaining. The School Superintendent tells the Attorney-General that the young woman is the handsomest girl south of the Aleutian Archipelago. Modest, ambitious, proud, self-respecting—she is everything, in fact, that a young woman ought to be, with the single drawback that she won't sing or play the flute in public. On account of this single blemish he seems to look upon her much as the public looks upon the sugar trust, and wants to know if there is not some law that might be set in motion to make her behave herself and destroy her power as a musical monopoly. He seems to think that she ought to be enjoined and discontinued and sold out at public auction, like Judge Wallace of San Francisco is doing with the American Sugar Refinery. He seems to think that Senator Sherman's anti-trust bill is directed specially and mainly at the young woman. He has an idea also, it looks like, that there is one sort of law for a pretty school teacher and another sort for an ugly one. Well, the Attorney-General appears to be disheartened because he is unable to find a law under which he might bring suit to annul the young woman's musical character and break her up as a monopoly. He says there ought to be such a law, seeing that the young woman is a combined vocal and instrumental trust of the worst sort, and becomes absolutely plaintive when he tells the School Superintendent that she'll have to be allowed to have her way. He advises that resort be had to the force of public opinion and moral suasion. He suggests that a mass meeting or two should be held and resolutions passed descriptive and declaratory of the young woman's personal beauty, and if these means should fail to impress her with the belief that it is her duty to sing songs and play tunes in public without so much as thinking of getting paid for it, then Congress should be called upon to interfere and bring her to terms.

There is a divorce suit pending before Superior Judge Lawler, of San Francisco, which is likely to establish a precedent for the guidance of future jurists. It appears that Charles T. Sinkwitz and his wife, Marie, lived in a state of the greatest conjugal felicity for the period of one year and seven months. Their place of abode was in the city of San Francisco, a circumstance which should be considered in connection with the unusually long term of their married happiness. It came to pass that they were invited to the town of Haywards to visit some friends. The trip to the Alameda hamlet was made in good order and the visit promised a great deal of pleasure. Everything went off in the most agreeable way until after the couple had been in bed about an hour and a half. Soon after the expiration of the time just mentioned Mrs. Sinkwitz discovered that there was a flea making a French dinner off her. She seemed to think that a young lion had attacked her. She bore the annoyance with womanly fortitude until her patience became exhausted, whereupon she asked her husband to hold the light so she might catch the flea. He declined to comply with her request, hinting that a skilful woman ought to be able to catch a flea without a light. The wife talked to him, reminding him of his obligation to protect her on all occasions and under all circumstances. He was obstinate, however, contending that, in the matter of flea catching it was the duty of a wife to protect herself. This was more than human fortitude could bear; so the wife got out of bed, and, after breaking a water pitcher over her husband's head, flounced out of the room, taking the flea with her. She brought suit for a divorce soon afterwards, and set up the before described acts, omitting the water-pitcher part of the business, as constituting a case of extreme cruelty. The evidence is all in, including the water pitcher episode, and Judge Lawler has the matter under advisement. He is the most perplexed jurist that ever held a position on the bench in California. He has made up his mind upon one branch of the case, but is in a sea of doubt as to another branch. He is satisfied, he says, that the refusal of a husband to hold a light while his wife catches a flea amounts to cruelty of the most diabolical type, but he doesn't seem to be able to settle the question as to how far this condition is modified by the water pitcher transaction. He is clear that if Mrs. Sinkwitz had left the room without making any forcible demonstration with the water pitcher, she would be entitled to a divorce without a moment's hesitation. He doesn't see how he can construe the water pitcher business to be a species of forcible condonation, and still he thinks the proceedings has that appearance. However, he is going to hold the case under advisement until Judge Coffey finishes the trial of the Blythe case, and until Judge Wallace disposes of the American Sugar Refinery case, and then he is going to call those two jurists into consultation. Coffey knows a great deal about condonation and other matters, and Wallace is a great authority on jurisdiction and constitutional limitations. It is a great case, and the legal profession may expect a flea and water pitcher precedent that will be referred to for a hundred years to come.

A Magnificent Hebrew Club.

In outward splendor and inward luxury the new home of the Progress Club, New York City, at Fifth avenue and Sixty-third street, is unexcelled by any of its peers. The club is composed almost altogether of Hebrews, and though its membership is so exclusive as to bear only 350 names on the rolls, it has expended full $1,000,000 (the site alone having cost $250,000) on the completion and furnishing of the building. Exteriorly the structure resembles a Florentine palace in its prime, and its grand vestibule opens upon walls of paneled marble and pavement and steps of the same material. The great feature of the house is its sumptuous ball-room, unequaled in the city, measuring 90 feet by 65 and 35 feet high. In the foyer is a gorgeous stained-glass window, thirty-five feet in height, a mass of color, in which a figure of Progress is conspicuous. It is a feature of New York's Jewish population that they never hesitate about spending money on their amusements, their charities and their homes. If it were not for the 80,000 Jews in that city, one-half of the theaters would have to close their doors. At home they live generously; abroad they spend money liberally, and they never suffer a co-religionist to die in poverty if they can help it, nor to be buried in the Potter's Field if they know it. In all these respects they are model citizens, and if they have been excluded by prejudice from some of the older clubs, they have lived to demonstrate in the Progress Club that they can afford to live by themselves, and can set a gorgeous example in club architecture and management.

It is seldom we find so much enjoyment in the perusal of a paper as we do in THEMIS of Sacramento, a sprightly weekly paper published by A. J. Johnston & Co., and which has lately entered its second year. It is most ably edited, and one of the few first-class literary publications on the coast. We want to X by all means.—Hayward Journal.

The Shasta Courier is now thirty-eight years of age. This is certainly a ripe age for a California newspaper. It is entitled to rank with the older members of the press. Indeed, the Courier is part of the history of the State. We venture that an inspection of the early numbers would disclose much that would be exceedingly valuable today. Thirty-eight years ago, the father of one of the editors of THEMIS had valuable property in Shasta county. We say to our neighbor, keep up your lick; your work is only commenced.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

FLASHES.

Death creates a void—it is something we wish to avoid.

The weakest hand may throw a plank to a drowning man.

The smallest leaf affords protection to the fruit within its care.

Sacramento has a large sinking fund, but it keeps the city afloat.

What is the use in trying to humor people who need a good beating.

When a fellow gets an itch for office, he is beyond the reach of medicine.

When a fellow beats time to music with his feet it must appeal to his sole.

The fellow that has been long working at nothing ought to be pretty near through with his job.

The Northern California Press Association met in this city on All Fools' Day—very appropriate day.

Jacob Friday is the name of a butcher in Cincinnati. Many a good Catholic there has meat of a Friday.

Officers arrest a poor devil for being drunk, put him to jail, and keep him light until his penalty is satisfied.

A smile is the whisper of a laugh. Some of our fellows can smile and laugh at the same time. It is a different kind of a smile, however.

[Written for THEMIS.]

Mulum in Parvo.

There are many senses in which this old Latin maxim has a just application to many facts in human life. Indeed, if we carefully examine the world, we may almost conclude that the relation between great and little things is such that however much some little things may deserve to be dignified with the epithet mulum (much), it is, on the other hand, true that every mulum is made up of parvis (little) things, so little as to be often left wholly out of our ordinary reckoning.

Here is a piece of cloth. It is fine or coarse; it is silk, or woolen, or cotton—just according to the fineness or coarseness, the strength or weakness, the blackness or whiteness, the silkiness or woolenness, or cottonness, of those slender threads, whose interlacings constitute its sole substance and being. It has no substance or being other than and aside from theirs; it gets its quality and value from theirs.

Here is a ship breasting the storm-waves of the Atlantic. Her shape is the shape of the timbers and the planks of which she is builded. Her strength is the strength of those timbers and planks, and of the bolts and spikes which hold them together. She cannot be strong and seaworthy as a whole, unless they are all individually strong and sound; each in its own place, and for its own office. The chain cable which holds her off a lee-shore is worth, for her safety, just exactly so much as the weakest link in it is able to bear against the strain of the surf—no more; for if that weakest link parts, she goes ashore just as surely, and just as fatally, as if every link in the chain had shivered into a thousand fragments.

Here is a steel engraving, rendering with exact and wonderful fidelity some human portrait. The entire effect now of all the ten thousands of lines and dots which the artist's tools, for months, have been scratching upon that steel plate, is, to convey to the eye the living resemblance of the man whom it depicts. But if even one of those lines, or one of those little dots, were out of place by a hair's breadth, or were too heavy or too light in its stroke upon the steel, or were, in any manner, unfaithful to the design of the artist whose work it is, the effect would be marred, perhaps the likeness wholly destroyed. The plate gets its character of faithfulness and value in the general form and individual faithfulness of its minute constituent parts.

Nor is this a law of matter, merely. Here is one of whom those who know him testify: "He is a man of truth; you can depend upon his word." Now, he must have gained that character by telling the truth, not in the general, for there is no such thing as doing things in the general, but by telling the truth in regard to all the little events of today and yesterday and the day before, and all the days concerning which it was necessary for him to tell anything. For, if you question one of his endorsees and ask him how he knows this to be a man of truth, most likely he may reply: "This is how I know it. I have been acquainted with him ten, twenty, thirty, forty years, and I never knew him to tell a lie or to deceive anyone in any thing." Thus the matter is taken for proof immediately out of the abstract and the general into the concrete, which is the region of little things, and the assertion that a man is honest in the general becomes the assertion that he has never been known to be dishonest in even any single one of the myriad of little acts of a long life. So that here—in the domain of morals, it is as true as we know it to be in that of material things, that the great gets its quality and value from those constituent littles that make it up.

It is a curious fact that our word "character" came into our language from the Greek verb charasso, which means to furrow, to scratch, to engrave, as the graver does upon the plate with his tools; and hence the word character means the impression which is the result of that engraving, as the seal is that which the stamp makes it. So that the inherent idea of moral character is of that condition of the soul which results from the ten thousand strokes of the engraving tool of daily life. If they are what they ought to be, it cannot help being good. It must be what they are, for they create it, and so it becomes inevitable that he "that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much; and he that is unjust in the least, is unjust also in much."

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Fantasma has been the only attraction this week in the amusement line. There is no pretense of literary or dramatic merit. It is solely a spectacular exhibition where clowns, acrobats, fairies, demons, big snakes and monsters abound. The company has done a good business. To-night, Fantasma again for the last time.

Our worthy neighbor, the Bee, classes "burglary" among its amusement notes. On Thursday, under the head of "amusements," we find an item of the burglary of Mazzini Bros. store. Well, the genuine burglar must be an artist, hence, the art part may give rise to the title. Again, one of the recent dramatic successes is called The Burglar. Perhaps our critical contemporary was thinking of this when he included the item under that head.

The splendid spectacle of Fatinilza will be presented on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Metropolitan by the famous McNeill Club. This great creation of Suppe has never been put upon the Sacramento stage. In this instance everything necessary to make the opera a success has been done. The cast includes some of the finest musical and dramatic talent on the coast. The stage management is under Albert Hart—general musical direction by W. H. Kinross. The cast of characters is as follows: General Kantchukoff, E. B. Carroll; Princess Lydia (his niece), Mrs. A. E. Brune; Lieutenant Vladimir, Miss May Kewen; Captain Vasil, Miss Lizzie Lynn; Lieutenant Ossip, Miss N. Young; Sergeant Stiepanu, Elwood Bruner, Dimitri, Miss May Casady; Izzet Pasha, R. T. Cohn; Nursidah, Miss M. Alys Pullman; Zulieka, Miss Adolphe Kaibel; Besika, Mrs. George Hansbrow; Diana, Miss Hattie Wheat; Mustapha, C. T. Milliken; Hassen Bey, George R. Hansbrow; Vuika, W. E. Lovdal; Julian Hardy, H. R. Blair. This presentation will be the opening of the McNeill Club season of 1890. We bespeak crowded houses each night.

Baseball.

To-morrow, April 6, the Stockton and Sacramento clubs will meet at Snowflake Park to contest their respective skill at the national game. On account of the late arrival of the Stockton train, the trains for the park will leave the depot at 2 o'clock, and 2:30. They will stop at Third, Tenth, and Eighteenth streets. Fare both ways, including admission to park, 50 cents. Fare, round trip, 15 cents.

On Sunday, April 13th, the Lavensons will open the Northern California League with the Marysvilles. These clubs are composed of the finest amateur talent on the coast, and an interesting contest can be expected. The following is the schedule of the Northern California League for the season of 1890:

Gus Lavensons—at Home: With Snowflakes—March 30th, May 11th, June 8th, August 17th, October 26th, November 2d. With Woodland—June 22d, September 21st. With Marysville—April 13th, November 9th. Snowflakes—at Home: With Lavensons—March 30th, May 11th, June 8th, August 17th, October 26th, November 2d. With Woodland—May 25th, August 31st. With Marysville—July 6th, September 7th.

Woodlands—at Home: With Lavensons—April 6th, 20th; May 4th, June 1st, July 4th, 6th, 20th; August 3d, 24th; September 7th, October 5th, 19th; November 16th. With Snowflakes—April 13th, 27th; May 18th, June 15th, 29th; July 13th, 27th; August 10th, September 14th, 28th; October 12th, November 9th, 23d. With Marysville—March 30th, June 8th, October 26th.

Marysvilles—at Home: With Lavensons—April 27th, May 18th, 25th; June 15th, 29th; July 13th, 27th; August 10th, 31st; September 14th, 28th, October 12th, November 23d. With Woodland—May 11th, August 17th, November 2d. With Snowflakes—April 6th, 20th; May 4th, June 1st, 22d; July 4th, 20th; August 3d, 24th; September 21st; October 5th, 19th; November 16th.

Estimated Populations.

An estimate of the population of the following counties, on a basis of 5½ for each voter, would give this result: Alpine, 446; Amador, 15,664; Contra Costa, 15,048; Alameda, 91,808; El Dorado, 15,076; Nevada, 22,990; Placer, 18,425; San Joaquin, 36,021; Sacramento, 50,729; Tuolumne, 11,390. There is a probability that the census returns will show greatly increased figures in Sacramento, Alameda, and San Joaquin counties. There will also be a percentage of gain in the cities of Stockton, Oakland, and Sacramento, on account of the Chinese. Taking these figures as a basis, the city of Sacramento will have about 35,000 population. Many think that number will be increased to 40,000. As it is, there is an apparent gain of over 13,000 in the last decade.

Looks Like Business.

The Sacramento Street Improvement Company has filed articles of incorporation. The purpose is to improve, grade and gravel streets, and to own and operate traction engines to do the work. Capital stock, $50,000. Amount subscribed, $24,000. Directors: C. A. Luhrs, D. A. Lindley, A. S. Hopkins, S. Prentiss Smith, J. O. Coleman, Sparrow Smith and John Blair. This seems to be about the only immediate practical plan to secure anything like the necessary street improvement.

Violet! Nadyl! Boquet!

The latest flavors in Ice Cream Soda. Moyunhan's, 418 J street.

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

Grand Army Reunion.

The fourth annual reunion of the Grand Army Association of Northern California will be held at Red Bluff on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 17th, 18th and 19th. The programme will consist of a grand promenade concert and ball, battalion drill and dress parade, an excursion to Senator Stanford's vineyard at Vina, by special invitation of the Senator, concluding with a grand camp-fire on the evening of the third day. Excursion tickets will be issued by the Southern Pacific company at two-thirds the usual rates, good from the 16th to the 21st, inclusive.

This Will Interest You.

In a few days J. F. Cooper will receive, direct from the publishers, a choice lot of standard and popular music which will be sold at ten cents per copy. Ten thousand free catalogues of the same. Call or send for one. Cooper's Music Store.

"The Temple of God Upon Earth."

The Rev. Joseph Sasia, S. J., will deliver a lecture on the subject, "The Temple of God Upon Earth," on the evening of the 24th of April, 1890. The lecture will be under the auspices of Branch 422, Catholic Knights of America, which is a fraternal society, on a similar plan of the United Workmen. The lecture will be delivered at the old church building, on Twelfth street, between J and K. The reverend Father is one of the most learned men of the faith, and an interesting and eloquent speaker. The object is a good one, and should receive liberal patronage.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF BRIDGET NAUGHTON, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, executors of the estate of Bridget Naughton, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said executors, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

FRANK KING and MICHAEL BRENNAN, Executors of the Estate of said deceased. Dated April 2, 1890. apr5-5t

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE

SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY.....APRIL 6, 1890.

Stockton vs. Sacramento

Game commences at 3 P. M., owing to fact that Stockton train does not arrive until 2:45 P. M.

ADMISSION.....FIFTY CENTS
LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 2 and 2:30 P. M. Stop at 3d, 10th, and 18th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts. Reserved seats at Golden Eagle cigar store.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the

ECLIPSE

CHAMPAGNE,

530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

Certificate of Partnership.

State of California, } ss
City and County of San Francisco.

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we are copartners, transacting business in the city and county of Sacramento, State of California, under the firm name and style of WHITTIER, FULLER & CO., and that the names in full, and place of residence of all the members of such copartnership, are as follows, to-wit: William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, all residents of the city and county of San Francisco, State of California, and Lewellyn Tozer, resident of the city and county of Sacramento, State of California.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands this first day of April, 1890.

WM. FRANK WHITTIER,
WILLIAM PALMER FULLER,
FREDERICK N. WOODS,
WILLIAM P. FULLER, JR.,
LEWELLYN TOZER.

State of California, } ss
City and County of San Francisco.

On the first day of April, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Lewis B. Harris, a Notary Public in and for said city and county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, and Lewellyn Tozer, known to me as the individuals described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the annexed instrument, and they severally acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the city and county of San Francisco, the day and year last above written,
(Signed) LEWIS B. HARRIS, Notary Public.
[Seal.] apr5-5t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL MCKEE, DECEASED.— Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Julia McKee, administratrix of the estate of Samuel McKee, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the law office of A. J. and Elwood Bruner, at the Court-house, Seventh and J streets, Sacramento, Cal.

JULIA MCKEE,
Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 28th, 1890.
A. J. & ELWOOD BRUNER,
Attorneys for Estate
mch29-4t

Seven as a Sacred Number.

Undoubtedly seven is the sacred number. There were seven days of creation; after seven days' respite the flood came; the years of famine and of plenty were in cycles of seven; every seventh day was a Sabbath, and every seventh year a Sabbath year of rest. After every seven times seven came the jubilee; the feasts of unleavened bread and of the tabernacle lasted seven days.

The golden candle-sticks had seven branches; seven priests with seven trumpets surrounded Jericho seven times during the week, and seven times on the seventh day. Jacob obtained his wife by servitude of seven years.

Samson kept his nuptials seven days, and on the seventh day he propounded a riddle to his wife, and he was bound with seven green withes and seven locks of his hair were cut off. Nebuchadnezzar was seven years as a beast of the field; Shadrach and his companions were cast into a furnace heated seven times hotter than it had ever been heated before.

In the New Testament nearly everything occurred by sevens, and at the end of the sacred volume we read of seven churches, seven candlesticks, seven spirits, seven scales, seven stars, seven thunders, seven vials, seven plagues, seven angles and of a seven-headed monster.—St. Louis Republic.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 13th, 1890. meh22-5t

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'

Verbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.

703 J Street, Sacramento.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh; Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple

DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street,

Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS, Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents. Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
9:30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico.	6:20 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East.	6:45 P
8:15 P	Knights Landing.	7:40 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave.	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East.	6:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express.	6:00 A
3:00 P	Ogden and East.	10:30 A
3:00 P	Oroville.	10:30 A
10:40 A	Red Bluff via Marysville.	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia.	7:25 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia.	11:40 A
6:45 A	San Francisco via Benicia.	9:10 P
*10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer.	26:00 A
10:50 A	San Francisco via Livermore.	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia.	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose.	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara.	9:55 A
6:45 A	Santa Rosa.	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa.	7:25 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt.	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt.	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno.	6:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno.	6:00 A
12:05 P	Colfax.	10:20 A
6:45 A	Vallejo.	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo.	17:25 P
*12:15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed).	*10:25 A
*7:15 A	Folsom and Placerville.	*2:40 P
*5:20 P	Folsom.	*6:50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street. Sacramento.

NOTICE.

HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KILGORE & CO., their interests in the grocery business, and reopened their old stand at the north-west corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.

T. H. COOK & CO.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,
PHARMACISTS,S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.
CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.
FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE.

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg. BOHEMIA PILSENER, BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Oscar F. Flick

824 J ST.

Fine Candies

Family Orders for Ice Cream a Specialty.

THE ONLY MAKER OF COLT'S FOOT ROCK COUGH CANDY.

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.

J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,

DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GASFITTING, AND ROOFING.

Jobbing a Specialty.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from..... $25
 Stylish Pants made to order..... 6
 Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from..... 25
 Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from..... 30
 Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from..... 40
 And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

How It Was Done.

There is that famous hand in which the Duke of Cumberland held ace, king, queen and knave in one plain suit; ace, king, queen in another; ace, king in the third; while in trumps he held king, knave, nine and seven. Yet with this perfectly magnificent hand and the lead (leading also quite correctly) he did not make a single trick. This seems incredible, but when the hands are supplied the solution of the problem will be readily seen. The four trumps lying just over those held by the Duke of Cumberland, viz.: the ace, queen, ten and eight, were on the left, with nine diamonds, while on the right were five small trumps. He led a trump, which was taken on his left, and a diamond led—trumped on his right. Another trump was led through him, which was similarly taken, and another diamond led, which was also trumped on his right. Another trump led through the duke caused his last trump but one to fall. The last was then extracted by the player on the left. The duke had now no diamonds, that being the suit of which he had held only the ace and king. Then the diamonds on his left were as good as trumps and make all the remaining tricks.

Public Administrator's Report.

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman.....	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estates of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin.....	123 87
Estate of Jas. Russell.....	100 00	82 32	100 53
Estate of A. Ely.....	182 60	182 60
Estate of A. B. Ropes.....	655 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, } ss.
 County of Sacramento, }

George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the estates hereinbefore named. That he is not, and was not at any time, interested in the expenditures of any kind made on account of any estate he administers, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890.
 WM. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public.
 [SEAL.] mehl5—6t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do herewith set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
 By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.

TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
 mehl5—9t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

The People of the State of California, to John A. Steen, greeting:

You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 31 day of December, 1889, in which action Anna M. Steen is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you and plaintiff, upon the alleged ground of habitual intemperance, and for the care, custody and control of the minor child, Gertrude D. Steen, and for general relief and for costs of suit; all of which more fully appears in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made.

And you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento; and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

In testimony whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do herewith set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 4th day of December, A. D. 1889.

W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk,
 By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.

MATT. F. JOHNSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.
 feb 8—w9.

About Ben Adhem and the Angel.

About Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase)!
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw, within the moonlight of his room,
Making it rich, and like a lily in bloom,
An angel, writing in a book of gold.
Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold,
And to the presence in the room he said,
"What writest thou?" The vision raised its head,
And, with a look made of all sweet accord,
Answer'd: "The names of those who love the Lord."
"And is mine one?" said Abou. "Nay, not so,"
Replied the angel. Abou spoke more low,
But cheerly still, and said: "I pray thee, then,
Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."
The angel wrote and vanished. The next night
It came again, with a great wakening light,
And show'd the names whom love of God had blessed,
And, lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest.

—Leigh Hunt.

Evolution of an Idea.

A couple of old salts met after a long absence and the following animated conversation ensued:

"Well, old man, how are you getting on?"
"First rate; I have taken a wife."
"A very sensible idea."
"Not a bit of it; she's a regular Tartar."
"Then I am sorry for you mate."
"There's no need; she brought me a large vessel as her marriage portion."
"Then you made a good bargain after all?"
"Nothing to boast of, I can tell you; the ship turned out a worthless old tinder-box."
"Then I'm sorry I spoke."
"Bah! You can speak as much as you like! The old tub was well insured and went down on her first voyage."
"So you got the pull there, anyhow?"
"Not so much mate; I only got 5,000 thalers out of the job as my share."
"That was too bad."
"Too bad? Nothing of the sort! Wife was on board and went down with the rest."

"The Grand Old Man" is a phrase that is popularly supposed to belong to Mr. W. E. Gladstone, and to have been invented especially to distinguish him. That is not the case. In a speech "t' owd Vicar" of Leeds, the late Dr. Hook, made at Manchester about thirty years ago, the reverend gentleman used the phrase in reference to the composer Handel. He was addressing a working class gathering at a popular concert, and here is the sentence in which the phrase occurred: "I dare not allude to the sacred oratorio, 'The Messiah,' as merely an entertainment and an amusement, for I remember that when the oratorio was first produced in London, and Handel was congratulated on having 'entertained' the town for a whole week, the grand old man, in his usual outspoken manner, said: 'I did not wish to entertain the town; I wished to do it good.'" There you have at once an interesting anecdote and the precursor of the most famous sobriquet of modern times.

History mentions numerous women who have endeavored with greater or less success, to change the color of the hair. Mary, Queen of Scots, had naturally magnificently glossy, black hair, but after the historic voyage from Calais over-seas to Scotland, and her reception by the sandy-haired Scotch, she sought to give an auburn hue to her tresses—possibly from an esthetic desire to be in harmony with her environment. Unhappy Marie Antoinette discovered a Frenchman who had compounded a powder having the quality of giving to the hair the rich dark-brown characteristic of the madonnas painted by many of the old masters. At one time in the heyday of the Roman empire, the wealthiest and handsomest of the patrician dames ate certain herbs, and took a complicated course of medicinal baths, with the object of lightening the shade of their abundant patrician hair. A similar attempt is recorded of Arabian beauties of the time of the Caliph Omar.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
NO. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES
212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties
Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

a a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE NEWS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, APRIL 12, 1890.

No. 8.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 470 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

Sacramento city has now a "perfect" government—perfect in that it is impossible that it could be more corrupt. A state of affairs has been reached that in other days and in other cities has been corrected by the people in their primary capacity; and the circumstances that have been developed here are fully as aggravating as those that eventually led to the organization of the vigilance committee in San Francisco in 1856, except that the element of assassination of an editor brave enough to attack the prevailing corruption does not exist. The Bee has printed several articles this week, written in very plain English, naming persons in and out of office, and charging them directly with the buying and selling of the appointed offices. Amounts are stated, and the circumstances of time and place of conversations given in detail. A showing has been made that would prompt any honest man named in connection with the matters to demand an investigation. Certainly, very emphatic denials could in reason be expected. The few who have been interviewed, interposed feeble and unsatisfactory explanations; and the silence of the others can be reasonably construed as an admission of the truth of the charges. The Bee published the names of the gentlemen who are its authority; they are well known, and of a character that carries weight with their statements. Significantly, some of the persons appointed to important positions are not fitted by education and capacity to properly do the work; and in some cases the question of integrity could be raised, and certainly established to an extent that the conductor of a business house would hardly entrust to such the management of important affairs and the control of cash, as the city has been compelled to do by the Trustees. It is the generally expressed opinion of the inhabitants of the city that the government is rotten; and the gravity of the charges that have been published justifies a full public investigation, to the end that if they are established, appropriate action be taken to cleanse the Augean stables and punish the guilty.

We have in former issues referred to the matter of the administration of the city government, and said it was unnecessarily expensive. The events that have transpired within the last two weeks have been but a repetition of what annually occurs here, yet the taint of ward politics and boodles is stronger this year than it has been before. The matter is very well understood by the people. It is not the fault of the city charter, for laws however good are valueless unless observed. The plan of government of Sacramento city is economical, and if carried out would be extremely beneficial to the people, though not to the politicians. The design of the charter is to select officers with regard only to fitness and capacity; but it has come to be that in a large measure the selections are made as a compensation for political service, either of the individual or some one who has recommended him. The result has been that very much money is expended from the public funds for which inadequate returns are made.

We will instance the matter of the collection of the water rates. The city now pays four men to do work which a few years ago was performed by two; and notwithstanding the increase of population, and the consequent increase of water-takers, the revenue is no larger than it was some ten years ago. True it is there has been a reduction of the rates, yet it is manifest the collections are not made as closely as they should be. We understand that in some instances parties have been permitted to be delinquent for an unreasonable length of time. It is hardly a satisfactory commentary upon the business management of the city, that an offer is presented to do all of the work of collecting for $250 a month, particularly in view of the Act of the Legislature "to provide for the better collection of water rates in the city of Sacramento," which authorizes the selection of a clerk with power to appoint one competent person as his deputy. We look upon this matter as do the people generally, and would not be disposed to object if it could be shown that the revenues had so increased that an additional force was necessary.

Several days were expended to select police officers to protect the lives and property of the inhabitants of the city. There is no question that more attention was paid to past and future politics than to the insignificant matter of efficient public service. The police law of the city is written in very plain language, and among its requirements is this:

Said Commissioners shall take the usual oath of office before the Superior Judge, and the further oath or affirmation that in every appointment or removal to be by them made to or from the police force, they will in no case and under no pretext appoint or remove any policeman for or on account of the political opinion of such policeman, or for any other cause than the fitness or unfitness of such person, in the best judgment of said Commissioners, for the place to which he shall be appointed, or from which he shall be removed.

It will not be contended that that provision of the law has ever been complied with. The police law provides for the appointment of a "permanent police force," and no term of office is specified. In 1878 the Commissioners fixed the term of office at two years, and of late years the selections have been made annually. Without reflecting upon the ability and integrity of the officers chosen, it is apparent that the limited tenure of office tends largely to destroy their efficiency and independence; and a new man, be he ever so faithful, has hardly time to familiarize himself with his duties before he is compelled to look after the saving of his head. It results in injustice both to the officers and the people. We had hoped the new administration would correct some of the evils of the past, and endeavor to bring about a business-like administration of the municipal government; but it looks very much as if the people who pay the taxes will have to engage in ward politics, and in some way get a "pull," if they hope for a healthier condition of things.

The grand jury will meet May 5th. If we mistake not the session of the body will be of benefit to the people if the jury performs its duty. Time has passed when words should be minced. If that which has been published concerning local governmental affairs and elections is true, punishment should follow; at least, a full investigation is demanded. To this grand jury we say, as do the public: "Hew to the line; let the chips fall where they may." As we have suggested, names have been freely printed; grave charges have been directly made; denials that might reasonably be expected have not come. If we mistake not—and we feel the amount of smoke justifies a belief there is a smouldering fire—a rigid investigation will result in benefit to the people. The evidence is now fresh. An honest man will not shrink from a searching inquiry; he cannot be hurt. The grand jury is clothed with supreme power; let that power be exercised without fear or favor. We feel that confidence in our judiciary, that if indictments should be found, proper action will be taken upon them.

The question as to how far the Federal Government may go in interfering in the political affairs of the States, under the claim of exercising the right to supervise the election of members of Congress, is among the most interesting subjects before the country. It is a many-sided proposition, and involves too much of the future of the country to admit of being discussed from the mere partisan standpoint. The manner in which it shall be treated in Congress will be a measure of the statesmanship of that body. We do not wish to be understood as saying that the consideration that may be bestowed upon the subject by Congress would be a fair measure of the statesmanship of the whole country, for our ablest men are not sent to the national legislature.

There are seven bills pending, in one situation or another, having for their object the superintendence of the election of Congressmen, and, in effect, the apportionment of the States for Congressional purposes, by Federal authority. Two of these bills originated in the Senate, and five in the House. They are all Republican measures. The McComas House bill, which has received a favorable report, is representative of them all. As amended in committee, it embraces the Australian ballot provision of the Lodge bill, and the further provision that, upon the petition of five hundred voters in any Congressional district, the whole election machinery of such district shall be thrown into the hands of officers appointed by the general government. The Australian ballot provision contemplates a system of registration of voters, independent of all State regulation, to be conducted by Federal officers. Another provision creates a Board of Canvassers of Election, invested with exclusive authority to count the vote and issue certificates of election to members of Congress, and whose action shall be entirely beyond State control. Still another provision directs that the members of the next Congress shall be elected from the several districts as they are now constituted, although the forthcoming census might be completed in time to allow some of the legislatures to make a new apportionment. And still another provision prohibits more than one apportionment of a State for Congressional purposes in ten years. There are other clauses of an important nature, but enough has been stated to show the scope of the bill.

We do not propose to discuss the question as to whether a law embracing the provisions we have described would be constitutional; or not. Our opinion is that it would not be constitutional but; admitting, for the sake of the argument, that it would be, would it be sound policy to enact or enforce such a law? Does any such exigency exist as calls for the grafting of such a policy as this upon our political system? It is contended that the notorious and persistent suppression of the colored vote at the South, calls for some remedy upon the part of the Federal Government. There is no doubt whatever that the evil complained of exists, and it is equally clear that it should be abated. But the remedy should be sought under the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, which provides that if any State shall deny to any class of persons, being over twenty-one years of age, and not having participated in rebellion or other crime, the right to vote, the basis of representation of such State in the Federal Congress shall be rendered in the same proportion as the right to vote shall have been abridged. Here is a grant of authority broad enough to cover the whole question of the suppression of the negro vote. It would be unreasonable to deprive New Hampshire and California of their autonomy, because Mississippi and South Carolina deny a free ballot to a portion of their citizens. Deal with the South as her crime deserves, but leave well-behaving States to control their own politics and their own elections. It would be unjust to proceed against law-abiding and enlightened communities by the same methods that might be enforced against communities given up to lawlessness and to the practice of political abuses. There is not, for instance, another political division of the globe, where the practice of local self-government has been more thoroughly developed than it is in the State of Vermont. The faculty for devising ways and means, through local action, adequate to satisfy every emergency, has become an almost hereditary characteristic of the people of that State. The ballot is as free and as pure as it is anywhere in the world; a result which is due solely to the people of the State. The Federal Government has never rendered the least help in the matter. The question which people, who are looking to final results, will ask is, as to why a self-governing, self-respecting and self-aspiring State like Vermont should be yoked alongside of a State like South Carolina. All the agencies which the Federal Government might put into operation would not insure a fairer system of voting or a fairer count of the ballots than exists in Iowa, and it would be an insult to what, upon the whole, is probably the most enlightened, moral and self-reliant community on the continent, to drag it into the same category with Florida or Mississippi.

The right of Congress to prescribe the times, places and manner of holding elections for members of Congress is unquestioned, and the term "manner" includes the right to supervise the casting of votes and the counting of the ballots. It would probably be held to embrace every act necessary to insure a fair election under the laws of the State. But as THEMIS looks at the matter, there is no authority whatever for Congressional interference in the matter of apportioning a State for the purpose of electing members of the House of Representatives. Even if Congress possessed the power, it were better that it should remain unexercised. The gerrymandering of States to accomplish partisan ends is a flagrant abuse of power, but the way to abolish the evil is to make it odious among the people. All attempts to reform local political morals through Federal legislation will prove futile. There is no difference between a community and an individual, and in either case regeneration comes from within. The Legislature of California, whatever its political constitution might be, would be a better judge of the necessity and fairness of a Congressional apportionment of the State than Congress could possibly be. And if, as might be the case, a partisan or unfair apportionment should be made, it would be an unwise exercise of power to prohibit a rectification short of ten years.

THEMIS is a Republican journal, but we cannot approve of the scheme which we have been describing. It is subversive of the ground principles of the Republican party. The Republican party is the party of the people, representing their local, individual intelligence and morality, or it is nothing. It has accomplished all its great exploits, because it has stood close to the people and kept faith with them. The whole structure of the party rests upon the intelligent forethought, self-reliance and patriotism of what Mr. Lincoln called the "plain people." The measure now before Congress shows a distrust of the people—a want of faith in their capacity to manage their own affairs. It is an attempt to establish a standard of political morals by public law. We raise no objection to any action upon the part of the Federal Government intended to secure a fair election of members of Congress, but any attempt to control the apportionment of the States into Congressional districts or to establish a system for the registration of voters would be an unwise invasion of a field in which the people are far more competent to act. Any step upon the part of Congress which would weaken the self-reliance or blunt the respect of the people in respect of their local political duties would result in permanent injury to the whole country. Apply such remedies as may be needed at the South, and even there only such as are absolutely necessary should be called into use; but as for the free and intelligent North, leave its people to follow their ancient custom of meeting all emergencies and caring for all defects of government through the exercise of sound common sense and a common understanding of moral principles.

There is a vast amount of common sense, morality and patriotism outside of the halls of Congress, and our statesmen could perform no higher duty than to give it a fair chance. At any rate, they should refrain from doing anything which would tend to lessen the sentiment of self-respect and self-reliance among the people.

On July 4, 1776, a bell in Philadelphia rang. Its echoes have not died out; its tones have reached all portions of the civilized world. It proclaimed the birth of the first American republic; it was the forecast of tottering thrones on both hemispheres. The bell was sent out from England, and bore upon its ample curve the prophetic inscription: "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." It proclaimed liberty, and yearly the American people commemorate the anniversary. For more than a century and for all time to come the prophesy of John Adams has been and will be fulfilled. That statesman wrote:

The day will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to Almighty God. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of the continent to the other from this time forth, forever more.

The fourth of July, 1826, was joyous and painful to the American people. It was the anniversary of the first half century of their national existence. It was the day on which John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died.

Such pass away; but they leave
All hope, or love, or truth, or LIBERTY—
Whose forms their mighty spirits could conceive,
To be a rule and law to ages that survive.

By a curious coincidence James Monroe, fifth President of the United States, died at New York, July 4, 1831.

It is very generally regarded that the celebration of the anniversary of the founding of the American Government is the oldest established observation of Liberty's blessing. It is not by any means. Through all the ages that have passed since the deliverance of the Jews from Egyptian bondage, that people has observed the rite of the Passover. The divine injunction has been scrupulously observed by that people in all countries. "And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the Lord throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance forever." The command of the great deliverer and law-giver will continue to be observed until the end of the world. The Passover is a reverential acknowledgment of the blessing of human liberty; it as well commemorates the establishment of the first republican government, for until 1100 B. C. the ruling of the Jewish people was by a succession of judges. Saul, the son of Kish, then became the first King of Israel, and the constitution of the monarchy (I Samuel x 25) was written and deposited in the sanctuary.

The King's Jester.

King James I, of England, died March 27, 1625. During his reign in Scotland he had a fool, or court jester, named Jemmy Camber, of whom he was very fond. This professional joker met with a rather peculiar death. One day the king sent his chamberlain for Camber, but he refused to come. He declined, saying that he was about to go and make his grave. The chamberlain had to go home without him, and tell the king of his clown's disobedience. Camber took a horse and rode into the churchyard in the town, where he found the sexton digging nine graves, as the custom then was—three for men, three for women, and three for children—to be in readiness for any one who might die. The clown dismounted, asked the sexton to lend him a spade, and dug a hole, which he told him to dig into a grave for him. He then gave him a French coin, got upon his horse and rode away. Within two hours he was suddenly taken ill and died. The sexton pointed out the grave the jester had told him to dig, and Camber was buried there. "And thus, you see," says the quaint old chronicle from which this story is taken, "fools have a guess at wit sometimes, and the wisest could have done no more, nor so much. But thus this fat foole fills a leane grave with his carkasse."

Domino Whist.

Do you ever play domino whist? It is the latest game of cards extant, and is rapidly superseding poker, hearts, and other games involving a minimum of science and a maximum of luck, in the home circle and quiet, decorous social gatherings. Four people play the game, and one who is familiar with the technical names of cards, informs us that the person who sits at the left of the dealer—whatever that is—begins by playing what is called a seven-spot of some suit, spades, hearts, clubs, or diamonds. If the player cannot show up a seven-spot he is elected to put a check in the pot, though our informant says a nickel, a dime, or a two-bit piece is just as good as a check and costs more. Then the next person takes up the game and plays a seven-spot, if he can, and after a seven-spot is placed on the table, the other cards in sequence are placed, eight-spots being placed on the right and six-spots on the left of the seven-spot. Every time a player cannot play a card on one of the four piles in the center of the table, down goes a check to the bottom of the pot. When some one plays his last card the game is at an end, and he takes a check for each card held by the other three players when the game ceased.

IN THE SOUTHLAND.

Within the heart of the famous blue-grass belt of Tennessee—famous because of its marvellous richness of black-loam soil and unparalleled perfection of climate—lies the beautiful estate of Oak View, its thousands of acres stretching away through amber fields, blue-green meadows, and dim-vistaed deer-park to the distant forests that lie, like plumed armies, at the base of the blue-hazed Harpeth hills.

The house, for generations the home of the "Breckenridge," is one of those generous, old-timed Southern structures of red brick, very spacious, very square, with vast, spreading, white pillared verandas, with long, cool corridors, and countless wide-flung doors and windows, through which there seems to float, even into the very air, that wonderful grace of hospitality that haloes each home in the dear land of Dixie.

Oak View! rich with varied reminiscence of a glorious past! rife with the electric potency to flash keen, vibrating interest east, west, north, and south to the heart of each equine enthusiast! A place of annual expectation and speculation, for from its noted stud is issued yearly the illustrious get of world-famed sires.

How beautiful it was in the rich glow of the westerling sun, whose level gleaming fell on the broad, sloping lawn like undulant waves of golden ether, through which, everywhere, the stately magnolia—that fairest child of the Southland—upreared its glossy, waxen verdure and exquisite, pearl-chalice blossoms, for whose fullness of fragrance the Southern air seemed athirst!

The deer-park, in the sun-flashed shadows of early twilight, lay to the left, while stretching far away to the right were the rich meadows, where the stock stood, knee-deep, in the blue-grass pastures, and in which the scattered sheep lost their identity, in vivid resemblance to thick-growing white clover blossoms.

The quarters, the barns, the paddocks, were beyond, out of sight, but the great sale stable and training-track lay conspicuously near the pike, and here, there, and everywhere—through croft and lawn and meadow, through the leafy dells and deer-park—the silvery Oak-land Creek wandered, like a bright, poetic fancy through the glowing realms of the beautiful.

A little nigger, from his "crow's-nest" in one of the tallest park trees, had seen on the crest of a distant hill, the Oak View carriage speeding rapidly homeward, and with monkey-like acrobatic skill, he swung himself swiftly forward, fired—courier-like—to be the first to announce the glad tidings in the quarter.

Instantly the veranda, steps, and lawn swarmed with negroes. Old and young, men, women, and children—ah, the children! numerous as the rabbits in the copse yonder, already yelling with the lusty lung and breadth of larynx of the little pickaninnies, in anticipation of the shower of silver coin which "Mars Brick'brige" was sure to fling them, and in their eager pranks tumbling over one another like a flock of young crows.

Possibly there has been on earth no warmer tie between master and serf than did exist between a kind Southern slave-holder and his negro bondman, and assuredly no other class of servants was ever permitted to be so inseparably a part of one's life, home, and family. How one recalls, with sudden heart-throb, the memory of one's own "black mammy," than whom no other autocrat has wielded so tender and yet so entire a despotic sway in nursery, in kitchen—everywhere!

How one has but to close one's eyes to dream that one hears again the well-remembered, much-loved voice crooning those magic lullabies that somehow could charm bright eyes to droop in sweet, swift slumber—could tempt little tired forms to nestle, so gladly, in the fond cradle of her broad, black bosom! O mammy! mammy! your voice is growing fainter, tainter, in the homes where, though loved, you will reign no more. To those who have known you and loved you, will always cling tenderest memories, as you stand, in your blue-cotton "coat" and gray bandanna, pictured against the vanishing background of one's youth.

* * * * *

Cleo felt a sense of delicious rest as, after her bath, she sat in her dainty dressing-gown in her own room—a cool, airy nest floored with white matting, the little brass bed gleaming like ewden-drift, the carved, bird's-eye maple furniture and low, luxurious chairs and couches of bamboo, the quaint, antique mirrors, innumerable silver sconces, with unlit waxen tapers, and the four wide-flung windows veiled in fluttering lace.

"Is it not dry yet, mammy? Oh, how deliciously you brush one's hair! No one does it like you."

"Not quite, honey; mos', do. You jes' wait for patience." Then, after a little, she said, "An' now, my lamb, what does yo' want to war dis ebenin'? one of dem airy, fussy things dat's got no sleeves?"

"No, indeed, get me something plain; yes, that will do nicely," as mammy drew out a dainty white muslin. "It is such a relief not to dress to-night."

"But, my lamb, yo' mus' look bery lubly ter-night, kase I specks Mars Henry'll cum 'lon' pres'n'ly—"

"Why, mamma, he does not know I am at home."

"Yes'm, he do; he knowed it fo' yo' cum."

"Did he? How?"

"Kase yisterday I wuz mos' 'stracted wif joy when I learned yo' wuz cumin', an' I went 'bout shoo'in' up dem brack niggers—dey so lazy, next time I'll break dar necks—when I sud'nly spied de tellyphone. Den it pops right inter my head how pow'ful glad Mars Polk would be ter learn the joyful tidin's; an' so I jes' stepped right up an' rung dat little bell an' sez', 'Will you be so bery perlit as to tell Mars Polk dat de colonel an' Miss Cleo's cumin' home ter-morrow? He'll be monstrous glad; he thinks a heap uv my fam'i.'"

"An' den I heard a mighty queer sound, like whirr-r-r—ha! ha! ha!—jes' perzactly like dat cussed tellypome war splittin' his sides 'bout suthin', an' den a leetle bell tinkled like a sheep-bell and den a deep, deep noise,—jes like Mars Polk's voice—sayin' 'Hello!'"

"So I sez, 'Hello yo's'f, an' if yo' please tell Mars Polk dat dis iz Miss Cleo's brack mammy. I pays my 'specks ter him, an' wants ter say dat my lamb iz cumin'. We got one of dem pesky leetle, yellow-jacket 'spatches, an' so mammy jes' hugged her brack se'f fur joy, an' I knows you want ter do de same; so I jes' thought I'd ax yo' ter take supper ter-morrow wif us.'"

"Deed I will, mammy, an' thank yo'; an' it sound-ed jes ez ef it war Mars Polk talkin', an' den de sassy thing tinged right plum in my face."—Current Literature.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

The shades of Wagner, looking down Upon New York, thought: "Tho' I own this town, There's a minority whom I'd convince That of all harmonies I'm sovereign prince! Their 'soft Italian skies' they vaunt to find With 'soft Italian melodies' combined In one sweet whole, which they call 'music,' I, To show their error, shall my magic try."

Forth from the Götterdämmerung he called Odin and Thor, from Venusberg th' enthralled Knight of Tannhäuser, and the Dutchman who Looks, on the stage, as if he might chew glue; Lohengrin on his swan, and Parsifal The Nibelung, and each enchanted "gal" Who swims beneath the Rhine in various weather—"Now," quoth he, "sing, blow, bellow all together!"

Low, at the word, a Cyclone, formed by "art," That sweeps with hideous "harmonies" athwart A smiling word, o'erwhelming good and bad And drowning all who are not Wagner-mad! But when the sun mounts th' Italian skies From grateful earth soft melodies arise; A bow adorns the clouds and Music's dream Proclaims melodious opera supreme!

Manager Hill and Neil Burgess both say that The Country Fair is better than a gold mine.

It's queer how often you read of actors' wives trying to commit suicide. "Yes," replied Murietta, "but maybe they sit out in front sometimes and look at the play."

The Venus used in the second act of The Old Homestead is a costly work of art. It is not "a property get-up." Denman Thompson a short time ago purchased it at one of the fashionable art sales.

Fay Templeton, it is said, will lead an opera company of her own next season. Well, the erotic and erratic Fay will only succeed in leading a company until a whim comes over her, and then she will seek her own individual company.

Vladimir Pachmann, the famous Russian pianist, who has just arrived from Europe, is a small-sized, profoundly keen-eyed man with a drooping ebony mustache and a closely clipped beard of the same material. He is rising eight and forty, and the husband of an accomplished English wife, who has been mistaken for Mrs. Langtry.

A dramatic version of Rider Haggard's Jess has been produced with success in a London theater, at a matinee. Mr. Andrew Lang is engaged in companionship with Mr. Haggard in writing a new drama. The critics are very merry over the partnership, taking in the way of an explanation of the championing of Rider Haggard, in which Mr. Lang has been earnestly engaged for a long time past.

There are actors who enter into characters very much as the evil spirit entered into the Gadarene swine, and then the whole thing runs down a steep place into the sea. There are other actors who take possession of a role as a melody takes possession of the soul, permeating all recesses and starting all the abeyant echoes of the heart. Then the part sings itself. Then there are others who get into the character very much as a civic grand marshal gets into his saddle. After all his fuss it is only a parade of himself.—(Nym Crinkle).

J. B. Polk, the comedian, was a guest of the Forty Club last Tuesday evening, says the Chicago Herald. Mr. Polk is so well remembered in the part of George Washington Phipps, in the great Union Square Theater success, The Banker's Daughter, that when he was called upon in the course of the evening to make a few remarks he felt tempted to relate a story of those days. But few of the people who contributed toward the success of Bronson Howard's first great play are now "in the harness," so to speak. Charlie Thorne is dead, Sarah Jewett has retired and poor Tom Morris has joined the silent majority. It was of Tom Morris that Polk's story was told. Tom was a convivial spirit and was the butt of innumerable practical jokes arranged by Thorne, Polk and others in the company. At that time Tom and his wife boarded up town in the same house with Mr. and Mrs. Polk. Now Joe was a dutiful husband, and he used to go home directly after the performance. He would be in bed and asleep when Morris rolled in. Mrs. Morris used to chide Tom for his bad habits in this direction, and would repeatedly greet him on his arrival with: "Tom, why can't you take Mr. Polk as a model. He is home by midnight, and he comes home sober, too." Well, one night Mr. Polk was invited to attend a banquet. There he remained until 3 A. M. He had been induced, meantime, to partake of a mysterious decoction called Swedish punch, and when he left the banquet hall he was a sight, so to speak. Upon his arrival at the house he discovered that he had neglected, in his hurry at the theater, to transfer his bunch of keys from his stage to his street clothes, and he was unable to open his front door. As there was no help for it he finally rang the bell two or three times before there was a response. Then he heard a heavy footfall on the stairs. The door was opened, and it was opened by Tom Morris, too. He saw Polk's condition at a glance, and, with an exultant air, he grabbed him by the collar and pulled him inside. Then he turned and called up to his wife: "Jennie! Jennie! Come down here at once! Here's your — model."

Book Chat.

Now, find me some white, ideal place,
Some silent, odorless, pathless space,
Where, through the long nights, hushed and secure,
The tranquil moonlight, austere and pure,
Like a lustrous presence, until dawn,
Shall pace with slow steps the dewy lawn;
While the trees, pink with eternal bloom,
Holy with incense of perfume,
Lift their mute arms to the starry skies,
Where, ever at peaceful eventime,
Vague and sweet, some Angelus shall chime;
Like the echo of a wondrous hymn
Voiced by ecstatic Seraphim;
Where each golden day too brief shall seem
For the setting of its rare new dream,
And each hour, from the amazed heart,
Tithes of the old sorrow shall depart.
Then, for last deed of thy charity,
Thou shall blind these dying eyes for me;
Lest in the heart of that perfect place,
I look again on that face—that face!

Charlotte M. Yonge has written 100 books. A very pretty round number. Wonder if she is tired enough to stop.

Bret Harte has written a new story entitled: A Sappho of Green Springs. It is one in line with his characteristic writings.

The English gentlewoman who writes over the pen-name of "Vernon Lee" is about to publish a volume called "Hauntings; Fantastic Stories."

George W. Vanderbilt is said to be a millionaire book buyer. He has certainly laid the foundation for a good library in his cash book, bank book and pocket book.

Alphonse Daudet's new novel is called The Caravan, and recounts the adventures of a young couple who took their wedding trip in a gypsy wagon.

The New York Sun the other day published an article on "The Decadence of Humor." It was doubtless inspired by reading the syndicate articles of the professional humorists.

Poe's "Raven" has been done into choice Volapuk. "The Raven" is "Rab"; the refrain Nevermore is "Denevelo," while the first line reads: "Vono du zeneit glumik felik'e finik asuenoh." We always feared that Raven would get into trouble, and now we know it.

Lord Acton is considered the most learned man in England. He is a Roman Catholic, and in addition to his barony has a baronetcy. His library contains no less than one hundred thousand volumes, all of which are carefully selected and number among them some very rare books.

Robert Louis Stevenson, the novelist, has taken a great fancy to Samoa. He has bought an estate of 400 acres on the hill near Apia, where he intends to make his home. He was at Sydney when last heard from, and his present intention is to visit England during the summer. He will be back in Samoa in November, when he will give himself up to house building and the completion of his South Sea novel, "The Wrecker." He contemplates writing a history of Samoa.

Journalistic criticism is a dangerous calling in Hungary. An article which appeared recently in a journal at Klausenburg gave so much offense that it led to no fewer than thirteen duels. The editor of the paper fought four duels, in one of which he killed his opponent; the author of the obnoxious article passed safely through three encounters, and the sub-editor took the lion's share with six combats.

Professional Chat.

A good story is told about a New York newspaper man who is soon to leave the city to take an important place on a paper published not more than 93,000,000 miles from the sun. When the proprietor of the paper met him by appointment, he said, looking full at the Brooklyn man: "My wife told me that what I really need is a wicked partner, and so I sent for you." "I feel amply qualified to act in that capacity," said the New York man, and the bargain followed as a matter of course.

The Green Bag tells us of the following learned decision by a J. P. in Maryland. An action had been brought against a railroad company for the killing of a cow, which was on the company's track. The testimony was all in favor of the company, tending overwhelmingly to show that the cow had "no business on the track." After the hearing the Justice promptly declared in favor of the plaintiff. The company's attorney was very much surprised, and asked the justice upon what grounds he could come to any such decision. He said, in reply, that the company was negligent in not putting up a sign board with "Look out for the locomotive" on it. To which the attorney remonstrated: "But the cow couldn't read." "That's very true," said the justice, "but it would have been much worse for the company if a person had been killed, and under all the circumstances the company is getting off easy. Judgment for plaintiff."

The following droll incident is related as having taken place in one of the municipal courts of Boston on the trial of a prisoner, charged with theft, who pleaded drunkenness in extenuation. Court—(to the policeman, who was a witness)—What did the man say when you arrested him? Witness—He said he was drunk. Court—I want his precise words, just as he uttered them. He didn't use the pronoun "he," did he? He didn't say "He was drunk?" Witness—Oh, yes, he did. He said he was drunk; he acknowledged the corn. Court—(getting impatient at the witness's stupidity)—You don't understand me at all. I want the words he uttered then. Didn't he say "I was drunk?" Witness (deprecatingly)—Oh, no, your Honor. He didn't say you were drunk; I wouldn't allow any man to charge that upon you in my presence. Prosecutor—Pshaw! you don't comprehend at all. His honor means did not the prisoner say to you "I was drunk?" Witness (reflectively)—Well, he might have said you was drunk, but I didn't hear him. Attorney for prisoner—What the Court desires is to have you state the prisoner's own words, preserving the precise form of pronoun that he made use of in reply. Was it the first person, I; second person, thou, or the third person, he, she or it? Now, then [with severity], upon your oath, didn't my client say "I was drunk." Witness (getting mad)—No, he didn't say you was drunk, either; but if he had, I reckon he wouldn't a' lied any. Do you s'pose the poor fellow charged this whole court with being drunk?—Green Bag.

Representative Mason tells a "court yarn," the incidents of which occurred while he was an attorney in Iowa. Mason appeared as counsel for the defendant. While engaged in delivering his argument an old countryman entered the court and took a seat next to the panel of jurors. Mason naturally directed his attention frequently to the furthest man from him, as he thought, in the jury. This happened to be a venerable man from the country. Glaring at him, he said: "Gentlemen of the jury, I want to know how on earth this man (referring to the plaintiff in the case, but staring at the supposed juror) can have the assurance to come into court? What does he want? What is his business here? What is he seeking? Again I demand, gentlemen of the jury, why is he here?" These questions were thought by the countryman to be addressed to him, but Mason thought the indignation written on the features of the countryman was the result of the argument and therefore highly promising for his client. He paused to note the effect of his words on the jury, when the rustic jumped up and howled: "You want to know what I am here for you cross-eyed fool? What am I looking for in this here court? Well, I'll tell you, you little fat son of a gun! For three days I have been here waiting for my fees, and nary a red cent have I got yet. What am I here for, you good-for-nothing animal? Pay me my witness fees, sir, and I'll get out of here at once." The unexpected outburst "brought down" the house, judge, jury and lawyers included. As for Mason, the able argument which he had prepared was never concluded.

The recent death of Edwin Cowles, editor of the Cleveland, O., Leader, recalls, says the New York World, a story of A. Miner Griswold, popular lecturer and editor of Texas Sifflings. In the early 60's, during the war, Mr. Griswold was city editor of the Cleveland Leader on the munificent salary of $10 a week. Rather difficult to get that sometimes, for the Leader had seas of financial troubles to sail through in those days. The foreman of the office was a dissipated man. One night he invaded the editorial sanctum wildly drunk, and Mr. Cowles ordered him out of the room. He refused, and Mr. Cowles attempted to put him out. The result was that, after a violent struggle, the two men fell to the floor close by Mr. Griswold's desk, the foreman on top. "Griswold," said Mr. Cowles, "take this man off." I beg pardon, Mr. Cowles," replied Griswold; "can't do it at $10 a week. I am only hired to write for your paper. If you had expected me to take men off—except in the way of writing a 'take-off' for the paper—you should have said so at the beginning. Nothing was mentioned about this in our original contract," Mr. Griswold added reproachfully. "Take him off," roared Cowles, "or I will discharge you in the morning." "You needn't wait until morning," said the "Fat Contributor." "I can't live on the salary I get now, and if I have to risk my life hauling men off from you, Mr. Cowles, my salary must be raised at once." Griswold finally yielded so far as to request the foreman to let Mr. Cowles up as a special favor to him (Griswold), which he did. Mr. Cowles got up, shook himself, and discharged Griswold on the spot, but as he was accustomed to being discharged in those days he didn't pay any attention to it, but kept right along at his work until he finally discharged himself to accept a better situation in Cincinnati.

NOTES.

Two of the cranks of Oakland, who are preaching the gospel of "fly to the hills," had visious the other night. May those nocturnal visitations not have been cucumbers or pigs' feet taken too late before going to bed.

The Almanach de Gotha is over a century and a quarter old. When it was first issued there were only three republics, Switzerland, San Marino, and Audorra, while to-day there are twenty-six republics. In the next decade there will doubtless be additions to the number.

The Record-Union, speaking of the temporary rest in our city of an eastern excursion party on Thursday last, asserts that the good travelers were especially struck by our streets. Will our contemporary kindly say if they were badly hurt when "struck," and if so, by what special street?

What a sick set of fanatics will arise in the "hills" about Berkeley and elsewhere next Monday, and find themselves minus their property, and as far from heaven as ever. It may be a Godsend for some of the lawyers in Oakland, who will be employed to recover the possessions thus foolishly sacrificed for the sake of salvation.

Patti became excited from being reported by the press as having criticised Mrs. Kendall, and indignantly exclaimed. "I am quite disgusted with the reporters who take such liberties with my name, and shall really have to exclude gentlemen of the press from my visiting list." Her expression is a little inconsistent. Impertinent reporters are one class, gentlemen of the press another. One can with propriety be received with a stout club, the other with courtesy.

The Record-Union reports Captain Lee, of the police, as saying the new force is doing well; that in his rounds at night he has invariably found his men on their beats. Wonderful! Did he expect to find them asleep so soon? Better give them time to get their new uniforms and acquaint themselves with the boundaries of their watch. It reminds one of the girl who boasted to her friends that she had been married a week, and her husband hadn't called her a liar once. Give the boys a chance.

That paper published in San Francisco and calling itself the "Monarch of the Dailies," succeeded last Sunday in establishing the fact that it can also make of itself the monarch of asses. A fifty-page edition devoted to a bogus gift enterprise in its own interest, and to an unlimited space for idle type writing girls to give their learned views as to the style of men they want for husbands, enabled it to present to the reader a "monarch" of slop-bucket nonsense and asinine trash that was a waste of time and printer's material, and a provocation for profanity.

The new Southern Pacific Company's president, C. P. Huntington, has delivered a bitter satire reflecting on Senator Stanford, the former president of the company. We know not the true inwardness, unless it is the avowed purpose of the new regime to relegate the Senator to private life and obscurity. This blow will, in all reasonable probability, prevent his candidacy for re-election to the United States Senate. If this is Huntington's design, he will undoubtedly accomplish that purpose. The latter gentleman's speech on accepting the presidency of the company indicates the bent of his mind, when he claims, by indirection, that he will never countenance any railroad interference against the choice and will of the people.

Never was mercy more humanely extended than in the case of young January, who was pardoned last Tuesday. It may not be said that he deserved the clemency. He had most flagrantly offended against the law, and outraged justice demanded an atonement. He was justly sentenced—the evidence of hastening death doubtless staying a heavier doom than the ten years' ostracism from the world, which he received. But the germs of that fell destroyer, consumption, have spread their roots through a shattered system, and the inevitable result only awaits the trickling of a few more grains of sand through the glass to claim the wreck of a former manhood. A stricken-hearted, weeping mother, a Rachael refusing to be comforted, self-exiled from the social coterie she so adorned by her charm of graceful attainment; a meek, bowed, prematurely decrepid father, toiling in age over the printer's case, picking, type by type, under the midnight light, a scant living—reduced by adversity and paternal devotion, reduced from the exalted estate of chief editor on leading State journals whose voice was wont to frame public opinion—forced by unkind fortune from a high State office to which a partial people had called him; a noble, generous, influential and honored family hidden in obscurity as if by a pall, though yet striving to retain in repute that good name they prized above all else—all combined, verily, united to make it a case to invite the commiseration of a sympathizing community. It was therefore, a magnanimous charity that prompted a pitying executive to unlock the prison door that the erring and dying boy might be taken back to his stricken home, there to fall at his mother's feet and craving her forgiveness, to be taken to her breast to surrender his last where he inspired his first breath.

Thomas Seymour Denton has invented the word "manuprint," verb, adjective and noun, for work done with the type writer. It is at once more accurate and suggestive than "manuscript" for such work. Mr. Denton is doubtless correct that "manuscript" is not the proper term to apply to work produced by a type writing machine. The word "manuscript" means, literally, something written by the hand, and is from the Latin manus, the hand, and scribere, to write, and as Webster defines it, is applied to a written book or paper as distinguished from one printed. The now common use of the type writing machine will compel the coinage of new words to distinguish its work from pen work or printing. The code of this State, passed before the writing machine came into use, requires court reporters to write out their shorthand in "plain, legible long-hand," and the report of such reporter "when written out in long-hand writing" and certified, can be used. As a matter of fact, in these days all shorthand transcriptions are made, not in long-hand writing, but in type written printing—if such an expression can be correctly employed. The transcription is "manuprinted."

In view of the wide-spread talk, both in the present and in the past, throughout the United States, but especially in our own State, and most recently in Sacramento city, of the methods resorted to by the political "bosses" to buy and distribute offices, it is very opportune to revert to the times in England nearly two hundred years ago and see if, by comparison, we are any worse in the matter of paying "boodle" for positions, than were our ancestors of the mother country. Of course that we had such noble example, does not render the practice less reprehensible; but there are many of us who are apt to believe that it is a practice originating with the Yankee nation, and indigenous to American soil. But let us see what Dean Swift has to say of the habit in 1711. On the 24th of March, of that year, in a letter to his friend Stella, he asks: "Did I tell you of a scoundrel about the court (the king's palace), that sells employments to ignorant people and cheats them of their money? He lately made a bargain for the vice-chamberlain's place, for seven thousand pounds ($35,000), and had received some guineas earnest; but the whole thing was discovered the other day, and examination taken of it by Lord Dartmouth, and I hope he will be swinged. The vice-chamberlain told me several particulars of it last night, at Lord Masham's." In those days the buying of positions was called "selling the bear's skin." In another correspondence on this same subject the great Dean of St. Patrick's (the Swift), says: "There is a certain petty retainer to the court who has no employment at all himself, but is a partner for life to one that has. This gentleman resides constantly with his family among us; where, being wholly at leisure, he is consequently very speculative, perpetually turning his thoughts to improve those happy talents that nature has given him. He has naturally considered with himself, the strange opinions that people at a distance have of courts. Strangers are apt to think that whoever has an apartment in the royal palace can go through the lodgings as if he were at home, and talk familiarly with every one he meets, must needs have at any time a dozen or two employments in his power; the least word from him to a gentleman, or upon extraordinary occasions to the queen herself, would certainly do the business! This ignorance has often been made very good use of by dexterous men among us. Old courtiers will tell you twenty stories of Harry Killgrew, Fleetwood Sheppard and others, who would often sell places that were never in being, and dispose of others a good pennyworth before they were vacant; how the privy garden at Whitehall was actually sold, and an artist sent to measure it; how one man was made curtain-lifter to the king, and another his majesty's gold-finder; so that our predecessors must be allowed their due honor. Neither do I at all pretend that the hero I am now celebrating was the first inventor of the art; wherein it must, however, be granted, that he hath made most wonderful improvements." Later THEMIS will revert to the exposé by Swift of the "boodle" business as it operated at the court of Queen Anne, and make some comparison of mode of those and these times. A perusal of the foregoing will enable the reader to see how exactly alike were the operations of those who "sold the bear's skin" and the "bosses" of our day who have a "pull."

PLAN OF EXUMERATOR DISTRICTS.

Second Supervisor Census District.

Alameda has 31 districts, 19 of which are in Oakland. The first ward of Oakland is divided into five districts, the same boundaries used in 1880; second ward, two districts, same as in 1880; third ward two districts, same as in 1880; fourth ward three districts, same as in 1880; fifth ward one district, same as in 1880; sixth ward two districts, no change; seventh ward three districts, same as in 1880. Oakland Township, West Berkeley and Ocean View form district 20; Oakland Township, Temescal and Bay View make district 21; Eden Township, San Leandro and San Lorenzo, district 22; Eden Township, Haywards, Mt. Eden and Castro Valley, district 23; Washington Township, Alvarado and Centerville, district 24; Washington Township, Niles and Mission, district 25; Murray Township, Sunol, Dublin and Pleasanton, district 26; Murray Township, Livermore and Altamont, district 27; Brooklyn Township, all outside of Oakland, district 28. Alameda Township—Commencing at the intersection of Harrison street and San Leandro Bay, along the west and north shores of San Leandro Bay to Park, east line of Park to Harrison street, south line of Harrison street to San Leandro Bay, also that part of Alameda Township west of Euclid street, district 29; Alameda Township—Commencing at the intersection of Euclid street and the bay, east side of Euclid street to the water front, along water front to Willow street, west side of Willow street to bay, and along the shore of bay to Euclid street, district 30. Alameda Township—Commencing at the intersection of Willow street and the bay on the east side of Willow street to Euclid line, on the south and west of Euclid line to bay, along shores of bay to Harrison street, on the north side of Harrison street to Park street, on west side of Park street to bay and along shore of bay to Willow street, district 31.

Alpine county forms district 32.

Amador county is divided into six districts: Township 1, including Jackson, district 33; township 2, which embraces Ione City, district 34; township 3, Volcano, district 35; township 4, Sutter Creek and Amador, district 36; township 5, Drytown, district 37; township 6, Plymouth and Fiddletown, district 38.

Calaveras county has five districts: Angels Township, district 39; San Andreas, district 40; Jenny Lind, district 41; Murphys, district 42; Mokelumne, district 43.

Contra Costa county has five districts: Township 1, Martinez, Piuole, San Pablo, Port Costa, Crockett and Selby, district 44; township 2, Lafayette, Walnut Creek and Davisville, district 45; township 3, Pacheco and Concord, district 46; township 4, Clayton, Nortonville, Summerville and New York, district 47; township 5, Antioch, Empire, Brentwood and Byron, district 48.

El Dorado county eight districts: Lake Valley and Georgetown Townships, district 49; Mountain and Cosumnes, district 50; Coloma and White Oak, district 51; Kelsey Greenwood and Salmon Falls, district 52; Mud Springs, district 53; City of Placerville, district 54; Placerville Township, outside of city, district 55; Diamond Springs, district 56.

Nevada county, eleven districts: Nevada Township—That part lying south of Deer creek, district 57. Nevada Township—That portion lying north of Deer creek to suspension bridge, along south line of Blue Tent road to South Yuba river, district 58. Nevada Township—That portion lying north of Deer creek to suspension bridge, along north line of Blue Tent road to South Yuba river, district 59. Grass Valley Township—That portion lying south and west of Bear river, to the old stage road to Colfax, west of said road to the town of Grass Valley, and along the east side of Wolf creek to Bear river, district 60. Grass Valley Township—That portion lying north and east of the old stage road to Colfax, district 61. Grass Valley Township—That portion lying north and west of Wolf creek, including the town of Grass Valley, thence along the narrow gauge railroad to the township line, district 62. North Bloomfield and Eureka Townships, district 63; Washington and Little York, district 64; Bridgeport, district 65; Rough and Ready, district 66; Meadow Lake, district 67.

Placer county, seven districts: Townships 1 and 9, Roseville, Allen, Newcastle, Rocklin and Pino, district 68; township 10, Lincoln and Sheridan, district 69; township 3, Auburn and Clipper Gap, district 70; township 5 and 6, Todd's Valley, Forest Hill, Bath and Michigan Bluff, district 71; township 4, Colfax, Gold Run and Dutch Flat, district 72; township 7, 8 and 11, Iowa Hill, Damascus, Deadwood, Tahoe, Last Chance, Cisco, Summit, Martins Valley and Griffith, district 73; township 4, Ophir and Virginia, district 74.

Sacramento county, twenty-four districts: Sacramento City—All that portion north of K street and west of 4th street, including Slater's Addition, district 75; all north of K street and between 4th and 7th streets, district 76; all north of K street and between 7th and 10th streets, district 77; all north of K and between 10th and 12th streets, district 78; all south of K and west of 2d street; also all south of O and west of 4th street, district 79; all south of K between 2d and 4th streets, and north of O street, district 80; all south of K between 4th and 6th streets, district 81; all south of K between 6th and 8th streets, district 82; all south of K between 8th and 10th, district 83; all south of K between 10th and 14th streets, district 84; all south of K between 14th and 19th streets, district 85; all south of K between 19th and 31st streets, district 86; all north of K between 12th and 14th streets, district 87; all north of K between 14th and 19th streets, district 88; all north of K between 19th and 31st streets, district 89. Sutter Township, district 90; Granite, district 91; Lee and Cosumnes, district 92; Alabama and Dry Creek, district 93; Franklin, district 94; San Joaquin, district 95; American and Center, district 96; Natoma and Mississippi, district 97; Georgiana, district 98; Brighton, district 99.

San Joaquin county, twelve districts: City of Stockton—First ward, district 100; second ward, districts 101, 102 and 103; third ward, districts 104 and 105. O'Neil Township, district 106; Union and Library, district 107; Elliott, district 108; Elkhorn, district 109; Dent, district 110; Castoria and Tulare, district 111; Douglass, district 112.

Tuolumne county, five districts: Sonora, district 113; township 1, outside of Sonora, district 114; township 2, district 115; township 3, district 116; township 4, district 117.

In the appointment of enumerators they must reside in the district for which they are selected, unless it appears no competent person is available who desires the position, in that case the Supervisor of Census can designate some competent person to enumerate a district other than where he resides. The Department of the Interior will exact from all census officers a strict compliance with the law and instructions. It would be useless for incompetent or negligent persons to attempt this delicate and exacting work.

FLASHES.

A lottery ticket: a marriage license.

Vision is the art of seeing things invisible.

Malicious retorts are often called witticisms.

It is a serious thing to become professionally humorous.

A drink seems necessary to bind every bargain nowadays.

As the best law is founded upon reason, so are the best manners.

The reason that women walk with toes in is because they have in steps.

Good manners is the art of making those people easy with whom we converse.

An Artistic Work.

President Ross, of the Board of Supervisors, is famous for his love of field sports. Whenever an opportunity is offered, he and his companions—gun and dogs—betake themselves to the fields to engage in bagging game birds. A local artist, Mrs. E. A. Herrick, wife of the Rev. Mr. Herrick, availed herself of one of these sporting trips as the subject of a picture. Mr. Ross is represented in the picture as seated on the hillside, where he is enjoying a quiet smoke. His gun and game are lying near, while his groups of hunting dogs are gathered around him as if partaking of their master's enjoyment. There is a beautiful and artistic landscape background. Mr. Ross is the owner of the picture and prizes it very highly.

Baseball.

The opening game of the Northern California League will be played at Snowflake Park, between the Lavensons and Snowflakes, to-morrow afternoon. These teams are evenly matched, and an interesting contest is guaranteed.

The Weather.

The highest and lowest temperature for the past week was 80° and 44°, as against 72° and 50° for the same date last year. The rainfall during the same time amounted to .36 of an inch, making 31.03 inches for this season, as against 16.38 inches to an equal date last season. The prevailing direction of the wind for the week was from a westerly point, varying between southwest and northwest.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188. *

Legend of the Fountains of Shasta.

Where the tree-tops form perfumed canopies of green.
Where the streams are terraced with pools of limpid sheen,
Where the landscape is with entrancing beauty rife,
Where the buoyant air provides an added charm for life—
There—there is Shasta.

South of Mt. Shasta in the now famed cañon of the Sacramento are great natural curiosities known as the fountains of Shasta—streams of water pure as crystal, cold even in the mid of summer, gushing out from the rocks, and falling down the mountain side into the river. They are supposed to be outlets of a subterranean stream fed by the eternal snows that crown the peak, where the Coast mountains of the west join the Sierras of the east. They include the noted Mossbrae Falls and a number of springs, several of which are mineral in character, one of them being the celebrated Shasta Spring. These remarkable springs or fountains, as they may with propriety be termed, are accounted for by the following legend, mention of which is also made by Bancroft, who cites from Joaquin Miller's tales of Modoc life:

In the far, far long-ago, the Great Spirit concluded to make the world. He created Mt. Shasta first. Using a large, sharp stone as an auger, he bored a hole in the sky, through which he pushed down snow and ice until he had reared the mountain. Then he stepped down from cloud to cloud to the peak, and thence to the earth. Stooping, he pressed his finger into the ground here and there, and caused the first trees to start. The sun commenced its action, causing the snow to melt and give nourishment to the trees. The Great Spirit gathered some leaves, breathed upon them, and they became birds. He then broke a stick into a number of pieces. From the small pieces he made fish—from the middle pieces he made the lesser animals—from the large pieces he made the grizzly bear, and gave him authority to act as master over all the animal creation. The grizzly soon became so large, so powerful and so cunning that the Great Spirit began to fear him, and as a matter of protection made a wigwam for himself out of Mt. Shasta. The Great Spirit and his family dwelt within, and the smoke curling up from the summit showed the fire was burning on the hearth. Then a great storm came—the wind blew the ocean against the mountain and made it tremble. The Great Spirit asked his little daughter to go up and quiet the storm, cautioning her not to look out, but to put forth her hand and make a sign before giving the command. The child clambered up to the roof, did as told, and was about to descend, when her curiosity got the best of her; she wanted to see what the world looked like—she put out her head—the wind caught her by the hair, dragged her down the mountain side, and left her in the land of the grizzly bears. Near the mountain base dwelt a family of grizzlies. The old grizzly was returning from a hunt with a young elk in one paw and a bludgeon on his shoulder. He spied the fair child unconscious on the ground. He lifted the little one tenderly and carried her to his home. The old mother grizzly pitied the child, and gave her milk from her own breast, and reared her as one of her own family. The girl grew up and married the eldest son of the old grizzly, and their offspring was man. The grizzlies then were very different from the grizzlies now—they walked erect like men, carried clubs for weapons, and talked. When man was born the grizzly nation rejoiced and was filled with pride. They united and built a wigwam for the young mother near that of the Great Spirit—and it is now known as Little Mt. Shasta. Many years passed away—the old mother grizzly became feeble and felt she was soon to die. Her conscience smote her because through all the years she had concealed from the Great Spirit the whereabouts of his child. She called the grizzlies together at the new lodge, and sent her eldest grandson up towards the clouds to the summit of Mt. Shasta, to tell the Great Spirit where his darling might be found. When the Great Spirit heard he was filled with joy, and ran down the mountain with great speed—so great was his speed, the snow was melted, and streams began to flow, and hidden watercourses were formed, and the fountains and springs along the Sacramento began to flow, as they continue to this day.

The grizzly nation had assembled from all quarters of their domain, and prepared a grand reception. As the Great Spirit neared his daughter's wigwam he found thousands of grizzlies standing erect with clubs on their shoulders in two files facing, one on either side of the door. As the Great Spirit sped down between the lines, shouts of welcome rent the air. He reached his child, but when he found her so changed, and that a new race had been created without his consent, he was seized with anger; his rage was fearful to behold. He looked at the old grandmother grizzly with such an awful countenance that she died on the spot. Then the grizzlies began to howl and lament. The Great Spirit lifted his daughter tenderly in his arms, and before departing turned to the grizzlies and cursed them in his fury. "Be silent!" he cried. "Never again speak! Stand erect no more. Use your hands as feet and look to the ground till I come again." Then he drove them away, and also drove the new race of men from him. He then closed the door of Little Mt. Shasta and returned to his own wigwam, carrying his daughter with him, and they were never afterward seen.

The grizzlies are still under his curse, they never speak nor stand erect except when their life is in danger, when the Great Spirit permits them to stand upright as of old, and use their fists like men. The Great Spirit with his daughter long since returned to the land beyond the sky. The wigwam is abandoned. The hearthstone is cold. Smoke no longer curls upward from the summit of Mt. Shasta.

—John Audley.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

The "Bostonians" will hold the boards of the Metropolitan for a brief season next week.

The Hyde Specialty Company gave a fine entertainment last night to a good house at the Clunie Opera House. The same bill for to-night.

Rice's Evangeline will be again presented at the Metropolitan on the 14th and 15th. It is one of the popular attractions, even after its long run.

Fatinitza was given by the McNeill Club for three nights this week to overflowing houses. It was certainly a brave undertaking for a company of amateurs. There had never been a performance of the opera in this city from which to gain instruction, yet this company with commendable fortitude essayed the difficult roles, both in a musical and dramatic view. No professional combination ever dressed or mounted an opera or drama in better style. The first night the young ladies and gentlemen were somewhat timid and did not do justice either to themselves or the audience, but the second performance redeemed them, or rather the members of the excellent company redeemed themselves. The third night they came up to the standard of professionals. It is not fair in amateur performances to discriminate, but it would be unjust not to mention the splendid chorus and its excellent drill. Mrs. Brune has one of the sweetest and richest voices, which compensated for her lack of stage business. Her rendition of "Lydia," while lacking in the dramatic force, was musically a gem. Miss May Kewen as "Vladimir" and "Fatinitza" was unfortunately not in condition to appear on the stage on account of illness, yet with heroic fortitude she struggled three nights through the difficult role. She has a sweet voice, but was unable to show her power. Her dramatic action was excellent. On the last night she was in good voice. Miss L. Lynn as "Vasil" was vivacious, and the young lady discloses much dramatic ability. She has a good voice, easy and natural stage presence. The little mischief of the company was Miss May Casedy as "Dimitri." Her antics were mirth-provoking. When closing up the march in the first act at the tail-end of the rag-tag and bob-tailed company, she fairly brought down the house. Miss Pullman is very natural on the stage and has the metal for an artist. All the ladies acted well their parts. Of the gentlemen: H. R. Blair as the "War Correspondent" was the best. His dramatic and musical powers are indeed up to the professional standard. At no time did he overdo his work, and was always natural, easy and perfect in his lines and music. E. B. Carroll did "Kantchukoff" well after the first night. C. T. Milliken is entitled to credit for his careful rendition of "Mustapha." Elwood Bruner made the most of the inferior part, "Stiepan." His artistic "falls" were quite natural. He ought to have received the 1,000 lashes ordered by General Kantchukoff for his interpolated puns. Bruner has a rich, full, musical voice and does his dramatic business well. "Rich" Cohn has a sweet and fascinating tenor, but will never acquire the divine dramatic art. As the Bees says, he can't sit down the right way to make him even a stage Turk. Misses Kaibel, Young and Wheat did all their respective parts required. There was no adequate chance for Mrs. George Hansbrow's rich voice except in the chorus. All in all there is no cause for any complaint. The management of W. H. Kinross was up to his usual excellence. We can say well done McNeill Club. Let the Sacramento public have many more such performances. The orchestra was the best we have heard, and was perfect in the music.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

This Will Interest You.

In a few days J. F. Cooper will receive, direct from the publishers, a choice lot of standard and popular music which will be sold at ten cents per copy. Ten thousand free catalogues of the same. Call or send for one. Cooper's Music Store.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

Violet! Nadjy! Boquet!

The latest flavors in Ice Cream Soda. Moynihan's, 418 J street.

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers.

SPRING RACE MEETING

Under the auspices of the

STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY,
Will be held at
SACRAMENTO,

Saturday, April 26th,

Tuesday, April 29th,

Thursday, May 1st,

Saturday, May 3d.

EXCLUSIVELY RUNNING.

It is the intention of this Society to make these Meetings an important adjunct in the encouragement of breeding on the coast.

$25,000 in Stakes and Purses

Will be contested for by representatives of the principal stables of California, prior to their departure for Eastern engagements.

The same management that has made racing a success at the State Fairs, will conduct these meetings, with the hope of making them as attractive in point of entertainment as are those of the Fall meetings.

General Admission, including seat in Grand Stand and Quarter-Stretch privileges, $1.00.

CHRIS. GREEN, President.

EDWIN F. SMITH, Secretary.

ORDINANCE No. 24.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY of Sacramento, do ordain as follows:

That there be and hereby is granted to the Folsom Water Power Company, a corporation, the right and privilege to close from public use that portion of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge and Scott streets, lying and extending westerly from the westerly side of Leidesdorff street, and such portion of River street as extends along the westerly side of Blocks 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, all in the town of Folsom and county of Sacramento.

And that there be and also hereby is granted to the said Folsom Water Power Company the franchise, right and privilege to construct and maintain a canal and canals and waterways, with a railroad on the bank of said canals, in, upon and across the before mentioned portions of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge and River streets, and the alleys in the before mentioned blocks, numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, and also along Leidesdorff, Reading, and the street on the westerly side of the Sacramento Valley Railroad, and also along Forrest street to the easterly boundary of the town of Folsom, in the county of Sacramento, State of California.

Provided that said Company shall keep open the present road to the American river bridge, and to cover the canal, wherever it crosses said road or runs upon any street for public use, with good and sufficient bridges or stone culverts.

Adopted April 9, 1890, by the following vote: Ayes—Tebbets, Black, Bates, Greer and Ross.

[Seal]

H. C. ROSS, Chairman.
Attest: W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
april2—4t

Fine Table
Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Grand Handwritten & Co.
Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

CHANGED HANDS.SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH
BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

CELEBRATEDWEINER LAGER BEER*CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER,

1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER, BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

The Days That Never Return.

Over the strings of my harp to-day
Floats a song that is half a sigh,
Like the sound of leaves when the wind sweeps by,
Like the sound of breakers far away.
As they beat and sob,
As they beat and throb,
Till I hear a voice in the distant roar
On that lovely stretch of sandy shore.

Over the strings of my harp to-day
Floats a song for the dying year—
A song that thrills with an unshed tear
Thro' the winter twilight, cold and gray,
As the breakers sob,
As the breakers throb,
And I hear the voice with the old refrain,
For the days that never come back again.

Over the strings of my harp to-day
Floats a song for my sweet, lost youth—
For oh, I would give in very truth,
Riches and fame and power away
To dream once more
Those bright dreams o'er.
"It is vain regret," sighs that old refrain,
For the days that never come back again.

Over the strings of my harp to-day
Floats a song for the dying year;
A song that thrills with an unshed tear,
Like the sound of breakers away—
How they beat and sob!
How they beat and throb!
And I hear that voice with its old refrain,
For the days that never come back again.
—Isabel Hotchkiss.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated.
One trial will convince you of the truth
of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED
DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST
MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA
sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER
LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Stude-
baker Wagons and Buggies,
Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.
M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy

It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO.,
703 J Street, Sacramento, Agents.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh,
Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES
and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand

ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of
all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing
of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets.
Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS

601 J STREET. SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT
from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,
Third and J streets Nagele & Svensson, sole agents.
Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDougall,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and
dealer in Saddles, Har-
nesses, Robes, Collars,
Whips, Spurs, Brushes
Currycombs, etc.

1130 I Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties
a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company
PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at
SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
9:30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6:20 A
7:05 P	Denning, El Paso and East	6:45 P
8:15 P	Knight's Landing	7:40 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6:00 A
3:00 P	Ogden and East	10:30 A
3:00 P	Oroville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Red Bluff via Marysville	4:00 P
6:15 A	Redding via Willows	7:25 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
6:45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9:10 P
10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	2:50 P
10:50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara	9:55 A
6:45 A	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa	7:25 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno	6:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno	6:00 A
12:05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:45 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo	7:25 P
12:15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	10:25 A
7:15 A	Folsom and Placerville	2:40 P
5:20 P	Folsom	6:50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday ex-
cepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

NOTICE.

HAVING PURCHASED FROM MESSRS. KIL-
GORE & CO., their interests in the grocery business, and reopened their old stand at the northwest corner of Tenth and K with a full stock of choice groceries, we respectfully request their old patrons to call and get prices before buying elsewhere. Respectfully.

T. H. COOK & CO.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

Public Administrator's Report.

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estate of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin		123 87
Estate of Jas. Russell	100 00	82 32	100 53
Estate of A. Ely	182 60	182 60
Estate of A. B. Ropes	635 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, } ss.
County of Sacramento, }

George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the estates hereinbefore named. That he is not, and was not at any time, interested in the expenditures of any kind made on account of any estate he administers, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.
Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890.
WM. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public.
[SEAL.] mehl5-6t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
mehl-1-9t.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF BRIDGET NAUGHTON, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, executors of the estate of Bridget Naughton, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said executors, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

FRANK KUNZ and
MICHAEL BRENNAN,
Executors of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated April 2, 1890. apr5-5t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL MCKEE, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Julia McKee, administratrix of the estate of Samuel McKee, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the law office of A. J. and Elwood Bruner, at the Court-house, Seventh and J streets, Sacramento, Cal.

JULIA MCKEE,
Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 28th, 1890.
A. J. & ELWOOD BRUNER,
Attorneys for Estat
mech29-4t

Certificate of Partnership.

State of California, } ss.
City and County of San Francisco, }

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we are copartners, transacting business in the city and county of Sacramento, State of California, under the firm name and style of WHITTIER, FULLER & CO., and that the names in full, and place of residence of all the members of such copartnership, are as follows, to-wit: William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, all residents of the city and county of San Francisco, State of California, and Lewellyn Tozer, resident of the city and county of Sacramento, State of California.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands this first day of April, 1890.

WM. FRANK WHITTIER,
WILLIAM PALMER FULLER,
FREDERICK N. WOODS,
WILLIAM P. FULLER, JR.,
LEWELLYN TOZER.

State of California, } ss.
City and County of San Francisco, }

On the first day of April, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Lewis B. Harris, a Notary Public in and for said city and county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, and Lewellyn Tozer, known to me as the individuals described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the annexed instrument, and they severally acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the city and county of San Francisco, the day and year last above written,
(Signed) LEWIS B. HARRIS, Notary Public.
[Seal.] apr5-5t

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

924 J STREET.

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.
J. K. NICKERSON, Agent.

STABLE TO LET

INQUIRE AT

No. 1713 G STREET.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

H. A. PETRALLI,

DEALER IN

Stoves, Metals and Tinware

716 K STREET.

PLUMBING, GASFITTING, AND ROOFING.
Jobbing a Specialty.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from $25
Stylish Pants made to order 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from 40

And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreel building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

DENTIST.

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Egyptian Book of the Dead.

The Egyptian "Book of the Dead" or funeral ritual contains, probably, the oldest existing record of the faith of man in the immortality of the soul. Its chapters are found inscribed on mummy cases, or written on rolls of papyrus within them. The book recounts the supposed experience of the soul after death; its passage across the land of darkness into the blessed fields, to its final judgment and final admission into the presence of its Father in "the eternal dwelling place of the cleansed spirit." The following passage from one of these mummy cases recently exhumed shows its express declaration of a future life: "The osiris (soul) lives after death. Every God rejoices with life; the osiris rejoices as the Gods rejoice."

It is supposed the "Book of the Dead" originated with the Egyptians between 2,000 and 3,000 years before Christ. A mummy case from the great pyramid inscribed 1,700 years before the time of Jesus has the following beautiful inscription: "Oh God, the protector of him who cries to Thee, he is Thine; let him have no harm; let him be as one of Thy flying servants. Thou art he, he is Thou. Make it well for him in the land of spirits."

German wife who wants a new dress—"Dear Hans, if you would like it, I will get your favorite breakfast for you to-morrow. But then you must—" "Thank you, my dear, you are always so good and kind; but I really think I can get those things cheaper at the restaurant."

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

ANNE KANE,
Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 13th, 1890. mehl22-5t

"THE KING'S TOUCH."

In England, two centuries ago, popular superstition credited the "Royal Touch" with curing scrofula. These superstitious practices have now become obsolete, and in their place we have a scientific remedy in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which eliminates the impurities from the blood by the natural channels, thereby cleansing the system from all taints and impurities from whatever cause arising. It is truly a royal remedy, world-famed and the only liver, lung and blood remedy guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded. As a regulator of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, "Golden Medical Discovery" cures all bilious attacks, indigestion and Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhea and kindred ailments. As an alterative, or blood-purifier, it manifests its marvelous properties in the cure of the worst Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, and Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, as well as Lung-scrofula, commonly known as Pulmonary Consumption, if taken in time and given a fair trial. WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Catarrh in the Head which they cannot cure. By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases, no matter how bad, or of how long standing. Fifty cents, by druggists.

Greatest of Their Kind.

The largest sheep ranch in the world is in the counties of Webb and Dimmet, in Texas. It contains upwards of 400,000 acres, and yearly pastures 800,000 sheep.

Marshall Pass, on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, 10,851 feet above the sea level, is the highest point crossed by a railroad inside the limits of the United States.

The steam ferryboat Robert Garrett, plying between Brooklyn and New York city, carries 5,000 passengers at a trip, and is said to be the largest steam ferryboat in existence.

The largest sawmill in the world is located at Clinton, Ia. It cost $200,000, and is capable of sawing 450,000 feet of lumber in eight hours. It has seven band and three gang saws, and two batteries of ten boilers each.

The largest sheet of plate glass in the United States, and perhaps in the world, is in a saloon front at Detroit, Mich. It is of the usual height used in glass fronts, and is thirteen feet across and four inches in thickness.

The largest check ever passed in this country was for $2,500,000, by Vanderbilt. It was the purchase price of the Nickel Plate railroad. The smallest are those for one cent each, with which the treasury officials square accounts.

The largest steam derrick in the world is used by a shipping company at Hamburg, Germany. It is kept at the docks and used in lifting immense weights on and off ship-board. It can pick up a 10-wheeled locomotive with perfect ease.

A pair of bantam chickens were sold at the London Crystal Palace for $500, which was almost exactly twice their weight in gold. This is believed to be the highest price ever paid for a single pair of fowls since the days of extravagant and luxurious Rome.

The costliest horse barn in the world belongs to D. E. Crouse, and is located at Syracuse, N. Y. It has now cost the owner, a millionaire horseman, something like $700,000. Incidental expenses will make the stable cost little short of a round million.

The largest and heaviest building stone ever quarried in England was taken from the Plankington quarry, near Norwich, in February, 1889. It was in one piece, without crack or flaw, and weighed over thirty-five tons. It was fifteen feet long, six feet high, and five feet wide.

The largest tree in the world, according to statistics lately published by the Italian government, but which hardly tallies with the big tree article in the Sunday Republican of November 24th, is a monster chestnut standing at the foot of Mount Aetna. The circumference of the main trunk at 60 feet from the ground is 212 feet.

The deepest coal mine in the world is at St. Andre du Poirier, France, and yearly produces 300,000 tons of coal. The mine is worked with two shafts, one 2,952 feet deep, and the other 3,083. The latter shaft is now being deepened, and will soon touch the 4,000-foot level. A remarkable feature in this deep mine is the comparative low temperature experienced, which seldom rises above 75° F. The gold and silver mines of the Pacific coast, of our own country, at a depth less than half that of the French coal mine, often have much difficulty in keeping the temperature low enough to admit of working. In some levels of the great Comstock lode the temperature rises as high as 120°.

An Adelaide, Australia, daily paper has in its employ three men named Day. One of them is called Sun Day, because he is a clergyman; another, being the cashier, is called Pay Day, while the third, being a law reporter, goes by the name of Judgment Day.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES
212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties
Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK
FAIR DEALING! LOW PRICES!

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

61 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1890.

No. 9.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

Any bully has courage enough to strike a person whom he imagines insults him, but it requires a higher sort of courage to refrain from the blow, and a higher sort still to return for the insult a spirit of kindness and love. How few there are who are able to do it! Sickles showed more courage in forgiving his erring wife than he did in shooting Key. It takes more courage to overlook than it does to shoot. Not the most muscular men are bravest, else a gymnast would be likely to turn us all out of our inheritance. It is the lowest form of courage that relies on its big fists, but the very highest, on the contrary, that reposes in its pure spiritual force. Men are exceedingly apt to think it a proof of timidity that a person is bashful, or even modest; but they afterwards learn to beware of the terrible claws that are hidden underneath the shining velvet of this self distrust. It is fact, that there is more power, many times over, in the one who never speaks or thinks of his power, than in a dozen men who are all the time doing nothing else. Appearances, as the old copy book used to say, are exceedingly deceitful; and the more so because so many think it worth while to live for appearances, and let go the realities. It is this chase after the favor of others that does the mischief, and men find themselves finally so enmeshed in their exertions that their individual force is almost entirely lost. That is the way one's courage goes, literally oozing out of him, little by little. We waste on others, and the opinions, prejudices, and whims of others, what ought to be carefully husbanded for ourselves. We should have more resistance, all of us, if we acted more on this suggestion. Then we would not care so much what others were going to do or say, but rather how the matter lay in our own sense of right and honor; and thus we should have a courage of our own that would be courage indeed. There is boast and brag enough, but much too little courage. The lack is not of talk, but of the thing. For example: the standing toast is, and long has been, the perfect freedom of our country and time; yet there are few persons indeed, who dare to think for themselves on matters that enlist general sympathy, and fewer still who dare express their thoughts when once they have formed them. The tyranny of the mob is not a whit less when visited upon independance of expression than of action. The brute forces that lie at the bottom of society are no more tolerant of free speech than they are of free action. They say they are, and think that makes their case out; but experiment settles or unsettles everything. And it requires a profound courage indeed, in these times, even, to confront such an array of forces with a deliberateness and self possession that proves the absence of all fear for the consequences. It is not every man who thinks himself courageous, who can safely pass so trying an ordeal. It is a much easier matter to face a duelist's pistol than it is to face and defy the prejudices of the community in which one lives. Any man, if he school himself either to indifference or recklessness, may do the former; but it is not every man who dares do the latter. It is so much more comfortable to have one's self passed over in the general talk than it is to be criticised and opposed. One feels so much easier to be considered in regular standing in any social arrangement, than to be utterly left out of the account because his ways of thinking are different from the general way. Persecution for opinion's sake is not such a pleasant matter. If one has wife and children dependent upon him, and looking confidently up to him for support, he hates nothing worse than he does to have his business broken up, or even interfered with, because he is not considered "sound on the goose" in matters of local concern. If the truth were better known and more widely published, it would be understood at once what an amount of suffering is caused by deliberate and malicious persecution on account of opinions not held to be orthodox. The mode of persecution may have become more endurable, because more secret and subtle; but the spirit of the thing is as rank and venomous as it ever was under the most malignant of the popes, or in the darkest days of the inquisition.

We do need a higher and nobler strain of courage, and that is a serious fact. Not mere brag or boast, not any stronger assertion, not any broader emphasis; but a courage that is perfectly self-reliant, that is as brave to keep silent as to speak; that is as willing to suffer as to dare; and still, on the other hand, that will make bold and defiant utterances on the right occasion; that dwarfs social ease and social position by contrast with its own inspired expression; that makes all things else look small indeed when it is sought to hold them up by the side of its own integrity and necessity. More of such a courage is needed everywhere to-day. We require that this coarse, animal courage, which at best finds vent and expression in swagger and threat, shall be elevated and refined, till it shall be qualified to operate in the higher regions of the nature. It is comparatively an easy thing for a minister of the present day to assert his faith before an audience that dare not think otherwise than he thinks. But if the same man were placed in the presence of opponents, who had no sympathy with his methods, and were ready at every point to dispute his reasoning, he would find it a very difficult matter to keep his courage up. His position would look weaker than it ever did before; it would surprise him to see how inconclusive his logic is; he would feel that a strong prop had suddenly been taken from under him, and that his fabric, hitherto esteemed so strong, had suddenly tumbled to the ground. Much of this, if not most of it, would be because of the perfect want of any magnetic relation between himself and his hearers. And here is where he would discover the leakage in his courage. A man without a strong measure of positive magnetism can be said to possess courage in but a slight, or moderate degree. In some localities it demands much courage to differ from the majority, especially if it is an overwhelming one, on politics. Not every man who styles himself a free man dares do that; or, if he does, it is apt to be in a sullen, or impulsive, or angry way, betraying the fact that he is afraid to trust altogether to reason, and sense, and breadth of view, but must needs supply the want of that with an overplus of heat and haste. This is not courage; it is only a sort of despotism. The highest courage is the highest reason; but when one dares not trust his reason, he is manifestly a coward from top to bottom. True courage is collected and cool, self poised, and quite sufficient to take care of itself; the spurious sort blusters and fusses about, trying to make bystanders think it is indeed the genuine article. It takes courage to tell a man, or a community, when necessary and proper, of his or its faults; and it takes just as much to stand the talking of it without impatience or anger. A man must be courageous to withstand flattery and patronage of an agreeable kind; nor must he be less so, either, if he would control the disposition to resent such things as if they were affronts and insults. Courage may be passive as well as active. It does not always betray itself in resistance, but quite as often in silence and suffering. It is, in fact, hardly more than the perfect accord and balance of all the faculties; that happy state of things internally which tells the man when to strike and when to refrain; how far he may go and at what point he must desist; when to make war and when to keep the peace. How few have yet come into such a state of mind! What development and discipline we all must yet undergo!

The late Samuel J. Randall was the twenty-eighth of the persons who had been elected Speaker of the House of Representatives. The first Speaker was F. A. Muhlenburg, elected in 1789. Then followed successively, Jonathan Trumbull, F. A. Muhlenburg, Jonathan Dayton, Theodore Sedgwick, Nathaniel Macon, Joseph B. Varnum, Henry Clay, Langdon Cheves, Henry Clay, John W. Taylor, Philip P. Barbour, Henry Clay, John W. Taylor, Andrew Stevenson, John Bell, James K. Polk, Robert M. T. Hunter, John White, John W. Jones, John W. Davis, Robert C. Winthrop, Howell Cobb, Linn Boyd, Nathaniel P. Banks, James L. Orr, Wm. Pennington, Galusha A. Grow, Schuyler Colfax, James G. Blaine, Michael C. Kerr, and then Randall, who served until 1881. The list embraces the names of many distinguished men.

Muhlenburg was of a noted German family of American patriots. Both his father and elder brother were prominent in the revolution. He was born in Pennsylvania in 1750, and died in 1801. Educated for the ministry, he could hardly have been expected to engage in politics. His views were decidedly American, and the boldness of his expression as to contemporaneous events led to his oppression by the British authorities. In the selection of the first Congress the necessity was felt that the German element of the country should be represented, and the choice fell upon Muhlenburg. He served as Speaker twice. Trumbull was Secretary and aid-de-camp of General Washington during the revolution, and after his service as Speaker, was United States Senator, Lieutenant Governor and Governor of Connecticut. His father was, as Sparks says, relied on by Washington "as one of his main pillars of support," with whom he consulted in emergencies. It is said that the term "Brother Jonathan" had its origin in a phrase at times used by Washington, "Let us hear what Brother Jonathan says"—referring to the father of Speaker Trumbull. Dayton was the son of a general of the revolution—Elias Dayton—and served himself in the army. He was one of the convention that framed the Federal Constitution, and was subsequently a Senator. Later on he was arrested for alleged complicity with Aaron Burr in his conspiracy, but no further proceedings were had against him. Sedgwick was a lawyer and soldier, and took a leading part in the suppression of Shay's rebellion, reference to which was made in THEMIS of February 15th last. Sedgwick was also a Senator, and at the time of his death was on the bench of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. He was ardently hostile to slavery. Macon served as a private in the volunteer service in the revolution, declined proffered promotions and refused pay or pension. While in the army, in 1780, he was elected to the North Carolina Senate. After his services as Speaker he was elected United States Senator, and was twice tendered the office of Postmaster-General by President Jefferson. In 1824 Virginia cast her 24 electoral votes for him for Vice President. He was in Congress thirty-seven successive years. Before his death he gave directions to a neighbor to make for him a plain coffin, to be paid for before his interment, and selected for his burial place a barren ridge, and ordered that the spot be marked only by a pile of loose stones from the field. The history of Henry Clay is too familiar to Americans to need recapitulation. Cveves was an eminent lawyer. In 1808 he was the leading member of the General Assembly of South Carolina; then was elected to Congress. While Speaker, not one of his decisions was reversed by the House. As early as 1830 he favored the withdrawal of the South from the Union, but opposed the unsupported action of a single State in that direction as suicidal, and in 1852 exerted his influence against the idea of separate State secession. He died in 1857. Bell was one of the most noted lawyers and statesmen of his day. He was elected to the Tennessee Senate in 1817, when but 20 years of age. In 1827 he was elected to Congress, and remained in that body 14 years. In 1841 he became Secretary of War in the cabinet of President Harrison, but with the other members resigned that autumn on the separation of President Tyler from the Whig party. He was tendered the office of United States Senator and declined, but after serving a term in the State Senate, was elected to the United States Senate in 1847, and reelected in 1853. In 1860 he was nominated by the "Constitutional Union" party for President, with Edward Everett for Vice President, and received the electoral votes of Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee. He died in 1869. Polk was of Irish descent, and the name of his ancestors was originally Pollock. He first served in the Tennessee Legislature, and in 1825 was elected to Congress. In 1834 he was defeated for Speaker by Bell, but in 1835 won the office over that gentleman, and served until 1839. He was then elected Governor of Tennessee, and in 1840 was nominated by several State Legislatures for Vice President. In 1844 he was elected President over Henry Clay. Polk died in 1849. Hunter was a Virginian, and after serving in the House of Delegates of that State, was elected to Congress in 1837. Later he was elected a United States Senator, and held that office until the outbreak of the civil war. In 1860 he received the next highest vote to that for Stephen A. Douglas for candidate for President in the Democratic Convention at Charleston. Afterward he took a leading part in the secession of the South, and the original scheme was that he was to have been President of the Confederate government, and Jefferson Davis Commander-in-Chief of the army. He was formally expelled from the United States Senate in July, 1861. Under the Confederate government he was for a time Secretary of State, and Senator from Virginia. In 1865 he was one of the Peace Commissioners to meet President Lincoln upon a vessel at Hampton Roads. Lincoln refused to treat on the basis of the recognition of the independence of the South, and the conference was futile. Hunter advocated the prosecution of the war, and after its termination was arrested for treason, but was pardoned by President Johnson. Winthrop descended from John Winthrop, the first Governor of the Colony of Massachusetts. He studied law with Daniel Webster but never practiced particularly. He was then a member of the Legislature; afterwards of Congress. In 1850 he was appointed United States Senator to succeed Webster. Afterward he unsuccessfully contested for that office and for Governor. He is perhaps better known in literature than in politics. Cobb was a native of Georgia; began his congressional career in 1843, and in 1849 was elected Speaker after a violent contest. He demanded the extension of slavery into California and New Mexico by Federal authority. In 1851 he was elected Governor of Georgia, and in 1855 was again sent to Congress. In 1857 he became Secretary of the Treasury under President Buchanan, and resigned December 10, 1860, to engage in the secession movement. In February, 1861, he was elected President of the Confederate Congress, and subsequently was commissioned a Major-General, but took little part in military movements. He died at New York in 1868. Banks was elected to the Massachusetts Legislature in 1849, and in 1852 was chosen Congressman. In December, 1855, he was adopted by the American and Republican parties as the candidate of the latter for Speaker. After a contest of more than two months, he was elected on the 133d ballot by a small plurality. He afterward served three terms as Governor of Massachusetts. At the breaking out of the war, in 1861, he was commissioned a Major-General, and served with credit until May, 1864. In November of that year he was again returned to Congress and served several terms. Orr was a South Carolinian, and went to Congress in 1848. He was afterward a member of the South Carolina Convention which voted for secession, and a Confederate Senator. From 1865 to 1868 he was provisional Governor of South Carolina under Federal appointment, and afterward acted with the Republican party. In 1873 he was appointed Minister to Russia, and died at St. Petersburg, May 5th, of that year. Pennington had been Governor of New Jersey. Varnum was born in 1750, and died in 1821. He was a revolutionary soldier and a statesman, and after the expiration of his term as Speaker, represented Massachusetts in the United States Senate. Taylor was born in New York in 1784, and died in Ohio in 1854. He served nine consecutive terms in Congress, and was twice Speaker. Barbour was born in 1783 and died in 1841. He first served in the Virginia Legislature, and was elected to Congress in 1814. After his retirement from Congress in 1827, he became Judge of the Virginia General Court, and in 1836 was appointed a Justice of the United States Supreme Court. He occupied that office until his death. Stevenson was born in 1784 and died in 1857. He was in Congress from 1823 to 1834, and from 1836 to 1841 was Minister to England. White was born in 1805 and died in 1845. He was a lawyer of ability, and was in Congress from 1835 to 1845. Afterward he was appointed a Federal Judge in his own State, and died by his own hand. Jones was a Congressman for ten years. Davis was born in 1799 and died in 1859. He was a native of Indiana, and served several terms in the State Legislature. From 1835 to 1847 he was in Congress, and in 1853-4 was Territorial Governor of Oregon. He presided over the convention that nominated Pierce for President. Boyd was born in 1800 and died in 1859. At the age of 26 he was elected to the Kentucky Legislature, and in 1835 was sent to Congress. Afterward he was Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky. Grow was born in Connecticut in 1824, and was elected to Congress in 1850. He was the youngest member of the session of 1851. On his retirement from the Speakership, the House tendered him a vote of thanks—the first like recognition tendered to any Speaker. Vice President Colfax and James G. Blaine are too well known to need particular reference. Speaker Kerr was prevented by ill health from presiding for any considerable length of time. He died during the Congressional recess on August 19, 1876, in the 50th year of his age, and in the following December Randall was selected to the position. Speaking of Randall, Secretary Blaine in his work says:

He had represented a Philadelphia district for 13 years and had acquired a thorough knowledge of the rules and methods of the House. He is a strong partizan, with many elements of leadership. He is fair-minded towards his political opponents, generous to his friends, makes no compromise with enemies, never neglects his public duties, and never forgets the interests of the Democratic party.

In 1877 Randall was reelected Speaker, receiving 149 votes; his Republican competitor, James A. Garfield, receiving 132. Among the new members of the House at that session was Thomas B. Reed—now Speaker. In 1879 Randall was again elected Speaker over Garfield, receiving 143 votes, to 125 for the latter. Randall entered Congress in December 1863, and among the Representatives at that time were Isaac N. Arnold, E. C. Ingersoll, E. B. Washburn, Schuyler Colfax (Speaker), W. S. Holman, Geo. W. Julian, Godlove S. Orth, D. W. Voorhees, W. B. Allison, John A. Kasson, James F. Wilson, Robert Mallory, Green Clay Smith, James G. Blaine, J. A. J. Cresswell, Henry Winter Davis, Oakes Ames, Geo. S. Boutwell, Henry L. Dawes, D. W. Gooch, Ignatius Donnelly, Wm. Windom, Francis P. Blair, Jr., James Brooks, Reuben E. Fenton, John A. Griswold, Francis Kernan, Fernando Wood, Jas. M. Ashley, Samuel S. Cox, James A. Garfield, Geo. H. Pendleton, R. C. Schenck, Wm. D. Kelley, Thaddeus Stevens and Justin S. Morrill. Since Randall, Jos. W. Keifer served as Speaker from 1881 to 1883, and J. G. Carlisle from 1883 to 1889, when he was succeeded by Thomas B. Reed.

COUNT PUNCH-YOUR-NOSE.

Count Punonrostro, a prominent Spanish nobleman, has just died in Madrid. The story of his title is told in the Nouvelle Revue Internationale:

Charles V. was a great hunter. One day, while partridge shooting, he was accompanied by a game-keeper, who joined in the sport. The servants of His Majesty were loaded with game, when a partridge rose under the feet of the two sportsmen. Two shots went off simultaneously. The partridge dropped.

"Who killed that bird?" said the King to the game-keeper.

"I did," was the reply.

"You lie, you scoundrel," said the King, in a rage.

Thereupon the guard unceremoniously slugged His Majesty. The first movement of Charles was to try to kill him, but fortunately his gun was not loaded. Then his second and more successful effort was to save the man from the fury of his attendants, and to send him off to prison, with the recommendation to prepare for death, remarking also that his offense was all the more atrocious because he could not say that he really did not lie, inasmuch as it was doubtful who shot the bird.

"I have no doubt about it, sire," replied the prisoner. "Permit me to examine the bird."

The King ordered the partridge to be brought to him, and, after having examined it, the guard affirmed that it was he who shot it, because it was hit by a bullet, and he had used bullets all day long, while the King used shot. A further examination of the dead partridge by the King and his attendants proved that the game-keeper was correct.

The King was sorry, but he nevertheless sent the prisoner to Madrid, where he was placed in the cell of offenders condemned to death. At the last moment the King promised him pardon if he would repent, but the guard refused. Charles ordered the game-keeper to be brought into his presence, and again asked him if he repented.

"Sire," replied the guard, "if I had a thousand lives, and your Majesty should tell me a thousand times, without reason, that I lied, a thousand times I would punch your Majesty in the nose, and a thousand times I would go quietly to execution."

"And you would thus be a loss to my reign!" exclaimed the King. "Would that I were surrounded by men like you! I not only pardon you, but I attach you to my person, and make you Count of Punonrostro (Fist-in-the-face)."

In 1523 the title was formally bestowed upon the new Count, and until his death he was one of the most faithful vassals of Charles V.

Count Andrassy, riding once with his secretary, M. Doczy, says the New York Sun, remarked that all the people were looking at him, and his secretary said: "Your excellency imagines, I suppose, that the Jews are admiring the Prime Minister, but I can tell you they are not—they are looking at me. They know that I am a poor Jew, and to them it is more wonderful to see me sitting by you than for you to be sitting in the Emperor's Council." Afterward at dinner the Count told the story and asked the company which had made the greater career, himself or his secretary. In his own behalf he urged that he had himself been poor and hard pressed to live, and reminded them of his years of exile. The secretary described his obscure birth and the poverty of his early days, and told how the first literary wages he had ever made had been the pay for writing a love letter for a cook. Everybody was taking the secretary's part, and the Count exclaimed: "But you all forget that I have been hung." He had been, by the government, in effigy, after he had evaded the death sentence by flight.

The Host of the Northern Armies.

2,772,488 men were furnished to the Northern armies by the different States; reduced to a three years' standing the number is 2,320,272. Eight regular calls were made for volunteers during the war for nearly 2,800,000 men; these brought 2,656,553 men. 776,829 men were drafted, of whom 161,244 failed to appear, 315,509 were exempt, 73,607 paid for substitutes, and 46,347 were held for service. According to unofficial figures the nationalities of 2,018,200 men were as follows:

		Per Cent.
Native born	1,523,300	75.48
Germans	176,800	8.76
Irish	144,200	7.14
British-American	53,500	2.65
English	45,500	2.26
Other foreigners	74,900	3.71
Total	2,018,200	100.00

He who does a good deed is instantly ennobled; he who does a mean act is by the action itself contracted and self-degraded.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

It was to oblige his wife that Mr. Victor consented that his wife should adopt Eugenie Belmore as her daughter. She was childless and needed a companion, and Miss Belmore soon became a great comfort to her. He was angered to see the young lady wear one day a Mizpah pin that had been one of his gifts to his wife, and made to order from his own design.

"Where did you get that pin?" he asked, rather rudely.

"I have owned it for two years," she said, looking rather blankly from Mr. Victor to his wife. "It is only lately that I have begun to wear it."

"Where do you keep your trinkets?" he asked Mrs. Victor.

She unlocked her jewel case, but the pin was not there.

"I have not worn it for a long time," she said.

"Is your pin marked?" Mr. Victor asked Eugenie.

"Oh, yes, said Eugenie; 'the initials are my own and those of another person who gave it to me—since I must talk about it, the gentleman who was my betrothed husband at the time. He refused to receive, his presents back.'"

She unfastened the pin and handed it to Mr. Victor, who turned to the back and uttered a cry.

"Why, this is the pin I gave you, Elizabeth," he said. "B. V. to E. B., Benjamin Victor and Elizabeth Bell. These are the letters on your pin."

"My name is Eugenie Belmore; his is Barton Vining."

"I swear," cried Mr. Victor, "that this is the pin I gave my wife before we were married. I drew the design on a bit of cardboard for the jeweler."

Eugenie's face flushed hotly.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself Mr. Victor," she said; "and you will be when Mrs. Victor finds her pin."

It was not for several days that Mrs. Victor allowed herself to be convinced that the pin was hers. Then she begged Eugenie to tell her why she was afraid to own it; and Mr. Victor begged the girl to confess and be forgiven. She persisted in her story, and actually seized the pin from his hand and put it in her scarf again. At this his temper overcame Mr. Victor, and he sent for a policeman and put her in charge. The girl was tried, convicted, and sentenced.

Mrs. Victor, having given her evidence, and sworn to the pin, took to her bed. Mr. Victor was wretched. He wished, over and over again, that he had not discovered the theft; but, having done so, he could not understand how he could have acted differently.

Three months passed thus. Eugenie—a young lady by birth and education—was in prison amongst criminals of the lowest description. Mrs. Victor was always miserable, and Mr. Victor had almost made up his mind that life was not worth the living under such uncomfortable circumstances, when one morning he chanced to feel chilly, and remembered a flannel-backed waistcoat, which he had not worn for a year. He was in a hurry to be off, and tossed the things about in his wardrobe until he found it.

As he did so he discovered that they already contained something wrapped in paper, and drawing the little parcel forth, unfolded—the Mizpah pin.

Suddenly facts that he had utterly forgotten, rushed back upon his mind. He recalled a circumstance that had escaped him as completely as though it had never been.

He had taken his wife's pin from the cushion, dropped it, trodden upon it and broken one of the chains, wrapped it up to take to the jeweler's to be repaired before she should discover the injury, and forgotten all about it.

His pin was exactly the same as poor Eugenie's, and the initials were the same; but for all that he had sworn falsely when he took his oath that it was his.

Mr. Victor was not a man to pardon himself any more readily than he would pardon another. He rushed at once to his wife with his story, and his anger at his own want of memory—his insanity, he called it. And all the powers of wealth and the law were set to work to free Eugenie from her unjust imprisonment.

It was not hard work; and when she was free, the girl found herself also rich. Mr. Victor had settled a small fortune upon her.

Later on her old lover returned from Egypt, and the quarrel was made up. The Mizpah pin which had caused all this trouble he had bought at a sale of the effects of a deceased lady who left many ornaments behind. The jeweler, fancying the pattern Mr. Victor had given him, had repeated it, doubtless; and after it was his own, Barton Vining had marked it with the initials of his own and Eugenie's name.

Mrs. Victor gave Eugenie a great wedding, and is always a welcome guest at Mrs. Vining's home, and is called grandma by her children; but Eugenie seldom visits at Mr. Victor's.

Hatred is increased through hatred, yet hatred is completely conquered by love, changes into love; and this love will be greater than if no hatred had preceded it.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Mande Allen, the clever young actress, now with the Midnight Bell and Annie Adams have both signed with Charles Frohman.

Nellie McHenry is going to copy Rosina Vokes' style of work and is having two plays written of the order of the Circus Rider.

Booth is going to revive the Iron Chest and Brutus next season for off nights, while Barrett, on similar occasions, will use Yorick's Love, and David Garrick.

The great tenor Tamagno is a stingy fellow. He has his brother for a valet, refused him decent fare while in this country and shipped him home as a steerage passenger, while he occupied a fine stateroom on the same steamer.

"Give me the man who sings at his work," says a writer. He can have him. And amusement goes will approve also of giving him many of the men and women who sing on the stage, provided he can induce them to follow some other calling.

Isabella Coe, one of the best leading comedienne in the country, was the recipient recently, from her husband, Frank McKee, manager of David Henderson's Gondolier companies, of a magnificent marquise ring containing nineteen diamonds.

A character new to the stage, it is claimed, will be made known when Daniel Sully introduces his newly acquired play The Millionaire to the public. It reveals the character of an Irishman who comes to this country in his youth and penniless, and who by a systematic and properly directed application of his natural abilities acquires fortune and good reputation as a contractor for the construction of public works of magnitude.

During the performance of King Midas in the Deutsche Theater, Berlin, recently, the well-known critic, Conrad Alberti, hissed, whereupon a leading banker named Meyer arose and indignantly shouted: "That's always the way! These blackmailers will hiss on the first night." The critic then pitched into the banker, and fists and sticks were freely used. Meyer's eyes were blackened, and the blood flowed from Alberti's nose. Both men were arrested.

Mr. Victor Benham, the young American pianist, is winning great success at Stuttgart. He has been invited to play before the King of Wurtemberg. The Stuttgart Tagblatt speaks of the young artist in the most flattering terms. The Paris Gil Blas also gives him long and well-considered attention, saying of his playing of the Beethoven Sonata, op. 106: "His playing was perfect, free from mannerisms and full of strength. Most astonishing, however, was his improvisations on themes given him by Marmontel and Sivioli."

Pauline Hall and Fannie Rice are writing novels giving their experiences in comic opera. Miss Hall's book is ready for the publisher, while the greater portion of Miss Fannie Rice's book is in her brain waiting for the sprightly lass to develop it. What a fad it seems to be now for actresses to take to the pen, either giving their experiences on the stage or writing fiction. Every Sunday the newspapers contain articles from some of the footlight favorites. The two professions have always been closely allied, and now they appear to be running still closer together.

Book Chat.

"Gyn" is the nom de plume under which the Countess de Martel, niece of Mirabeau, writes her spirited and dashing novels.

William D. Howells recently remarked to a friend that he considered foreign travel detrimental to the career of an American novelist.

A Philadelphia woman has won the prize offered by a New York man for the best essay on the extermination of the mosquito. What device she has adopted has not, as yet, been published, but it is believed to be an improvement on the wet towel.

James Whitcomb Riley is a good illustration of the hard times that literary people undergo. He was a clever writer and versifier for many years, but did not make any great hit until a few years ago, when his composition, "When the Frost Is On the Pumpkin," took a firm hold on the popular heart.

Several ladies, anxious to see the poet Tennyson, paid a pilgrimage to his country seat. Tennyson was seated on the front steps smoking an old pipe when they appeared in the distance. The old poet watched them crossing his lawn and his brow lowered. "Is this Lord Tennyson? Well, we're so sorry to intrude. We wish to apologize for entering in this unceremonious fashion—" "Then why don't you go?" said Tennyson curtly, surrounding himself with a cloud of tobacco smoke. And that is the attitude most Englishmen maintain in their homes.

Among the best known men of New York City is Rossiter Johnson, the editor of Appleton's Annual Cyclopaedia, and perhaps better known as the editor of the "Little Classics" series published in Boston a dozen years ago. He began life as a newspaper man, but soon branched off into book making. He is Secretary of the Authors' Club, and in this capacity has recently prepared the book of the club, which has a unique cover. It was prepared so as to be ready for the members on the anniversary of Washington Irving's birthday, April 3d, and on the cover is the following quotation: "Take my word for it, the only happy author in this world is he who is below the care of reputation," so arranged as if a torn sheet of manuscript in Irving's handwriting had fallen on the printed page, so as to connect with the text. This is something unique in the way of a cover, and is Mr. Johnson's own design.

A story is told of Congressman Taulbee, of Kentucky, who was shot lately by Charles Kiucaid in Washington City, that contains considerable humor. An old colored man called Uncle Eph had lived in the Taulbee family many years and was considered an honest and faithful old servant. After the election for Congressmen, Taulbee having been a candidate, he was taunted by some of his opponents with the statement that Uncle Eph had voted against him. Loath to believe it, he called old Eph into his room and said: "Uncle Eph, is it true that you voted against me at the election?" "Yes, Massa William," replied Eph; "I voted de 'Publican ticket.' "Well," said Taulbee, "I like your honesty, and here's a dollar for your candor." The old colored man stood scratching his head, when Taulbee asked: "Well, Eph, what is it?" "Well, Massa Taulbee," said Eph, "if you is buying candor you owes me fo' dollars mo', kase I voted agin' ye five times."

Like Victor Hugo, Alexander Dumas the elder is represented in the present generation by two grandchildren only. These are the two daughters of his illustrious son, Mme. Lippman and Mlle. Jeannine. The first named is a very gay, flirtations dame, and bothers her father a good deal by her heedless friskiness of nature. There is not a particle of harm about her or her escapades, but as she is the daughter of the most famous dramatist of France her most innocent frolics are sure to be noted and commented upon. Mlle. Jeannine, on the contrary, is quiet, reserved and studious. She is very plain, the negro type of complexion and feature being far more pronounced in her countenance than they are in that of Dumas himself. This is often the case with physical peculiarities, which will overleap one generation to come out in a marked form in another. Since the crisp, curly hair of Dumas turned gray he has entirely lost every vestige of his affiliation with the colored race. The elder Dumas, though he was only a quadroon, was as dark as a mulatto and showed his negro blood most unmistakably.

He was an honest-looking mechanic, who had the appearance of being very much in love with the dowdy and pretentious young woman beside him, says the Boston Courier. He was evidently taking her on some sort of a holiday outing, and evidently, too, was she trying to impress him with her superior attainments. The other occupants of the horse-car had their attention attracted by her airs, and this is a bit of the dialogue that they heard: "Yes," the young woman said, "I am so fond of reading that it seems as if I could never get enough. I'm reading a beautiful story in the Fire-side Sidown." "I don't have much time to read," the young man answered, humbling himself before her superior culture. "And I'm awful fond of poetry," she went on. "Don't you think Whittier's 'Excelsior' is a beautiful poem?" "I don't know much about poems," he returned, with the air of one who at last gets his hand upon a familiar topic and feels at once at home, "but I know that in the upholstery business a pound of good, curled hair is worth all the excelsior that was ever made."

Representatives Herbert, of Alabama; Hemphill, of South Carolina; Turner, of Georgia; Stewart, of Texas; Wilson, of West Virginia; ex-Representative Barksdale, of Mississippi; Senators Vance, of North Carolina; Pascoe, of Florida; Vest, of Missouri, and Messrs. W. M. Fishback, of Arkansas; Ira P. Jones, of Tennessee; O. S. Long, of West Virginia, and B. J. Sage, of Louisiana, have collectively written, and will soon publish, a book entitled "Why the Solid South; or, Reconstruction and its Results." It is undertaken to narrate, fairly and dispassionately, in concise and popular form the history of the reconstructed governments in each State, showing how the Republicans obtained control and how they lost it; the figures and facts as to shrinkage of values and increase of debt and taxation under the Southern State Governments, and the prosperity of the South under present auspices. The book speaks of Abraham Lincoln's death as an appalling calamity to the South; argues that Andrew Johnson followed strictly Lincoln's plan of restoration, and contends that if Lincoln had lived he would have been able to defend that plan against the assaults of Congress. Each chapter is signed by its author, who thus becomes directly responsible for the truth of his statements; and the claim of the book in its preface (written by General Herbert, its editor) is that in all the chapters the facts are understated rather than overstated. The race question and race troubles are extensively discussed; the statement made that there is no intention to agitate for the repeal of the Fifteenth Amendment or the deportation of the negro; educational and material facts of many kinds are given in support of the contention that the negro is prospering, and that the South is solving for itself the negro question. The book is dedicated to the business men of the North, with a statement that they are interested in continuing the prosperity of the South.

Professional Chat.

Do you believe in the saying "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing?" asked one Congressman of another. "I guess so; why do you ask?" "It occurred to me that if it's correct there are a lot of fellows around here who are taking great chances.

During the present term of the Maine Supreme Court, ladies in the gallery bring their needle work and sit out the long hours of the season. It is interesting to watch them threading needles, tying knots, basting, occasionally pausing to catch some portion of the evidence and again to confide in a neighbor something relative to some new comer, interspersed with the slight click of the scissors, all of which tend to impress the lookers on with the solemnity of the occasion, and adds perceptibly to the "home like" appearance of our judicial residence.

They say that nowadays whenever Senator Coke of Texas comes into perihelion, Senator Harris of Tennessee makes it his especial and particular business to hasten into aphelion. The cause of this strange phenomenon is defined by a gentleman who recently heard a conversation between the two Senators. "Look here," said Senator Harris, holding out a copy of the Nashville American and tapping an article with his finger, "have you seen this article?" "No," said Senator Coke, "what is it?" "Well, sir, it is a terrible tirade on me." "What of that?" asked Senator Coke in his big gruff tone. "Well, sir, it was written, I believe, by a man who claims to be a clerk of yours and who has access to the floor of the Senate as such." "What of that?" asked Senator Coke again. "What of that? Why, sir, are you going to keep such a man as your clerk?" "Why not?" Senator Harris was as red as a boiled lobster. "Why, sir," said he, "this is the most outrageous abuse of me, and it is printed in the leading Democratic paper of my State; and are you going to encourage a man to write such things as this about a brother Democratic Senator?" "What have I got to do with it?" asked Senator Coke, "I can't stop him. I can't control what he writes. Why, he has larruped me twice as hard as he has you." "But, sir, he has made a fool of me and you ought to do something about it." Senator Coke looked at the Senator from Tennessee, and with disgust smeared all over his face said: "Harris, it would keep a newspaper man hustling night and day to make bigger fools of us Senators than some of us make of ourselves."

NOTES.

Oakland has an amateur paper styled the Acorn. If the editor lives long enough he may perhaps know as much about large oaks, as he now does of the birch.

The Bee's vigorous and persistent kicking is bound to produce the needed municipal reform in due season. Those who defy public sentiment for a time will have to succumb to the pointed lance of the Bee.

True economy does not consist in tenaciously holding on to every dollar that comes within the reach of their miserly clutch. There is a great difference between economy and the selfish idea of the miser. It is economy to use money in all proper enterprises and to furnish avenues and means of earning money by others.

Nellie Bly, who came to the notice of the reading world by her trot around the earth, has made a dismal failure of her lecture enterprise. Such fame as that acquired by the lady cannot avail when it comes to a contest of brains. She had better continued with her employers and benefactors, the World. Some people cannot stand success in its proper channel.

At Grafton, West Virginia, while fishing with a party of friends the other day, State Senator Menear was severely injured by a dynamite explosion. It almost makes us say it served him right. Any one who is cowardly and greedy enough to catch fish by means of dynamite, ought to suffer. The sport in fishing consists of giving them a chance as well as the fisherman.

Another doom-sealer has appeared in Denver, Colorado, in the person of an Indian medicine man, with the savage cognomen "Meat Axe," who predicts great floods in July, which will drown all the palefaces, as a visitation of the great spirit for the wrongs done the good Indians. "Meat Axe" puts more philosophy in his prediction than the Oakland cranks.

The medical officers of the Vienna Hospital are watching with interest a curious case. The patient is a man of about 54 years of age, who was a navy up till last year, when he hurt the fore-finger of his left hand. The finger had to be amputated. Since then the left hand has always been in motion, and now the nervous affection has spread over the whole body.

An indignant citizen of Alameda complains in the Encinal, that "there is the carcass of a full grown cow beached at the foot of Oak street, in a state of putrefaction," and he asks, "What are you going to do about it?" This citizen is very much in the position of the merchant who mailed a bill to a creditor with the endorsement, "What are you going to do about it?" and the creditor sent it back with the addition, "What are you going to do about it?"

The Colusa Sun states that in that county there is a strip of territory along the Sacramento river, containing 180 square miles, on which there is but one child. The land is used for grain raising. We are surprised that it has not occurred to so distinguished an agriculturist and political economist as Brother Green, that this trouble could be easily overcome by planting a watermelon orchard on the land. In this section it has resulted in a boy to about every square rod.

Several weeks ago we pointed out through these columns, the danger of foreign encroachment upon our landed interests. On Wednesday last there was called a bill in the lower house of Congress, looking towards the amendment of the alien land laws, so that it would permit foreign capital to be invested in mines of gold, silver, lead, tin, cinabar, and copper. This great power should be curtailed, not enlarged, and for the reasons we have heretofore given.

In looking over a Geographical Dictionary published in England in 1823, we happened upon the following reference that exhibits quite a contrast between then and now: "Francisco, St., a settlement of New California, consisting of 35 Spanish soldiers and their families, and several Franciscan monks. It has an excellent port, and the surrounding pastures feed a considerable number of sheep and cattle. It is the most northern of the Spanish colonial establishments in America, and it has for its object to spread civilization among the Indians."

General Grant is quoted by Senator Hawley as saying, during one of his last visits to Washington: "If I were President I would sign any reasonable bill to relieve the distress of an honest old soldier, or of his widow or children, but I would not vote one dollar to an able-bodied man." By this General Grant doubtless meant any man able to earn his own living, and this is the true theory of military pensions. Any man able to earn his own living, who saddles himself on the taxpayers through the pretence of "disability," is a pitiful swindler and imposter.

Several months ago we presented some cogent reasons for the establishment of a new Federal Court for the relief of the business of the United States Supreme Court. Congress has acted upon this question, and the lower house has adopted measures which will give seventeen additional Circuit Judges before whom the great mass of litigation will come. There are some cases that can be appealed to the Supreme Court, but these are special and important cases. It is certain that this needed measure will receive the sanction of the Senate.

Hon. Joseph McKenna, member of Congress from this district, is not in full accord with the majority of the Committee on Ways and Means, regarding protection measures. He draws the line at the proposed bounty to sugar culture. In order to warrant protective measures, the industry sought to be protected must be able to supply the home consumption. Whatever McKenna says, he means, and he does not speak until the subject matter has been fully considered. We will wager that he is right in principle on this matter.

For many years there has been an impression that coffee drinking is injurious. Now comes a noted scientist who declares that coffee exercises destructive powers over various microbes. The anthrax bacilli, by actual experiments, were destroyed in three hours, cholera bacilli in four hours and the streptococcus of erysipelas in one day. Now to our coffee again, no longer will we "swear off" on the little brown berry. Drink coffee and kill all the microbes that infest the human body. Can't some scientist find some virtue in beer?

The Examiner is congratulating itself that it has succeeded in a measure in closing out Chinese lottery establishments in San Francisco, yet it encourages white lotteries by advertising for pay their drawings, in violation of the State law. Precisely why a newspaper publisher is permitted to openly violate the penal law, while another criminal guilty of a like offense should be punished cannot be understood, unless it be upon the ground that one has the misfortune to be a Chinaman. The Mongolian gamblers have to learn. Let them advertise their drawings; coin will silence the press.

The report that ex-President Cleveland is under treatment for reduction of fat is denied, and it is stated that he is contented with his proportions. As a rule, men find little fault if they are lean, fat or medium. With women it is different. A lean woman is anxious to pick up, one that is fat wants to fall off; one that is medium does not know if she would prefer to be fat or lean. So it is as to height. The tall woman envies the one that is little and trim, while the midget is envious of the stately dame who can be kissed by her husband in the higher altitude.

The Republican State Central Committee will meet in San Francisco Wednesday to arrange for the coming State Convention. Several places want the convention, but it is doubtful if suitable accommodations can be had elsewhere than in Sacramento or San Francisco. In this city we always provide magnificent accommodations for conventions and delegates. When the convention was held in Oakland, the town was literally eaten out, and the question of providing sleeping rooms for the delegates was out of the question—they had to hurry up business to get to San Francisco. Los Angeles, when the Swift convention met, did manage to feed the visitors, but many had to lodge in private houses. The meeting of a State Convention or Legislature here occasions no inconvenience. There is always plenty to eat and good places to sleep. The city is centrally located, the most convenient for all points in the State, and it would be an excellent idea for the committee to locate the convention here.

We are losing magnificent opportunities. When the lot of tidal wave cranks who left San Francisco and Oakland bunched together in the mountains, what an opportunity there was for the fool killer. Seriously, however, the newspapers cannot be excused for having given unnecessary prominence to the silly vaporings that resulted in the swaying of so many weak minded persons. The modern sensational journal panders to any absurdity that will bring about the sale of a few papers; considerations of public policy are not regarded. Some of our older readers will recollect the excitement that was created by the prediction of Rev. William Miller that the world would be destroyed in 1843. He had thousands of followers, but missed his calculation, and in 1849 died peacefully, happily and naturally, as many others have died—in bed. We recollect a story once told us concerning Miller, that while the excitement was well under way he directed one of his sons to repair a stone fence, and the youth, who perhaps was somewhat lazy, remarked, "Why, father, what is the use of making substantial and laborious repairs; this thing will last to the end of the world."

Hon. John Hunt, Jr., Superior Judge of San Francisco, exchanged benches with Judge Van Fleet this week. Judge Hunt is one of the most learned and distinguished members of the judiciary in this State. He has endeared himself to the people of Sacramento through his impartial judgments in the matter of our city bond litigation, and which judgments have been affirmed by the Supreme Court. Judge Hunt was a classmate of one of the editors of THEMIS, and both were admitted to the bar at the same time. The Judge has not had any considerable amount of business to attend to during this session of the Court, and laughingly remarked that his presence seemed to have a salutary effect on litigants, because nearly every case that was set for trial before him has been settled and dismissed without trial. Perhaps the contending parties were fearful of encountering his logical decisions, and preferred to adjust their difficulties without submitting to his arbitrament. On Wednesday evening Major W. A. Anderson entertained the visiting judge with a dinner at the Restaurant de France, at which, among the guests who sat at the board, were Hon. A. L. Hart, Hon. Robert T. Devlin, Add. C. Hinkson, and D. P. Tarpey. Judge Hunt with his judicial acumen, is also a very bright conversationalist, and possesses an inexhaustible fund of wit and humor. We hope to see him often on our local bench, and trust that in the due order of events he may become a member of the Supreme bench of this State, which position he would adorn.

The reported engagement of the daughter of Jefferson Davis to the grandson of Rev. Samuel J. May is noteworthy in view of the antecedents of the parties. Davis was as extremely pro-slavery as any man who ever lived. At the head of the Southern Confederacy, he never accepted the result of the war, and within a few months of his death maintained that the cause for which the South fought was not lost. Dr. May, on the other hand, was one of the earliest prominent in the cause of the abolition of slavery, and was closely identified with Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Wendell Phillips, Joshua R. Giddings, Elijah P. Lovejoy, and the little band of persecuted patriots, few of whom lived to see the consummation of the work they inaugurated. May was born in 1797, and died in 1871. In 1833 he was a member of the convention that organized the national anti-slavery society, and signed the "Declaration of Sentiments." From that time he lectured extensively in favor of abolition, and did so at times at the risk of his life. In January, 1861, he was mobbed and burned in effigy in Syracuse, New York, for attempting to hold an abolition convention. Poor Lovejoy attempted to conduct an abolition newspaper at Alton, Illinois. Three of his printing presses were destroyed by mobs, and in attempting to protect his fourth press he was shot to death. At a public meeting in Boston, December 8, 1838, the Attorney-General of Massachusetts declared that Lovejoy was responsible for his own death, and "died as a fool dieth." The remarks were uttered in Faneuil Hall, and in reply Wendell Phillips said: "When I heard the Attorney-General place the murderers of Lovejoy by the side of Hancock, Adams, Otis and Quincy, I thought those pictured lips would have broken into voice to rebuke this recreant American." Truly have times changed; who would, in that day, have predicted that the descendants of two of the most prominent and extreme actors would be joined in marriage.

Egotism is the grand source of political immorality and social discord. Self exaggregation, self interest, self aggrandizement—in short, egotism, in one or other of its multifarious forms, has produced all the misery that nations have endured since the earliest morning of history, and has perpetuated all the evils which have hung, like the incubus, upon the neck of progressive humanity. Principles, and the rights of men as men, have always been denied and despised, that individual lust might be satisfied and exclusive monopolies maintained. Brave, hopeful, faithful, vigorous humanity has ever and again overturned tyrannic dynasties and swept away political systems, and has modified legislatures and executives, with the hope of securing liberty and preserving equality. But no sooner has that grand act of political transition—a revolution—been consummated, than some arch egotist, with fraternity on his lips but selfishness in his heart, begins to create necessities for other modifications and changes in the future. The policy of selfishness is generally accepted as the legitimate morality of politics. So faithfully have diplomats, intriguers, and legislators lied and aggrandized themselves, that those crimes which are so odious in public, and so utterly condemned by Christian morality, are not only tolerated, but sanctioned and supported with determined energy and zeal, by thousands who felicitate themselves upon being men of unimpeachable honor and faithful servants of the god of truth and justice. The policy of selfishness perpetuated Russian bondage and misery, in order that Nicholas Romanoff might live in a palace and be worshipped as a god by the millions of slaves whose minds he maintained in ignorance. The present Czar is surrounded by millions of trained soldiery, and has provided a Siberia for the lonely exile for the same reason. The policy of selfishness blotted Poland from the map of Europe, and made a slaughter house of Hungary; it arrayed the haughty Dane against the free burghers of Schleswig-Holstein, and it made France the discord apple of dynastic strife and mother of traitors. The policy of selfishness opposes to the natural rights of the family of mankind, the exotic interests of kings and aristocracies. It sacrifices nations to families, and races to classes and corporations. It makes the honest laborer an outcast in the land of his birth, and a wanderer on the earth, which a few worms of his own blood have monopolized. It denied the negro his humanity and personality, in order to fill the coffers of an unprincipled cottonocracy, and made this land of liberty the theater of partizanship. It is not to political systems that nations owe the abundance of their sufferings and wrongs; it is to that immoral policy, which prevails in this republic as well as in the Russian autocracy, the policy of selfishness.

FLASHES.

A pretty girl rarely wears a veil.

Intelligence is the umpire in the game of life.

Some people we dislike without the least effort.

It is not the fast man that wins in the race of life.

Men do mean things without deliberation, but women study out their meanness.

The silent man is the one most listened to, and whose words carry weight and power.

A fellow seldom becomes wise enough to live in comfort until he is about ready to die.

A layman wonders if those lawyers who carry so many books every study any of them.

Some of our greatest doctors are supported by "invalids" who have nothing the matter with them.

Some of our friends say wise things, but do very foolish ones. Newspaper men are proverbial in this line.

Religious creeds are something like politics—they are liable to be changed by each succeeding convention.

The Czar of Russia drinks five quarts of champagne a day—no wonder he imagines bombs, dynamite and explosions.

History of Sacramento County.

The History of Sacramento County has just been issued by the Lewis Publishing Company of Chicago. It is a volume of 808 pages, substantially and handsomely bound in leather, with gilt edges. It is printed on heavy book paper, neat typographically, and is in a more convenient shape than previous publications of that character. The general historical portion, embracing twenty-one chapters, were written by Winfield J. Davis, and the history commences with the founding of the Fort, by John A. Sutter, in 1839. The general history is presented topically, and is believed to be as accurate as it is possible to collate the history of the county. Much of the material employed in the work has been, from time to time, in past years, published in the form of special articles in the Bee, Record-Union and THEMIS, and all errors that have been discovered were corrected for this publication. In the historical portion no attempt has been made at word painting; the design has been to narrow into the smallest possible compass, a plain recitation of facts, and particularly has attention been given to dates of the happening of events. The design of the author was to present a work, that for accuracy, could be relied on as authority, and the chapters to which we have referred represent the result of several years of research, and painstaking labor.

Baseball.

At Snowflake Park, to-morrow at the hour of 2 P.M., the Sacramentos and San Franciscos will play another League game. The contests are getting interesting since the Sacramento club has made a commencement and showed signs of life. Trains will be run to the Park on the schedule time table.

[Written for THEMIS.]

Activity of Mind.

Activity is a law of life. Especially is this true of the law of mind. It is true there are seasons of comparative rest both for mind and body, and by way of emphasis, we sometimes hear the remark that such or such a person "seems perfectly inert," either mentally, or physically, or both. That is, it is meant that the person is not inclined to as great an amount of action as we generally see in human life. Yet, as relates to himself, he may be as active as comports with the acuteness of his faculties. The elephant moves slowly, the antelope with agility and swiftness, yet the activity of the antelope is no greater to itself than is the activity of the elephant to himself; but comparatively, one is much more active than the other.

Natural philosophy defines inertia to be a property of matter, because it is incapable of moving itself, yet we find all nature in motion, and the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms are all subject to a law of growth, mutation and decay, so that in the sense of resting only, can they be said to be inert. In this sense the earth may be said to be inert, though it has been in motion since first evolved by the Great Architect. It ever has been in motion, and has not the power to stop its motion, and therefore philosophically is inert. But by this process of reasoning we could prove that mind also is inert.

Yet activity is a law of the mind. By its own law it not only has the power to think, but it must think, and it cannot cease to think. Is it, therefore, inert? It could not set itself to thinking before it was formed, any more than before it was evolved the earth could set itself in motion. There is this difference, however: Mind can, to some extent, control the character of its thoughts, but matter once set in motion must forever continue in the same direction, unless acted upon by some force extraneous to its own. But it was not our intention to follow in this train of reflection. Our object was simply to make an application of the fact that mind cannot be idle. With the first dawn of perception in the human intellect, we read the evidences of thought—we see the budding of reason. The thinking process begins, and, ever after, whether the mind will it or not, by a law of its own organism, it must think on. This train of reflection discovers the reason that men of large intellectual and ardent temperaments, have so frequently overtaken their powers and have prematurely passed away. Within the last few years, and down to recent date, we have had melancholy examples of this class.

Of all drafts made upon men's bodily energies and vitality in this life, mental toil is the severest. And those who have a taste for mental pursuits and are ambitious for mental culture, by an almost irresistible force feel bound to such, though in the effort they perish. Sometimes we find a mind more sensitive to all tender and beautiful thoughts, and vigilantly seeking them for the pleasure they bring, yet having no relish for the more masculine class of ideas which deal with facts, such as mathematical problems and logical and philosophic deductions. But this is the result—not so much of the powers of the mind as of the temperament. And as the mind acts through the bodily organism by means of the nerves, where it becomes unfortunately associated with a weak or dilapidated physical constitution, its channels of communication with the external senses are imperfect, and its action clogged and laborious. The tax upon the nervous system becomes severe and exhausting. The mind labors hard and accomplishes little. Through sympathy with a weak and shattered bodily organism, it toils amid suffering. The body's lagging and decaying energies grows weaker, day by day, with the performance of the task imposed, till at last its resources are exhausted, every avenue of communication is closed, and no longer in any measure serves the purposes of the mind. The mind—the intelligent principle in man—withdraws from human action and conflict, and we say "the man is dead!" To human observation his mission may have been of little moment and imperfectly performed, yet if performed the best his circumstances allowed, he lived a noble life. In this progressive and utilitarian age of ours, every writer devotes himself to the philosophy of use, and much has been and is being written about the adaption of individuals to their chosen pursuits. We are instructed to adopt that profession for which we have the best endowment, and this endowment must not be measured by our predilection for unfortunately we often have the least capacity for that for which we have the strongest passion, and we must therefore go to some knowing one who knows us far more intimately and accurately than we can ever hope to know ourselves, and he shall dictate for us our most appropriate pursuit in life. All this may be so, but the question occurs: In which shall a man succeed best, that for which he has the strongest desire or the best endowment? In other words, which the more strongly influences him—an ardent desire with small endowment, or large endowment with little or no desire in accordance therewith? It will be said—let a man follow the pursuit for which he has the best capacity, and he will soon become interested and acquire a fondness for it. But we think where the fondness exists, by due application, how to perform will just as likely be, in time, acquired. Besides this, the stress of circumstances are such that few indeed can have free and perfect control of their allotments in this life. We can only do for ourselves and for others that which the nature and the circumstances of the case compel. Thus to each one of us, in a measure at least, do the circumstances of life assign our part. Wisdom admonishes that we perform it well, for on this our success depends.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Last night, for the first time in this city, the new opera, the Black Hussar, was given by the Rudolph Aronson New York Casino Opera Company to a full house. What this company does, it does well. We took occasion on its last appearance in this city to commend its artistic work, and there is nothing lacking in the Black Hussar. The comic opera Nadja will hold the stage of the Metropolitan to-night. On the last presentation of Nadja, standing room only was the order.

At the Congregational Church lecture room the novelty called The Deestrick Skule was enacted. Hilarity was the order, and many old school fellow was brought to remember his boyhood days "way down East" or in the "far West." Albert Hart is a genius in this line of entertainments and never fails to hit the center every time.

The Evangeline company was not a success so far as patronage was concerned. It is evident that this particular burlesque has about run its course, and like Hoyt's extravagant plays, will have to soon retire from the stage. The people get wearied of too much nonsense.

Sir Arthur Sullivan, the eminent composer, is at present hard at work upon the score of a grand opera which is to be produced in London next November. The title and plot are religiously guarded, but the story, it is said, is to deal with modern times, and promises to be full of interest.

A Good Send Off.

On Wednesday evening a large number of the friends of Bishop Monogue and Father Grace, met to bid the distinguished churchmen a temporary farewell on their proposed journey to Rome. Judge Armstrong, as spokesman for the citizens, made some eloquent and appropriate remarks, followed by the substantial present of one thousand dollars, to assist in defraying their expenses to the Vatican. Short addresses were delivered by Vicar General Lyuch, Father Quin, Hon. R. M. Clarken, ex-Mayor Christopher Green, Trustee McLaughlin, J. W. Wilson, Captain Dwyer, Father Coleman, James McGuire, F. D. Ryan, Father Hines, J. T. Barry, Felix Dunn, W. J. O'Brien, B. Lucey, Thomas O'Neal, Father Hunt, and others. It is customary for the distinguished clergy to make periodical pilgrimages to the sacred shrine. Judge Armstrong was exceedingly happy in his address on this occasion.

Bainbridge College Exercises.

Prof. J. C. Bainbridge's College students will give another of their unique literary entertainments, at College Hall, 1017 J street, to-night. The programme is under direction of the College Normal Literary Society. The first part will consist of music and literary exercises, including an address by Hon. Ira G. Hoitt. The second part will be a three act drama entitled Enlisted for the War, or The Home Guard. The dramatic personale includes some fine dramatic ability. An enjoyable time is expected.

Death of Wyman McMitchell.

On Tuesday, Wyman McMitchell, Freight Agent of the Steam Navigation Company, died in this city. He arrived here in 1849 and since then and until his death made Sacramento his home. In the early days Mr. McMitchell was active in politics, and was at one time a candidate for nomination for Sheriff. The deceased was a gentleman esteemed by all who knew him, and his death is sincerely regretted.

From the Eminent Pianist Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.
JOHN F. COOPER, Dear Sir:—I had occasion this evening at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathinshek piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

* EDWIN M. SHONERT.

Top Notch Tonic.

Is especially prepared to overcome the distressing effect of malaria and the consequent accompanying disorders of the liver and kidneys. A few doses in aggravated cases will produce a marked benefit, and the continued use will result in permanent cure. The occasional use of Top Notch Tonic will positively prevent malaria. One dollar per bottle, at drug stores.

This Will Interest You.

In a few days J. F. Cooper will receive, direct from the publishers, a choice lot of standard and popular music which will be sold at ten cents per copy. Ten thousand free catalogues of the same. Call or send for one. Cooper's Music Store.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers.

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE

SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY.....APRIL 20, 1890.

Sacramento vs. San Francisco.

Game called at 2 o'clock.

ADMISSION.....FIFTY CENTS

LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 1 and 1:30 P. M. Stop at 3d, 10th, and 15th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts. Reserved seats at Golden Eagle cigar store.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF EDWARD KRAUS, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Executor of the estate of Edward Kraus, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Wm. E. Gerber, Executor of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628 1/2 J street, Sacramento City, Cal.

Dated, April 15, 1890.

WM. E. GERBER, Executor.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Executor.
Apr 19-5tRHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Grand Harmony & Co.
Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

SPRING RACE MEETING

Under the auspices of the

STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY,

Will be held at

SACRAMENTO,

Saturday, April 26th,

Tuesday, April 29th,

Thursday, May 1st,

Saturday, May 3d.

EXCLUSIVELY RUNNING.

IT is the intention of this Society to make these Meetings an important adjunct in the encouragement of breeding on the coast.

$25,000 in Stakes and Purses

Will be contested for by representatives of the principal stables of California, prior to their departure for Eastern engagements.

The same management that has made racing a success at the State Fairs, will conduct these meetings, with the hope of making them as attractive in point of entertainment as are those of the Fall meetings.

General Admission, including seat in Grand Stand and Quarter-Stretch privileges, $1.00.

CHRIS. GREEN, President.

EDWIN F. SMITH, Secretary.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMANN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMANN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER,

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

ANHEUSER & BUSCH BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice, SACRAMENTO.

ORDINANCE No. 26.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO, do ordain as follows:

That there be and hereby is granted to the Folsom Water Power Company, a corporation, the right and privilege to close from public use that portion of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge and Scott streets, lying and extending westerly from the westerly side of Leidesdorff street, and such portion of River street as extends along the westerly side of Blocks 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, all in the town of Folsom and county of Sacramento.

And that there be and also hereby is granted to the said Folsom Water Power Company the franchise, right and privilege to construct and maintain a canal and canals and waterways, with a railroad on the bank of said canals, in, upon and across the before mentioned portions of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge, Scott and River streets, and the alleys in the before mentioned blocks, numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, and also along Leidesdorff, Reading, and the street on the westerly side of the Sacramento Valley Railroad, and also along Forrest street to the easterly boundary of the town of Folsom, in the county of Sacramento, State of California.

Provided that said Company shall keep open the present road to the American river bridge, and to cover the canal, wherever it crosses said road or runs upon any street required for public use, with good and sufficient bridges or stone culverts.

Adopted April 11, 1890, by the following vote: Ayes—Tebbets, Black, Bates, Greer and Ross.

[Seal] Attest: W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
april 12-4t

How to Classify Roses.

The dog rose—for dukes.
 The blush rose—for brides.
 The thorn rose—for scolds.
 The tea rose—for old maids.
 The prairie rose—for settlers.
 The hedge rose—for the poor.
 The cabbage rose—for tailors.
 The Banksia rose—for bankers.
 The button rose—for bachelors.
 The white rose—for young ladies.
 The gloria rose—for the religious.
 The moss rose—for married ladies.
 The pink rose—for young matrons.
 The damask rose—for masked balls.
 The wild rose—for men about town.
 The golden yellow rose—for the rich.
 The Marchal Niel rose—for soldiers.
 The Jacqueminot rose—for gentlemen.
 The rose of Sharon—for heirs to an estate.
 The Martha Washington rose—for Presidents.

Astronomical Wonders.

It is constantly reiterated by astronomers that stars are composed of luminous matter; consequently uninhabitable; that the fixed stars, with our sun, the nearest, are fire balls, or melting furnaces, ever ready to devour nebulae and everything else around them that is tangible, in order to supply light and heat for the cold and dark universe of space. This old theory cannot longer be rationally sustained, and must give place to the newly discovered law of action; i. e., combustion.

More than six thousand stars meet the gaze of the naked eye in its survey of one night. Astronomers say that the fabulous number of 20,000,000, all aglow, can be seen with a powerful telescope. When we consider that the nearest of these is 200,000 times as far from us as the sun and that it would take from three and a half to twenty-one years for the light which reaches us to cease if they were extinguished, we can not grasp and hold the vast conception in our minds. Yet it is supposed that each of these is a central sun with its own colony of planets circling around it, which in size are vastly superior to those of our own solar system and are traveling through space with such speed that it is impossible for us to comprehend it. The star Sirius is said to be moving fifty-four miles a second, or 194,400 miles per hour; a flaming mass, leading its brood of planets through illimitable space.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated.
 One trial will convince you of the truth of this statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
 CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'

Verbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,
 DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER
 LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time
 If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO.,
 Agents.
 703 J Street, Sacramento.

R. DAVIS,
 NOTARY PUBLIC,
 Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh,
 Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES
 and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand
ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets.
 Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,
 MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets,
 SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,
 PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,
 Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents.
 Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDougall,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.
 Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.
 (Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties
 a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.
 New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company
PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
7:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
9:30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6:20 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6:45 P
8:15 P	Knight's Landing	7:40 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6:25 P
12-01 A	{ Central Atlantic Express Ogden and East }	6:00 A
3-00 P	Oroville	10:30 A
3-00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willows	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7:25 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
6:45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9:10 P
*10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamers	8:00 A
10:50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara	9:55 A
6:45 A	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3-05 P	Santa Rosa	7:25 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno	6:25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	6:00 A
12-05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:45 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3-05 P	Vallejo	7:25 P
*12:15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	*10:25 A
*7:15 A	Folsom and Placerville	*2:40 P
*5:20 P	Folsom	*6:50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.
 A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
 T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
 of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
 VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K COX
 CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
 ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
 Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
 W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers
and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Stude-
 baker Wagons and Buggies,
 Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,
PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

Public Administrator's Report.

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman.	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estate of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin.		123 87
Estate of Jas. Russell.	100 00	82 32	100 53
Estate of A. Ely.	182 60	182 60
Estate of A. B. Ropes.	655 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, } ss.

County of Sacramento, } ss.
George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the estates hereinbefore named. That he is not, and was not at any time, interested in the expenditures of any kind made on account of any estate he administers, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.
Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890.
WM. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public.
[SEAL.] mch15-6t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff.
mch1-9t.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF BRIDGET NAUGHTON, DECEASED.
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, executors of the estate of Bridget Naughton, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said executors, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

FRANK KUNZ and
MICHAEL BRENNAN,
Executors of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated April 2, 1890. apr5-5t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL MCKEE, DECEASED.—
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Julia McKee, administratrix of the estate of Samuel McKee, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the law office of A. J. and Elwood Bruner, at the Court-house, Seventh and J streets, Sacramento, Cal.

JULIA MCKEE,
Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 28th, 1890.
A. J. & ELWOOD BRUNER,
Attorneys for Estat
mch29-4t

Certificate of Partnership.

State of California, } ss.
City and County of San Francisco, } ss.

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we are copartners, transacting business in the city and county of Sacramento, State of California, under the firm name and style of WHITTIER, FULLER & CO., and that the names in full, and place of residence of all the members of such copartnership, are as follows, to-wit: William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, all residents of the city and county of San Francisco, State of California, and Lewellyn Tozer, resident of the city and county of Sacramento, State of California.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands this first day of April, 1890.

WM. FRANK WHITTIER.
WILLIAM PALMER FULLER.
FREDERICK N. WOODS.
WILLIAM P. FULLER, JR.
LEWELLYN TOZER.

State of California, } ss.
City and County of San Francisco, } ss.

On the first day of April, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Lewis B. Harris, a Notary Public in and for said city and county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, and Lewellyn Tozer, known to me as the individuals described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the annexed instrument, and they severally acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the city and county of San Francisco, the day and year last above written,
(Signed) LEWIS B. HARRIS, Notary Public.
[Seal.] apr5-5t

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.
J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

PARAGON HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the Hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from..... $25
Stylish Pants made to order..... 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from..... 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from..... 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from..... 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Marinosa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

SOME TIME.

Last night, my darling, as you slept,
I thought I heard you sigh,
And to your little crib I crept
And watched a space thereby;
Then bending down, I kissed your brow—
For, oh, I love you so—
You are too young to know it now,
But some time you shall know.

Some time, when, in a darkened place
Where others come to weep,
Your eyes shall see a weary face
Calm in eternal sleep.

The speechless lips, the wrinkled brow,
The patient smile may show—
You are too young to know it now,
But some time you shall know.

Look backward, then, into the years,
And see me here to-night—
See, O my darling! how my tears
Are falling as I write;
And feel once more upon your brow
The kiss of long ago—
You are too young to know it now,
But some time you shall know.

—Eugene Field.

The Parrot and the Circus.

Two sailors once went with a tame parrot to a show in Tokio, Japan, where a Japanese was giving an exhibition of sleight of hand tricks. At the end of each one the sailors said: "Now, isn't that clever? Wonder what he'll do next?"

The parrot heard this so often that he picked it up. Presently the Japanese, while trying to keep in the air a number of bamboo sticks lighted at both ends, dropped one on a heap of fire crackers and bombs, which exploded and sent the parrot up about a hundred yards. As it came down it shrieked: "Wasn't that clever? Wonder what he'll do next?"

Copyright, 1889.

JEWELS AND LACES.

"Oh, girl with the jewelled fingers,
Oh, girl with the laces rare!"

What are your jewels and what are your laces worth to you if, from undergoing the trying ordeals which fashionable society imposes on its devotees, enough to test the physical strength and endurance of the most robust, you break down, lose your health and become a physical wreck, as thousands do from such causes?

Under such circumstances you would willingly give all your jewels and all your laces to regain lost health. This you can do if you will but resort to the use of that great restorative known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands of grateful women bless the day it was made known to them.

For all derangements, irregularities and weaknesses peculiar to women, it is the only remedy, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

An invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system. For feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate the liver, stomach and bowels, and cleanse the system. One a dose. Sold by druggists. 25 cents a vial.

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED.
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.
ANNIE KANE,
Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 13th, 1890. mch22-5t

"Do you say two pairs or two pair?" asked a lady of a friend.

"Why, I say two pairs," of course.

"It's wrong. I was in a shoe store recently and asked for two pairs of slippers.

"Two pairs," sniffed a woman, who sat next me; I think she was from Boston. 'Heavens! what English.' 'That woman has a good deal of assurance to correct my English,' I said to the clerk, but I went home and looked it up, and I believe the woman was right after all, but here comes Dorothy, let us ask her.

"Dorothy, what do you say, two pairs of gloves or two pair of gloves?" "Oh, I say one pair; I never was known to have more than one pair of anything."

The three women gathered around the dictionary stand.

"There! it is two pairs after all," they cried in chorus.

"That woman had evidently been playing poker," said Dorothy, "but we do not talk poker English here."

Facts and Fancies.

There was never a farmer so honest that when he drove into town he did not drive as though he had hard work holding in his plug work horses.

A woman begins to find beauty in a man as soon as he shows he likes her; but a man never discovers that a woman has freckles until he has married her.

Somehow a man feels much worse the day after he has lost an hour's sleep on account of the baby than he does the day after he has lost five hours' sleep at the club.

How easily some one else turns the subject when the conversation is about your good deeds, but how hard it is for you to turn it when the talk is about the good acts of your neighbors.

The quarrel with the man who is too polite to give blows and call names is the quarrel that hurts longest and most.

When a new girl comes to town all the other girls call on her and admire her, and then go away and make fun of her.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES
212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties
Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

ENDORSEMENT OF MERIT:

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

THE TUNING PIN.

NO OTHER MAKE OF PIANO HAS THIS IMPROVEMENT.

a a a a—Shows the heavy iron frame or plate.
b b—The hard maple bushing held in the iron plate, and through which the tuning pin passes.
c—The tuning pin passing through the wood bushing and into the wrest plank below.
d—The agraffe, screwed into the iron plate, and through which the string passes.
e—One of the bass or wound strings, attached to the tuning pin and passing through the hole in the agraffe.
f f—The screws joining the iron frame to the wrest plank.
g g—The hard maple wrest plank under the iron plate securely fastened to the frame or case.

Since the above invention, I challenge any one to produce a single instance of a tuning pin ever becoming loosened in a Mathushek Piano.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

61 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE LEMERS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, APRIL 26, 1890.

No. 10.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The tendency of the age is towards reading the trashy kinds of fiction and romance—something which feeds the mind upon sensational doings. It is certainly a deplorable condition of affairs. The people of the United States are essentially a nation of readers. The number of volumes of books of all kinds that are sold every year is something enormous. We have the money to buy and the leisure to read, yet nevertheless, in the best sense of the word, we are by no means well read. Let one enter a club or a drawing-room, and listen to the conversation when it happens to turn upon books. People gravely criticise Rider Haggard, Balzac, French novels (which have a distinctive meaning), "The Quick and the Dead," Ella Wheeler Wilcox—everything which is called intensely realistic, or which, in other words, is oftentimes indecent. The opening chapter of Theodora is discussed with a keen relish. It is seldom that any one thinks of reading the Idler or the Rambler; Pope, Dryden, Coleridge lie upon the shelves untouched. Shakespeare is taken down once in a while to examine or look for a quotation. Or if one spoke of Ovid's metamorphoses or the Odes of Horace, or referred to one of Plutarch's Lives, the eyebrows of the listener would be elevated to an acute angle.

This morbid craving for the sensational is pampered by the newspapers to an extreme degree. Fully one-half of the telegrams are filled up with accounts of sensational murders, burglaries, or the escape to a foreign land of some cashier or trustee with a large sum of money. More attention is paid to the efforts to discover Eyraud, and the latest utterances of Sullivan, Corbett & Co. than to the military States of Europe. The reporter goes prying around seeking to discover some one's family skeleton, and when the grinning relic is held up to their gaze an admiring public goes into rapturous applause. The newspapers are not entirely to blame—the people demand it. The greater the number of scandals that are presented for every day reading, the greater the subscription list of the paper. Nor does the public believe the major portion of the tales that are told of their neighbors—they do not care whether they be true or not—they desire to read something that is called racy. In fact the more it hurts, the more it injures the object of the attack, the keener the relish. It gives the prattler a chance to talk. He can converse without effort or study. It gives him an opportunity to say things that his listeners judge witty in the proportion that they approach the obscene. Many critics believe that we have lost the art of conversation. This arises from the fact that people are not sufficiently informed upon any useful subject to convey any knowledge. This tendency is also shown in the character of the drama and opera that attract the largest audiences. Who cares to see Hamlet played more than once. Camille attracts a howling mob. Opera is degraded to opera bouffe. The drama a farce or burlesque. People do not wish to be compelled to think and think strongly. It is certainly a heroic task to attempt to correct this depraved condition of the public taste. Yet it can be done by parents keeping upon their shelves, and reading to their children, books of travel and adventure, a selection of ancient and modern classics, and works of science and art, attractively written and plentifully illustrated.

Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, has proposed and is strongly urging a constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people. This is a wise measure, and one which will meet with the almost unanimous approval of the American people. The present system of electing United States Senators is one in which the conservative and law abiding citizen has no choice whatever. By it our State governments are corrupted in their legislative halls, through the nefarious schemes and practices resorted to by men seeking the exalted and honored position of United States Senator, who are not endowed with sufficient intelligence to discharge the duties of a town trustee. At the present day, the election of a United States Senator is nothing more nor less than an auction block, whereat the office is knocked down to the highest bidder, for cash. As a result, creatures are selected for our State legislators (being bought and paid for by the ill-gotten gold of the millionaire politician), who are not in any way fitted to discharge the duties the people expect of them and have the right to demand. The American people are growing tired of the "buy and sell" system of electing their Senators, and when the Legislature of Ohio can select a resident of New York, Nevada a resident of California, to represent their States in the head councils of the nation, it is time to call a halt. We believe that popular opinion is in favor of the change. If the people will be permitted to vote direct for national Senators, brains and not boodle will be recognized. Time was that men were chosen because of their statesmanship. It will not be seriously controverted that in this day a Webster, Clay, Calhoun or a Benton would suffer ignoble defeat against the bags of money that are now represented in the house of Lords at Washington.

Severe mental work can be, and is aided by a proper amount of alcoholic stimulant. The physiology of the action of alcohol has an important bearing on the management of the mental faculties. It is said that there is no habit, however, so fatal to a literary man as that of taking strong stimulants between meals. With regard to the proper quantity of stimulants that may be taken, the question arises: How are we to know when we have enough? and what are the signs of too much? In the old classic times when wines and liquors were as common as at the present day, only a great deal purer and free from vile adulterations, the disciples of Bacchus used to wear dark red or purple engraved gems, which they considered preservations against excesses. These were called "Sober Stones" "Amethysts," and were worn on the fingers during all festive occasions, and at all sittings where wine and strong drinks went around the board. So long as the wearer could decipher the minute engravings and works of art they bore, he was safe and had not reached the stage of excess. The trouble with us of this century, it is not easy to draw the line or fix the point where "enough" should be the word, or where too much takes possession of the faculties. It is a very cautious man indeed who can measure his capacities to that degree where the lumpish obedience to desire overcomes that of the mind. The ancient tests would not work in this enlightened age, because the wine drinker in place of seeing and observing the art works on the "sober stones," would have a tendency to magnify them "double." But jesting aside, any medical man of standing will say, that when a man has tired himself by intellectual exertion, a moderate quantity of alcoholic stimulant, taken with food, acts as an anesthetic, stays the wear of the system which is going on, and allows the nerve force to be turned to the due digestion of the meal. It is only the excessive use of these stimulants that are productive of mental and physical injury. We hear great antagonism expressed against beer drinking, and scarcely any doctor but will pronounce against it, yet the German people are noted for their vigor, brain power, physical culture and greatness, and they are pronounced beer drinkers. There seems to be some inconsistency in discussing this class of stimulants. We confess a little skepticism with regard to the deleterious effect of the liquid extract of hops and malt.

That was a grand tribute by the people of Sacramento last night to Leland Stanford and wife. It was not the usual ostentatious show to power and wealth, but the promptings of genuine affection for the man and the woman. There is no man that holds such a high place in the hearts of the people of Sacramento. Leland Stanford, as the plain citizen, as Governor, as the head of the great railroad enterprise, as United States Senator, has always been the friend of Sacramento and the people. The ovation given him on the eve of his departure East by the warm-hearted people of this city affords pleasure alike to the recipients and the givers.

Glory be to the tyrant Fashion. Small, low bonnets or hats or whatever they are called are coming into fashion for ladies. Some are to be seen on the heads of our city belles, while the millinery shop windows are filled with them awaiting sale. They resemble a Mexican slap-jack with a throat-latch attached to each side and lay as flat to the scalp as the cuticle itself. Now the male crank will rejoice, as he fully realizes that hereafter he will be vouchsafed the privilege of seeing the theater stage and recognizing the actors. It is proposed that when the innovator is discovered that a long-afflicted and sore-suffering people will pass resolutions of gratitude and forward them to the public benefactor.

It is meet and proper that the State Conventions of all political parties be held at the seat of government. The Republican Central Committee acted wisely in fixing Sacramento as the place for holding the party conference. Now let our Democratic friends—the enemy—do likewise.

Railroad Commissioner Abbott wrought better for Sacramento than he thought, when at the meeting of the Republican State Central Committee in San Francisco the other day he boasted that our people had just completed a $500,000 brewery and a $100,000 ice factory. This potential argument was logic ad captandum, and the committee was not long in deciding to hold the State Convention here. But Mr. Abbott's argument was more far-reaching than he thought, for now the Democrats over the State are asking to have their "boss" committee meet at once and agree to hold their State feast in this city also. The only trouble in this regard is that the impression seems to prevail in some Democratic quarters that the beer and ice will be free on those occasions, and, indeed, Mr. Abbott's manner of statement is susceptible of such interpretation.

Would it be possible for a marriage to result happily to the contracting parties if the daily papers did not announce after the ceremony that the happy couple would "spend the honeymoon at Monterey." This standing sentence is put aside by the printer, as he never distributes the type used for it, but just takes it up when the next "latest society event" takes place, and it acts as so much "phat" among the boys of the stick. It is to be regretted that some other resting place than Monterey cannot be selected by bridal tourists, if only to change the monotony and vary the sound. Why Milpitas, Widows' Gulch, Jackass Flat or many other noted places of resort would be preferable to that never ending announcement that Monterey is to be the scene of the first married days of every couple as they begin life. One would think Monterey is the only place in California containing a spare bed.

The return of the argonauts to visit the land of their early experience is an event to be commemorated. The California Pioneer Association of the New England States are just now the guests of the "old boys" of this city, and right royally are they entertained, and as only the Pioneers know how to entertain to the taste of those who "came the plains across" or around the "Horn."

SOME UNWRITTEN HISTORY.

Sacramento in Embryo—How Government was Established from Chaos.

PART XI.

The year of 1849, of which we now write, was big with events noteworthy in the history of our State. But the scope of this series of articles does not include an account of the changes effected during that year, except so far as they pertain especially to Sacramento city. Other parts of the Territory were largely settled by Mexicans. The Mexican forms of doing business were to a certain extent still adhered to. Even then, foreigners who had become residents of the agricultural districts or commercial marts of the Territory were new to the laws of Mexico and the forms of doing business under Mexican laws. Military rules might for the time being break down the civil power, but to that class the people could not look to frame a State government in harmony with American ideas. The immigrants crowding into California in that year were fresh from lands governed by the constitutions of the United States and of their several States. They were full of American ideas, and prepared to convert the Territory of California into a State of the American Union, in complete harmony with their institutions.

These immigrants mainly made their headquarters at Sacramento city. Even those who went to the mines considered Sacramento as their headquarters. The business relations between the miners and the residents of our city were very close; and for six years this city, aided, as it generally was, by the mining districts, was the head-center of politics in California. Her citizens took a more active part in forming a State government than any other section of the Territory. We propose to lay that matter before our readers in a separate article, or series of articles. In this series we are mainly concerned with the movement so far as it affected our city.

When Governor Riley, by proclamation, called for an election for delegates to a Constitutional Convention, our citizens conceived the notion of making the same election serve their purpose in electing officers to form a city government. The election was held August 1, 1849. There was but one polling place opened. On Thursday evening, July 5, 1849, a meeting of the citizens of Sacramento city was held at the hotel of John S. Fowler, on Front street, between I and J, for the purpose of considering the matter of the election called for August 1st, and M. M. McCarver was called to preside. At that meeting it was determined that, in addition to the election of delegates to a constitutional convention, under the call by Governor Riley, there should be elected officers to govern the city of Sacramento, and also the district of Sacramento, and a committee was appointed to name candidates for the offices to be filled. This committee was instructed to select from among themselves three persons, to remain as a committee on correspondence, and to meet at the hotel of John S. Fowler on the evening of July 7th, at 7 o'clock, for consultation and action.

The committee, as appointed by the Chairman, consisted of P. B. Cornwall, Wm. M. Carpenter, — Blackburn, J. R. Robb, Mark Stewart, John S. Fowler, C. E. Pickett, Samuel Brannan, John McDougal, Samuel J. Hensley, M. T. McClellan, and A. M. Winn.

That committee met pursuant to instructions, considered the subject submitted to it, determined the offices to be filled, appointed N. S. Perkins, H. E. Robinson, and Forest Shepherd, judges of the election, with T. L. Chapman and P. B. Cornwall as Clerks, and constituted C. E. Pickett, Wm. M. Carpenter, and M. M. McCarver a sub-committee to take charge of the matters pertaining to the election. This committee determined to organize a city government with the following offices, to be filled by a vote of the people: 1. First Magistrate; 2. Second Magistrate; 3. Recorder; 4. Sheriff; 5. Nine members of City Council; 6. One Chief Justice; 7. One Associate Justice.

The election was held on the 1st day of August, 1849, at the embarcadero, on Front street, between I and J. Alfred Peabody was substituted for Mr. Perkins as one of the Judges of Election; and after the voting was concluded, the judges counted the votes and announced the following as the result as to city offices:

For First Magistrate—J. S. Thomas, 393; John S. Fowler, 5; S. S. White, 22.

For Second Magistrate—J. C. Zabriskie, 402; M. T. McClellan, 1.

For Recorder—Henry A. Schoolcraft, 402; Jas. A. Grant, 1; John Stouter, 1; H. E. Robinson, 1; John Harris, 1.

For City Council—William Stout, 419; H. E. Robinson, 434; P. B. Cornwall, 419; E. F. Gillespie, 424; Dr. Chapman, 423; Benjamin Jennings, 429; John P. Rogers, 429; A. M. Winn, 419; M. T. McClellan, 420; Peter H. Burnett, 3; Boder Lee, 2; Dr. Crozier, 2.

THE FIRST ENGLISH MAIL FROM AMERICA.

John Rut's Letter to Henry VIII.

Some two or three years ago, when visiting the British Museum (London), my attention was called by one of the courteous clerks to the following letter, which so interested me, being a native of Newfoundland, I asked and obtained permission to take a copy of it, and was afterwards able to obtain the facts regarding it.

Three hundred and sixty-two years ago, John Rut, an English fishing captain, wrote from the Haven of St. Johns, Newfoundland, probably the very first letter in English ever indited on the shores of America. It was addressed to no less a personage than bluff old King Henry VIII himself.

Rut's vessel, the Dominus Vobiscum, was sent out in company with another by the king at the instigation of Robert Thorne, a merchant of Bristol. The voyage appears to have been partly for gain and partly of an exploratory character, for we find that while awaiting his consort at the harbor of Cape de Bas, he spent the time in exploring the country and fishing. It does not appear that his "fellow," as he terms the sister ship, ever turned up, and it is most probable that she succumbed to that "marvillous great storme" which Rut himself barely lived through.

Another letter was written at the same time and place by a companion of Rut's, one Albert de Prato, who was a canon of St. Paul's in London. It was addressed to His Eminence, Cardinal Wolsey, who was also instrumental in fitting out the expedition. Of this letter, nothing but the address in Latin and the signature have been preserved.

Under the impression that the letter of John Rut would prove a valuable contribution to your columns, I have much pleasure to present it to the readers of THEMIS. It is true that the letter has been frequently referred to by historians and other writers, but as far as I am aware, it has never before been published in full on this side of the Atlantic. The crude orthography and quaintness of style are quite characteristic of the period. It is even a matter of some surprise that a man in Rut's position was able to write at all.

Apart from its antiquarian interest, two very important historical facts are gleaned from this letter, which, had it not existed, we would be in ignorance of. It is apparent that the names of St. John's and Cape Spear (Cape de Sper) were well recognized at this early date, and that fishermen from various parts of Europe had already (only thirty years after the discovery by the Cabots) found out the remunerative nature of the fisheries on the banks and coasts of Newfoundland, to which they resorted in considerable numbers. Rut tells that in this one haven alone (St. John's) he found no less than "eleven saile of Normans, one Brittain and two Portugall barks, and all a fishing."

I have never been able to identify his Cape de Bas on any of the older maps of these regions. If his distance north from St. John's were reliable, viz.: twenty-five leagues, it should be in the vicinity of our present Cape Bonavista; but on the other hand, he speaks of its being in 52 degrees north latitude, being surrounded with "many small islands, and of a great fresh river going up farre into the mayne land." He also says the country for many leagues is barren and mountainous. This would only refer to the Labrador, and the latitude, which is that of Chateau Bay, clearly indicates the reasonableness of this supposition.

Truly, "small beginnings make great ends." It is curious to reflect that from this first English mail across the Atlantic the service has grown in our time to such gigantic proportions. Old John Rut's letter probably took a month or more in reaching its destination. Now we have the "greyhounds of the ocean" daily rushing back and forth freighted with their tons of mail matter. Heedless alike of storms and ocean's wayward freaks, they plow through the surging billows in their headlong career. What a multitude of messages of varying fortune do they convey! What hopes, fears, happiness, misery to millions of human beings whose very hearts throb in unison on either side of the once dark, impenetrable abyss of ocean which divides the two great sections of our globe—Europe from America.

In the no distant future I am convinced you will see the island from which the first known English letter was sent be the great center of the arrival and departure of the Anglo-American mails. A look at the map will show St. John's is the nearest point of the American continent to Europe. The City of Paris, Etruria or any other of the ocean flyers leaving Queenstown, Ireland, and steaming to St. John's in less than four days (1,900 miles) land the mails and any passengers anxious to save time, which will be conveyed by fast trains across Newfoundland then, either under the Straits of Belleisle (15 miles), by tunnel or across a bridge, which is nothing to build in these days when capital says "build" up through Nova Scotia to New York or any other of the large cities. It will shorten the time from Liverpool to New York from thirty-six to forty-eight hours.

This is no Utopian idea. By making St. John's the port of call, the fogs usually to be met with on the "Banks" are easily avoided, and Cape Race, or as it is sometimes called, "Mistaken Point," and justly so, as many good ships and skillful captains have been lured to destruction by its treacherous, shifting currents, and have too late found their mistake, but have not lived to tell the reason. Owing to its geographical position, the principal English and French cables are landed on Newfoundland. It is the object point of all disabled vessels and steamers. St. John's is a landlocked harbor, and has the largest dry dock in the world.

JOHN RUT'S LETTER.

Pleasing Your Honorable Grace to heare of your servant, John Rut, with all his company, here in good health, thanks be to God and your Graceship. The Mary, of Gillford, with all her * * * thanks be to God; and if it please Your Honorable Grace, we raune in our course to the Northward till we came into 53 degrees, and there we found many Ilands of Ice and deepe water, we found no sounding, and then we durst not goe no further to the Northward for feare of more Ice, and then we cast about to the Southward, and within foure days after we had one hundred and sixtie fathom, and then wee came into 52 degrees and fell in with the mayne Land, and within ten leagues of the mayne Land we met with a great Iland of Ice, and came hard by her, for it was standing in deepe water, and so went in with Cape de Bas, a good Harbor and many small Ilands and a great fresh River going up farre into the mayne Land, and the mayne Land all wilderness and mountaines and woods, and no naturall ground but all mosse, and no inhabitation nor people in these parts; and in the woods wee found footing of divers great beasts, but wee saw none not in ten leagues, and please Your Grace, the Samson and wee kept company all the way till within two days before wee met with all the Ilands of Ice, that was the first day of July at night, and there roze a great and marvillous greate storme, and much foule weather; I trust in Almightye Jesu to heare good newes of her. And please Your Grace, wee were considering and a writing of all our order, how wee would wash us and what course wee would draw and when God doe send foule weather, that with the Cape de Sper shce should goe, and wee that came first should tarry the space of five weeks one for another, and watered at Cape de Bas ten dayes, ordering of Your Graceship and fishing, and so departed toward the Southward to seeke our fellow; the third day of August we entered into a good Haven called Saint John, and there we found eleven saile of Normans, and one Brittain, and two Portugall barks and all a fishing, and so we are ready to depart toward Cape de Bas, and that is twenty-five leagues as shortly as we have fished, and so along the coast till we may meete with our fellow and so with all diligence that lyes in me towards parts to that Ilands, that we are commanded by the grace of God, as we were commanded at our departing. And thus Jesu save and keepe Your Honorable Grace, and all your honorable Rener, in the Haven of Saint John, the third day of August, written in haste, 1527.

By your servant,

JOHN RUT,

To his uttermost of his power.

Terra Nova.

One of the many thousands of wonderful babies was lately brought out for the inspection of a friend of the family. "Really, Mr. Seacock," said the mother, "I suppose its perfectly natural for every mother to think that her baby is the smartest one in the world, but our baby just proves it." "Indeed? What does he do?" "Every thing, Mr. Seacock, every thing." "Does he walk?" "Walk? Why, he's too young for that! The idea of a baby not yet a year old walking! But just let me hold him up in my arms, and see how perfectly he executes the highland fling." The baby kicks out his legs. Mr. Seacock expresses wonder and admiration, and asks: "Can he say mamma?" "Oh, no, but you ought to hear him imitate a locomotive!" "Dear me! How does he do it?" "He puffs out his little cheeks, and says 'Oo! oo!'" "Well, now, that is surprising! What other remarkable things can the baby do?" "Oh, Mr. Seacock, you should see him when I take him up in my arms, so! He looks up in my face just as sweetly, and breathes!" The gentleman agreed that at last the most wonderful baby in the world had been found.

THE TURKISH ÆSOP.

When Tamerlane was performing his great exploits of conquest, there dwelt in Neapolis a certain wise man named Nasruddin, full of fables, parables and shrewd sayings.

When tidings came to Neapolis of the dreadful conqueror's approach, every citizen was beside himself with fear.

"What are we to do now?" was the question uppermost on every lip.

The more warlike citizens said:

"Let us strengthen our walls, victual our city with sheep and oxen, sharpen our swords, and fling abroad the blood-red banner of defiance from the highest turret."

"Not so," argued the eloquent Nasruddin. "Greater cities than Neapolis have fallen before Tamerlane, like mellow pears in a gale of wind. Let us not resist the hurricane that is sweeping away whole kingdoms, lest our dear old city be made a heap of stones. If you will trust this delicate matter to me I will pledge my life that I can and will save Neapolis."

Such were the distraction and dismay, that the citizens, who knew Nasruddin's ability, clung to his words of hope as a drowning man clutches at a straw, and so the man of witty sayings was deputed to save Neapolis, if he could.

Soon after these consultations a great cloud of dust heralded the approach of Tamerlane's army. After a pause, to allow time for the tents being pitched and so forth, there seemed the chance of an audience; and Nasruddin prepared to put his head in the lion's mouth on behalf of his fellow citizens.

No one in the East thinks of going before a king without a present, and Nasruddin, therefore, did not venture to approach Tamerlane without one. But the question arose, What was the offering to be? At length he decided it should be a gift of fruit, but he could not determine whether figs or quinces would be most acceptable to the great man after his dry and thirsty march. In his perplexity he sought his wife's advice on the knotty point.

"What do you say, my dear wife?" asked the ambassador, "should it be figs or quinces?"

"Oh, quinces!" replied she, in a moment; "for they are finer and more beautiful."

Nasruddin, however, did not like his wife's advice. "It is shallow and not good," said he to himself, "and I will not take it. I will present figs, not quinces."

He therefore chose a basketful of fine figs and went forth with a flag of truce, like a grand ambassador, to Tamerlane's pavilion.

After waiting some time he was allowed to enter into the presence of the barbarian chief, who happened to be in a very ill humor.

Nasruddin's turban had come off, and there he stood; somewhat alarmed, no doubt, but still confident in his own resources. He had a very bald head, which offered a sort of target to the malace of Tamerlane, who, despising the ambassador and his gift, scornfully ordered his officers to throw the figs at Nasruddin's head.

Of course they dared not refuse, and so the unfortunate man was pelted with his own figs.

He took it very calmly, however, and whenever a fig hit his bald pate he cried out loudly, "God be praised."

Tamerlane thought it strange that a man should praise God because he was pelted with his own figs; and therefore, when his basket was empty, he called Nasruddin nearer to him and inquired into the reason of such an exclamation.

"Mighty conqueror!" he replied, "I have reason to bless God that I did not follow my wife's advice this morning."

"What advice was that?" asked Tamerlane.

"Great King!" replied Nasruddin, "she advised me to offer you quinces instead of figs. If I had taken her advice, my head would have been broken ere this."

The good humor of Nasruddin so amused Tamerlane that he entered further into conversation with him, and now the Turkish Æsop, having found his chance, made the most of it.

Story after story he told, in his own droll way. As old Timoleon made Alexander laugh or cry by means of his songs, so did Nasruddin move Tamerlane by his stories. For three whole days the jaded conqueror was enchanted by his amusing guest, and so pleased was he with Nasruddin's eloquence and wisdom that he left the city of Neapolis unharmed and free.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

The Princess of Wales is considered to be one of the finest amateur piano players in England.

Patti has built a magnificent theater at Craig-y-Nos, Wales. She wants some place where she can hear herself sing for nothing.

A tour of California, Colorado, Utah and Montana has been arranged by Mrs. Jennie Kimball for Corinne and company to play the two burlesques, "Monte Cristo, Jr." and "Arcadia."

Modern stage villainy, for some reason, is inseparable from smoking. If it be large, vital villainy, it is a cigar. If it be low cunning, it is a cigarette. The moment the fellow gets out his cigar case in the parlor you know he is going to threaten the life of the father. The moment he lights a cigarette you feel that he is preparing to blackmail the mother.—Nym Crinkle.

That is a great scheme which is said to have originated in the fertile brain of Alexander Dumas. He proposes to hypnotize the actors and actresses who are to present his next drama, and then compel them to play according to his dictum. If the plan works well, it might be a good idea to corral several thousand alleged actors and actresses, hypnotize them and direct them never to appear again on the stage.

Oh, mamma, dear! who is that man?
I'm sure he must be very grand,
See how he walks, and see his face,
How proud he looks, and with what grace
He swings and twirls his cane.
From indications it is plain,
That he is a count, or else some lord,
I'm sure none other could afford,
To wear such handsome clothes—
And mamma, look! smoke is coming from his nose.
Why, Penelope! what ignorance you show,
He is an actor, that is—the bills say so,
And he is smoking a cigarette,
Which is the biggest puff that he can get.

There seems to be a demand for California talent, judging from the ease with which professionals with a San Francisco reputation secure engagements in Eastern companies. Kate Best and Zoe Tuttle will join the "Shenandoah" Company. M. A. Kennedy, Maud Adams and Frederick De Bellville have been added to the Lyceum forces. Hattie Moore has an offer from Edward Harrigan to remain in his company. Harry Davenport and Isabel Archer-Davenport are already engaged. Fannie Bowman has also received an offer for a re-engagement, and numerous others, who are either Californians or have become identified with San Francisco by long engagements here, are already placed for next season. Nothing proves the excellence of a dramatic schooling before a San Francisco public better than the evident avidity with which Eastern managers acquire people who have become favorably known here, and nearly all of the leading attractions have representative California talent in their rosters. For years there has been a steady demand for young people who have become identified with the local theaters here, and the field, instead of showing any signs of exhaustion, looks more promising than ever. There is an abundance of splendid material springing up all around, and the Golden Gate seems to be extraordinarily prolific in its production of dramatic talent.

Book Chat.

Books,
Are hooks,
On which we hang our mind.
Hooks,
Are crooks,
That leave the impress of their kind.
So,
You know,
We should be careful what we read.
Crinkles,
And wrinkles,
From mis-hung garments are not easy freed.

The little prayer beginning "Now I lay me down to sleep," was written by John Rogers, the martyr.

The announcement that Zola is going to publish three novels simultaneously justifies the suspicion that he has taken out a large sewer contract.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes is not fond of being interviewed. He is cordial and polite to a reporter, but he evades the point at issue with great skill.

A letter of Lamb's, in which he said: "I am recovering, God be praised for it, a healthiness of mind something like calmness, but I want more religion," brought $95 at a late sale in London.

Professor Stolze, of Wurzburg, announces the discovery in a library at Augsburg of a manuscript of Giordano Bruno containing criticisms on Aristotle, and letters relating to various studies.

The Cary sisters, Phoebe and Alice, never married, but dwelt together all their lives, each bound up in the love of the other. There was a bond of close friendship existing between them and the poet Whittier, in one of his choicest lyrics, "The Singers," refers wholly to these two gifted women.

The great charm of old literature is its genuine simplicity. The morning dew still lies on the Old Testament, on Herodotus, on the "Odyssey," and on the Norse Sagas. The wiliest devices of Ulysses and Jacob, the weightiest sayings of Solomon and Solon, are transparent and obvious to the nineteenth century babe. Every nation has had a childhood when art was at the stage of Giotto, and literature at that of Chaucer.

Surely no greater puzzle was ever presented than is found in some of the doings of the multitudinous male novelist of this time. In writing her story she is sentimentally shy and unbusinesslike in the highest degree, but in dealing with it after it is written, she is as businesslike and unsentimental as it is possible to imagine. She vaunts her wares with the shameless persistency of a potato peddler bawling in the street and ringing area bells by way of soliciting customers.

Professional Chat.

In one particular we are not as civilized as our remote ancestors. The Canada Law Journal tells us that football was a misdemeanor in England in the fourteenth century, and that numerous statutes prohibiting the game were enacted after that and up to the time of Cromwell.

Secretary Rusk recently had a lively argument with Postmaster-General Wanamaker regarding the game of poker. Rusk is a clever manipulator of pairs and flushes, while Wanamaker calls the great American pastime a most immoral institution. Those who heard the discussion say that Rusk was a winner hands down.

Alphonse Karr was present at a banquet of medical men where toasts were drunk of certain celebrities, when the president said: "M. Karr, we now ask a toast from you." The poet arose and replied modestly: "I propose the health of all who are sick." That was a dismal toast for the medical fraternity. The poetic license could scarcely save him from the displeasure of the medicos.

Gen. Sherman was told that a carriage would call to take him to the Appomattox celebration in Brooklyn the other night, says the New York Sun. "Carriage!" he said. "I don't want any carriage; I'll go right down on the elevated and cross the bridge." And he did, arriving at the hall as lively as a cricket, and going home in the same domestic fashion at 1 o'clock in the morning, still lively and apparently unwearied.

Ex-Governor and Representative McCreary, of Kentucky, is noted for his politeness. On one occasion he was the guest of a friend in the country. When he sat down to supper the lady of the house asked him whether he wished coffee or tea. The Governor replied: "Coffee, if you please, madam." His fondness for hot coffee is known to his friends, who can well imagine his feelings when the hostess informed him that the cook had neglected to warm the coffee for supper, and that it was cold. Even the information of the cook's neglect did not affect the Governor's politeness, and with a smile he replied: "How fortunate, madam. Do you know, madam, that I am so eccentric as to prefer cold coffee and do not care for it in any other way. Your cook's neglect is good news to me." The relief of the housekeeper can be understood as she handed Governor McCrary the coffee, which he sipped with well-feigned pleasure. The weather the next day was cold and bracing. It was just such a day as to make the heart of a coffee-drinker long for his favorite drink. Governor McCreary had forgotten the incident of the night before when he sat down to breakfast. But if it had escaped his memory it had not that of the hostess. "I have the coffee cold for you this morning, Governor," she said sweetly; "you see I remember that you never liked it in any other way." The smile on Governor McCreary's face was hardly as angelic as it was the night before, but he drank the coffee without a murmur.

An old fellow, with hair white as snow, and a short gray mustache, is one of the features of upper Broadway, New York, on any pleasant afternoon. He usually wears a military cloak and other clothing of English make. It is Stephen Massett, once known as "Jeemes Pipes, of Pipesville," a man who had made and lost a half dozen fortunes, and who, had he been able to keep the money he made, would have rivaled in wealth either Mackay or Flood, for he was one of the pioneers of '49; could have had half of the city of San Francisco for the say so, and later on was the owner of a diamond mine in South Africa. He was one of Artemus Ward's intimate friends, and like that charming humorist, his occupation in life was to make others happy. Massett gave entertainments, recitations, songs, etc., that made for him a large income and secured a warm reception for him in any part of the world. He is equally at home in New York, London, St. Petersburg or Melbourne. He has given his recitations and songs before royalty, and has had intimate relations with some of the best known public men and women of the past fifty years. Sam Ward paid him a tribute by saying that he was "an epicure, with whom any man might be proud to dine," and the gifted and beautiful Adelaide Neilson, on more than one occasion, said that he might have been a great actor or singer if he had only devoted his time and talents to more thoroughly cultivating his rare gifts. He is over 60 years of age now, but still alert, and is often seen at public gatherings. He possesses what is rare in a man, for even at his age he sings in falsetto with remarkable sweetness and purity, and he declaims with the vigor of Booth.

NOTES.

The only daughter of Victor Hugo is now an old woman confined in a lunatic asylum.

THEMIS is a bright weekly, which is ably edited by W. J. Davis and W. A. Anderson, and bears every appearance of permanence. —S. F. Chronicle.

Chris. Green is the familiar name of a prospective candidate for Chief of Police in Cincinnati. But our estimable Mayor still retains his citizenship with us.

"Children's frocks for the ages of six to eight, are most simply made with plain full skirts and full bodies." —Fashion Book. That, of course, means after meal time with the youngster.

There are many of our "leading" citizens who would like to become members of the Legislature, but somehow the seats get pretty hot for occupancy before the end of the session, particularly on Senatorial matters.

In Missouri there are Boards of Education who require of all teachers one year's experience in teaching before employment. This is the place, evidently, where there is an ordinance against boys going into the water until they learned how to swim.

Last Monday, Senator Vest, of Missouri, made a bitter speech in the United States Senate, against the bill appropriating money for the World's Fair to be held in Chicago in 1892. Nevertheless, the measure passed. The majority pulled down that Vest.

Cleveland and Dana have signed articles for a fight to the finish. Although Grover is taking exercise in a treadmill to reduce his superfluous flesh, it is doubtful if he can bring himself to a condition in which he can successfully cope with his wily antagonist.

Farmers in the neighborhood of Hutchinson, Kan., propose to salt the earth this spring, for the purpose of increasing the yield of crops. They will buy crude salt by the car load, and scatter it over their fields. They expect to get some remarkable results.

The hog is not ordinarily a very sentimental animal, but he manages to get to the front in a great many instances, in the social circle. A fat hog—i. e., wealthy boor, often gains admission into the dress circle of society. In such cases the "grease" smooths the way.

The vitality of the snail is remarkable. One that had been glued to a card in the British Museum for four years, came to life upon being immersed in warm water. Some specimens in the collection of a naturalist revived after they had apparently been dead for fifteen years.

There still stands on the statute books of Maryland, an old law prohibiting masters from giving their slaves terrapin to eat, for the reason that they are dangerous food for human beings. This looks like an ancient job put up to deprive Sambo of a favorite epicurean morsel.

Sullivan and Jackson are to come together after all. Sullivan will find the Australian's head a bard anvil to hammer. If it was only allowable to kick him in the shins, or spit on his toe, the Boston boy would have an easy time of it, as that is one of the quickest ways to conquer a nigger.

Mrs. Frank Leslie, of newspaper fame, says she would like to be a man so that she could make love to the old woman. There may be some peculiar philosophy in this desire with regard to old women, but we are naturally constrained to ask, "What is the matter with young women?"

Ex-Secretary of the Interior Vilas was in Louisville, the other day, on his way home from a pleasure trip to Florida. He told a Courier-Journal reporter that "he was confident that the Democrats would win the next national election." That's as vile as any campaign lie ever invented.

What will Judge Coffey, of the Probate department of the Superior Court in San Francisco, think of the following, clipped from the Louisville Courier-Journal of April 14th: "Judge von Schlegall, of the Probate Court of San Francisco, is a cousin of Gen. von Caprivi, the new German Chancellor."

The New York Tribune says: "Sooner or later the lesson will be learned that it is wiser to spend a great sum of money in protecting the Mississippi valley from inundation than to lose a much greater sum through neglecting to protect it." The same can be said of the Sacramento river, which is as vital to the Pacific Coast, as the Mississippi to the Western and Southern States. The State has already done much to preserve this great watercourse, but the Federal Government is now appealed to to assist.

A witness testifying in the murder trial in the Superior Court, yesterday, said that after the time of the killing, he said to the defendant: "If there is other evidence to co-operate that of the man who was with you, it will go pretty hard with you." Of course, the jury knew he intended to say "corroborate."

General Sickles, who has recently been appointed by Governor Hill as Sheriff of the city of New York, to succeed the criminal Flack, begs his friends not to call him "Sicriff" Sickles. The office has been so rotten that the one-legged hero does not care to sully his fame by being identified with the place, at least in name.

The discarded girl again bobs up with her little pistol. This time in Syracuse, New York. Her lover became wearied of her and devoted his attentions to some other maiden, which, in the mind of maiden No. 1, was sufficient to warrant his execution at the point of a pistol. It has been some time since the girl shootist appeared in the role of executioner.

This is the time of year that the minister is looking about to secure a new coat of paint for his church or the parsonage—those who are blessed with such a commodity as a parsonage. The housewife is also making it lively for her better half on the all absorbing question of spring cleaning, etc. In any event it is a safe time for the lord of the manor to be absent.

A fashion writer says the "coming sunshade is to have a plain stick of cherry, palm, malacca, oak, or blackthorn." We have seen the "coming sunshade" held in such a position as to endanger our eyesight, and if it had been a man behind it, we would have introduced him to our "stick of cherry, palm, malacca, oak, or blackthorn," or whatever we chanced to have had.

The first reform that is necessary in the Government—national, State and municipal—is that which will purify elections. The machinery needs reforming, and the manner of conducting political campaigns must be cleansed of the corrupting influences that surround them at this day. The laws make it a crime to bribe or corrupt voters, not to mention the intimidation influences that are invoked and utilized in many parts of the Union. Elections right at home, right at our doors, are shamelessly the subject of barter and sale. It is bad enough for primaries and conventions to be under this baleful influence, without elections being subject thereto. Already do we hear rumors of proposed "sell outs" and corrupt partisan bargains for the ensuing State and county elections, including Congressional. We trust that the strong arm of progressive Republicanism will arrest any such schemes, and that a good sound and popular State ticket be presented for the suffrages of the people. Our county tickets should also be composed of the best material within the party, thereby strengthening the State and Congressional nominees. The party leaders must look to this matter, as there is danger in careless nominations.

There's a neat little fountain under the sheltering branches of a wide-spreading tree of foreign origin on the main walk in the Capital Park. Seats surround the fountain where, during the day, tired little children and their worn-out mammas or nurses may rest after a run about the grounds. Now, so far, that is all well enough; but after dark those seats are frequently resorted to and monopolized by questionable characters of both sexes, to the annoyance and often to the scandal of respectable ladies and gentlemen passing on their way home. The Park police are vigilant and attentive to their duties, but it is almost impossible to keep that vile class away, as they watch their opportunities and are very quiet in their behavior, so that they cannot be seen until one walks up to the tree, so well hidden are the benches among the branches. The rays of a lamp falling across that point would have the desired effect of making the spot decent by night as well as by day. The electric light on the neighboring terrace does not throw its glare in that direction. Unsuspecting respectable ladies and their escorts have been sorely shocked as they passed that place and were made the unwilling spectators of the vile conduct of those indecent loungers.

The San Francisco Chronicle, speaking of Sutter's Fort takes occasion to pay THEMIS the following compliment: "For many years this solitary building has been all that remained to mark the site of Sutter's Fort. Even this structure is almost a ruin, and it is evident that but few years will pass before this, too, will have crumbled to the earth. A movement has, however, been inaugurated to preserve what is left of the historic structure, and possibly to restore its former appearance. This movement originated with the editors of the THEMIS, a high-class literary journal published in Sacramento. These gentlemen—W. J. Davis, W. A. Anderson and A. J. Johnston—some time since became interested in the matter, and have done some valuable work in connection therewith. Strange as it may seem, there has never been a correct picture of the old fort made, but the gentlemen referred to undertook to supply the deficiency. After careful consultation with many persons who were familiar with the place, accompanied by a study of all that has been written concerning it, a picture and plan were drawn up and subsequently submitted to a large number of prominent men who had been acquainted with the fort. With their help every detail was made accurate, and the result is shown in the accompanying diagram and illustration, affording as nearly as may be a correct representation of the structure in its palmiest days."

There is no country in the world where women are held in such high esteem as in the United States. Any woman of ordinary dignity can by her look and action repel the advances of the most audacious man. It is only when giddy girls, by slang phrases and foolish demeanor, invite the advances of the opposite sex, that anything bordering upon insult is ever experienced. Modesty is at all times a citadel which no man will ever approach; save, peraps, the designing rone or vicious character, and even then the dignity and modesty with which woman should be endowed, would be her protection. Whenever we hear of young girls being insulted, it is pretty safe to assume that there has been some indiscretion on their part that opened the way for the advances of the insulters. We know there are certain persons who bear the semblance of gentlemen, who are on the alert for some sign at the hands of young ladies which will give them a chance for approach. The modest and truly womanly girl will not by any act, word, or look, give encouragement to this or any other class of persons. It often happens, however, that a lady who is polite to a supposed gentleman, that this politeness is misconstrued, and the supposed gentleman will assume a liberty that is unwarranted. This, as a matter of fact, is one of the dangers that beset ladies. There are vicious characters that presume upon polite recognition, and unless there is that proper dignity and modesty behind, it often occurs that reputable girls are insulted. In reality, modesty and dignity are a shield of protection to any woman, no matter under what circumstances. One cry from a true woman would bring every American within the sound of her voice to her rescue.

Why is it that all the famous military painters of the earth have persisted in painting the soldiers engaged in battle as old men? An examination of the original, as well as of the copies, of the greatest and most sanguinary battles of ancient and modern times, will show those engaged on either side to have been men, not in the middle age of life, but most frequently far beyond, and very generally to have been grizzled and wrinkled with years. The memorable achievements of Caesar on the battle field were participated in, if we are to rely on the artists who have perpetuated their renown on canvas, by warriors all of whom, in the charge or in the retreat, bear evidences on their faces of the ravages of time, and it is hard to recall a youthful face among the legions. So it is with the historic canvases commemorating the bloody and renowned engagements of all the distinguishing wars of all nations. The armies of the Crusades, both the infidel and the Christian sides, lasting for nearly three hundred years; the war of the houses of York and Lancaster, or better known as the War of the Red and White Rose; the continental wars of Europe; the American Revolution; the wars of Napoleon, and, indeed, all other famous and lengthened conflicts, are celebrated in their principal battles by the painter exhibiting old men as soldiers, and the youth of the countries are almost altogether ignored. A glance at any picture of the field of Waterloo will bring to view only men who are many years beyond thirty-five, or even forty years. Panoramic views of our own fields of Bunker Hill, Lexington, Monmouth, Yorktown, Brandywine, New Orleans, and dozens of others that we of to-day delight to admire, show grandsires in the ranks rather than the chivalric youth of those periods. Our late war of the Rebellion is an exception. In the panorama of those unsanguined fields, it is there the young men have their proper place in the ranks; and in this, it would seem, the artist has a truer conception of the reality. It will not do to answer that the pictures giving preference to the aged warrior in battle is to depict the veteran who has grown old in the service. Surely, it was not only the old man who sprung to arms at the call of his country; for, while the painter would make it appear so, the historian and poet never tire of writing and singing the praise of the "youth and chivalry of the land." And many of the famous paintings of military achievement are of battles fought in the very beginning of the wars, when the soldier was yet in the prime and vigor of his early manhood.

IT IS DOUBTLESS TRUE.

[Written for THEMIS.]

Poets have so attuned the poetic lyre,
That ages with immortal melody have rung.
Erratic genius oft conceals its sacred fire:—
Greater poets may exist with lyre unstrung.

Lovers, to keep their plighted words inviolate,
Their own heart's blood have freely shed.
The warmest adoration oftentimes is silent:—
Fonder lovers may exist with love unsaid.

Heroes have performed such deeds of daring,
Tradition will forever treasure what they won.

True valor often wears a modest bearing:—
Bolder heroes may exist with deeds undone.

For every name that is known to fame,
It is doubtless true some names abound,
That might to fame have equal claim,
If fortune would but smile instead of frown.
—John Audley.

FLASHES.

A woman will always find fault if she can.
Do what is right to-day—to-morrow may be too late.

The greatest of social lying, is talking of one's self.

Memoirs of brass bands are proverbially drinkers—they are given to "toots."

When a fellow disagrees with you, of course, in your estimation, he has no sense.

Charity begins at home. With most of our wealthy people, it never gets any further.

Propriety is considered by many of our young ladies as the attribute of an old maid.

Whenever you find a very beautiful flower, you will always discover some thorn or vermin.

There are reputable women who delight in doubtful confidences and dangerous familiarities.

The many ladies we see wearing deep black, are in mourning for husbands they never had.

Kindred immorality can be found in the highest financial circles. Wealth is not a fortress against a vile character, no matter how it may be disguised.

Grand Army of the Republic.

The "boys in blue" have been having a jolly good time of it for the past ten days. The State Encampment was held at San Jose and was attended by many distinguished Eastern visitors. The reunion of the Grand Army Posts of Northern California was held at Red Bluff, and the three days' festivities was participated in by a large number of Sacramentans. The thousands of visitors to the beautiful city of Red Bluff were made to feel at home by the generous, spontaneous and unstinted reception tendered them by the residents of Red Bluff. The celebration was a marked success and can be attributed, in a great measure, to the excellent arrangements made by President N. P. Chipman, Grand Marshal G. G. Kimball, and their co-workers.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

On April 28th and 29th, at the Clunie Opera House, Katie Emmet will produce The Waifs of New York. This is one of the popular sensational dramas of the day. We have not heretofore seen the company or the play and await developments.

Hallen and Hart with Later On, had a fair audience Thursday and Friday evenings. The company is stronger than when last here. Miss Lewis is a team in herself. This is one of the road attractions that has about run its course. There is too much of a sameness in this class of shows.

Under this head we may class John Slater, the alleged "Psychological Wonder." Mr. Slater is a most eccentric character and his nervous actions on the rostrum are strongly suggestive of an inspiration that is taken by the crook of the elbow. However, he is something of a genius in his line, and does some very shrewd character reading. It is remarkable that, with his clever accomplishments, he cannot and does not do anything of a practical nature. He deals only in the most general of generalities. During his three entertainments, he never selected a subject who was generally known to the community. We like clever deceptions, but they must be of some practicable illustration. Some of Slater's guesses were mystifying, and like other legerdemain tricks could not be detected. If there is anything of a supernatural nature in these demonstrations, then we ask for something more than the "glittering" generalities.

Opening Picnic.

To-day the Odd Fellows will have their annual outing, by a picnic at Natoma Grove, near Folsom. The Prison will be open for visitors during the day. A pleasant day and a pleasant time will follow.

Mt. Shasta Springs.

Within the boundaries of California exists more beautiful and grand scenery than can be found in any other State in the American Union. One of the most attractive localities is the country in the vicinity of Mt. Shasta, along the upper part of the cañon of the Sacramento. This region has long been known, but only within a comparatively recent period has been made easy of access to the traveling public by the building of the California and Oregon railroad. During the construction of this new route thousands of men were employed in the difficult and remarkable feats of engineering, and it was while this labor was in progress that a group of extraordinary springs was encountered close to the scene of operations. These springs were famous among the Indians, and formed their most important rendezvous in all the Shasta country when the red man held undisputed sway over stream and forest. These unique, natural fountains so long cherished by the aborigines had become neglected and well-nigh forgotten. And it was only upon the occasion of the sudden influx of the large forces alluded to that interest in these strange waters was again revived, and that they came into such wide-spread notoriety as they have already acquired. The water of one of the springs suddenly became a favorite beverage, so pleasant was it to the taste and so beneficial in its effects. It was named Shasta water by a prominent railroad official, and under that name has already gained a great reputation by the reason of its delightful and beneficial qualities as a beverage. Mt. Shasta Springs is destined speedily to become a famous spot. Nature has provided so much that but little remains for man to perform. Here the heavy and oppressive atmosphere of the warm lowlands and the sharp, rasping, fog-laden winds of the coast are unknown. In place thereof, is a light, buoyant atmosphere, cool throughout the summer. The breezes are fragrant with the aroma from flowering shrubs and gums of the towering spruce and lofty pine. The air in the vicinity of Mt. Shasta Springs is considered the purest that can be obtained, by reason of certain relations existing between the topographical features of the country and prevalent air currents. An immense area of forests, broken by high peaks and intersected by numerous cañons and valleys, extends from the Sierras on the east around to the Coast Range on the west. In the heart of this tract is located the springs, just above the Sixteenth Crossing, within a stone's throw of the railroad track, and overlooking the cañon, and the Sacramento river, which at this point is a clear and picturesque mountain stream with shaded banks and darksome pools that abound in trout. The altitude of this charming and romantic spot is about 2,500 feet above the level of the sea; and a line drawn due east around the world would pass through or near to Oporto, Portugal; Barcelona, Spain, on the Mediterranean; Constantinople, Turkey; Tiflis, Georgia; Khiva, Turkestan; great wall of China, Island of Corea; Vladivostock, Siberia; and Japan. It is safe to predict that Mt. Shasta Springs will become one of the leading attractions of the Pacific Coast.

The Weather.

The highest and lowest signal service temperature during the past week was 76° and 46°, while for the same time last year it was 84° and 48°. There was .94 of an inch of rain precipitated during the week just past, as against a trace for the same time last year. The season's rainfall to date is 31.97 inches, as against 16.45 inches to an equal date last year.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

If you contemplate building, own a store, or even rent, and want absolute protection from fire, put in Schenck's Hose Reels—an improvement on the old, or Paragon Reel—will swing in any direction when being unreeled. L. M. Landsborough is the agent for Northern California, who will furnish rates on application.

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers.

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal.

Change of Management.

The Capital Hotel is now under the management of Isador Townsend and B. B. Brown of this city. Both gentlemen are well known throughout the coast and their extensive knowledge of knowing "how to run a hotel" well fits them for sustaining the deserved reputation of this always popular hotel.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The way to get rich with a rush is to go slow.

Many a man knows a dollar by sight who does not know its value.

When you look at some people the first thing you think of is a club.

Don't try to drown your troubles in a cup; troubles are great swimmers.

It is so easy for a man to say that the people dislike him because of envy.

The first time a man is called Baldy the thought of a fight comes into his head.

It is safe to say that no girl ever went to a party without wearing something that was borrowed.

There is a coarse streak in every man that lives; it is bound to crop out if you know him too well.

The two ugliest things on earth are the man who looks like a girl and the girl who looks like a man.

Every man knows how mean he is himself, but he is not absolutely sure about his neighbor; hence his fondness for gossip.

The man who leads a fast life in this world may find the time hang heavily on his hands in the next.

One of the hardest things to learn is that the world is seldom watching us when we are doing good.

Men would not care to be wicked if women did not look on naughtiness with mingled dread and admiration.

The man who is perpetually hesitating as to which of two things he will do, seldom does either.

If you should steal a million golden dollars in a lump

The people would say you was a genius and a trump.

If you secure but half the pile a "shortage" that would be,

Whereas a somewhat less amount would be "insolvency."

To steal a tiny, paltry sum would give them the belief

That you were a dishonest man, a robber and a thief.

But if you steal a loaf of bread, whereby your life is saved,

They'll put you into prison with the totally depraved.

Was it a Conspiracy?

Last night four young men boarded a Broadway car at City Hall Park. The car was going northward and the hour was past midnight. The car was empty when the young men got aboard. They appeared to be strangers to each other, but probably were not. Each man selected a corner of the car and sat down. Number One appeared to be dreadfully sleepy, and, acting like a man who had a long ride ahead of him, leaped back against the end of the car, swung his feet up on the seat and apparently fell asleep.

He had been in this comfortable position but a few minutes when the conductor stepped in from the platform, tapped him on the shoulder and said:

"Please take your feet off the seat."

The man swung his feet to the floor and sat up in the seat, apparently more asleep than awake.

As the conductor passed out of the car again he did not notice Passenger Number Two, in the corner opposite, lean drowsily in his corner, swing his feet along the seat and settle himself comfortably for a nap. In a minute or two he caught sight of this passenger and, stepping briskly into the car, shook him by the shoulder and said, with some iron in his voice:

"See here, it's against the rules to put your feet on the seat."

The man growled at the rules like one in his sleep, but took down his feet.

By the time the conductor had reached the platform, Passenger Number Three fell over into his corner, stretched a couple of very long legs along the seat and closed his eyes like one passing to pleasant dreams?

The conductor caught sight of him pretty soon, and in a moment was hovering over the offending passenger.

"Here, this won't do," he said, as he shook the sleeper with a good deal of vigor; "didn't you hear what I told those other men? It's against the rules to put your feet on the seat. Take 'em down, and be lively about it."

"Oh, blow the rules!" growled the man, as he straightened up in the seat.

As the conductor passed out he glanced suspiciously at the fourth man, but he was sitting up straight as a judge and appeared to be sound asleep. No sooner was the conductor out on the platform than this man swung his legs around on the seat and settled back into his corner to all appearances sounder asleep than ever.

When the conductor saw this fourth infraction of the rules he was mad clear through. Seizing the man roughly by the shoulders he gave him a twist in the direction of an upright position and exclaimed:

"Confound it, haven't I been telling every one in this car that it is against the rules to put your feet on the seats? Suppose the spotter would get on and see you stretched along the car like that, where would I be? Now put your hoofs on the floor and keep them there."

As he was passing out he heard a shuffle at the other end of the car, and looking around detected Passenger Number One in the act of coaxing his feet back on the seat.

"Suffering cats!" yelled the conductor as he jumped towards this offender. "Get them mud hoofs off that seat! Didn't I tell you it was against the rules?"

A noise in another corner attracted his attention, and whirling around Passenger Number Two was again feeling for the seat with his boots, but at the same time appeared to be sound asleep.

"Weeping Rachel!" shouted the now exasperated conductor. "There goes that other sleeping beauty!" and before he could finish the sentence the other two of the quartet were again stretching out on the seat.

The conductor jumped up and down several times, and yelled in desperation:

"Now, this racket stops right here. The first fellow that moves a foot, except to walk out of the car, will go out through the window head first!" and he backed out on the platform, keeping his eyes riveted on his four troublesome passengers.

Pretty soon the four young men got off the car together. As they moved away an idea seemed to strike the conductor, and he muttered to himself:

"I believe, by thunder, that was an infernal conspiracy!"—N. Y. World.

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE

SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY..... APRIL 27, 1890.

Sacramento vs. Stockton

Game called at 3:15 P. M.

ADMISSION..... FIFTY CENTS
LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 1 and 1:30 P. M. Stop at 3d, 10th, and 18th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts. Reserved seats at Golden Eagle cigar store.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,
700 and 702 S Street, Sacramento.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF EDWARD KRAUS, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Executor of the estate of Edward Kraus, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Wm. E. Gerber, Executor of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento City, Cal.

Dated, April 15, 1890.
WM. E. GERBER, Executor.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Executor.
Apr 19-5t

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Charles Hammer & Co.
Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

SPRING RACE MEETING

Under the auspices of the

STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Will be held at

SACRAMENTO.

Saturday, April 26th,

Tuesday, April 29th,

Thursday, May 1st,

Saturday, May 3d.

EXCLUSIVELY RUNNING.

IT is the intention of this Society to make these Meetings an important adjunct in the encouragement of breeding on the coast.

$25,000 in Stakes and Purses

Will be contested for by representatives of the principal stables of California, prior to their departure for Eastern engagements.

The same management that has made racing a success at the State Fairs, will conduct these meetings, with the hope of making them as attractive in point of entertainment as are those of the Fall meetings.

General Admission, including seat in Grand Stand and Quarter-Street privileges, $1.00.

CHRIS. GREEN, President.

EDWIN F. SMITH, Secretary.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

In the matter of A. E. Votaw, an insolvent debtor. A. E. Votaw having filed in this Court her petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, by which appears that she is an insolvent debtor, the said A. E. Votaw is hereby declared to be insolvent.

The Sheriff of the County of Sacramento is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all her deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of her estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to her or to any person, firm or corporation or association, for her use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Honorable Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, in open Court, at the Court-room of said Court, on the sixth day of June, 1890, at 1:30 o'clock P. M. of that day, to prove their debts, choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered that the order be published in the THEMIS, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Sacramento, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of the creditors.

And it is further ordered that in the meantime all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed.

Dated, April 21st, 1890.

JOHN W. ARMSTRONG,

Judge of the Superior Court.

WILLIAM A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney for Petitioner.

apr26-5t

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER,

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars.

ROBERT ALLEN,

Formerly of Agricultural Park.

ANHEUSER & BUSCHBEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

First Claqueur—Why do you clap and hiss at the same time?

Second ditto—You see the new actress has paid me to clap, and her rival has paid me to hiss.

At SCHOOL.—Teacher—Somebody has been throwing paper behind my back. Mewes, can you tell me who it was?

Mewes (who was the culprit himself)—I know who it was, but I hardly like to tell.

Teacher—A trifle too scrupulous, perhaps, but it shows honorable feeling on your part. You may sit down.

The autograph fan is coming again into existence as a fashionable craze—fashion, like history, repeating itself. But the mere writing of one's name on a lady's fan is no longer considered enough. If you are a poet or writer, an original verse or sentiment must accompany it. If you are a statesman, you are expected to deliver some great thought; if an artist, you will not be let off short of a sketch—done in colors, too.

ORDINANCE No. 26.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY of Sacramento, do ordain as follows:

That there be and hereby is granted to the Folsom Water Power Company, a corporation, the right and privilege to close from public use that portion of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge and Scott streets, lying and extending westerly from the westerly side of Leidesdorff street, and such portion of River street as extends along the westerly side of Blocks 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, all in the town of Folsom and county of Sacramento.

And that there be and also hereby is granted to the said Folsom Water Power Company the franchise, right and privilege to construct and maintain a canal and canals and waterways, with a railroad on the bank of said canals, in, upon and across the before mentioned portions of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge, Scott and River streets, and the alleys in the before mentioned blocks, numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, and also along Leidesdorff, Redding, and the street on the westerly side of the Sacramento Valley Railroad, and also along Forrest street to the easterly boundary of the town of Folsom, in the county of Sacramento, State of California.

Provided that said Company shall keep open the present road to the American river bridge, and to cover the canal, wherever it crosses said road or runs upon any street required for public use, with good and sufficient bridges or stone culverts.

Adopted April 11, 1890, by the following vote: Ayes—Tebbets, Black, Bates, Greer and Ross.

[Seal] Attest: H. C. ROSS, Chairman,
W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk,
april 24—4t

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,
DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER
LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.
M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

WITH RADAM'S MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.
703 J Street, Sacramento.

R. DAVIS,
NOTARY PUBLIC,
Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES
and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand
ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of
all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing
of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets.
Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California
Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple
DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT
from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,
Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents.
Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.
Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and

dealer in Saddles, Har-

ness, Robes, Collars,

Whips, Spurs, Brushes

Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties
a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at
SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
9:30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6:20 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6:45 P
8:15 P	Knight's Landing	7:40 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6:00 A
3:00 P	Oroville	10:30 A
3:00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willows	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7:25 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
6:45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9:10 P
*10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	8:00 A
10:50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara	9:55 A
6:45 A	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa	7:25 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno	6:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno	6:00 A
12:05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:45 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo	7:25 P
*12:15 P	Folsom and Placerville (Mixed)	*10:25 A
*7:15 A	Folsom and Placerville	*2:40 P
*5:20 P	Folsom	*6:50 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday ex-
cepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout.
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox.
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Stude-
baker Wagons and Buggies,
Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

Public Administrator's Report.

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman.....	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estate of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin.....		123 87
Estate of Jas. Russell.....	100 00	82 32	100 53
Estate of A. Ely.....	182 60	182 60
Estate of A. B. Ropes.....	635 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, County of Sacramento, ss.

George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890. WM. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public. mch15-6t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tehbets, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tehbets is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tehbets, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child, Marjorie Tehbets, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk. By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy. TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff. mch1-9t.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF BRIDGET NAUGHTON, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, executors of the estate of Bridget Naughton, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said executors, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

FRANK D. RYAN and MICHAEL BRENNAN, Executors of the Estate of said deceased. Dated April 2, 1890. apr5-5t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL MCKEE, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Julia McKee, administratrix of the estate of Samuel McKee, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the law office of A. J. and Elwood Bruner, at the Court-house, Seventh and J streets, Sacramento, Cal.

JULIA MCKEE, Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased. Dated March 28th, 1890.

A. J. & ELWOOD BRUNER, Attorneys for Estate. mch29-4t

Certificate of Partnership.

State of California, City and County of San Francisco, ss.

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we are copartners, transacting business in the city and county of Sacramento, State of California, under the firm name and style of WHITTIER, FULLER & CO., and that the names in full, and place of residence of all the members of such copartnership, are as follows, to-wit: William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, all residents of the city and county of San Francisco, State of California, and Lewellyn Tozer, resident of the city and county of Sacramento, State of California.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands this first day of April, 1890.

WM. FRANK WHITTIER, WILLIAM PALMER FULLER, FREDERICK N. WOODS, WILLIAM P. FULLER, JR., LEWELLYN TOZER.

State of California, City and County of San Francisco, ss.

On the first day of April, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Lewis B. Harris, a Notary Public in and for said city and county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, and Lewellyn Tozer, known to me as the individuals described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the annexed instrument, and they severally acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the city and county of San Francisco, the day and year last above written.

(Signed) LEWIS B. HARRIS, Notary Public. [Seal.] apr5-5t

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.

J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the Hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from..... $25
Stylish Pants made to order..... 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from..... 25

Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from..... 30

Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from..... 40

And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city.

Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Heroes and Heroines.

"There are heroes and heroes, and there are heroines and heroines," said Chauncey M. Depew to a Philadelphia Press man, in speaking of the matter of personal bravery. "There are blue-shirted men who go over our railroad lines every day in engine cabs, who would laugh at you if you intimated to them that they are heroes, and who, in spite of all, are as brave as any man who ever drew a sword or carried a musket. Railroad men seldom have much time to think. They are cowards or heroes in a second. Not long ago one of our engineers of an express train rounded a turn in the road and saw that another train had been derailed, and lay right across the track. A collision was inevitable. The engineer might have taken chances and jumped, but he didn't. As he said afterward: 'I saw right away we were in for it, and like a flash it struck me that our only chance was to go right ahead and cut through if we could. So I threw her open and let her go.'

"The experiment was perilous, but it was successful. He did 'cut through,' and no one was injured. This act of the engineer was that of an exceedingly courageous, cool-headed man.

"Another engineer on a western road performed a similar act some time ago with tragic results. He tried to—or, in fact, was forced to try to—cut through a freight train that had been thrown across the track. None of the passengers were injured, but the engineer and his fireman were killed. This is but too often the reward of bravery in all walks of life."

A sea-serpent, 103 feet long, was seen to coil itself up in slippery folds on the coast of Florida last month. Three reliable persons saw this creature distinctly.

Reader, the above is a "yarn." If people would believe the following truthful statement as readily as they swallow sea-serpent stories, it would be the means of saving thousands of lives. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, if taken in time and given a fair trial, will actually cure consumption of the lungs, which is really scrofulous disease. If this wonderful medicine does not do all we recommend, when taken as directed, we will cheerfully and promptly return all money paid for it. Can any offer be more generous or fair? No other medicine possesses sufficient power over that fatal malady—Consumption, to warrant its manufacturers in selling it under such trying conditions. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not only the most wonderful alternative, or blood-cleanser, known to medical science, but also possesses superior nutritive and tonic, or strength-giving properties, which assist the food to digest and become assimilated, thus building up both strength and flesh. For all cases of Bronchial, Throat and Lung Diseases, accompanied with lingering coughs, it is absolutely unequalled as a remedy. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, and kindred affections, it surpasses all other medicines.

$500 REWARD

is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Catarrh in the Head which they cannot cure. By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases, no matter how bad, or of how long standing. Fifty cents, by druggists.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS, 609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

ANNIE KANE, Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased. Dated March 13th, 1890. mch22-5t

Woman's Superstitions.

If you see a pin you are going to pick it up so that you will have good luck all that day.

You know there is going to be a death in the family because you dreamed of a white horse last night.

If your nose itches you, you know most positively that you are going to meet a fool or kiss a stranger.

You know the reason you did not get a letter to-day was because you failed to pick up a hairpin you saw on the floor.

You would let a mangy looking yellow dog follow you all over town because it is going to bring you a blonde husband.

When the palm of your hand itches you know you are going to get money, so you rub it on wood that it may come good.

Are you superstitious? Well, no, of course you are not, but you had rather not sing before breakfast because you might cry before tea.

You would muddy your best gloves carrying home a dirty horseshoe picked out of the middle of the street for fear of losing the luck it would bring.

You would not walk under a ladder, not because you are afraid it might fall on you, but because you are perfectly certain that the gentleman in black is waiting for you at the other side of it.

Oh, no, none of us are superstitious; these are just little fancies, but if you promise not to tell anybody, I will confess to you that there is a woman in New York who carries a horse-chestnut in her pocket so she won't get the rheumatism.

Some marry young, and some, instead, wait for a much maturer stage; but very many couples wed just when they reach the parson-age.

When a new girl comes to town all the other girls call on her and admire her, and then go away and make fun of her.

CELEBRATEDWEINER LAGER BEER*CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS.

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER.

1118 J Street.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

—♦♦♦♦♦—

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES
212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.*1,000,000Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties Deciduous Trees.Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES, of most approved varieties.Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. (Principal Depot: No. 813
Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK FAIR DEALING! LOW PRICES!THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPERSOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1890.

No. 11.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

Rabbi Krauskopf, in his lecture delivered at Philadelphia, April 15th, has fallen into the same error that has beset other learned ministers of God in relation to the exclusion of the Mongolian hordes that have been such a curse to this part of the continent. This is the language the learned gentleman uses: "Why did we not blow to atoms the Statue of Liberty on Bedloe's Island before we disgraced our name and fame by the Chinese Exclusion Act, before we disgraced our laws by prohibiting the landing of that handful of unfortunate poor whom over-crowded and poverty-ridden Europe cannot support, and who cannot there support themselves, and who seek our shores to try their fortunes here, as have the millions of people before them?" He brands this policy as heartless and base ingratitude. The Rabbi is not the only preacher that advocates the universal brotherhood of man. Henry Ward Beecher took the same views, and probably upon the broad principles of equal rights. But should the learned Rabbi come to this coast and witness the true situation, his judgment would undoubtedly be changed. Experience would teach him wisdom in this matter, and that his broad philanthropic notions would be subject to some radical limitations. It sounds all right to invoke the great principles of freedom in all these matters, but political economy when put to the crucial tests which we have undergone teaches us that self-preservation is indeed the first law of nature. Somehow, it is a very difficult matter to teach our Eastern brethren this branch of political economy, and Rabbi Krauskopf seems to be no exception, notwithstanding his broad gauge views on other matters. Whatever may be said for or against unlimited immigration of foreigners, it is certain that it would not take these advocates of the free and unlimited influx of Mongolians long to understand the situation if their communities were overrun like ours have been in the past. Indeed, on the general idea of foreign immigration, we think there should be some restriction, particularly with regard to the classes that have of later years cast their baleful influences in this country. We know not why such accomplished gentlemen are so prone to assume the defensive of those elements which of recent years have been the cause of much trouble and injury to the municipal, State and Federal Government. Without attempting to argue the question upon or from any philosophical standpoint, we only make a profert of the actual situation and the condition of the country at the present time, particularly the Pacific States and Territories to refute the position taken.

The House and Senate Committees on Immigration report some alarm at the immense Italian immigration. This class is coming here in herds, without means and destitute even of clothing. It seems that a great portion of this immigration comes here under contract with Italian bankers, and are little less than slaves. Within the past eight years they have supplanted all other races in the avenues of unskilled labor in New York. In one square mile in New York there are 270,000 of these people. It is difficult for the investigating committees to learn anything from these people, because they will not communicate with others. Now if there is so much fear and alarm on account of the deteriorating influence of the Italian immigration, what must the Eastern people think of our condition on this coast, with the hordes of Mongolians? Just let a few hundred thousand Chinese settle in their midst, and we will hear different comments in the future from those in the past and at present.

We have spoken in previous issues concerning the administration of justice. This week Charles Freeman has been convicted of murder in the first degree—it means death. There are two sides to all cases. The policy of this journal has been not to speak of the merits of cases until after trial. Charles Freeman has, after a trial involving nine days, been pronounced guilty by twelve of our fellow citizens. We have listened to the testimony; the verdict is correct.

The manner of the determination of criminal cases involving the extreme penalty is necessarily unjust. Few there are who, if they could avoid it, will indicate by a piece of paper dropped into a hat, that the life of a mortal should be taken. In this case we have a very full appreciation of the position in which the jurors were placed; it was hard; they have exhibited a courage which few would. Against the justice of their verdict criticism cannot be made. If Chas. Freeman took the poor wretch, Mark Feeney, from the street and drowned him in the barrel, as Wilkes swore, he deserves the penalty he receives—death. On the other hand if Wilkes, the only other eye-witness than Freeman, has lied; if he swore to a state of facts that will result in sending Freeman to the gallows, justice can not be done him; in hell his companionship would be polluting.

We have heard the testimony given in this case; we know the care with which it has been tried; the verdict is just. It is but proper that acknowledgment should be accorded to the counsel who represented the prosecution and the defense. The District Attorney and his deputy presented the case fairly; they fully understood its importance—they sought justice. For the defense, Judge Post fought against terrible odds. Alone, with public opinion strongly against his client, the result of the trial is no discredit to him. We can very fully appreciate the situation of the counsel. And with a full knowledge of what has been done by him, we say he could have done no more. The infliction of the penalty of death is severe; even with those who are accustomed to participate as officers in criminal cases, it shocks. Hard it is, yet a duty, to take away the life of a fellow-creature when the interests of justice demand it.

The rulings of the Court in this case leaned to mercy. There has been no error. The charge of Judge Van Fleet conveyed to the twelve arbitors as clear an exposition of the law as could have fallen from the lips of man. It was careful; regardful of the rights of the people and of the defendant.

The Monarch of Dailies, self-named, has formulated a sensation with regard to taking the census in the South. The said sensation is to the effect that the Republicans intend to exclude the colored people from the census in order to decrease the Democratic representation in Congress, and to reduce the electoral vote. Such an act would be in line with the Southern people's actions in the past, where they claimed and exacted Congressional representation based on the negro population, yet they denied the negro the elective franchise—in other words demanded representation without permitting the right to vote or have a voice in the affairs of the government. It would indeed be a kind of retributive justice. But this is all the merest bosh, and is void of even the slightest foundation. Such a course would be utterly impossible under the laws. Some of our great Democratic dailies are nothing if not sensational. Their ideas seem to rest on the proposition—anything to make the people read and talk—the truth is of no consequence.

This is the season of school vacations, and we hear the oft repeated story that our youth are over-taxed in educational matters—that they study too much, whereby their mental and physical conditions are weakened. There may be some exceptional cases where a boy or girl studies too hard, and impairs his or her health thereby, but such cases are far between. The exuberance of youth is a full counter to any task that may be placed upon the mental faculties. All this talk about cramming and over-education is the veriest bosh. It is possible, indeed probable, that some of our school children are forced to commit lessons by rote, which they do not, and by reason of the lack of reasoning powers, cannot understand; still there is no possible danger of any physical degeneracy either in mind or body. The few hours in the school-room, and the few additional hours to prepare their lessons, is not such a burden that will, or can affect their mental or physical condition. Indeed, the little strain that is placed on the mental faculties serves as a means of strengthening rather than deteriorating the mind. When this is an exception, and we find a child too eager for study, let a repressing process be invoked. We who have passed through this alleged "hard study" process, can look back and laugh at the solicitude for our welfare when boys—but certainly our study was not one of the ills our flesh was heir to. Plenty of vacations, however, are not amiss, and even if there has been no immediate danger of mental or physical degeneracy, these vacations are a necessity for the youth, even though it be true that our boys and girls manage to find plenty of time for physical exercise. There are some medical alarmists who have theories that over-study in the child produces an overflow of blood to the brain, and it being of a yielding nature, causes injury. This, however, is mere theory, and like all theories, are about as uncertain as the wind. If theories were practicable, they would apply to the adult, who has in many instances an undue pressure on his brain powers, yet it is only the exception when this abused brain gives away under the strain. The exuberance of youth is a full guarantee or insurance against over-study. Where there is any mental or physical injury in childhood, it is safe to investigate, and such investigation will develop some other cause or condition, as the reason therefor. We do not believe that every mind is constituted alike, and that a fixed course of study for all children alike is wrong in principle. Some minds can be developed only in certain courses, and upon certain subjects. It seems, therefore, absurd to try to make a mathematician out of one who develops only a love for history, or music, or art. Some can never acquire a knowledge of the languages, or of philosophy, therefore it is almost useless to force these studies upon them. When, therefore, we hear of children failing in their mental capacities, we look for the cause in the lack of the proper development in some particular line. If any argument was needed against this theory of over-study, just go in the neighborhood of any of our public schools and witness the happy scenes, where childhood gives way to the exuberance of youth. This is a full answer to our solicitude for the mental strain on childhood.

At no time since the beginning of history has there been such an interest manifested in the subject of popular education. In this country all the organization of public education is under the State Governments. While there is an advisory bureau, it exercises no control over the system. Every town, township and municipality has the detail direction of its school system under instructions of State legislation. We have almost reached the degree of perfection in training the youth of our country in educational matters. One of the great problems for solution is the education of the "Negro of the South." This is a matter for the nation to consider, aside from the system of State control. The rising generation of the colored race are making rapid strides in securing an education. It is not uncommon to hear of the fact that some colored youth has been selected as class orator in leading institutions of learning.

Harm comes not from a full and just criticism of governmental administration. We believe not in the policy pursued by some journals of crying wolf when the animal shows not; sensational journalism harms the public; it results in the destruction of the influence of the press. Concerning the administration of the affairs of Sacramento city, we feel it nearer our readers than that of the conduct of county, State or Federal Governments. It is nearer home. We speak truthfully when we say, and we say it with candor, that our local government could, with better results, be more cheaply administered. No man of intelligence will deny that the influence of the lower element affects to an almost controlling degree important matters of municipal regulation. Much has been published and said concerning the matter of gambling, and of the immunity that has been granted to the favored. A very great deal of it has been the absolute truth. We say—experience demonstrates—that extreme laws will never be enforced. We publish it not as news that the State penal laws in regard to gaming are constantly being violated; that they are not enforced, we attribute largely to the fact that they are unreasonably severe. We believe it to be the sentiment of the intelligent that matters included in the category of social evils should be licensed and kept within proper restriction.

Of Mayor Comstock we cannot say otherwise than that he is sincere. That he has protested against manifest wrong and to the allowance of accounts that would be rejected with ridicule in any business house commends him. He should, however, not forget that the city is advancing and that proper regard should be taken of circumstances existing and to exist. The trouble with our municipal management is that we apparently save the little, but waste the larger quantity; we have a surplus of cooks; we cast away much that might have been good broth. It is not a pleasing reflection that we start this fiscal year behind on our running expenses. Unless there will be more business judgment shown than this people have favored themselves with, the evidences of the indebtedness of what we are pleased to call the Capital City of the Golden State will become offensive to the world that they are so familiarly met. Truly, there is no excuse that a people possessing the wealth we have, boasting of our intelligence and business management, should be compelled to confess we are about insolvent. This bonded indebtedness, contracted long before many of us were born, is bad enough. To the governing board we say repeat not the blunders of the past; we need brains and judgment in your offices—if you possess them there is a magnificent opportunity for their exhibition; the people will commend.

A late discovery in physics is to the effect that under certain conditions beams of light give forth sound, and that different colored rays of solar light give out different sounds. This gives a scientific foundation to the old theory about the music of the spheres, and permits us to recognize some reality in the poetic reference of the Bible to the time when the morning stars sang together. It also may establish a certain relation between the operatic stars and the lights of the solar system, with the difference that, however the former may color themselves, they give out just the same sounds.

SOME UNWRITTEN HISTORY.

Sacramento in Embryo—How Government was Established from Chaos.

PART XII.

Thus it will be seen that Sacramento did not await the ordinary period of gestation, but came into the world as a city before its time—before even there was a State government and by the Cæsarean method. It did not, like Minerva, spring into existence fully armed, but it opened its eyes upon a new world somewhat oppressed by its surroundings. It had no guide for its action in the nature of a charter or a statute, giving it certain powers. There was then no State government and no Federal law authorized its existence. It had its own way to win in the world. It must even provide for its own existence. There was no shelter provided for it, no food, and no land-mark to guide it in its action. But the material of which its City Council was composed was of the finest kind, and the members set to work with hearts of oak, and combined the material (then chaotic) into a shapely city government. In the evening of the day of their election, August 1, 1849, the City Council elect met at the St. Louis Exchange, on Second street, between I and J, for action. Present—John P. Rogers, H. E. Robinson, P. B. Cornwall, William Stout, E. F. Gillespie and Thomas H. Chapman. Absent—Benj. Jennings, A. M. Winn and M. T. McClellan.

James S. Thomas, First Magistrate elect was also present as installing officer. He administered to the members of the City Council then present an oath to support the Constitution of the United States and to faithfully demean themselves in the discharge of their duties as City Councilmen. Thereupon E. F. Gillespie was called to the Chair as President pro tem. and the Council proceeded to the election of a permanent President, which resulted in the election of Wm. Stout, and on motion, J. H. Harper was elected Clerk.

President Stout took the chair, and declared the City Council of Sacramento city to be duly organized and ready for the transaction of business. Councilman Robinson offered a resolution, which was adopted, to the effect that a committee of three be appointed by the President for the purpose of drafting a code of by-laws for the regulation of the meetings of the City Council, and E. F. Gillespie, H. E. Robinson and P. B. Cornwall were named to constitute that committee.

Mr. Cornwall offered a resolution that a committee of three be appointed on wharves and streets, which being adopted, the President appointed as members, Messrs. Stout Gillespie and Winn.

On like motion, a committee of three on Finances, consisting of Messrs. Cornwall, Rogers and McClellan was appointed; and a committee of two, consisting of Councilmen Gillespie and Chapman, was appointed, whose duty it was to procure a suitable room for the use of the City Council.

On like motion of Mr. Cornwall, a committee of three was constituted to draft a system of ordinances for: (1) Police Department of the city. (2) Trade which had sprung up in the city. (3) The Health Department. (4) General regulations of the city of Sacramento. On this committee were appointed Councilmen Rogers, Robinson and Chapman. Said committee were instructed to report as soon as practicable.

The President then addressed the Council on the duties devolving on them, and which they had promised to perform to the best of their abilities, and the Council adjourned to meet on August 11th, then next. Looking at the acts of that Council after the lapse of more than forty years, we can but admire their intelligence and courage, combined with more than ordinary prudence. The influx of miners and mining supplies had become immense. Sea-going ships then landed at Sutter's embarcadero, and the banks of the river to T street were occupied by vessels moored for discharge of cargo, or laid up for store ships and used for wholesale and retail of goods. There was no law or ordinance for the management of our harbor. No harbor master or other officer authorized to direct when a ship should land, how long such ship might stay or what obstructions might be maintained by any one on our levees or in our streets. All was chaos and public good had to yield to personal interests; instead of public good standing paramount, as is the case in all well regulated communities, private greed stood first, and the interests of the public had to yield.

The Council undertook to remedy these evils. They provided for a code of by-laws for their own government. They then attended to the wharves and streets and set their machinery in motion to give us a municipal government, competent to remedy the evils which had become burdensome.

The most difficult problem of all for them to solve was, how shall the city raise the necessary means to administer the government? There was no statute authorizing the levy of a tax. The Council found itself face to face with that problem. How can men who reap the benefits of a good government be compelled to bear their fair share of its burdens. We shall see, by and by, how these committees performed their duties, and how the Council met and overcame difficulties as they presented themselves.

From this first meeting of the City Council an adjournment was taken to the evening of Saturday, the 11th August, 1849. At that time no quorum of the Council was present, and it adjourned to meet at the call of the President.

A QUEER LOVE LETTER.

Last week I had the pleasure to present to the readers of THEMIS an interesting letter. It was interesting from many points. To-day I present another, probably the queerest love letter on record, and the most remarkable offer of marriage ever made. It is a love letter without a word of love, and a proposal of marriage that does not propose. Numerous as the biographies of Abraham Lincoln have been, and closely as they have been gleaned for new facts and materials, it was left for Mr. Jesse Welk, of Greencastle, to discover this unique and characteristic production of Mr. Lincoln's almost untutored mind. Addressed to "My Dear Mary," it reads as follows:

You must know that I cannot see you or think of you with entire indifference; and yet it may be that you are mistaken in regard to what my real feelings toward you are. If I knew you were not, I should not trouble you with this letter. Perhaps any other man would know enough without further information, but I consider it my peculiar right to plead ignorance and your bounden duty to allow the plea. I want in all cases to do right, and most particularly so in all cases with women. I want at this particular time, more than anything else, to do right with you, and if I knew it would be doing right, as I rather suspect it would, to let you alone, I would do it. And for the purpose of making the matter as plain as possible, I now say you can drop the subject, dismiss your thoughts—if you ever had any—from me forever, and leave this letter unanswered without calling forth one accusing thought from me. And I will even go further, and say that if it will add anything to your comfort and peace of mind to do so, it is my sincere wish that you should. Do not understand by this that I wish to cut your acquaintance. I mean no such thing. What I wish is that our further acquaintance shall depend upon yourself. If such further acquaintance would contribute nothing to your happiness, I am sure it would not to mine. If you feel yourself in any degree bound to me, I am now willing to release you, provided you wish it; while on the other hand, I am willing and even anxious to bind you faster, if I can be convinced that it will in any degree add to your happiness. This, indeed, is the whole question with me. Nothing would make me more miserable than to believe you miserable; nothing more happy than to know you were so. In what I have now said I think I cannot be misunderstood, and to make myself understood is the only object of this letter. If it suits you best not to answer this, farewell. A long life and a merry one attend you. But if you conclude to write back, speak as plainly as I do. There can be neither harm nor danger in saying to me anything you think, just in the manner you think it. Your friend,
Terra Nova. "LINCOLN."

Howard says that "a most interesting article might be written on the childhood of Jesus Christ." That may be. But it would necessarily be all ingenious conjecture. No one knows anything about that childhood.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

The orchestra plays, and the curtain's up-drawn;
A moment's surprise, and the ballet comes on;
The premier danseuse and coryphees fair,
When the bald-headed man in the orchestra chair
Uprises at once, with a smile and a sigh,
The long double-barreled lorgnette to his eye;
Watches the twinkling of rhythmical feet,
With keenest enjoyment, his pleasure complete,
And a frown settles down on the merchant's face,
Because he can't have the bald-headed man's place.

From present indications the chestnut crop has not been injured. Dan Rice is in the flesh, and is booked as one of the attractions for a tent show during the present season.

Junius Brutus de Pearcey—"I have a new play. How would you like to do some booking for me?" Smith—"It depends on who is going to do the pocket booking for you."

The announcement, seemingly well authenticated, is made from London, that Sir Arthur Sullivan is at work on a grand opera, for which Eugene Field, of Chicago, is writing the libretto, and that it will be ready for production in the fall.

Walter Besant, being dissatisfied with the way Ibsen ended his Doll's House, has written a sequel, in which the lives of "Nora," of "Helmer," of "Krogstad" and "Christiania," and even of the children, are followed out to their bitter probable ending.

Henry Irving declines a nomination to Parliament, on the ground that its duties are not compatible with the profession of an actor. However, there has been some superb acting on the boards of the House of Commons, and mighty were the "stars" who played heroic parts in their day, in both comedy and burlesque.

"What's the matter?" asked the stage manager, who noticed that something was going wrong during the grave-digging scene in Hamlet. "It's the first grave digger," whispered "Horatio." "He says that unless the manager sends him back the price of a square meal right away, he's going to eat the loaf of bread that they're using for 'Yorick's' skull."

A few evening ago a prima donna of an opera company became angered at the indifference of the audience, and at once proceeded to destroy the drop curtain in a spirit of revenge. This occurred in the Hoosier State; but we would send greetings to that prima donna, and guarantee an indifferent audience in Sacramento, just for the pleasure of having her rend the drop curtain. We will pledge Manager Hall a full house for the occasion.

Here is a story of Paganini. One time in Paris he jumped into a cab and ordered the driver to make quick time to the theater, where an impatient audience was waiting to hear him perform a famous piece of music on one string of his violin. "What's your fare?" he inquired. "For you, sir," said the driver, "ten francs." "You jest," laughed the great violinist. "Not so; you charge as much for a place at your concert." Paganini was silent for a minute, and then, with a complacent glance at the over-reaching cabman, said, handing him a decent fare: "I'll pay you ten francs when you drive me on one wheel."

Some years ago Guy Carleton wrote a play for John McCullough. It was called Memnon, and embodied that writer's best abilities. In some respects it was pronounced by competent judges like Mr. Irving and Mr. Barrett the finest piece of stage literature that has been done here in our generation. John McCullough didn't live to produce it. He could not have played it adequately if he had. But John, like Mr. Barrett, had a noble desire to produce the best dramatic works of his time. He ardently longed to be identified with something that would live beyond the applause of the theater, and he said to me one day: "I'd give all the money I have for a really good play, and when I say a good one, I mean a worthy one. I've read Memnon over and over, and it seems to me to be the best piece of dramatic literature that has been done here." Louis James contemplates producing Memnon next season. Mr. James is an accomplished artist, and if the play has merit he will make it a success.

Charles R. Pope, is United States Consul at Toronto, Canada. This is a pleasant place, worth $6,000 a year, and so near home that the Consul can enjoy all the pleasures of his National life and yet have a dignified position to bank upon. Twenty years ago Mr. Pope was one of the most popular actors of the day. He has played the leading characters in half of Shakespeare's plays, and made money and reputation out of his work. When he got a start in a financial way he settled down in St. Louis, bought a theater, quit acting and made a fortune. Then, like lots of other rich men, he went into politics as a recreation, and finally landed into the Consulship which he now occupies just after President Harrison was elected. I heard a good story of Pope. Just after the war he was traveling through the South charging 50 and 75 cents and $1 admission. He heard that Lawrence Barrett was just ahead of him or following in his wake, whereupon he wired his manager: "Hereafter my prices must be a dollar and a-half, the same as Lawrence Barrett's." His manager, who was a good bit of a wag, replied: "Hereafter your prices will be fifty and seventy-five cents, the same as Harrigan and Hart's."

Joseph Haworth is preparing a book which will recount some of the incidents of the life of John McCullough. Haworth was McCullough's leading man at the time and for a few years prior to his mental collapse. In one of the reminiscences he pictures the first indication of McCullough's failing, while playing "Virginius," when the curtain was rung down, under the impression that the genial John had taken too much wine for dinner; but it was the forecast of the fatal affliction. There are many good things that could be told of genial John. We remember his first success. The writer remembers when he made such a "hit" with Alice Kingsbury in this city twenty-two years ago. As a youngster, we call to mind his advent with Edwin Forrest, as his best man. At a little private dinner, where only a few were seated at the board, among whom were L. H. Foote and wife and the writer and wife, we heard John McCullough read that beautiful poem, The Vagabonds. Those recollecting the old Bohemian Club will call to mind Mrs. Foote's "Topsy"—well, "Topsy" answered for one of the vagabonds, and never before or since have we heard read that creation of Trowbridge's. Many attempts have been made, but the beauties and dramatic effect have never been given as were given by John McCullough on that occasion. We hope Mr. Haworth may do justice to the memory of that whole-souled artist, John McCullough. At that time Helen Tracy was under instructions from McCullough, and we remember how careful he was of his little pupil. She afterward became a bright light in the dramatic firmament.

Book Chat.

Senator Ingalls is quite original. He has written two books himself, and yet he says Job is the best book ever written.

Mr. Rider Haggard's new book contains no Europeans—nothing but Zulus. So we shall be spared a renewal of Allan Quartermain and the Englishman with the eyeglass.

A lady friend who had just been reading one of the latest of the erotic effusions entitled: "And Satan Laughed" insists that if he did it was before he read the book which, in her opinion, is one of the saddest failures ever perpetrated upon a sensation loving public.

Cheerful Editor—"If you could shorten your poem a little!" "Why, there were sixteen verses when I first wrote it, and now there are only three." "Exactly! Now with a little more effort perhaps you can do away with those three, and then we shall be all right."

Amelie Rives has been seriously ill in Paris, but is reported to have recovered and resumed her artistic pursuits. She is one of the most diligent pupils in Lasar's studio, and is completing an original painting which she contemplates sending to the coming Salon exhibition.

Chazes, Byron's old boatman, has just died at Missolonghi, at the age of 87. By order of the king he was given a noble funeral at the public expense. Chazes was one of the heroes of the Greek War of Independence. He knew most of Byron's works by heart and would spout whole passages of "Childe Harold" while paddling his boat around the Lagoon of Missolonghi.

Lockhart relates that Laidlaw, after hearing Sir Walter Scott and Sir Humphrey Davy converse, cocked his eye like a bird, with: "Eh, sir, this is a superior occasion; I wonder whether Shakespeare and Bacon ever met to screw ilk other up." It is a pity there was no listener to hear the interchange of opinions between those two most original men, Carlyle and Fitz Gerald. Carlyle generally preferred listeners to talkers. The late Mr. Allingham used to walk with him in the evening, when Carlyle used, as Fitz Gerald said, to rave at everything and propose nothing. One evening, on returning to the gate, Mr. Allingham ventured to say, "I have listened to you with great pleasure, Mr. Carlyle, but I do not entirely agree with you." "Allingham, Allingham," answered the injured sage, "you always will have the last word."

Professional Chat.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmadge is undoubtedly at peace with his wife and other ladies throughout the land. The reverend gentleman is quoted as saying "that so far as possible let all women dress beautifully."

Gen. Sherman candidly admits that the average "yarn" of the old soldier seldom underestimates the peril of the occasion, the pathos of the situation, or the climax of the victory. In other words Tecumseh confesses that a pinch of salt should accompany each package of war stories.

Great Lawyer—"I am tired to death." Sympathetic Wife—"You look tired. What's been the matter?" "I've been making a speech for the defense for three days now, and, tired or not, I'll have to go right along with it to-morrow, and perhaps the next day." "Can't you cut it short?" "Not until the jury have had time to forget the evidence against my client."

Jules Verne's story, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," was deemed an extravagance, but the trial of a French submarine torpedo-boat has disclosed as wonderful results as those which were imagined by the French novelist. A boat that could remain under water twenty-four hours, being handled in the meantime with perfect ease, would be a most important factor in naval warfare. The strongest battle-ship ever designed would be completely at the mercy of such an unseen enemy.

The Rev. Dr. Wayland Hoyt is a good story teller. At a recent ministers' meeting he was raking over the croakers who, as he said, are pleased at every calamity as a premonition of impending ruin, and he told of an individual named Stewart, who would keep the good people of his town in an extremely nervous condition by prophesying the end of the world. One day an unbeliever asked of Mrs. Stewart, the prophet's wife, if she really believed the world was coming to an end on the date he had named. "Well, I don't know," she replied, "but I do hope it will, for it will do Mr. Stewart so much good."

A good story was told of Col. Moses P. Handy, the well-known President of the Clover Club in Philadelphia. This club amuses itself by inviting the most noted men in the country to its banquets and by toasting them and by chaffing them when they reply to the toast. At one banquet, at the end of a speech, Col.

Handy said: "It now gives me much pleasure to call upon the Nestor of the Press to respond to a toast." He referred to Mr. McKee, an old Philadelphia editor. Ex-Gov. Bunn, of Idaho, a well-known newspaper man, arose with mock dignity and acknowledged the compliment. Quick as a flash Handy responded: "I said Nestor of the Press—not jester." Bunn was floored and his temper was not improved when Dr. Bedloe shouted: "A hot cross bun."

One of Dan Doherty's stories, says Texas Siftings, is of a certain man possessed of great wealth and proud of his possessions, who was wont to refer to them often, but withal he was rather deficient in intellect. One day he had an old man working for him, an Irishman, possessing a full share of the wit of his race. The rich man went out to oversee the job. He looked at Pat a minute, hard at work, and said: "Well, Pat, it's good to be rich, isn't it?" "Yis, sur," said Pat, meekly enough. "I am rich, Pat—very rich." "So I'm tould," said Pat, shovelling away. "I own lands, and houses, and bonds, and stocks, and—and—and—" "Yis, sur." "And what is it, Pat, that I haven't got?" "Divil a bit of sinse, sur," said Pat, as he picked up his wheelbarrow and trundled it off, and the rich man went into the house and sat behind the door.

"Johnnie," said a prominent mine operator to his youngest the other day, according to Derrick Dodd in Puck, "I'll give you $1 if you'll dig up the front yard all ready for your sister's new garden." "All right," said Johnnie, thoughtfully; "but I shall have to ask for 25 per cent. of the contract price in advance. Not as an evidence of good faith, but for working capital." "Work; what do you mean?" "Well, you see, I guess I'll just bury the quarter somewhere and tell all the boys in the neighborhood that a pirate hid some treasure 'round there. When they strike that quarter they'll make the dirt fly, I can tell you. In that way I can clean up about 75 per cent. In fact, I—" "Well, what?" "In fact, I don't know but what I can also arrange so as to find that quarter myself. I'll work it just like that salted mine you were telling mamma about unloading on the street last night." And the father wept tears of joy as he thought what a cold day it would be for Jay and Rufus when his boy grew up.

Not long ago Dr. Paxton, of New York, preached an eloquent sermon on missions, and at its close he urged the congregation to give liberally. Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Bristow was sitting just in front of Russell Sage, and the usher started up the aisle with the plate, he turned round to Sage and said: "Well, Sage, what are you going to give?" Sage opened his closed hand and showed a silver dollar. "Oh, is that all?" said Bristow, "I'll go you twenty-five better." "No you don't," said Sage, "I can give as much as you can," and with that he put his hand in his pocket, drew out a roll and counted out five crisp five-dollar bills. It may be that the bills were new and their beauty appealed to him, but at any rate Sage held these bills in his hands tightly clasped under the plate close to him, and then thrusting them spasmodically into his pocket, he put the silver dollar into the plate pith a jerk. Bristow caught his eye as he did so, and Mr. Sage whispered: "I can't do it, Bristow; I've got three million dollars lying idle in the bank, and I'm not getting a cent of interest on it. I'd like to do it, but I can't."

Senator Bate, of Tennessee, gives some interesting matter about Mark Twain's father. Every one knows Col. Sellers, and most people are aware that the play is a dramatization of Mark Twain's book, "The Gilded Age." Few know that the characters are taken from life, and that Colonel Sellers is a representation of Mark Twain's father, who was fully as visionary as Mark's fancy paints him. The Clemens family came from the mountains of Tennessee. Mark's father had put all the money he could make and scrape into the rough lands of the Tennessee mountains. He owned thousands of acres about him, and he would look over these and say, "These lands are underlaid with the finest of coal and iron. There's millions in them; millions! millions!" At that time, however, the lands were worth nothing. Every one laughed at Mark's father, and Mrs. Clemens, who was of a more practical and ambitious turn of mind than her husband, urged that they sell the property and move into civilization. She finally persuaded him to do this. The lands brought a mere song, and the family went to Missouri, where Mark Twain first saw the light of day. The recent developments in Tennessee, says Senator Bate, have made these lands which Colonel Sellers-Clemens owned immensely valuable. They contain valuable deposits of coal and iron, as old Mr. Clemens stated, and did Mark Twain own them to-day he might have a bigger business than in his book publishing and book writing. He is now worth a million. Had his father stuck to his lands and to his theories he might have been worth his tens of millions. Had the fortune come, however, during Mark's childhood, the world would have lost a hundred million laughs. "Innocents Abroad" would never have been written, and the "Prince and the Pauper" would probably have remained unpened.

NOTES.

An editor puffing air-tight coffins, said: "No person having once tried one of these coffins will ever use any other."

According to the Bee some of our local politicians and members of the police department must per force be good musicians—because they love the "foot."

Let us not forget. Preparation for the appropriate observance of the anniversary of the establishment of the American Republic should be made in time. We are Americans; we are patriotic. Let us act.

The real lazy lover is the fellow who courts the widow. The reason is self evident, the widow generally does the courting herself. After marriage, the widow has to also do the supporting in lazy love cases.

Now is the season of the year when the festive ice cream man with his toot horn, supercedes the tomale vendor. Already is the donkey and Italian with ice cream and hokey pokey seen and heard on the streets.

It is said that there is on exhibition in a Philadelphia bank a check bearing the signature of George Washington, executed three months before his death. We reckon that his check would not be worth much at this time.

A few young gentlemen have contributed much to the pleasure of this people; they have in the past successfully managed the open air concerts. Credit they justly deserve. Time is approaching for the recurrence of these enjoyable entertainments.

Now comes Henry Watterson and repudiates the poker story which has been going the rounds of the press. It is but proper that he should deny the loss of $1,900 at the American game. A newspaper man that had $1,900 to lose would indeed be a marvel.

The young Chinese Emperor has discovered a police board gambling ring in Pekin and has threatened to chop off a number of official heads. The beauty of "Chinese reform" is that when an official head is chopped off, the unofficial head is often chopped with it for good measure. If we had such a ruler here there would be plenty of work for him.

Many of the delegates to the Grand Parlor, N. S. G. W., recently held in Chico, returned to Sacramento this morning, complaining of a feeling of sleepiness. This feeling was brought on, doubtless, by the uninterrupted flow of good spirits and late hours, and speaks well for the unbounded hospitality received at the hands of the generous Chicanos.

We have received from the Directory the monthly weather review of the Nevada State Weather Service for March. We commend the advance of our sister State, and must admit we are somewhat behind. With the interests California has in the line of agriculture, she should have a complete weather service. Possibly the next Legislature will make such provision—it should.

"And then, sir," said a city Alderman the other day to a neighbor at a civic feast, "we topped off with a gorgeous turkey, a first-class bird—never tasted a jancier; melted in my mouth—crammed with truffles to the eyes. Bouquet is no name for it; left nothing but the bones." "How many were you?" "Two!" "What! Only two?" "Yes, two. Why not? The turkey and myself."

In the nomination of J. O. Coleman for postmaster of this city, there has been selected one of our most enterprising and public-spirited citizens. It is evident that he will be fully abreast of the times. It is but proper and just to say that Hon. R. D. Stephens has made an exceptionally good public servant, and has accomplished many reforms in the postal service, and was always alive to the necessities of the times.

Senator Hearst has made only two speeches in the Senate, yet he is considered a valuable member by some of the leading Democratic organs. The question of value must be in the line considered by insurance men—valuable because of his financial standing. There is, however, a wealth which is not estimated in dollars and cents—that of education and genius, but our Senator is classed in valuation in accordance with the financial view.

We claim not to be experts on fruits or the markets. Do we mistake? The cherry season must be approaching. We have seen the small boy at the fence; it means business. Publishing a newspaper is one kind of business. It means largely an estimate of the sentiment of the great, big people. We envy our fruit dealers. In their business the small boy is an unerring barometer; to them he has his usefulness, though he may never become President.

The eminent preachers are still trying to pick flaws in Bob Ingersoll's great lectures on Agnosticism. It is Bob that has picked the flaws in orthodoxy, and which keeps the preacher busy in curing, or attempting to cure, the defects in so-called Divine inspiration.

The Hendricks Monument Committee, of Indianapolis (Ind.), has received notice of the arrival at New York of the Hendricks monument complete from Florence. There are 90 crates of granite and four crates of bronzes, and the total weight is over 200 tons. About 15 cars will be required to transport the work to Indianapolis, and it is expected to reach there the latter part of this week. The monument will be ready for the unveiling ceremonies the last of May.

The law calendars of both Departments of the Superior Court were unusually large yesterday. Popularly the belief is that much litigation is not indicative of general prosperity of a community. The fact is, however, contrary. In prosperity men will litigate; in times of adversity they compromise. In Judge Van Fleet's department yesterday, 24 matters were upon the calendar, and in that of Judge Armstrong, 21. The Judges and the lawyers are earning their money, as most of the really hard work is done on motion day, when clients are not present, and feel, as a rule, little appreciation of the labor.

Be prompt. If you agree to be at a certain place at a certain time, be there at all hazard. Railroads and newspapers teach promptness, as both are obliged to be on time; and yet there are editors who put off until the last moment, and then everything is hurried hodgepodge into the forms, and many errors occur. Better to have five minutes to spare than be behind three minutes, for the last of those three minutes may keep you out of heaven forever. Brush up. Be prompt. A prompt man will prosper and succeed, while a laggard will go behind every time.

If you would know what is the real ideal of the symmetrically formed human body, here you have it: The height of the body should be exactly equal to the distance between the tips of the middle fingers of each hand when the arms are fully extended. Ten times the length of the hand, or seven and a half times the length of the foot, or five times the diameter of the chest, from one armpit to the other, should also each give the height of the whole body. The distance from the junction of the thighs to the ground should be the same as from that point to the crown of the head. The knee should be precisely midway between the junction of the thighs and the bottom of the heel. The distance from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger should be the same as from the elbow to the middle line of the breast. From the top of the head to the level of the chin should be the same as from the heel to the toe.

Social lying, talk of self, are the besetting sins of some of our professional men, as well as society people. It is no uncommon thing to hear some young fledgling attorney or physician boast of the vast amount of practice he has, and enormous income following the same. Indeed this "social lying," is not confined to the younger professionalists, for we observe the tendency to boast among some of the more pretensions. This boastful spirit pervades many young men and women in social circles, who in their conceit think they are making themselves prominent. However, if they could be made to understand how true is their disguise, they would desist and become decent and rational.

Soon after Goodlove S. Orth was elected to Congress from Indiana, just after the war, he received a letter one day at Washington, from an old Hoosier, addressed thus:

"HONRIBEL GODLESS S. ORTH,
House of Rips,
Washington, D. C.

The "constituent" sent to his representative for a shot-gun for his boy, saying that as the war was over, the United States must have "lots of old guns on hand." Orth bought a second hand shot-gun and sent it to him rather than lose that vote next time.

The Congressman's daily mail often contains rarities in the shape of literary productions. Here is one recently received by a Georgia representative from a "colored brother" at Carrollton, Ga.: "Carrollton, Carroll Co., Ga., March the 1890.—Dear Sir: I take my pen in hand to Write you a few Lines, to Ask you to aid US in this Great Struggle in Carrollton. My Members Ship is very small here. in regarding the News papers from Atlanta I find your Name Published, and I all So See your incom. I WaS Glad to See that you Was an able Man in this Life. So I hope that you will help us if You please to do so in the Name of the Lord, Mr. ——. Every De Nomination haves good church Here But the A. M. E. church. if You Will ade Us bi the sum of forty or fifty Dollars, if you Please, it will help the cause of chriSt in Carrollton, Ga. We Nead We Want your ade. May God help us to do So With Pleaser. yours in chriSt A. M. E. church, J. R. PHILLIPS, pastor." Money has been sought to aid in building many a palatial church in the North, but no clergyman, however bright, ever penned a more original or apparently sincere letter.

The handsome little sailing yacht, owned by Capt. J. D. Young, W. A. Anderson, J. J. Keegan, Chas. H. Holmes and O. B. Turrill, is being put in sailing order for the spring and summer campaign.

FLASHES.

Black mail: a he nigger.

Cat-nip: the kitten's bite.

A sorrowful month often laughs.

A threshing machine: John L. Sullivan.

A mean act only has to call one witness—conscience.

First-class in politeness and etiquette: our City Trustees.

Does our neighbor, the Bee, always aim at what it intends to hit?

The right length of a lady's dress should be a little above two feet.

A mother's idea of a true friend is the one who admires her children.

A woman will never admit to making a mistake—it is always an accident.

Something new under the sun: a patch in the seat of a boy's pants when he sits down.

A man with three hands: any one of our policemen—the two ordinary hands and always a little behind hand.

Society might be divided into four varieties—the lovers, the ambitious, observers and fools. The fools are the most numerous and happiest.

Editing With the Scissors.

A mistaken idea prevails that the use of scissors at the editor's desk is mere child's play, a sort of hit or miss venture, requiring hardly any brains and still less judgment; that the promiscuous and voluminous clippings are sent in a batch to the foreman, and with that the editor's duties ends and that of the foreman begins.

Instead of this, the work requires much care and attention, with a keen comprehension of the fact that each day's paper has its own needs. The exchange editor is a painstaking, conscientious, methodical man, always on the alert, quick in apprehension, retentive in memory, shrewd in discernment. He reads closely, culls carefully, omits and amends, discards and digests, never ignoring the fact that variety is a great essential. There are sentences to recast, words to soften, redundancies to prune, errors to correct, headings to be made, credits to be given, seasons to be considered, affinities to be preserved, consistencies to be respected. He knows whether the matter is fresh or stale, whether it is appropriate, and whether he used it before; he remembers that he is catering for many tastes; he makes raids in every direction; he lays the whole newspaper field under contribution; he persistently "boils down," which with him is not a process of rewriting, but a happy faculty of pruning without destroying sense or continuity.

His genius is exhibited in the departments, the items of which are similar and cohesive—in the suggestive heads and sub-heads, in the sparkle that is visible, in the sense of gratification which the reader derives. No daily paper can be exclusively original; it would die of ponderosity. Life is too short, and hence an embargo must be laid upon the genius of its rivals. A bright clipped article is infinitely better than a stupid contributed article. The most successful paper is the paper that is intelligently and consistently edited in all its departments, whether by pen or scissors.

The Ideal Country Newspaper.

I have the vanity to think that I have it in me to make the ideal country editor of the ideal country newspaper, and sometimes I am half of a mind to move up to Pineville and try it. I should have that paper the mouthpiece of the people of Bell county, and not the organ of any Court-house clique, or of any real estate ring, or of any railway or mining corporation, or of any candidate for office, either constabulary or Congressional. I would print the local news, and all the news, fairly. I would give the other side a chance, and deal courteously by all, for nothing so invites confidence and respect as good nature, tempered by good sense.—Henry Watterson.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand
ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

NOTICE.

I WILL PAY A REWARD OF FIFTY DOLLARS to any person who will produce a case of dandruff or hair falling out that I cannot cure in three applications of my FLORENTINE. For sale only by the proprietor, 513 K street. JAMES MURPHY.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,
DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Pure Ice—Local Enterprise.

Of late years ice has become a great component part of our existence, particularly during the hot summer months. Heretofore we have depended upon the ice crop of the Sierras for our supply. Now, since that little band of public spirited citizens have taken it upon themselves to develop our local resources, and established a new order of things, whereby our money may be kept at home, by building an extensive brewery, and, as an adjunct thereto, a large ice manufactory, we are no longer at the mercy of or dependent on the Sierra snows and frosts for our supply. We took occasion a few weeks ago to notice this great local enterprise, and referred to the capacity of the ice engines as being from 30 to 45 tons daily, each, there being two such machines. The ice from these works is of a remarkable pure and compact nature. The process of making it necessarily cleaves the water from all possible impurities, and when the cake of ice is frozen it becomes, in a literal sense, as pure as crystal. Why, through one of these large cakes of ice you can read the smallest print or tell the time of day on the dial of your watch. It has been stated that the original ice monopolies will undersell the new company for the purpose of squashing it out; but this is extremely doubtful, as there is a very strong inclination of the people of this city to aid and protect home enterprise in this line. The ice given to the public is much superior to that furnished from the mountains. This must be apparent at a glance, for the reason that all natural ice must, per force, depend upon the fluctuating state of the weather, and therefore cannot be perfect, and often comes here part snow, and in an otherwise imperfect state. The Buffalo Brewing Company is prepared to furnish ice to families and business houses at the very lowest rates, and delivered at the door as often as required during the day. The facilities have been reduced to a system almost perfect in detail. Certainly the citizens who have invested over $600,000 in these two splendid enterprises, are entitled to the preference over outside parties. The beer that is manufactured at the Buffalo Brewery is far in advance of anything yet produced on this coast; indeed, superior to that of any brewery west of the Rocky Mountains. A sample of the splendid quality of ice manufactured by the Buffalo Brewing Company, has been on exhibition in Moynihan's show window for three days of this week, in the open air. To make the exhibition attractive, a bouquet of flowers was frozen in the center of the cake. It has been suggested that small cakes of ice be frozen with boutonnieres in the center and sent out to the ladies of this city.

Let Your Mind Aid Your Hands.

At the present time there are too many who endeavor to be successful, or in other words who get their living by "main strength and ignorance." This is a direct result of the neglect of a proper education in early life. In some cases physical exertion may be necessary to the accomplishment of the end sought, but in nine cases out of ten this is a simple waste of strength through the neglect of mental training, and reminds one of the philosophy of the proverbial son of Erin who, while not lacking in wit is not witty, for he will invariably attempt to make his muscle do what his mind ought to do, or at least what it ought to assist in doing.

Good judgment is oftentimes more valuable than years of experience. Some workmen will not put the least bit of calculation into a piece of work, and they might work on for years, putting out all their physical energy upon the work, never for a moment doubting that that is the only means of accomplishing it.

But to turn to the proverbial Yankee, who is not particularly fond of exerting himself physically, and who generally contrives to make his mind save his body, and quite a difference is noticed. Instead of hammering, straining, and doing the work himself, he deliberately sits down to "figure out" some device for accomplishing the same result. If a difficult task presents itself, where apparently considerable muscle is required, he looks the thing over, and generally contrives some means of doing it without "putting his shoulder to the wheel." In other words, he lets the mind help his hands.

Here is just where the intelligent and thoughtful workman has the advantage of the illiterate and ignorant, and is the reason why we find so many really good workmen, so far as physical force is concerned, plodding along, earning barely enough to support themselves.

What American workmen need is to cultivate their minds, and equalize the labor between the mind and body, resulting in a more perfect condition of both, and rendering their services more skillful and themselves more valuable workmen.

Let your mind help your hands, and you will find your work easier, your life happier, and your condition generally much improved.

Changes in Farming.

Going back to the old farm, one realizes that time has wrought many changes. Steam does the threshing now, and saws the wood besides, and there are many agricultural implements of which we cannot guess even the name or use. Sliding gates have usurped the place of the bars, and that poetic framework upon which lovers have so often leaned, and, alas, against which the cows have so often barked their shins, is henceforth to be unpainted and unsung. One looks in vain for the tripping milkmaid. Has the winsome creature been banished or utterly exterminated? Surely an old Webster speller must be unearthed to find even a trace of her whose tragic story has set many a rustic heart to thumping against her "hum-made" woolen dress.

Where, too, shall we look to find an old-fashioned, well-regulated milking-stool. The memory of one, much seasoned and battered, still lingers with me, as I see it reposing on the upper rail of the fence, or, mayhap, taking a flying leap, hurled through the air by the hired man, and giving old "Lineback" a thump for viciously kicking over a brimming pail of milk, which was often her frisky wont. Alas! the pretty milkmaid has passed into a myth, the milking-stool, touched by the law of evolution, has reappeared in gilded legs and plush upholstery, to lay in wait for the unwary farmer and trip him up in his own parlor.

The end is not yet. Who knows but in the twentieth century the farmer may recline in his easy chair and sip his milk from cut-glass tumblers, the lacteal fluid being brought to him by electric currents, that shall indeed make the milkmaid and her occupation a tradition of the past.—Cleveland Leader.

Her Spare Room.

"It ain't ev'rybody I'd put to sleep in this room," said old Mrs. Jinks to the fastidious and extremely nervous young minister who was speeding the night in B—, at her house. "This room is full of sacred associations to me," she went on; "my first husband died in that bed with his head on these very pillars, and poor Mr. Jinks died settin' right in that corner. Sometimes when I come into the room in the dark, I think I see him settin' there still. My own father died laying right on that lounge under the winder. Poor pa! He was a speeritualist, and he allus said he'd appear in this room after he died, and sometimes I'm foolish enough to look for him. If you should see anything of him to-night you'd better not tell me; for it'd be a sign to me that there was something in speeritualism, and I'd hate to think that. My son by my first man fell dead of heart disease right where you stand. He was a doctor, and there's two whole skeletons in that closet that belonged to him; and half a dozen skulls in that lower draw. Well, good night, and pleasant dreams."—The Occasional.

Spring Meeting Success.

Everything has combined to make the Spring races a success. Every day there has been a good attendance, and fine races have been the order. Thursday was a gala day. All the leading business houses closed in the afternoon to give their employes and proprietors an opportunity to visit the Park. This afternoon the sport will conclude with first class racing. There should be a large attendance. Such local enterprises deserve to be fostered, and it is evident our Spring meetings are fixed facts.

Popular Music at Popular Prices.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

If you contemplate building, own a store, or even rent, and want absolute protection from fire, put in Schenck's Horse Reels—an improvement on the old, or Posegon Reels—will swing in any direction when being unreeled. L. M. Landsborough is the agent for Northern California, who will furnish rates on application. *

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers. *

Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street, always have on hand the choicest fruits and vegetables in the market, and their prices are very low. Telephone No. 188. *

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store. *

The Weather.

The highest and lowest temperature during the past week was 80° and 46°, and the rainfall .03 of an inch, making a total of 32 inches for this season, as against 16.45 to an equal date last year. The highest and lowest temperature during the same time last year was 82° and 48°, with a sprinkle of rain during the same time.

The Thirty-sixth Annual May Festival

OF THE

Sacramento Turn-Verein

Will take place on

SUNDAY.....MAY 4, 1890

AT RICHMOND GROVE.

Entrance on Twentieth and Q Streets.

There will be Turning for Prizes by all Juvenile Classes; Singing by the Turner Harmonie. The Hussar Band has been engaged for this occasion.

ADMISSION, 25 CENTS.

Members are required to be at their Hall promptly at 9:30 o'clock A. M.

THE COMMITTEE.

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE

SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY.....MAY 4, 1890.Sacramento vs. Oakland

Game called at 2 P. M.

ADMISSION.....FIFTY CENTS

LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 1:15 and 1:45 P. M. Stop at 3d 10th, and 18th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts. Reserved seats at Golden Eagle cigar store.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENSWARE, CIGARS, TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED. 1100 and 1102 J Street.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Charles Harbath & Co. Producers of the ECLIPSE CHAMPAGNE, 530 Washington St. SAN FRANCISCO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.

703 J Street, Sacramento.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

ORDINANCE No. 26.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY of Sacramento, do ordain as follows:

That there be and hereby is granted to the Folsom Water Power Company, a corporation, the right and privilege to close from public use that portion of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge and Scott streets, lying and extending westerly from the westerly side of Leidesdorff street, and such portion of River street as extends along the westerly side of Blocks 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, all in the town of Folsom and county of Sacramento.

And that there be and also hereby is granted to the said Folsom Water Power Company the franchise, right and privilege to construct and maintain a canal and canals and waterways, with a railroad on the bank of said canals, in, upon and across the before mentioned portions of Stafford, Mill, Marshall, Coloma, Bridge, Scott and River streets, and the alleys in the before mentioned blocks, numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, and also along Leidesdorff, Reading, and the street on the westerly side of the Sacramento Valley Railroad, and also along Forrest street to the easterly boundary of the town of Folsom, in the county of Sacramento, State of California.

Provided that said Company shall keep open the present road to the American river bridge, and to cover the canal, wherever it crosses said road or runs upon any street required for public use, with good and sufficient bridges or stone culverts.

Adopted April 11, 1890, by the following vote: Ayes—Tebbets, Black, Bates, Greer and Ross.

H. C. ROSS, Chairman.
Attest: W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.
apr12—4t

[Seal]

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF THOMAS ARMSTRONG, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administratrix of the estate of Thomas Armstrong deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate. ANNIE KANE,

Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased.
Dated March 13th, 1890. meh22—5t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

In the matter of A. E. Votaw, an insolvent debtor. A. E. Votaw having filed in this Court her petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, by which appears that she is an insolvent debtor, the said A. E. Votaw is hereby declared to be insolvent.

The Sheriff of the County of Sacramento is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all her deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of her estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to her or to any person, firm or corporation or association, for her use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Honorable Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, in open Court, at the Court-room of said Court, on the sixth day of June, 1890, at 1:30 o'clock P. M. of that day, to prove their debts, choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered that the order be published in the THEMIS, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Sacramento, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of the creditors.

And it is further ordered that in the meantime all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed.

Dated, April 21st, 1890.
JOHN W. ARMSTRONG,
Judge of the Superior Court.
WILLIAM A. GETT, JR.,
Attorney for Petitioner. apr26—5t

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISEMANN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISEMANN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER,

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars.

ROBERT ALLEN,

Formerly of Agricultural Park.

ANHEUSER & BUSCHBEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

[From Harper's Magazine.]

The spirit of Sir Boyle Roche is by no means extinct in the world. On the contrary it daily grows stronger, and needs but the reincarnation of its knightly possessor to reach the pinnacle of perfection.

Among other bulls that have recently taken oral shape unto themselves is one of an Irish gardener, who, being in no sense in love with his labors, forcibly observed that "Av oi wasn't paid for doin' this worruk, oi wudn't do it av ye paid me."

The ambition to desert the fields in which he had for a long time labored led the same individual to seek preferment in the post-office, the position he had in view being that of letter-carrier.

"But, Mike," said his employer, for whose influence he had applied, "you cannot read."

"Thruer sorr," replied the gardener, "but oi thought that phawt wid th' letthers an' posthals comin' an' goin' oi'd not be long a-learnin'."

His employer was forced to admit that there was something in the man's argument, but he withheld the desired recommendation until Mike knew his own letters from those of other people.

Not precisely in the form of a bull is this bit of repartee, the quickness and aptness of which probably saved the speaker from immediate discharge. Mike, in addition to his duties as gardener, had the care of the furnace. To the irritation of the household, there came a morning, bitterly cold, when the furnace gave forth no heat, for the very good reason that, as investigation showed, there remained not one spark or ember in the grate.

"Mike," cried the angry paterfamilias, "the furnace fire went out last night."

"So did oi, sorr," returned the culprit serenely unconscious that this explanation did not lift the load of responsibility from his shoulders and place it upon those of his master.

A number of patriotic sons of Erin were seated around a table one night discussing a little of everything, when one of them began a lamentation over a light-weight silver dollar he had in his pocket.

"Th' hid an' th' tail's worn down that foine ye wouldn't know th' hid from th' tail if it wasn't that th' hid's always on th' other side."

"Got worn that way by cirkylation?"

"So they say; but oi belave some snar-r-r devil's tuk a jack-plane an' schraped a doime or two off her for luck. Cirkylation can't wear a dhollar down loike that."

"It can, too, an' oi'll prove it," said a third. "Have ye got a good dhollar, Dinny?"

Dinny, curiously enough, had one, and produced it.

"Now pass it round th' table."

Around it went.

"Twicet more."

Twice more it went.

"Wance more, an' let me hov it."

Once again it circulated, and finally rested in the palm of the instigator of the performance.

He then leaned over to the owner of the dollar and handed him a silver quarter.

"Plawat's this?" asked the latter.

"That's yer dhollar!"

Circulation, history says, left its mark that evening upon something more than pure dross.

During the late war Mr. Smith, a slave-owner near Perryville, Ky., owned a stalwart boy named Charlie, who was enticed away to join the Union army, then encamped near by. Two weeks passed, and Charlie did not appear; but a short time after, Mr. Smith, while riding near the encampment, met the runaway upon undress parade.

"Hello, Charlie! Is that you?"

"Yes, massa, dis is me. I'se jined de army," and he looked as though he meant to run, as he warily watched his master's eye.

"That's right, Charlie; that's right. It's a noble thing to fight for your country."

"Yes, massa," and Charlie grinned with delight.

"A fine thing to march into battle and kill all the rebels."

"Yes, yes, massa," grinned Charlie smacking his hands in glee.

"Glorious to wear shiny buttons, and step up to the music."

"Sartainly, sar, massa; dat's so, massa," and Charlie's lips stretched from ear to ear.

"A grand thing to hear the shot falling like hail, and the cannon roar like thunder, and seeing the men rolling in the dust bleeding at every pore—a grand thing, Charlie."

Charlie's mouth stopped half way. "Oh, yes, there's nothing like it. Then a minie-ball might come along and take off one of your arms, you know; but you will be fighting for your country, you know, and everybody will say what a brave soldier he was."

Charlie gave a sickly smirk, and stealthily felt of his arms. "And a bayonet, cold and sharp, might run into your side; but that will be glory, you know."

"Ouch!" screamed Charlie, pressing his sides.

"And a shell might take off both your legs; but you'll have so much glory, you won't want legs."

"Ouch!" screamed Charlie again, catching at his legs.

"Then a big cannon-ball might tear right through your bowels."

"Ow-wow!" yelled Charlie, clutching at his middle.

"But you won't care for that. You'll be a grand soldier, and soldiers like to be shot."

"Br-r-r-r-r-r!" trembled Charlie.

"And best of all, a thundering bomb-shell might whizz along and take your head right off. Just think of the glory."

"Ouch! Oh, Lord!" squealed Charlie, grabbing his woolly head with both hands.

"I tell you what, I'm proud of you Charlie. Go ahead. There's nothing like being a soldier. I'm proud of you."

Mr. Smith rode on, leaving the hero's ebon face of an ashen hue.

Next morning a familiar sound greeted the master as he approached the wood-yard. He took a quiet survey. Charlie was there in his old jeans suit, sawing away.

"Hi, Charlie! what's up? Not going for a soldier? see Mr. Smith."

"I'se changed my mind" massa.

An individual whose orthography is often at fault, besides being absent-minded, but who knows how to get out of a tight place, wrote to a friend hurriedly that he could not meet an engagement as a loss suit prevented him. The friend met him soon after, and joked him about his peculiar spelling of law-suit. He blushed slightly, but quickly replied that he never won a case in his life, and therefore he spelled the word more appropriately than Webster.

A wealthy man spent the past summer in his native town, a quiet, almost unheard-of little village in a New England valley. His ancestors for nearly a century had been buried in the cemetery on the hill back of the town, and while there he enlarged the family lot, that room might be made for the final resting-place of himself and his own family.

He had, during his stay, made the town gifts of a small library and a drinking-fountain, and had been most generous in other ways.

The evening before his departure for his city home, he was waited upon by a large delegation of the most prominent citizens of the town, who came to make some acknowledgment of his generosity. The spokesman of the party delivered himself of a long and highly-eulogistic harangue, ending it with these words:

"And when, as is your avowed intention, you come among us in the guise of a corpse, it will be our highest duty and our chief pleasure to see that your grave is kept green."

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

Gas and Steam Fitter.

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS, Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents. Finest Lunch in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
9:30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico.	6:20 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East.	6:45 P
8:15 P	Knight's Landing.	7:40 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave.	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East.	6:25 P
12-01 A	Central Atlantic Express.	6:30 A
	Ogden and East.
3:00 P	Oroville.	10:30 A
3:00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville.	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willows.	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia.	7:25 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia.	11:40 A
6:45 A	San Francisco via Benicia.	9:10 P
*10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer.	26:00 A
10:50 A	San Francisco via Livermore.	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia.	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose.	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara.	9:55 A
3:00 P	Santa Rosa.	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa.	7:25 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt.	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt.	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno.	6:25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno.	6:00 A
12:05 P	Collins.	10:20 A
6:45 A	Vallejo.	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo.	17:25 P
7:00 A	Placerville (Mixed).	4:50 P
5:00 P	Folsom.	9:00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.

T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT

VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX

CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT

ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout.

Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox.

W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

Public Administrator's Report.

To the Hon. W. C. Van Fleet, Judge of the Superior Court, Department No. 2, of the County of Sacramento, State of California.

GEORGE W. HARLOW, Public Administrator of the County of Sacramento, respectfully makes this his return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term commencing July 1, 1889, to January 1, 1890, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 1736 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

	Receipts.	Fees and Expens.	Balance Jan. 1st, 1890.
Estate of Fuhrman	$6,026 08	$352 71	$15,581 56
Estate of Mahon, Hill, Helbing, Jensen, and McLaughlin		123 87
Estate of Jas. Russell	100 00	82 32	100 53
Estate of A. Ely	182 60	182 60
Estate of A. B. Ropes	655 00	406 25	148 75

State of California, County of Sacramento, ss.

George W. Harlow, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the Public Administrator of said county, and the foregoing is a full, true and correct return of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands for the term hereinbefore named. That he is not, and was not at any time, interested in the expenditures of any kind made on account of any estate he administers, nor is he associated in business or otherwise with any one who is so interested.

GEORGE W. HARLOW.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 7th day of March, 1890. WM. H. DEVLIN, Notary Public. mch15-6t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said County.

The People of the State of California, to A. B. Tebbetts, greeting: You are hereby notified that an action was commenced in the Superior Court of the county of Sacramento, State aforesaid, by filing a complaint in the Clerk's office of said Court, on the 28th day of January, 1890, in which action M. D. Tebbetts is plaintiff, and you are defendant.

That the general nature of the action, as appears from said complaint, is as follows: To obtain a decree of this Court dissolving the bonds of matrimony heretofore and now existing between plaintiff and defendant, upon the alleged ground of desertion and failure to provide the common necessities of life for this plaintiff and their minor child, Marjorie Tebbetts, and for an order awarding her the custody of said minor child Marjorie Tebbetts, and for fifty dollars per month alimony and for general relief; all of which is fully set forth in the complaint on file herein, reference to which is hereby made, and you are hereby directed to appear and answer said complaint within ten days from the service of this writ, exclusive of the day of service, if served on you in said county of Sacramento, and within thirty days, exclusive of the day of service, if served elsewhere; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and answer within the time above specified, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in the complaint.

In witness whereof, I, Wm. B. Hamilton, Clerk of the Court aforesaid, do hereunto set my hand and affix the seal of said Court, this 28th day of January, A. D. 1890.

[SEAL.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk. By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy. TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Plaintiff. mch1-9t.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF BRIDGET NAUGHTON, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, executors of the estate of Bridget Naughton, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased to exhibit them, with their necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said executors, at the office of Frank D. Ryan, attorney at law, No. 504 J street, Sacramento city, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate.

FRANK KUNZ and MICHAEL BRENNAN, Executors of the Estate of said deceased. Dated April 2, 1890. apr5-5t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL MCKEE, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Julia McKee, administratrix of the estate of Samuel McKee, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administratrix, at the law office of A. J. and Elwood Bruner, at the Court-house, Seventh and J streets, Sacramento, Cal.

JULIA MCKEE, Administratrix of the Estate of said deceased. Dated March 28th, 1890.

A. J. & ELWOOD BRUNER, Attorneys for Estate. mch29-4t

Certificate of Partnership.

State of California, City and County of San Francisco, ss.

We, the undersigned, do hereby certify that we are copartners, transacting business in the city and county of Sacramento, State of California, under the firm name and style of WHITTIER, FULLER & CO., and that the names in full, and place of residence of all the members of such copartnership, are as follows, to-wit: William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, all residents of the city and county of San Francisco, State of California, and Lewellyn Tozer, resident of the city and county of Sacramento, State of California.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands this first day of April, 1890.

WM. FRANK WHITTIER. WILLIAM PALMER FULLER. FREDERICK N. WOODS. WILLIAM P. FULLER, Jr. LEWELLYN TOZER.

State of California, City and County of San Francisco, ss.

On the first day of April, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and ninety, before me, Lewis B. Harris, a Notary Public in and for said city and county, residing therein, duly commissioned and sworn, personally appeared William Frank Whittier, William Palmer Fuller, Frederick Nickerson Woods, and William Palmer Fuller, junior, and Lewellyn Tozer, known to me as the individuals described in, whose names are subscribed to and who executed the annexed instrument, and they severally acknowledged to me that they executed the same.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at my office, in the city and county of San Francisco, the day and year last above written, (Signed) LEWIS B. HARRIS, Notary Public. apr5-5t

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

Trees! Trees!

J. T. BOGUE

OF MARYSVILLE,

Has the Finest stock of

FRUIT TREES

Ever brought to Sacramento.

Nursery: Second Street, near Depot.

First Nursery from I street, adjoining Reed & Co.'s.

These Trees are perfectly free from scale, and true to label. Call and examine.

J. R. NICKERSON, Agent.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET.

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Furth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from $25
Stylish Pants made to order 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

DENTIST.

311 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

In a Dead Man's Pocket.

Stephen A. Price was a man who was liked and looked up to by all who knew him. He was honest, kind and true, a warm friend and a good neighbor. The boys and girls all liked him because he never forgot that he had been young once himself. He became rich, was made Mayor of New York city, and lived to be very old. He lost his life in a steamboat disaster. Those who found his dead body found a scrap of printed paper in his pocket-book. It was so worn with oft reading that they could scarcely make out the words, but this was what was upon the paper:

Keep good company or none. Never be idle.

If your hands cannot be usefully employed attend to the cultivation of your mind.

Always speak the truth. Make few promises.

Live up to your engagements.

Keep your own secrets, if you have any.

When you speak to a person look them in the face.

Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue.

Good character is above all things else.

Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts.

If any one speaks evil of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.

Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors.

Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income.

When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day.

Make no haste to be rich, if you would prosper.

Small and steady gains give competency with tranquillity of mind.

Never play at any game of chance.

Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it.

Earn money before you spend it.

Never run into debt, unless you see plainly a way to get out again.

Never borrow, if you can possibly avoid it.

Do not marry until you are able to support a wife.

Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous.

Read over the above maxims at least once a week.

Copyright, 1889.

KISSED ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE.

"You scoundrel," yelled young Jacob Green

At his good neighbor Brown—

"You kissed my wife upon the street,—

I ought to knock you down."

"That's where you're wrong," good Brown replied,

"In accents mild and meek;

"I kissed her; that I've not denied

But I kissed her on the cheek—and I did so because she looked so handsome—the very picture of beauty and health. What is the secret of it?"

"Well," replied Green, "since you ask it, I will tell you; she uses Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I accept your apology. Good night."

An unhealthy woman is rarely, if ever, beautiful. The peculiar diseases to which so many of the sex are subject, are prolific causes of pale, sallow faces, blotched with unsightly

plumple, dull, lustreless eyes and emaciated forms. Women so afflicted, can be permanently cured by using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription; and with the restoration of health comes that beauty which, combined with good qualities of head and heart, makes women angels of loveliness.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, or that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. It is a positive specific for leucorrhoea, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, anteversion, retro-version, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIA-

TION, Manufacturers, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS Purely Vego-laxative, or Cathartic, according to size of dose. By druggists. 25 cents a vial.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF EDWARD KRAUS, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Executor of the estate of Edward Kraus, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Wm. E. Gerber, Executor of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento City, Cal.

Dated, April 15, 1890.

WM. E. GERBER, Executor.

TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Executor.

Apr19-5t

There is a place for every one in the world—and out of it, according to the theologians. Which place is the burning question.

"I see no good in his books."

"I read them with considerable profit to myself."

"You did?"

"Yes; I was paid twenty-five dollars for correcting the proof-sheets."

Monochromatic is the most fashionably descriptive adjective in use. It is applied to a dinner table, an opera toilet, an interior and a wedding. To be monochromatic, to have a spread en monochrome, is the perfection of taste.

Sixty-five Cardinals have died since the present Pope became the head of the Church, and the Sacred College is now composed almost wholly of new men. Only sixteen of the present Cardinals were there under the late Pope, and one of these is seriously ill, while several others are over eighty years of age.

Brandy cherries and pieces of peaches buried in cream à la bon-bon are served at all the course dinners, along with maroons, mint drops and fruit candied. It is an absolute fact that many young persons who get through with the white, red and dry wines of a ten-course dinner will actually go under the table immediately after eating a section of brandied peach or a single cherry disguised in strawberry cream.

A soldier stationed as a sentry at the door of a certain picture gallery, had strict orders to allow no one to pass without first depositing his walking stick. A gentleman came along with his hands in his pockets and was about to enter the building, when the soldier seized him by the arm and said:

"Civilian, where's your stick?"

"My stick? I haven't got one."

"Then you will have to go and get one before I let you pass."

CELEBRATED WEINER LAGER BEER CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET.

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER.

1118 J Street.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray

APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

FRUIT AND ORNAMENTAL TREES AND PLANTS.

1,000,000

Trees and Nursery Stock for sale at LOW PRICES, of Best Varieties
Deciduous Trees.

Also, ORANGE, LEMON, OLIVE, FIG, AND NUT-BEARING TREES,
of most approved varieties.

Nurseries: Near Acampo Station, San Joaquin. Principal Depot: No. 813
Second Street, near Passenger Depot, Sacramento.

Send for Catalogue. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Address: REED & VAN GELDER, Nurserymen, Sacramento, Cal.

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS

Agents for Rockford Watch Co.

NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shnert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE HERALD

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MAY 10, 1890.

No. 12.

THE HERALD published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year by mail $5.00; six months by mail, $3.00; in advance per month, by carrier, 25 cents. Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.

WINFIELD J. DAVIS and W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The social world is composed of all kinds of extremes, and it is the struggle of their antagonistic natures that keeps up the activity of life, and thus results in progress. It is this struggle which maintains that business agitation which we call enterprise. It is this incessant struggle which keeps the waters of existence ever in commotion, and thus preserves them from becoming stagnant. There are rich men and poor men; men of muscle, men of brains, and men of capital. We could not do without them all. They could not do without each other. They are mutually dependent upon each other's exertions. If the rich man needs a book or a house, the man of brains must write the one, and the man of sinews and muscle must erect the other. If the latter desire the comforts or enjoyments which money will procure, they must take their brains and their muscles to the rich man for a market. A well known author has said, "that capital is nothing but preserved labor. Very good; but "preserved labor" does not necessarily take the form of cash, because it is called "capital." Labor may be "preserved," or reserved, or held latent in a variety of shapes. The "capital" of some men consists of houses, lands, mortgages, stocks, etc. The capital of others consists of tact, industry, skill, genius, originality, and physical strength. Each of these things is "preserved labor." It is labor developed or undeveloped, and therefore "preserved" as it were, ready for use. Each is a representative of so much value, because each is convertible—the one into the other—the intellect, tact, strength, or skill, into bonds, mortgages, houses, and lands, and the latter into books, pictures, palaces, ships, etc., which represent the former in their production. The skillful man without money is of as much use to society as the moneyed man without skill, and both are elements of the social world, so important that we can dispense with neither, and neither could dispense with its rival, or—as we should prefer to say—without its equivalent.

We are at a critical financial period in this city. The danger which follows the serinic influences of the enemies of the city is still over us. There has been a lack of economic government for very many years. Those who were the real friends of the city and had a knowledge of its necessities and of the proper courses to pursue with regard to the financial affairs, particularly the bonded debt, were not listened to, nor were the warnings, not to say the experience of the past, heeded. There has ever been some mysterious hypnotic power thrown over each successive administration of the local government by the bond auditors and their allies in some departments of the government. In the past hundreds of thousands of dollars of the people's money have been quietly surrendered, with scarcely any resistance to the bondholders, where, if the authorities had made an effort, they could have been defeated and prevented from acquiring the sinews of war to do battle against us.

While it is useless at this time to recur to the reckless disregard to legal principles in allowing $400,000 to be drawn from the treasury on coupons barred by the statute of limitations, still it is necessary as a reminder of what can be done now to relieve the depleted treasury in the future. We refer to the disposition of the revenue of the water works. The decision rendered by the old Supreme Court, declaring that 55 per cent. of the gross receipts from water rates shall go into the interest and sinking fund for the benefit of the bondholders, was and is contrary to all principles of law and justice. It was decided only by a bare majority of the court, the judges standing then in favor and then against the monstrous doctrine, when the seventh judge cast his voice against the city and in favor of crippling our city government. It is a blessing that the court as it then stood has been changed, and there is only one judge on the bench who signed the majority opinion in that case. The new court is made of sterner and better stuff and from whom the great principles of justice is more likely to flow. This being the situation, it is but justice to the people of this city that only 55 per cent. of the net proceeds of water rates should go into the interest and sinking fund.

The method for accomplishing this object is for the Board of Trustees to ignore the former decision and order only 55 per cent. of the net receipts into the interest and sinking fund. There can be no controversy about this because it cannot be claimed that the subject is res adjudicata. If the bond creditors do not accept this disposition of the funds, let them invoke the writ of mandate, and we will carry the case before the Supreme Court as it is now constituted. It would not be the first time the present court has discarded the opinions of its predecessor. Certain it is that the present court would overrule the inequitable and dangerous doctrines laid down in the judgment which says to the people of Sacramento: "You go on and pay all the expenses of running the water works, furnish engineers and workmen, coal, machinery, and pay for it out of whatever funds you may, but the bondholders will not allow you to deduct these expenses before you make any apportionment." No such doctrine in face of the facts of the case with regard to the construction and management of our water works can obtain with fair minded and a just judiciary.

It is probable that the Superior Judges will have to follow the opinion of the Supreme Court as it now stands, but the city can appeal and have the question determined anew by the court of last resort. It is certain that there can be nothing lost by this course, and we have everything to gain. Take this immense source of revenue that now falls into the hands of the bondholders away from them, and it will be observed how quick there will be a depreciation in the iniquitous bonds that have cursed us so long. We entertain a widely different view in the matter of the management of the bonded debt from some of the great financiers who pretend great friendship for the city. We believe that the value of this debt should be depreciated, and that any means whereby that end can be accomplished is in the interest of the city and the tax-payers. There are those who are at all times seeking to increase every possible source of revenue for the creditors, and who have the hardihood to claim that they are working for the city.

Any tax or revenue that adds to the interest and sinking fund or furnishes additional funds to pay those bonds or coupons only increases their value. While on the other hand, and which is the true economic idea, everything that detracts from these funds lessens the value of the bonds. It does not need a savant to determine which is for the best interests of the people. When this is accomplished, and taken together with the recent decisions of the Supreme Court, which declares that over-due coupons—and by the same process of reasoning, over-due bonds—do not bear interest, we will have a large amount of non-interest bearing obligations which will not have a very high market value. We shall say more on this subject later on, and now call on the Board of Trustees to act in the manner here suggested.

Leland Stanford took a leading part in the establishment of the Republican party on a firm basis in this State. E. B. Crocker was the recognized leader of the new party, and he attempted to hold a meeting for a permanent organization of the party, at Sacramento, April 19, 1856, but the meeting was broken up by turbulent men of other parties.

On the 30th of the same month a State Convention of the Republican party was held at the Congregational Church, at Sacramento, to organize a State movement, with Nathaniel Bennett, President. Thirteen counties only were represented, with 125 delegates, 66 of whom were from the counties of San Francisco and Sacramento. That convention declared the object of the organization to be: To preserve the liberties of the people, the sovereignty of the States, and the perpetuity of the Union. The cardinal principles were declared to be: The prohibition of slavery in the National Territories; the prevention of increase of the political power of slavery in the Federal Government. As freedom was national and slavery sectional, they were in favor of a national party, which they organized, seeking the support of all friends of freedom. At the Republican State Convention, held at the Congregational Church, at Sacramento, July 8, 1857, Leland Stanford was a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, but D. W. Cheesman was selected over him as the choice of the convention. The Republicans held a State Convention, at the theater, in Sacramento, August 5, 1858, and Leland Stanford was a candidate for State Controller, but he withdrew in favor of L. C. Gunn, who was nominated.

In 1859 the new party had become strong. The struggle between freedom and slavery had become a leading factor in politics. The Whig party was no more. The Democratic party was in power, not only in the Federal Government but in most of the States. The slavery question was a cause of intense conflict in that dominant party, and its disintegration was apparent and imminent. In this State the pro-slavery elements were too strong for the anti-slavery sentiment, divided. There was, therefore, the strongest reason for a union. But on what terms? Shall the old line Republicans abandon their organization and vote with the anti-slavery wing of the Democracy, or shall the anti-chivalry element of the Democratic party lower their war-worn flag and range themselves under the banner of the new party? These questions could not be easily solved. To unite under the leadership of the handful of Republicans would be to place the leaders of the anti-Lecompton Democracy in subordinate positions. They still clung to the name Democrat, and many who wished to vote for freedom did not as yet relish the name Abolitionist, which attached to the new party as a term of reproach. The Republican State Convention of 1859 met at Sacramento, in the Congregational Church, June 8. A motion was then made to adjourn to the 21st, and to then proceed to endorse the nominees of the anti-Lecompton State Convention. This motion was championed by Col. E. D. Baker, and F. M. Pixley was for nomination of a full ticket. The motion to adjourn was lost, and Leland Stanford was nominated for Governor.

It is not our purpose at this time to give an account of that campaign, which resulted in the defeat of Leland Stanford for Governor but the establishment of the Republican party on a firm base in this State, or to advert to the causes which led to a concentration of the anti-slavery vote on the Republican candidate. Stanford was again nominated by the Republican party (then called Union party) in 1861, was elected Governor on the 4th of September, and was inaugurated January 10, 1862. During his administration of the office of Governor, Stanford was loyal to his old time friends, the straight out Republicans, who had borne the burden and heat of the day—had adhered to their principles when to do so had involved self-sacrifice, heroism, and courage of the finest, staunchest qualities. He committed no great blunders. He added to his personal popularity, and his party under his guidance became stronger, and, in fact, invincible. As his term of office as Governor neared its close, it became known that he would be a candidate for reelection. The great body of the voters of his party had come to it from the anti-Lecompton wing of the Democratic party, or from old line Whigs from the Northern States. The leaders of these bodies had not been much consulted by Stanford, and they deemed themselves better fitted for ruling than as mere private citizens, and they determined to organize an opposition in the Republican party to the renomination of Governor Stanford. In the northern part of the State, the active agents in this movement were John Conness, of El Dorado, and B. B. Redding, of Sacramento. These men had been active as lieutenants of D. C. Broderick since California became a State. They were both able men, and they were unwilling to take subordinate places in the race for office. Stanford had won his way to the front, and he also was able, and not disposed to put political power into the hands of restless partisans who had come into the Union party from the mere force of circumstances. The antagonism between these conflicting views seemed then irrepressible, and it must be fought out in the arena chosen for that purpose.

About the first of April, 1863, a meeting was held at San Francisco composed of the leaders of the Union party opposed to the reelection of Stanford for Governor. At that meeting John Conness represented the leaders in the north part of the State. They discussed the situation. They knew that Stanford had gained great strength during his administration of the office of Governor, and that it would require the best of management to beat him for the nomination, and that in addition to the selection of a very strong man to bring forward as a competitor it would require the best management possible to secure a majority in a State Convention for their man. Before leaving for San Francisco to attend that meeting, Conness and Redding determined upon a plan of campaign to lay before the meeting best calculated to accomplish their purpose, which plan was adopted and successfully carried out. The meeting at San Francisco determined to bring out F. F. Low as their candidate. He had lived at Marysville, but was preparing to make his residence elsewhere. He was well known, an old time Republican, who was yet willing to give the Douglas Democracy their fair share of influence in the administration of the government, and in every way he was well-fitted for the position. The management of the campaign in the north part of the State was left to Conness and Redding. Ten thousand dollars were raised and placed at the disposal of Conness and Redding, to be used as occasion should require. Conness and Redding chose W. B. Carr as the proper man to carry out their instructions at Sacramento. As Sacramento was the home of Stanford, it was settled that every effort should be made to carry Sacramento for Low. To that end, five thousand dollars were placed in the hands of Carr for use where it would do the most good. The principal theater for operations in such matters was then as now, the first and second wards of the city. One of the things necessary in securing proper results was that Stanford should be kept in profound ignorance of what was going on. At an early stage in the canvass Carr sent Jack Beiderman to Stanford to ascertain what he was willing to do for the boys at the coming primary. Beiderman reported that Mr. Stanford thought he could carry the county without the use of money, but that as the boys were expecting something on such occasions he would not mind giving them $400 or $500. This suited Conness and Redding, as it would give them the first and second wards for any purpose. Beiderman had been Stanford's drayman, and he was given to understand that in Sacramento there would be no opposition to selecting Stanford delegates in the County Convention. Thus matters stood when the delegates were elected at the primaries. Stanford, lulled into fancied security, left his affairs to his friends. In the third and fourth wards Conness and Redding made no effort to elect delegates, leaving those wards to Stanford. B. N. Bugbey then could generally control about 12 votes in a County Convention, and he was with the anti-Stanford men. The County Convention met at the Sacramento Theater, on the west side of Third street, between I and J, June 3, 1863. Frank Tukey was Chairman of the Central Committee, and was elected President of the convention. The delegates from the First and Second Wards, as reported by the Committee on Credentials, were G. W. Chesley (A. J. Rhoads, proxy), A. J. Rhoads, James Goodwin (J. A. Duffy, proxy), Wm. H. Holmes (A. J. Rhoads, proxy), Joseph Rainsford (J. E. Benton, proxy), Henry Johnson, Fred. Chamberlin (Frank Tukey, proxy), William Gleason (A. J. Rhoads, proxy), J. A. Mason (A. J. Rhoads, proxy), William Fey (A. J. Rhoads, proxy), W. B. Hunt, D. McLaughlin, Geo. W. Whitney, Alex. Burns, G. W. Langville, C. Holt, W. B. Carr, J. Thomas, (A. J. Rhoads, proxy), H. A. Moses. Two contests for seats arose. In the Twelve-Mile House precinct W. M. Lee claimed his seat on the ground that 24 railroad men had voted in the precinct for one White, while all the registered voters had voted for him. The other one, Burns, from Tivoli precinct, claimed it from one Baker, voted for by railroad hands. Burns and Lee were admitted. On the organization of the convention, W. B. Carr, delegate from the Second Ward, moved that a committee be appointed by the Chair to name delegates to the State Convention. Robert Robinson moved to amend, that each precinct name its own delegates. Robinson said he had been sent to the County Convention to elect delegates to the State Convention, not to have the President name them, and that when it was found that the delegates could not do it, then the President might name them. But the motion of Mr. Carr was adopted. Whereupon Robert Robinson moved:

That the delegates from the convention be and they are hereby instructed to vote in the State Convention for Leland Stanford for Governor.

W. B. Carr offered as a substitute:

That the delegates elected to the State Convention be requested to cast their votes and use their influence for the nomination of F. F. Low, of San Francisco, for the office of Governor.

The question then was on the adoption of the substitute, and it was carried: Ayes, 53; noes, 37; the first and second wards voting solid aye; third and fourth no, and the country delegates dividing, making the majority for Low 16. Stanford not being able to carry his own county was no longer a candidate, and F. F. Low became his successor by means which, if Stanford had been fully advised, he could have readily checked and turned the political tide the other way, or at least he could have put himself in position to fight the battle on the floor of the State Convention. Several results flowed naturally from the success of Conness and Redding in that movement. 1st. It afterwards made Conness U. S. Senator. 2d. F. F. Low understanding that his success was the result of the management of W. B. Carr, took him into his confidence, gave him a position at the State Prison, from which he could make his fortune, and gave him a relative in marriage. 3d. The election of Conness as Senator made it a necessity for Stanford & Co., managers of the C. P. R. Co., to make such terms with him as would secure his friendship and friendly acts in the Senate. Exactly how this friendship was secured may never be fully known. Some of the things done have become matters of history. 1. W. B. Carr was made the political manager of the Central Pacific, and he remained in that position for some twelve or more years. 2. B. B. Redding was made Land Agent of that company, and he remained in that position a faithful, able and trusted officer till the time of his death, and Stanford remained President of his several corporations, and manager of the largest railroad interests in the United States, until he was himself elected United States Senator, and was succeeded in his position of principal managing agent of that corporation by C. P. Huntington.

At the last meeting of the Medical Society of this State, Dr. Walter Lindley, the President, in his opening address was quite emphatic in favor of some form of protection to the American physician against foreign importations. If not protection, then something in the nature of retaliation for the restrictions placed on American physicians by Prussia, Germany, and France. The University of Berlin refuses to recognize any diplomas from United States medical colleges. In Prussia, an American physician desiring to practice must take a regular course in a German college. The French Minister of Public Instruction has issued his official edict, that foreign doctors must submit their diplomas to the judgment of French faculties. By way of retaliation, it is suggested that physicians from foreign lands should be required to pass an examination under American collegiate rules, equivalent to the examination in medical colleges. The next Legislature of this State is likely to be called on to pass an Act requiring such an examination. It is said that one-sixth of the doctors in California are of foreign birth, and graduates from foreign schools. There is a kind of retributive justice in making foreign doctors submit to the same rigid restrictions imposed upon American physicians abroad.

It is being suggested by the State press that all the cities and towns of California take immediate steps to organize clubs for the purpose of having her properly and fully represented at the great World's Exhibition, at Chicago, the year after next. This is a laudable, grand idea, if only the energy, enterprise and push of our people are enlisted and they determine to make a show. No nation, no State, no people on the globe has greater, grander, richer or more varied resources than this gold-laden, fruit-bearing, serial producing commonwealth of ours. And it is no idle boast; she cannot help the fact. The Almighty made her so and when He created her He made of her a Hesperides, walled in by the Sierras on the one side and the Pacific ocean on the other, and upon her soil wrote the sign manual of His approval, and imprinted his seal of partiality and accorded her a special blessing as the chosen garden spot of all His earthly possessions. She is what she is by right of Divine favor, and is proud of the distinction. Hence to make good our boast let us put on our Sunday best and appear at Chicago in '92 as the pride of the Union. Let us show the world that we are not braggarts and not dullards, but are true Americans, proud of our unequalled commonwealth. So, then, let the people up and down and across the State meet at once and immediately begin to devise the best ways by which we may introduce our fair maiden, decked in her richest raiment, to the admiring world. It is mete and proper that Sacramento, the seat of our State government, should make the first move. Why then should the Mayor and Trustees not call on the citizens to assemble in mass meeting, at an early day, to give the first impulse to the general State movement? We move that the City Trustees, at their meeting next Monday, consider the proposition, and not delay its consideration a day later.

[Written for THEMIS.]

TALKING AND TALKERS.

Man has sometimes been defined as a talking animal, but there are two objections to this definition. First, because certain of the feathered tribes can distinctly articulate; and second, because the majority of men do not know how to talk at all. When we say they do not know how to talk, we mean with propriety. They employ words, but they do not build up sentences—they make lingual rubbish heaps. The loose, careless mode of expression which is, unfortunately, so common, has made our conversation a mere by-word; and its unintelligible jargon has been carried from the ordinary daily gossip to the platform and the rostrum, and speechmakers bewilder themselves and their hearers in an inextricable labyrinth of phrases. Now, it is really a matter of importance that young men should know how to express themselves with simplicity and elegance. And it is possible for any young man, supposing he is not a stammerer, to acquire an intelligible and graceful style of delivery. It will undoubtedly cost him some trouble—no part of mental or physical education is perfected without—but the trouble it occasions will be amply repaid.

A most important step to start with is, never to speak without thought. Take time to think, that you may save time in speech. Comprehend clearly what you have to communicate, and then endeavor to make it equally clear to the person or persons whom you address. Say everything in your best style. Let your questions be pertinent, and your answers explicit. Elegance consists in the purity and clearness of language. Purity requires choice and proper words. Ambiguous words should always be avoided. Ambiguity of expression is sometimes distressing, and always confusing. To cultivate that which is excellent, and to avoid carefully that which is objectionable, requires a constant effort. Hence the importance of always attending to it everywhere. After we have practiced it awhile it will become easy; when easy, it will be pleasant; when pleasant, we shall do it frequently. "By frequency of act a thing grows into a habit, and a confirmed habit is a second kind of nature."

As the first blow is half the battle, so to begin the correction of a bad habit is half the cure. The majority of the people in all ranks of life have become so accustomed to the unintelligible style of English conversation, that it is a difficult matter to attempt anything else.

In most countries, people of the highest stations, if they do not express their ideas with all the accuracy and formality of a treatise on logic, preserve, at least, with a certain degree of jealousy, the habit of a clear and easy eloquence in conversation. In France, to talk the language well is still the indispensable accomplishment of a gentleman. Society preserves the happy diction and the graceful phrase which literature has stamped with its authority. But in England, people, even in the best and most fastidious society, are not remarkable for cultivating the more pure or brilliant order of conversation as the evidence of ton and the attribute of rank.

The blame of incorrect and unintelligible conversation belongs to all classes; but this does not make the blame the less. If some dandies hesitate, and hum and drawl, and others wander in a maze of words of doubtful meaning, and others float on a stream of flippant verbiage—wrong oftener than right—it is necessary that something should be done to eradicate the evil. The best way to mend a social evil is to begin at home. If it is common to be slovenly in conversation, let us be uncommon. If there is the risk of being denounced as pedantic, let us boldly dare the penalty. If it is necessary that a reform should be introduced, let us be pioneers in the reformation.

This description of study may be carried on in all places, at all times, under all circumstances. Felicity of expression will always be a valuable auxiliary in our battle of life. By the force of our example we induce others to adopt our plan, and experience the satisfaction which arises from a sense of doing good. Let us think before we speak. Understand clearly what we have to say, and "pick and pack" from our Saxon vernacular until the right word is in the right place.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Whether the play is bright or flat
To him is never known,
Who looks at the back of a lady's hat,
And swears as the act goes on.

Rose Coghlan has a new modern society drama, by Louis Ludovice and Francis Reinau, which she will produce next season.

Mary Shaw's new play deals with a secret of high politics, in which notable personages of Prussia and Denmark have to figure.

Mrs. Alice Shaw, the American belle siffleuse, as she is called, first discovered her remarkable facility in whistling in attempting to teach a favorite bird to improve its voice.

A French adaptation in four acts of The Taming of the Shrew has been accepted at the "Comedie Francaise," and will be acted there next winter, with Coquelin as "Petruchio, and Mme. Samary as "Katherine."

Theater audiences in Santiago de Chile are not to be trifled with. They recently wrecked a theater, and compelled managers and actors to flee for their lives, because the play was changed and the performance cut.

It is well known that singers rarely suffer from serious lung troubles, because the constant exercising of their lungs keeps them in good condition. Playing on wind instruments seems to have a similar effect, if we may judge from an item stating that Mr. Antoine has just died in London at the age of seventy. He had been trombone player at the opera for forty-two years.

Old friend, we wondered at your matchless art,

When on the stage you pleased and thrilled and taught us,
But wonder now no more. Your tale has brought us
To better knowledge of your greatest "part."

Acres we knew, and Rip—or thought we knew—

And loved them better as acquaintance lengthened.

The man himself the actor's charm has strengthened;

The best of all, Joe Jefferson, is—you.

—John L. Heaton in Century.

The San Francisco Music and Drama has the following reference to Lucy O'Brien, whose stage name is "Clyde Harron." Miss O'Brien was formerly a school teacher of this city, and is a popular and an accomplished lady: "Clyde Harron is studying medicine with the view of becoming an M. D. Possibly the impecunious members of the profession, and particularly those who fail to come in contact with the 'ghost' after a hazardous tour, may find in Miss Harron a good Samaritan when she becomes a full-fledged doctor, should they ever need her services."

The coming of Rhea, says the St. Paul Pioneer-Press, recalls a rather ludicrous error which happened during her visit to Duluth several seasons ago. Her manager reached Duluth prior to the engagement, and met George Loomis, then editor of the Tribune and President of the Zenith City Press Club, now advance agent of the Emma Abbott Opera Company. The manager said to Loomis, in an off-hand sort of way: "What can Rhea do for your press club, my boy? I know she would like to do something." "Oh, let her send us some token of good will," replied George, suavely. "A nice picture would be about the thing, I should judge." "Hum—m, what was it you said?" "A nice picture would suit, I guess." Rhea came, and with her, to George's bewilderment, a very handsome ice pitcher, which was inscribed: "To the Duluth Press Club, with the best wishes of Rhea." It was some time before Loomis could understand why an ice pitcher was chosen—it wasn't a particularly cold day—but he chanced to repeat his conversation with the manager to a friend, who tumbled, and it was a long time before the boys quit guying George on his lip.

Watchmaking was the business followed by Pierre de Beaumarchais, the famous musician, in his youth. He became music teacher to the daughters of Louis XV, and was a favorite at court. Though he was very much conceited, he had the good sense never to blush at the lowness of his birth. One day a number of noblemen of high rank, having been kept waiting for a considerable time in an ante-room, while Beaumarchais was closeted with a minister of state, it was determined to insult the former watchmaker when he came out of the audience chamber. On his appearing, one of them said, in a loud tone: "Pray, Monsieur de Beaumarchais, have the goodness to examine my watch and inform me what is the matter with it; it very often stops, and I am sure from your youthful experience you will be able to tell the cause." "Certainly, my lord," replied Beaumarchais, with a low bow; "I served my apprenticeship in the watchmaking trade under my respected father." Taking the proffered watch from the nobleman's hand, he opened and examined it with profound interest, a number of courtiers crowding around to witness the curious scene. All at once, as if by an awkward inadvertence, he let the valuable time-piece fall heavily on the floor, where it was shattered; and amid the uproarious laughter of the bystanders he walked away, begging ten thousand pardons of the enraged nobleman for the unlucky "accident." Beaumarchais died April 24, 1799.

No matter what function music may be called upon to perform, whether it be to appeal to our emotion and imagination as pure form and color in the symphony or sonata, or to heighten and idealize the expression of poetry in the song, the cantata, or the lyric drama, it would be contrary to every known law of nature for it to relinquish any principle of organic structure that has been evolved from its own substance and in accordance with its own laws. This or that particular musical form may become extinct, and make way for others in the general and unceasing struggle for existence, and only the fittest survive; and what is fit to-day may be unfit to-morrow. But the great principle of musical form and organism of some sort is eternal; and, if we may trust the lesson of the past, the evolution of the future will still be one from simpler to more complex and more highly organized forms. Just as the lack of musical organism in the old Florentine stile rappresentivo was soon felt to be a weakness and not a source of strength to the lyric drama, so will the similar lack of musical organism in the Wagnerian music drama be found to be a weakness, and, in time, be cured by a new formal evolution of some sort. Wagner's famous dictum, that the composer in lyric drama must remember not to be too musical, will give way to Van Bulow's far truer and profounder counter apophthegm, that a composer cannot, in any case, possibly be musical enough. A certain German critic once said that, whatever might be thought of Wagner, he was indisputably the gate through which the future path of the lyric drama lay. Yes, but the lyric drama must pass through this gate; stop at it it cannot.

Book Chat.

A recent curiosity in literature is a German poem celebrating the progress of Congo exploration. It fills a book of 700 pages, and tells the whole story from Stanley's trip down to the river to the latest researches far up the Congo tributaries.

In the Library of Upsal, in Sweden, there is preserved a translation of the four Gospels, printed with metal types upon violet-colored vellum. The letters are silver, and hence it has received the name of Codex Argentens. The initial letters are in gold. It is supposed that the whole was printed in the same manner as bookbinders letter the titles of books on the back. It was a very near approach to the discovery of the art of printing, but is not known how old it is.

From his appearance, James Whitcomb Riley would be taken for a farmer, a railroad man or anything except a poet. He is of a highly nervous organization, and feels a deep pleasure in constant travel. Riley is a good illustration of the hard times that literary people undergo. He was a clever writer and versifier for many years, but did not make any great hit until a few years ago, when his composition, "When the Frost is on the Pumpkin," took a firm hold on the popular heart. Before that time he experienced trouble in selling his short poems at such ridiculous prices as $3 and $4 each. Now he commands from $25 to $50 for the same work.

Homer is said to have hanged himself because he could not solve the "fisherman's riddle." Cato and Lucretius stabbed themselves. Terence drowned himself because he lost 108 translated comedies. The writings of Labienus were burned, and Labienus took the fire route for his own exit from earth. The wife of Brutus, the well-beloved Portia, swallowed burning coals. Herennius, the Sicilian, beat out her brains and lived long enough to salute them, if his biographers tell the truth. Empedocles plunged into a crater. (He had an imitator in this century, by the way, in the person of an English nobleman.) Nero cut his throat. Petronius Arbiter opened his veins because he had displeased Nero. Democles scalded himself to death. Two Romans killed themselves to escape the eloquent invective of Cicero.

Professional Chat.

A young physician attached to the Chelsea Hospital for Women, has invented and used, it is said, with success, a machine which, in cases of cancer, will direct a current of electricity against a diseased cell strong enough to destroy it, and at the same time will not injure a healthy cell.

As to sitting down with thirteen at table, that is one thing I would not do. But I respect the superstition, not because I am superstitious, but because I do not want to feel uncomfortable. Three times in my life have I been one of a dinner party of thirteen. On each occasion one passed the joke to another that he or she would be the victim. In every instance one of the guests died within the year. So, in my experience, the truth of the adage was proven.—Chauncey M. Depew.

Webster died a broken-hearted and despairing man. So did Calhoun. Henry Clay perished, as he vainly thought, in sight of the "round and top of sovereignty." John Quincy Adams died on the floor of Congress, battling against the disunionists with his last gasp. He did not live to see the coming sunrise flush the morning of the union's brighter day. Thomas Hart Benton spent the best years of his life writing a book—"A Thirty Years' View"—which he faithfully and unfalteringly believed and held was to be one of the popular stars to guide his country into the harbor of perfect political rest. But alas for all human politic hopes—for the ability of your adroit men of theory to rule the State—not one man in a million in the United States ever read it, and probably not one man in a hundred thousand, nay five hundred thousand, ever head of it.

They have started a story on Chaplain Trone of the Missouri Legislature, which he will undoubtedly be called upon to deny. It is to the effect that during one of his missionary tours in Northern Arkansas, last summer, he was requested to announce, after meeting, that there would be a strawberry festival at the same place the following night. After making the announcement, the chaplain added: "The festival will begin at 8, but ladies who give milk will please come at 7." There was a blush and titter on the feminine side of the house, and a broad grin among the boys near the door. The chaplain, who had not noticed his own double entendre, continued in the most innocent manner to remark: "Ladies who have no milk can bring their beaux and sweethearts along and get some." The congregation dispersed.

NOTES.

The Prohibitionist is opposed to grape culture, because wine is produced therefrom. Such hide-bound people would preclude raising barley or corn, because tangle-foot is distilled from these products.

Those who like the good things of life should just now visit our markets. There you will find the choicest viands to tempt the taste as well as the eye. No country in the world can display such varieties as are found in our market stands.

When those old Roman contractors that built that splendid road, the Appian Way, look from their celestial abode at the modern construction of the streets in nearly all the municipalities, they must smile at the ideas carried out by the authorities.

All nature smiles to-day—a perfect poem of song. It is the threshold of summer, and everything is in tune. "Sweet violets" may not be heard, but they are seen rising from their beds. "Beautiful Snow" is limited to the Sierras, and the fields glory in "Wearing of the Green."

The wise men of Europe are trying to settle in their minds whether there is to be a war this year or next. All the would-be contending parties seem to be ready, and we suggest that the present year is a suitable time. By doing this the war prophets' occupation would be gone, which would be a relief to the public.

The Princess of Wales has fits of extreme melaucholy and seems troubled. Doubtless the fashion will soon prevail among the ladies of the United States, as it is essentially English, and whatever the Princess has must be the latest style among our feminine Anglomaniacs. So now for "extreme melaucholy" cut decollette.

An old Irish prophecy declares when an O'Doherty rules in Derry and an O'Donnell in Raphoe, Ireland will be free. Home Rulers, therefore, are greatly worked up over the fact that Rt. Rev. O'Doherty has just been consecrated Bishop of Derry in St. Eugene's Cathedral, Londonderry, and that the preacher on the occasion was Dr. O'Donnell, Bishop of Raphoe.

We have received from Senator Stanford the Fifth Annual Report of the Bureau of Ethnology, to the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institute, prepared by J. W. Powell, Director. The report is one of more than usual interest and permanence. It is finely gotten up and elaborately illustrated. Such a work issued by a private publishing house, would command a high price.

A couple of centuries ago the great physicians were given to over-eating and tipping, and were as a rule exceedingly fat men. They drank so heavily during this period that their prescriptions were absolutely illegible, the result of trembling hands. When it comes to the question of illegible prescriptions, we don't think there has been any improvement among the medicos of the present time.

A young gentleman called at the house of a friend lately to spend the evening. During the evening he asked for a glass of water, which was given him. He noticed that his friend's wife watched him intently. As he finished the refreshing draught, the lady sighed as she solemnly said: "It does me good to see a man drink a glass of water like that once more." There was a painful silence for a short time.

The origin of the proverb "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" has been the subject of extended investigation. Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" attributes the phrase to the Rev. John Wesley, but as Wesley uses the sentence as a quotation, it has been suggested that further search is requisite. The Rev. Dr. A. S. Belleheimer asserts that he has discovered this maxim in an abstract of religious principles contained in an old commentary on the Book of Isaiah.

For many centuries suicide has been a fine art in China and Japan. A Mandarin in China, if guilty of a misconduct, is quietly requested to dispatch himself. If he be of a rank which entitles him to the peacock feather, he is privileged to choke himself to death with gold leaf. This is supposed in those parts to be a particularly luxurious form of death. If the Mandarin be entitled only to wear the red button, he must be contented with strangling himself with a silken cord. This is hard, but the regulations of caste are inexorable.

Mr. Vail, we are informed by the dispatches, encountered a Gila monster the other day near Tucson; he tried to kill it; thought he had; and tied it behind his saddle to carry it home. It is evident the passenger had not deceased; it caught Vail by the finger with its jaws, and they had to be pried apart with a piece of steel. No doubt the captor realized the reptile must have been well posted in some powerful secret order, from the unmistakable manner in which he gave the grip. It nearly resulted in transferring Vail from this vale of tears.

A few weeks ago a member of Congress from North Carolina, found in his mail a letter from the wife of a constituent in the mountains. She was making a crazy quilt. She besought him to go to the President, the members of the Cabinet, the General of the Army, the Admiral of the Navy, the Justices of the Supreme Court, and all the Senators and Congressmen, and get an old tie from each one. She asked that he would do so immediately, and forward the ties by express. They would be used in making the quilt. The quilt could then be sold at a church fair, and enough money raised to buy a new Bible for the preacher.

When we read the poetry of a gifted mind, we picture the poet's face as the ideal of beauty, with a form perfect, a mind which is ablaze with brilliant thoughts. Like all ideals, there is a wonderful contrast between the fancy and the real. Byron was club-footed. Shelly had a nose that always seemed offended at his chin—a turn-up nose. Wordsworth as uninteresting a countenance as a hog-driver. Homer and Milton were both blind and infernally homely. Bret Harte always looked as though he had lost something of value he could not find. While we paint, in fancy, our poets with Hyperian curls and Adonis forms, but a glance at the leading artists of the world would undeceive the most earnest enthusiast, and reveal the fact that the poet and artist are not all that fancy paint them.

The collection of general statistics of manufactress in a number of cities and towns has been withdrawn from the enumerators and the duty charged upon special agents. In this Supervisor District, being the Second, the enumerators for Oakland, Sacramento and Stockton will be relieved of the duty of securing statistics of manufacturers, also relieved of the duty of collecting statistics relating to iron, steel, coke, glass, illuminating gas and electrical industries. This will lighten enumerators' duties to the extent above named. There is also a separate arrangement for making enumerations of public and private institutions, such as asylums, colleges, prisons, hospitals, etc. However, if this has been neglected, the district enumerators will take the reports from heads of such institutions, considering the head thereof the same as the head of a family.

Insomnia is most often found among brain-workers, whose brain activity causes the flow of too great an amount of blood to the head. The nerves controlling the contraction of the blood cell, through weariness, fail to perform their duty, and a temporary passive congestion is established, which effectually prevents sleeping the early part of the night. The victim should lie with the head raised very high with pillows. Frequently the sufferer, who has counted himself off into dreamland after hours of misery, is awakened toward morning again, and sleep seems more hopeless than ever. This awakening is due usually to the sudden and violent contracting of those malicious little nerves which fail to perform their duty in the early part of the night, and wakefulness is caused by lack of blood in the brain. It requires strength to sleep, and this burning attack of wakefulness is usually relieved by a cup of beef tea, or a glass of cold water may refresh you and set the blood again in the right direction.

The sensibilities of our friends of the Bee have been shocked. On Wednesday, under the caption of "A Sacramento Street Scene," an elaborate picture is printed of the St. George Building, in which it is represented that from the second and third stories three short ropes were stretched, containing some clothing that had been washed and were hung out to dry. Concerning this circumstance our aristocratic friends remark:

Just think of it! We invite visitors to this beautiful city of ours—and it is a beautiful city, even with all the defects apparent on the business streets. We give them first, in this metropolis of our northern citrus belt, a glimpse of the rear portion of our Chinatown—a most enchanting and soul-soothing landscape! Then we drive them up J street, and as we are trying to explain all the beauties of the new bank building, the stone of which it is erected, and where found—we are surprised that no attention is paid to our remarks, and that all eyes are turned to behold Mrs. McGinty's chemise, Mr. McGinty's red flannel drawers, and the little McGintys' pantalettes flaunting gaily from the porch across the street.

We can simply say we have little use for visitors who will be shocked at the sight of a clothes-line laden with the results of an honest woman's toil. Had we our way about it, we would much prefer our women could be relieved of the toil of wash day, but it should be regarded with favor that where circumstances of life are such that the wife, to aid the husband, performs this service, commendations should come, and we are not disposed to cast ridicule publicly in such cases. It has happened with many of us that our mothers did the family washing. Many men there are of present affluence who regard it not with discredit that their mothers did do this hard household work. The St. George Building our contemporary portrays, doubtless has among its tenants families not as well circumstanced as some others in this life. We do not regard the flaunting of clean clothing from a clothes-line as a mark to the appearance of any city, and have little use for visitors who would be offended at it.

IN MEMORIAM.

"* * * * * Death should come Gently to one of gentle mold, like thee, As light winds, wandering through groves of bloom, Detach the delicate blossoms from the tree. Close thy sweet eyes calmly, and without pain, And we will trust in God to see thee yet again."

There died in Chico, last Saturday, an accomplished, refined lady; a noble woman, in the meridian of her bright, beautiful life. Mrs. Emma D. Davidson, wife of Gen. H. B. Davidson, Deputy Secretary of State, passed peacefully, calmly, from this to a happier life, leaving to mourn her departure, besides her immediate family, a circle of friends who had learned to love and honor and esteem her for those feminine graces and acquirements that unite to form the perfect woman. Few of her sex possessed those crowning accomplishments that distinguished this lady, and rendered her singularly conspicuous in the circle to which she had so endeared herself. Educated in the literary schools of the day, she had ever through her brief life addressed her time to a continued acquirement of knowledge, so that her society was courted by all for her fund of information, which she ever cheerfully divided. To youth she especially endeared herself, for nature had created her a natural and universal mother; attracting all, she knew not what it was to repel; her sweet nature ever surrounded her personage with the happy group who never left her presence unentertained, but always instructed. She lived the calm, quiet life of the unostentatious Christian woman, teaching the beatitudes of daily existence by pure, simple example, rather than by the austerity of the preceptor's written rule. Charity, benevolence and humility formed the triple tiara that crowned her perfect life. As a wife, she was tireless in the exhibition of love for her fond husband, that characterized her early life when first she pledged him the troth of her eternal fidelity; she passed from his earthly vision with the same fond affection they mutually exchanged in the honeymoon of their union. A model mother, she was wrapped in the cheering anticipation of her son's success, and applied her maternal existence to his every effort, strewing his path of life with the joys of her smile as she led him along the by-way of his youthful career. A warm, attached and constant friend: the poor of purse or the exalted in life were the same to her impartial nature, did they but meet her strict ideas of true merit. Nature, at her birth, had ordained that she should occupy a distinguishing niche in the affairs of life, and right nobly did she fulfill the requirements of the ordination.

The grave has closed over her; she has gone to the opposite shore, and there in the perpetual life of eternity awaits the coming of those she left on this side.

"Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord; that walketh in His ways."

—A FRIEND.

The Crop of Spring Poetry.

We must confess our crop of spring poetry is behind this season. We attribute it to the late rains. The following original gem—and the first we have seen this year—we clip from our contemporary, the Record-Union:

CAPAY VALLEY.

A Vision of the Near Future.

In that garden of nature, the Vale of Capay, Where flame the ripe clusters of luscious Tokay; Where the bloom of the orange will perfume the breeze, And the rich fruits hang low on the beautiful trees, In touch with the city, yet far from the world, His sword in its scabbard, his battle-flag furled, The veteran, by life's hundred battles oppressed, May find here his Eden—his valley of rest.

But not only veterans congregate here; For the young and ambitious have chosen this sphere, Where the guerdon of skill and the diligent hand Are drafted on nature and paid on demand. They care for their trees in contentment and health, And journey through fruits and through flowers to wealth. 'Tis a manly existence; to those who endure, Who plow in the rain, shall the harvest be sure.

In justice, we say we republish but the opening portion of the poem. Considerations of space compel us to thus abbreviate, yet we believe enough is given to enable our readers to follow what we cannot—the thread of the poem. Criticism can be expected of all literary efforts, particularly poems, and in this instance we regret somewhat that our poetical editor has left the city and perhaps will not return. Therefore it is, that the duty of this review falls upon the military editor.

This poem, as we take it, refers to Capay valley, in the adjoining county of Yolo, and to the section that is locally known as "Hungry Hollow." The young man who wrote it was perhaps reared in that canyon, and knows more about it than those who live on this side of the river. He speaks of the beautiful trees on which the rich fruit hangs low. We can appreciate the confidence the trees of Capay have. With us any tree of ordinary intelligence hangs its fruit high for prudential reasons—the crop of small boys is too large.

The reference he makes to warfare, if we read it right, is an invitation that the "hollow" would offer superior inducements as a field of battle. This young man should recollect war is a very bad thing, and, while it is true, perhaps, the greater number of humans met death in bed, very many perished in carnage. Sentiments of this kind, particularly when flowing from the pen of a poet, might engender a war in the county of Yolo; an event we would much deplore, particularly if the battle ground was up in the canyon on a hot day and when the north wind was blowing. Our young friend knows not what war means. In our case we know something about it—any man who survived the terrible encounter at Tripe Hill near Santa Cruz knows what war means. We feel just this way: Take the case of Alexander the Great. He was a warrior; he conquered the world; he wept that there were no other worlds to conquer. The world thinks of him as you would of us, had we, a brigade major, after the combat at Santa Cruz, cried that there were no other hills in the neighborhood to conquer.

It has happened that men have been forced into war. Cincinnatus, you recollect, was a stranger, and, as you say in your poem, was plowing in the rain. He left his team and engaged in warfare, yet in that case the result was not satisfactory. It would have been better had he stayed at home and taken care of his ranch. That this poem you present has been published is all right, but do not repeat.

FANCY DRY GOODS

"QUALITY"

IS THE WORD.

To give goods made of the best material, by skilled labor, and at a price that will give the customer satisfaction, is the aim of this house.

In Hosiery, Gloves, Laces, Embroideries, and Ribbons, Ladies' and Children's Undergarments, the aim is to excel, and by close attention to values, hope to succeed.

W. I. Orth,

630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

FLASHES.

A man is often absorbed in his business—oftener his money is absorbed.

There ought to be a law to compel the cooking of cabbage out of doors.

Enright is one of the managers of the base ball league. From present indications he will be all right if affairs Enright.

There is a woman who wants her husband to join a club or a lodge of some kind, in order to have something to find fault about. She does not live in Sacramento.

Win Davis (to lady reading his own jokes to him)—I am not egotistic, and dislike to have any one read my jokes to me. Lady (throwing paper aside)—Well, if this boy and cherry joke is a sample, I do not wonder you are not pleased with them.

Our Fire Department.

With the compliments of Chief Engineer O'Meara we have received the 17th annual report of the Board of Fire Commissioners. From it it appears that the expenses of maintaining the department last year were $31,228.76—a creditable showing. We have but one criticism concerning this department of our local government. We do not believe that for the service rendered the people, adequate compensation is made our firemen. In the case of the Chief he receives but $100 per month, and the salaries of his subordinates are correspondingly low. While it is considered that the performance of their duties demands immediate action at any hour and that it is hazardous, it would seem they should be deservedly paid. In the instance of the fire in the paint establishment of the Sullivan-Kelly Company recently the good work of the department was very fully demonstrated, and we believe fully appreciated. In that instance the judgment with which the fire was handled saved enough property to offset the cost of maintaining the department for a year.

Crawford-Byrne Nuptials.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer of May 1st, contains a reference to a wedding solemnized in this city—that of Samuel L. Crawford, of Seattle, to Mrs. Clara M. Byrne, of Sacramento. Speaking of the event, the Post-Intelligencer says: "This marriage is one of the most important of the season, owing to the prominence of the groom in business circles and the acquaintance of the bride here. Mr. Crawford is the senior member of Crawford & Conover, the well-known real estate and financial brokers. He possesses large means, and it is safe to say that no man in the Northwest has a larger circle of devoted friends. He has resided in Seattle for fourteen years, and has at all times been prominently identified with the city's progress. His sterling qualities and genial, kindly nature, have made him every one's friend, and he will have countless wishes for a happy wedded life."

Concerning the bride we claim credit here. She was reared in Sacramento. She has a record commendable to womanhood. That she will be missed here will have compensation. We are generous to our new sister State. Yet Washington, draw not too heavily upon us.

There will be held an important meeting of the Sacramento City and County Improvement Association, on Monday evening, May 12th, at 8 o'clock, at the rooms of the Association, 614 I street.

Professor Howe is one of the oldest established educators in the city. His Normal Institute is known throughout the coast. We call attention to his course of instruction, and his methods of training the mind.

The rainfall during the week, according to the Signal Service reports, was .94 of an inch as against 3.18 inches during the same time last May. The rainfall for this season to date is 32.94 inches as against 19.13 inches to a corresponding date last year. The highest and lowest temperature during the week just passed was 82 and 48, while for the same period last year the highest and lowest temperature was 78 and 44.

Of extra value—men's open-front linen bosom (fine-pleats) dress shirts, $1.00; men's dress shirts, open front and back, Marseilles bosoms, $1.50; men's dress overshirts in flannel and silk, 50 cents to $3.90. Red House.

Our Strides in Millinery.

Extra exertions, extra help and an extra stock of the very latest in flowers, long French sprays, wreaths, buds, etc.; also, Leghorn hats, clip hats in bleach and white, and dress hats of an endless variety of styles, all new and fresh; no old shop-worn goods in the department. Boys' and girls' sailor hats by the case, price ranging from 15 cents to $1.35. Ladies do an injustice to themselves if they do not buy their goods of us, when the profits are equalized in their different departments, at Red House.

Buffalo Brewery Parade.

Yesterday afternoon there was a handsome street parade with brass band, and the several wagons and employes of the Buffalo Brewery Company. The demonstration was very attractive, and thousands of the citizens were on the streets and balconies to witness the exhibition. The horses were enveloped with coverings bearing this legend, "Patronize Home Industry."

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

The popular market men, Garzoli & Genis, at 712 K street, are daily receiving choice strawberries, new potatoes, and in fact everything in the market line. Give them a call. 712 K street. Telephone No. 188. *

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers. *

If you contemplate building, own a store, or even rent, and want absolute protection from fire, put in Schenck's Hose Reels—an improvement on the old, or Paragon Reel—will swing in any direction when being unreeled. L. M. Landsborough is the agent for Northern California, who will furnish rates on application. *

The Drexel Industrial Institute.

The Drexel Institute promises to be hardly less notable as an addition to the fine buildings of Philadelphia than it will be as a factor of immense importance in the educational progress of that city. The structure is to be a most noble and imposing one, and fully worthy of the splendid benefactions of Mr. A. J. Drexel—the most splendid, indeed, in the history of Philadelphia, save Stephen Girard's great gift. Mr. Drexel will not only spend $500,000 on the building and its plant, but will endow it with $1,000,000, so that it ever may be maintained in the most efficient and thorough manner.

The institute will contain twenty-four class-rooms, a large gymnasium which is to be thoroughly equipped, a museum, library and reading-room, a small lecture-hall and a great lecture-hall, which will undoubtedly be the finest in the city. It is to be 56 by 154 feet in size, and will be used for popular lectures, concerts and other entertainments. By the use of a curtain extending the full width and height of the hall, and suspended from tracks attached to the ceiling, it may be reduced to any desired size. This hall will seat about 2,000 people.

The special feature of the interior of the building will be the central glass-covered hall, nearly 100 feet square, and extending from the first floor to a glass ceiling on the ceiling-line of the third floor. Broad galleries will run around the hall on the second and third floors, giving admittance to the school rooms. The most complete arrangements have been made for the heating, ventilation and lighting of the building, and all the appointments will be rich and substantial. The institute will furnish accommodations for from 2,000 to 2,500 pupils, and it is hoped to have it ready for occupancy by September, 1891. When finished the institute will be a most magnificent and enduring monument to the philanthropy and public spirit of Mr. Drexel, and will make his name a household word in Philadelphia for untold generations to come.—Record.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents. 703 J Street, Sacramento.

The Nonpareil
DRY GOODS HOUSE

Cor. 5th and J Streets,

WILL PUT ON SALE

Monday Morning, at 9 o'clock

TO BE CONTINUED UNTIL SOLD,

400 Pieces of 40-inch All-Wool Dress Goods, Plain as well as Fancies For 50 Cts. a Yard.

HOWE'S

High School and Normal Institute

SIXTH STREET, BET. J AND K, SACRAMENTO.

Its course of instruction is thorough, and its methods of teaching systematic and ORIGINAL. Those who desire a THOROUGH education, and especially those who expect to make teaching a profession, are cordially invited to examine for themselves its methods of instruction. Its doors are always open; there are no vacations.

Fine Table
Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL
HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND
SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO
OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento.

Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.
JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Attorneys for Administrator my10—5t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF EDWARD KRAUS, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Executor of the estate of Edward Kraus, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Wm. E. Gerber, Executor of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento City, Cal.

Dated, April 15, 1890. WM. E. GERBER, Executor.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Executor. Apl 15—5t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

In the matter of A. E. Votaw, an insolvent debtor. A. E. Votaw having filed in this Court her petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, by which appears that she is an insolvent debtor, the said A. E. Votaw is hereby declared to be insolvent.

The Sheriff of the County of Sacramento is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all her deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of her estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to her or to any person, firm or corporation or association, for her use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Honorable Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, in open Court, at the Court-room of said Court, on the sixth day of June, 1890, at 1:30 o'clock P. M. of that day, to prove their debts, choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered that the order be published in the THEMIS, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Sacramento, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of the creditors.

And it is further ordered that in the meantime all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed.

Dated, April 21st, 1890. JOHN W. ARMSTRONG, Judge of the Superior Court.
WILLIAM A. GETT, JR., Attorney for Petitioner. apr26—5t

R. DAVIS,
NOTARY PUBLIC,
Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:
Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.
1002 J Street, Sacramento.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

"It costs so much nowadays to support a wife!" cried impertinent Bryce Thorne, casting a sly glance across the table at Olla Fiske. "I'd propose to somebody I know of this night, if it were not for her expensive habits."

"Pooh! she wouldn't have you," laughed Olla, scornfully, her own dainty tea gown rather giving point to what Bryce had said. "She'd think it altogether too great a task to be burdened with such a husband as you would make. Think of the cigarettes you fumigate the house with, the tobacco you devour and—everything."

"That's it, Miss Olla; give it to him," put in Phinnie St. John, who had a firm belief in what his mother often told him, "Phineas, you've got the stuff in your pocket to carry you through," and therefore did not care how empty of "stuff" his head might be.

"Cigarettes!" repeated Bryce, making a pair of big round eyes at Miss Fiske. "Cigarettes! Better say something about tea. That's the third cup you've taken this evening, Miss Olivette Fiske."

"I don't care if it is," retorted Olla, with careless serenity. "Tea is fashionable nowadays, and how much do you imbibe of it yourself, Mr. Thorne? You drink far more tea than I do, doesn't he, Mrs. Doane?"

Mrs. Doane's smile was perfectly non-committal; she was that rarity, a landlady who pleased all her boarders, smiling as sweetly on Phinnie St. John when she said to her, with charming clearness, "I can sling as much fodder down my trunk as the next man," as upon Mrs. Livelign, who was a lady so perfect that no one dared address her for fear of making an error in grammar, or committing a breach of etiquette.

"Mrs. Doane, do I drink as much tea as Miss Fiske?" appealed Bryce, who seemed much hurt by the accusation.

"I really do not know," stammered Mrs. Doane, who would not for worlds express an opinion concerning any of her boarders' appetites.

"Of course not—nobody knows it," resumed Bryce, swelling up pompously. "Miss Olivette, I consider that you have slandered me foully, while you—why, you haven't even the face to deny that you have drank three cups of tea this evening!"

"Bryce Thorne, I'll pledge myself to leave off drinking tea if you will. I'll wager a napkin-ring that you will break your pledge before I do."

"Hear, hear! A bet—a bet!" cried Phinnie St. John, jubilantly.

"I'll take you up on that. I'll bet a ring that you will take the first draught."

"A napkin-ring, I said," returned Olla, coloring slightly.

"Very well—you all hear!" cried Bryce, turning to a table full of smiling boarders. "Watch the pantry, Mrs. Doane."

"Not I," returned she. "If Olla gets hungry, she can go to the pantry any time she likes."

"Can't I?" exclaimed Bryce in great astonishment.

"Of course," assented Mrs. Doane.

"By Jove! you'll both need watching!" cried Phinnie St. John. "And as I have nothing to do, I'm the one to do it."

"Dear me, Mrs. Doane, sha'n't I put a padlock on the pantry door?" suggested Mr. Shylock, who was a carpenter, bowing politely to his landlady.

After this Olla was obliged to take water at all the little tea-parties where she was invited, and her pretty tea-gowns seemed almost a mockery to her.

Bryce Thorne and Phinnie St. John followed her about, too, telling the story to everybody; and all her friends were laughing, knowing well how much she loved a cheering cup, and how delighted the two young men were with this opportunity of lingering in the wake of pretty Olla.

"Oh, you'll see me around with a napkin-ring hanging to my watch-chain, before long," Bryce would say. "I don't care a thing about the stuff, you know."

"And Phinnie watched and watched until he grew weary, and began to lose faith in the "stuff" in his pockets, fearing that it would fail to bring him all the prizes of his life after all.

One day he communicated the joyous intelligence to them at luncheon. "I'm obliged to go away this afternoon. Some of the rest of you will have to watch our two tea-drinkers."

Nobody volunteered, and Phineas did not seem in the least disappointed.

Olla was a copyist, who did her work in her own room, and toward dusk, her manuscript all daintily finished, she sauntered down into the sitting room.

No one was there. Mrs. Doane was missing, too, and Olla could not resist a great temptation.

"I'll go down into the kitchen and make me a cup of tea," she laughed to herself. "My head aches so from that everlasting writing, and Bryce Thorne will never know."

Ten minutes later the tea pot was steaming away gloriously upon the range, and the fumes of Olla's favorite green pervaded all the air.

Horrors! There was a sound of rushing footsteps along the hall.

It could be nobody but Bryce Thorne, for no one else could get away from business at this hour.

Olla had just time to thrust the tea-pot back into the dark corner where it was usually kept by Mrs. Doane.

The door opened, and Olla, from the corner where she had taken refuge, could see Mr. Thorne peering cautiously around.

He entered, and advancing to the cupboard, he thrust his hand into the very corner which held the tea-pot.

"Gurggle—gurggle—gurggle."

And then:

"Oh, my soul! I've taken it red-hot! My tongue is blistered from the tip to the roots! My teeth are all coming out! My mustache—my mustache— Oh, oh! I've scalded my lips, too, and my mustache will fall out like the down from a scalded goose!"

With a peal of silvery laughter, Olla danced out of her concealment, and Bryce stopped groaning to say, indignantly:

"You have lost your wager! You've been drinking tea!"

"No—I only made the tea for you to drink," Olla retorted.

"That's true—every word of it!" cried jollified Phinnie St. John, showing his not entirely beautiful face, which had been hidden behind the pantry door. "You see, I suspected you, too, and I hid myself—"

"She drank first, didn't she?" asked Bryce, with tears in his eyes.

"No, but she was just ready to drink when you came in. You have lost your bet, Thorne."

Bryce tried to laugh, but it ended in a grotesque contortion of the lips.

"Well, I don't care," he managed to say at last. "I'll own right up on the spot. I've been drinking cold tea out of that teapot every day for a week past."

Everybody had a laugh over the result of the affair, and then they expected to see Miss Olla's new napkin-ring before long.

It did not come, but instead Phinnie described a diamond cluster flashing upon Olla's finger.

"Your napkin-ring has contracted somewhat," he said to the young couple that evening.

"Yes," replied Bryce. "She has concluded to make tea for me for life, and I thought this would be more appropriate."

And Phinnie, his hopes forever gone, with his pleasing occupation, felt even more pained than did Bryce the entire week after he was "caught in the act."

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

ANHEUSER & BUSH

BEER

Can be found on draught only at

John Gruhler's Saloon

No. 522 J STREET.

The finest and best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET. SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

NEW ARRIVAL.

JUST ARRIVED, VIA CAPE HORN, DIRECT from a famous Kentucky distillery, a large invoice of fine old copper distilled

SOUR MASH BOURBON WHISKY.

To be had only at the CAPITAL ALE VAULTS, Third and J streets. Nagele & Svensson, sole agents. Finest LUNCH in the city, from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., at the ALE VAULTS, NAGLE & SVENSSON, Proprietors. Postoffice Box 173. Telephone 38.

D. McDougall,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6.45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7.25 P
9.30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6.20 A
7.05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6.45 P
8.15 P	Knight's Landing	7.40 A
10.50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9.55 A
8.00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6.25 P
12-01 A	{ Central Atlantic Express } { Ogden and East }	6.00 A
3-00 P	Oroville	10-30 A
3-00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10-30 A
10.40 A	Redding via Willows	4.00 P
6.15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7.25 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 A
6.45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9-10 P
10.00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	8.00 A
10.50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2.25 P
6.50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 P
10.50 A	San Jose	2.25 P
7.05 P	Santa Barbara	9.55 A
6.45 A	Santa Rosa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Santa Rosa	7.25 P
8.15 A	Stockton and Galt	6.45 P
7.05 P	Stockton and Galt	9.55 A
8.00 P	Truckee and Reno	6.25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	6.00 A
12.05 P	Colfax	10.20 A
6.45 A	Vallejo	11.40 A
3.05 P	Vallejo	7.25 P
7.00 A	Placerville (Mixed)	4.50 P
5.00 P	Folsom	9.00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout.
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox.
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Graugers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENSWARE, CIGARS,

TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.

1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands today without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from..... $25
Stylish Pants made to order..... 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from..... 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from..... 30

Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from..... 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand
ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199.

Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

TUFTS'

Yerbyne COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Proud of the Relationship.

"Oh, Mr. Dusenberry," cried her brother, "I'm so glad you are going to me."

"Ah, Johnnie, is that so?" he gasped, a look of happiness flitting over his face. "How did you know? Come here and sit on my lap and tell me all you have heard."

"Sister's other feller came here last night," began the boy, after he was safely in the arms of the young man, devouring a quarter's worth of candy, "and I heard them talking 'bout you."

"What did they say?"

"He was mad," replied the terror, "'cause sis goes with you so much."

"And what was her reply to him?" continued the young man, the look of happiness spreading further across his features.

"She said," began the youth again, "that he needn't get mad 'cause you come to see her, as you was a soft snap and was saving him lots of money that would go to fixin' up their house after they were married."

The look of contentment on the young man's face gave way to the pallor of despair as he gasped:

"Well, how is that going to make me kin to you?"

"Oh," went on the boy, "I'm comin' to that now. She said that when you proposed to her she would be a sister to you; and won't that make you my brother?"

As the boy picked himself off the floor he beheld the form of the young man flit through the front door.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Chilly Day in Washington.

While the ice company's parade moved up the avenue yesterday, headed by a brass band, two Ohio men who think the country yearns for their services, but who up to the present time have not been able to impress the administration with a sense of their real worth, stood on the corner and watched the wagons go by.

"Now, where do you suppose they are going?" asked the first Ohioan, as the band turned up Fifteenth street, making the air ring with the strains of that good old hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains."

"Don't know," responded his companion, "unless they are going up to be reviewed by the President."

"Well, it's a pretty chilly lay-out, but if the President has retained the manner he had on hand the last time I called it will break up the procession."

And the unhappy Buckeye Republican cast a sympathetic glance in the direction of the moving ice wagons.—Washington Post.

TALK IS CHEAP,

and the press teems with advertisements of sarsaparillas, and other liver, blood and lung remedies, but there is one medicine, and only one, the claims for which, as a cure for all lingering diseases arising from Torpid Liver or Biliousness, or from impure blood, are backed up by a positive guarantee! If it don't do just as represented in every case, the money paid for it is promptly refunded. This peculiar medicine sells beyond all others throughout the civilized world. And why should it not? "Talk is cheap," but when it's backed up by a positive guarantee, by a house of long established reputation, for honesty, integrity and sound financial standing, then words mean business! And that's just what the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., mean in guaranteeing their Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery checks the frightful inroads of Scrofula and, if taken in time, arrests the march of Consumption of the Lungs, which is Lung-scrofula, purifies and enriches the blood, thereby curing all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Ulcers, Sores, Swellings, and kindred ailments.

$500 OFFERED

for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head, by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. By its mild, soothing and healing properties, it cures the worst cases, no matter of how long standing. Only 50 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

Complexion Masks.

Apropos of masks, which, by the way, should be encouraged as a burglar scare, here is a true story in point. The writer will vouch for it: "Two maidens, hearing that a mask made of a thick paste of rye flour and worn at night would prove a royal road to complexion, determined to try it. They lay quiet as mice in the darkened room, feeling the abominable mess stiffening slowly, icily on their warm, young faces. One of them attempted to speak, but her lips were so compressed that she could scarcely murmur that she felt like the man in the iron mask. Then, finding sleep out of the question, she rose and turned on the gas. When she caught sight of her companion's ghastly visage the temptation overcame her prudence. "Why, you—you look just like a head in the Eden Musee. Oh! but you are ugly, and just need a bit of black velvet instead of your white gown in order to perfect the resemblance," she tittered.

"Don't dare to laugh, Alice," warned her friend; "you'll crack to pieces if you do."

And crack to pieces she did, for the moment the muscles of her face began to move the stiff mess cracked in all directions, until the girl's face looked like the map of Chicago in plaster of paris. And when the next day the girls removed bits of eyebrow and particles of skin in scrubbing off the seamed roughness they took a solemn oath on the city directory never to again try home-made complexion masks.—Chicago Times.

"Heroic Courtesy."

A recent French writer on "The Revolution, the Empire, and the Restoration," cites an amusing instance of what he calls heroic courtesy.

Percy, Lord Beverly, invited to dine with him a Marquis, one of the most valiant soldiers of the army of Conde.

Wishing to honor his guest and the cause which he served, that of the French King, the English peer ordered his butler to bring him a bottle of fine wine—100 years old—"a ray of sun shut in crystal."

He opened it carefully, and offered a glass to the Marquis, saying: "If you deem it worthy the honor, will you drink in this wine the health of the King?"

The Marquis tasted the wine.

"How do you like it?" asked the host.

"Exquisite," replied the Marquis.

"Then," said Lord Beverly, "finish the glass; only in a full glass can one drink the health of so great and so unfortunate a King."

The Marquis did as he was bidden without hesitation; only when the Englishman tasted the wine did he learn that what he had forced on his guest was castor oil, and thenceforth he held the politeness of the French toward the English in the highest esteem.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER
CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER.

1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSNER.

BAVARIA PILSENER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

NO. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS

Agents for Rockford Watch Co.

NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE UNIONS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1890.

No. 13.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

In the every day language of life ideas seem to be linked in pairs. Thus we hear "faith and works," "theory and practice," "precept and example," linked so closely that we are startled sometimes to find these things so inseparable in words, pole-wide apart in the lives of men and women whom we know. A beautiful, hearty faith is a grand basis for human character on which a lifetime of good deeds will rest naturally, and from which the common places of life derive much of their glory and satisfaction. An earnest, sincere faith, that pervades the whole being and works out every day in words and actions, is a faith worth having. A confidence that trusts the Supreme Father of us all, that lifts the burdens we all must bear cheerfully, and looks hopefully into the future, is broad enough to take in humanity and throws a strength-giving atmosphere all about its possessor. We all have met people with much genuine goodness in their composition, and whose trust in the goodness of others was so firm that an instinctive desire to be good and to be trusted by them, springs up in their presence as naturally as flowers in the spring sunshine. Such souls, so filled with the sweetness of generous impulses, find it an easy task to make their faith and practice chord, and life to them is a beautiful harmony. It seems to us there are few things so sad as a really cynical disposition that is unwilling to give credit for whatever measure there is of disinterested motives among us. If favors are bestowed, they look beyond the simple act to see the selfish motives that prompted it, and if a life seems pure and upright, they are ready to say, "whited sepulchers." We do not know what there is to make existence bearable to such people, for they feel that divine power has taken a great deal of trouble to make things as uncomfortable as possible while they stay here, and there cannot be much joy in the thought that eternity is to be shared by the other occupants of this earth. There is doubtless some discord, and some people pretend to believe what they do not, and set up a standard that is inconsistent with their actions. We all know examples of this class of people and feel the deep wrong they do humanity in their baseness and deception. Truth is the underlying principle of a virtuous life, and in some people it keeps underneath and does not blend with their motives and impulse except in microscopic quantities. And, in truth, it is not an easy thing to be what we seem to be and to say what we think. It takes more courage than some people possess.

The fault is not so much in people nor in truth itself as in the artificial lives we live—the outer and the inner bark of society are not alike. Of course in every organization there must be some system, and in social life there must be general principles of right and wrong to be observed, but public opinion goes further than to establish these, and makes arbitrary rules that hamper free thought and original action. Even ministers feel this and sometimes proclaim what they know to be popular doctrine, and retain their own private opinions to avoid criticism. They prefer scattering cut-and-dried notions and set phrases to resigning their positions, and thus self-respect is bartered for popularity, and cold formality takes the place of honest earnestness. The same swaying to public opinion may be seen among the statesmen and office-holders of our land, and a sort of universal distrust is placed in them. It is a sad comment on the goodness of our times to read the occurrences of the busy world around us. People believe in this peace movement and advocate the extermination of the Indians. They believe the ten commandments and yet support capital punishment. They believe in the golden rule, but from the nursery to the Senate halls they like the biggest apple and the largest salaries. In honor, preferring one another is not a fashionable proceeding in these modern times. But these things do not originate where we see them. Great people all have been little, and statesmen were children once, young and innocent. They were placed in the homes of our land to be loved and instructed—to be developed and strengthened into noble men and women; and it is to them we must look for the reason of warped judgment and flexible conscience that mar our social and national character. Some are more subject to temptation from their very organization, and need a fervent, heroic love, and a strong home attraction to steady their course. They need a generous sympathy at home to satisfy the hungry longings of the soul, and a hearty appreciation of modest efforts to stimulate them to rise into a broad man and womanhood. In the first place, many children are not taught to do right from the love of right, but because "people will talk if they do not." They are carefully trained to seem to be good, but righteousness for its own sweet sake and the bliss it will bring, are not the precious incentives to action they should be. Simple honesty of expression and action gives place to policy. The inspiration to a pure, earnest life is lost when goodness for itself is cast aside. So much for theory.

Now let us give practice an interviewing. The same father, whose rebuke fell so heavily on his own child for denying a secret raid on the custard pies in the pantry, announces at breakfast that he has sold old Mike for a charming price—fully ten dollars more than if his blind eye had been noticed. How can the child distinguish between the true and the false? How can we? It is hard for childish perceptions to draw the line between robbery in one form and robbery in another, and it must be very puzzling to them to see the average good people of our communities quietly pick to pieces the reputations of men and women, depriving them of what is more precious than silver or gold, and what can never be restored to them. Custom makes it less base than theft, but in the light of infinite purity which would be the darker deed? We know there is some good in every one, and however low he may be, there is some reaching toward the light, and it is far better to try to find the good than to darken the shadows of the already shadowed picture—better for humanity and infinitely better for ourselves. The homes of our land are the heart of our nation, and the tides of thought and feeling that throb through its arteries will be as pure as the oxygen of its home atmospheres—no purer. When theory and practice shall go hand in hand, who shall doubt whether parents, teachers and friends believe what they say, and where will be the stronghold of total skepticisms? What a long step toward the millenium it will be when pure, unselfish example shall be the convincing argument presented for a true life—when little hearts and little hands shall not be perplexed by the clashings of precept and example—when faith and works can be brought to keep step, what a grand triumphal march life will be.

There is no better thermometer of the progress of a people or community, than the advance of its press. While it has been in Sacramento that much money has been made from barter and trade, and the rates of wages have been higher than now, it is yet true that the era of permanent advance, indicated by the planting of homes and the establishment of business, small and large, that will last, came within late years. The announcement made a few days ago that the Record-Union management were arranging to supplant their two double cylinder presses by a perfecting press, may strike our people as of but little moment—as a matter which alone concerns a newspaper and its business. It is true that expensive presses and office equipments are not brought into a city by newspaper publishers to be a source not of profit, but the fact that the business of both dailies here has justified the purchase of the very latest styles of printing presses, is indicative of general prosperity.

We need go back but a few years. The Union was started in March, 1851, by an association of printers. Not one of its original proprietors is now living, so far as we know. Its first edition of 500 copies was printed on an old style hand press. The business of the paper soon increased, and, as we understand, an Adams press was purchased. Later two little cylinder presses, each capable of printing two pages, did the work of the paper, and the office was deemed to be fully equipped. On November 17, 1858, the first work of a double cylinder press was issued from the Union office, in the shape of an eight page edition of the paper. It is somewhat curious, in view of the accomplishments of the present, to look back to those days and we feel pardoned in reproducing the laudatory notice the paper then gave of "the first double sheet daily ever published on the Pacific Coast." On the day named the Union printed the following:

DOUBLE DAILY UNION.

Owing to the pressure of news upon our columns, we are under the necessity of issuing, to day, a double sheet of the Daily Union, the first double daily ever published on the Pacific coast, and the largest to our knowledge in the United States. It contains fifty-six columns of matter, and embraces intelligence from all portions of the civilized world, with interesting correspondence from Boston, New York, Washington and New Orleans—the latter of which cities, by the recent opening of the Tehuantepec route, has at once become a most important point for the transmission of the latest news to California. Foreseeing the speedy establishment of a mail route, and the quick time that would be made over it, we sometime since made arrangements to procure a reliable correspondent in that quarter, who should not only forward advices from that locality, but from other portions of the United States and from Europe. We have also established correspondents at St. Louis and St. Joseph, at the eastern termini of the Southern and Central Overland Routes, from whom we shall shortly receive communications. Having obtained a circulation surpassing that of any other daily in California, it will be our aim to meet the expectations of our readers, and to be fully up to the spirit of the times. The double Daily Union is printed on one of Hoe's largest sized cylinder presses, recently shipped from New York, and will be issued whenever the arrival of steamers from the Atlantic States, or of the Overland Mail, shall bring in upon us details of news that cannot be conveniently disposed of in a single sheet.

This "giant" edition of November, 1858, contained a New York letter dated October 20th, and two letters from New Orleans, dated, respectively, October 20th and 27th. The budget of Atlantic intelligence received by the steamship Golden Gate were of date not later than October 27th, and the State telegraphic items filled less than a quarter of a column. It will be recollected in those days there was no overland telegraphic service; such a thing as cablegrams were hardly dreamt of, though it is true that in that very year a cable was stretched under the Atlantic that worked for a short time. The double cylinder of 1858 was soon found incapable to do the work, and to supply the demand of to-day, two of these printing giants have to fail. The progress of the morning daily of Sacramento requires a stereotyping and perfecting press—one of speen and as perfect as modern science has accomplished. It was but a short time ago when neither of the dailies of the city had the press facilities THEMIS has. In the case of the Bee, time was that its press work was done at a job office. Its business justified, a very short time ago, the purchase of a modern perfecting press. It would hardly seem possible that further improvement can come in printing machinery, for now papers are printed on both sides, pasted, folded and counted—yet the demands of the future may bring about improvements as marked as those that have supplanted the Hoe double cylinders, and if it comes the people will have the advantage.

We much regret to be again compelled to refer to the matter of the administration of the municipal government; yet we feel the gravity of the subject warrants further reference. Within the last few weeks our taxpayers have paid $2.20 on the $100 of taxable property; and while murmur has not been made, it is well understood that the burden has been quite oppressive. It is not the question of the raising of revenue that we seek to deal with; the criticism we have runs to the manner of its disbursement. When we repeat that the business affairs of the city are conducted upon the most unbusiness-like principles, the truth of our statement will be generally conceded. We have heretofore said that Mayor Comstock lacks not in integrity and honesty, but in capacity and judgment. The Mayor's ideas of economy, while in the main correct, are open to the criticism that if carried out they would result in loss to the community. For instance, we do not regard it as a brilliant stroke of political economy to seek to curtail governmental expenses by discharging the laborers who wheel the coal to the furnaces in the waterworks. These men earn their money, and the particular service they render is of value. We do not believe in commencing at the bottom and working up; better will it be to commence at the top and work down. In this matter we feel much as was expressed by Senator Stanford, when the proposition was made to curtail the expenses of the road, and it was suggested that the rates of wages of the men at the shops be reduced. The Senator quietly remarked: "If we have to economize, what is the trouble with cutting down our own salaries. We can stand it; to the working men and their families it will be a hardship."

The duties of the several Trustees are very plainly pointed out in the city charter, and we invite the attention of the Mayor particularly to the powers and obligations that are reposed in him by section five of that instrument. Harm will not come if he will use with discretion and firmness the power of his office. The proceedings of the Board of Trustees of late have created a general impression not at all creditable to the dignity of the body, or to the business capacity and judgment of its members. In a body of deliberation there should be no place for jesting or coarse personalities. The Trustees should have pride enough to so conduct the affairs of their offices as to win the respect of the people; of late they have not done so. There is one matter we feel that attention should again be called to. In connection with the appointment of the city officers last month, a charge was openly made and published which seriously affected the integrity of some gentlemen connected with the city government. The nature of the charge was such that it would seem would call for a very vigorous denial, and for an explanation from those who made it. The Bee intimated its willingness to back what it said by demonstration, but from the silence that followed we are justified in assuming that there was something in it, and that the parties whose names were so freely mentioned felt it was more prudent not to seek justification. Matters of this kind engender, very naturally, a feeling of distrust. If these charges are not true, we cannot understand why the gentlemen who have been named in connection with them do not feel them an attack upon their honor that should be resented.

These charges had reference particularly to the waterworks department—a branch of the government which handles a very considerable amount of public money. It is a matter easy of demonstration that this particular department has been managed in a very loose and unsatisfactory manner. The city pays $200 a month to two men to collect the water rates, outside of what are paid in at the office; and yet, there are instances where bills have been permitted to run upwards of a year without presentation. In other instances bills have been presented for arrearages of long standing, and the parties have produced their receipted bills. This state of affairs would not be tolerated in any business house for a day, and an investigation would be made of the conduct of the employees immediately when attention was called to it. It certainly indicates that the collectors have expended much of the time the city pays for in other pursuits, and that the system of bookkeeping is bad. At all events, it justifies a rigid investigation. When it comes down to business, the law and ordinances contemplate that water rates shall be paid as taxes, at the city office. They provide that the rates shall be paid monthly in advance in all cases where the due exceeds $5, and quarterly in advance where the due is $5 or less per month. It is also provided that published notice shall be given to water takers, that if their dues are not paid within fifteen days the water will be shut off from their premises, and certain other penalties imposed. It is contemplated that these requirements will be strictly enforced, judicious discretion to be exercised in proper cases. It is also provided:

On the last Saturday of each quarter said clerk shall file with the Auditor a sworn statement, showing as follows: the name of each person or firm who is delinquent for the use of water from the city waterworks for the quarter ending on that day; the amount unpaid by said delinquent; the cause (if any has been given) for such non-payment; what action (if any) has been taken to enforce payment; and the total amount of all such delinquencies.

It will not be contended that of late years these regulations have been observed and that their non-observance has not resulted in loss to the city and inconvenience to the people. A little efficient management in this department will result in increasing the water revenues, and at a less expense than we have been paying. The matter is simple enough if the law is only followed. Certain it is, if the city indulges in the luxury of two unnecessary collectors, it should require them to do their work with reasonable efficiency. As it is now, the collections have to be made from the owner of real estate, and not from tenants, and it is not difficult to ascertain the whereabouts of the owner or agent of every piece of property in which city water is consumed. It is significant, however, that with the growth of the city, and the extension of the water mains in the last few years, the revenue does not seem to keep pace. The matter should be looked into.

The system adopted for the collection of water rates is faulty. There is no check on the collectors, and their action rests largely on their integrity. If that quality be wanting, opportunities to keep public money in their own pockets are numerous. To place this matter on a business basis 'should be the aim of our Trustees, and THEMIS suggests the following matters to be embraced in an ordinance, as an appropriate remedy.

1.—Make a plot of each block in the city whereon shall be noted: (a) The lines of pipe supplying the block with water. (b) Place a number to each tap as it is there shown. (c) Give the name of each owner taking water through such tap.

2.—Provide that no water-rate shall be collected without the surrender of the receipt of the City Auditor.

3.—(a) Require all receipts to be made out by the City Auditor. (b) The City Auditor to deliver those receipts to the proper collector, to be delivered on payment of the money. (c) Charge the collector with the receipts, and require him to surrender the money or receipts. (d) Require that each receipt shall contain the number of the tap through which the water is taken, charged to the lot owner.

This, we submit, would enable a seeker for the truth to find any leak in that part of the City Treasury. Now the underground history of those collections is a sealed book.

Horace Greeley's Peumanship.

There are many amusing instances given of mistakes arising from the illegible handwriting of Horace Greeley. The Philadelphia Ledger adds the following to the collection. Here is what Greeley wrote:

DEAR SIR: I am overworked and growing old. I shall be sixty next February 3d. On the whole, it seems I must decline to lecture henceforth, except in this immediate vicinity, if I do at all. I cannot promise to visit Illinois on that errand—certainly not now.

Yours,
M. B. CASTLE, Sandwich, Ills.

HORACE GREELEY.

And here is how the lecture committee read it:

SANDWICH, Ills., May 12th.

Horace Greeley, New York Tribune:

DEAR SIR: Your acceptance to lecture before our association next winter came to hand this morning. Your peumanship not being the plainest, it took some time to translate it, but we succeeded, and would say your time, "third of February," and terms, "sixty dollars," are perfectly satisfactory. As you suggest, we may be able to get you other engagements in this immediate vicinity. If so, we will advise you.

Yours respectfully,

M. B. CASTLE.

THE SHADOW.

On a snow plain, under a snow mountain and covered with snow, stood a little Iceland house, and in it lived Thorwald Reyvick and his wife, with their one little boy, who also was named Thorwald. All three sat round the fire and very close to it; the father was busy carving wood and the mother spinning; for in the long Northern nights some work must go on.

"Come here, Thorwald," said the father, "are you tired of hearing stories?"

"Oh, no, father! I couldn't be, you know; tell me something about Odin and Thor," he answered, as he climbed up his knee, and the father began.

"A long time ago in our land of Iceland a prince was born who was the son of the greatest chieftain in the Island.

"As he grew handsome and bold they said that the Gods of Iceland had given him their good gifts and that all he did must be sure to prosper. But there was an evil spirit who loved to undo all the good that the other had done.

"Loke—that was his name—stood by the prince's cradle when he was a baby; when he began to walk he went with him, and all through life he followed him, unseen by any one.

"When the child got anything he liked or wanted, Loke stole between him and the toy, and a shadow, so faint that the eyes could not see it, fell over it, and all its brightness faded, till it was no longer beautiful to him, however it had seemed to others.

"He had longed all his life to go on a hunt, and when the day came that his father had appointed he thought surely then he was happy. It was so real, just as he had fancied it so often; grander, indeed, with the fleet horses pressing on faster and faster, and the wolves flying before them.

"His own horse was gaining; he had left all the others behind him; the wolf was just before him—over the hill—now down in the valley; oh, joy! he would have him at last—one thrust of the spear, that was all, and the wolf would be dead. But the faint shadow passed between him and the sunlight, and the wolf vanished out of sight and left nothing but a wild, broken country and a panting horse, with a bewildered, disappointed rider, who has lost his way, and as far from the rest of the band.

"He turned and rode slowly over the way by which he came, as the road wound about. Loke moved from side to side, but stood ever between himself and the sunshine, and the long shadow stretched far and wide over everything. The prince was bitterly disappointed, but he did not wonder—he had known it too often before.

"It was always the same. When he came to the crown—and all the people were proud of their young prince, who was both generous and brave—Loke threw his shadow upon their faces, and their smiles were turned to frowns, and their looks of love and trust seemed but deceit.

"The shadow was everywhere. He wedded a bride, young and fair, who loved him truly; yet, strange to say, for once the evil Loke was baffled. Her face was never anything to her husband but beauty and love. Yet she drooped under it, and grew frailer and frailer, until she faded away like the white mist of the morning, and he was left alone.

"Though he stood always by his side, yet for many days the prince did not look up to see the shadows that were falling darkly around him.

"Then there came a time when he was called to war against his people's enemies, and he was almost glad to find something that would draw his mind from his sorrow.

"It was strange, too, but Loke fell behind him in the battle; and it was only when it was over and the vanquished enemies were flying, while his people crowded around with shouts of joy, that the shadow passed over them, and to the prince their word and praises seemed hollow and false."

"But, father, it wasn't true," said Thorwald.

"Partly true," answered the father, "like some other old stories. At least, Loke is living now under another name."

"Why, father, have you ever seen him?"
 "I have often seen what the prince saw—his shadow. In the heathen days they called him Loke; now he is Discontent."

The Autocrat of the Telephone.

Proprietor (at telephone)—Hello, Central! What seems to be the matter? I have been here for the last half hour trying to get you. Give me one-naught-five. [Waits ten minutes longer and no answer.] Dear, dear, this telephone puts me all out of patience. Here, Thomas, call up one-naught-five and wait till you get it.

Office Boy (giving handle a vigorous whirl—Hullo—hullo! Say, Central, w'at's achin' you! Why don't you get us one-naught-five, hay! Come, now, get on a rush there and shake 'em up or we'll drop onto you from de roof and paralyze you!

Central (obsequiously)—Yes, sir; I'll connect you right away; excuse delay, please.—Time.

WHAT'S THE USE?

What's the use o' waitin' 'till a feller's dead 'nd gone before his better qualities you mention?
 Of lettin' him go all through life without a cheerin' word, 'nd showin' his remains remarked attention?
 Of passin' by a dozen men, hard-workin', sober, poor, 'nd like as not discouraged half tu death,
 Tu help a drunken loafer, constitutionally tired, extremely weak in principle 'nd mighty strong in breath?

What's the use o' practicin' economy at hum 'nd settin' up the drinks down town with all the boys?
 Of cuttin' down your grocer's bill 'nd fillin' up the slate of some Teutonic dealer in amber colored joys?

What's the use o' thinkin' that folks won't size y' up fer what y' really are, no matter what y' claim?
 Or that you've got a cunning' trick that other fellows hain't, and so are good deal sharper in life's game?

What's the use o' sayin' that the world owes y' a livin' 'nd settin' down 'nd waitin' fer yer pay?
 Or calculatin' Providence 'll rain down bread 'nd butter, 'nd all you'll have tu do'll be tu grab 'nd eat away?

What's the use o' talkin' religion tu a mau who's had a deacon sock it tu him in a trade?
 Or thinkin' that a minister can preach as well when he's livin' on faith dumptin' 'nd missionary aid?

'Nd what's the use o' thinkin' that when we come tu die, somehow, by hook or crook, we'll enter heaven,
 When all through life the most of us have traveled t' other way—I ruther guess 'bout six days outen seven?

—WILLIAM EDWARD PENNEY.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

The Hermann Trans-Atlantique Vaudeville combination will give two unique entertainments, commencing Monday evening, at the Metropolitan. The company has a wide reputation for the excellence of the artists engaged. We look for crowded houses.

Mrs. John E. Owens is busily engaged writing the biography of her late husband. The work, which is expected to be completed the latter part of August, will contain many reminiscences of a humorous nature, and some of the remarkably funny stories told by the comedian.

There are always a number of enterprising curbstone contractors hanging around the theater who are willing to kill a play for so much down and so much when the corpse is buried. Their method should be known as dramacide. They can put their hand in half an hour on half a score of beautiful assassins who will stab any rôle in the back for $50, or smother a new comedy with insipidity and skirts in less time.

The only soprano in the world who makes higher tones than Patti is Miss Sybil Sanderson, daughter of Judge Sanderson, of San Francisco. She is a tall, willowy girl, with throat like a white pillar, gold blond hair and black eyes, with great depths of diablerie in them. She dresses beautifully, is extremely bright and intelligent, and, as her father is a wealthy man, was quite a belle when the unusual capabilities of her voice first became apparent, and she went to Europe for study. She was twenty-one then; she is now about twenty-four. Masenet, the composer, was one of the first to testify to her unquestioned gifts. He has just completed an opera for her, in which occurs the musical marvel of a run to second upper A! We shall no doubt be called upon to pay our tribute to the neat little gymnastic feat at some future day.—Pittsburg Press.

"I remember," said my bookish friend with a laugh, "a funny thing which Sarah Bernhardt did in our store when she was last here. She dropped in one morning, and, of course, all were exceedingly anxious to wait upon her. Finally, it resolved itself as my duty, and I sold her quite a bill of books. I showed the great actress every attention, and she seemed pleased. Just as she was about going out she reached for my pencil and asked me something in French which I did not understand. Seeing that I failed to catch her meaning she looked all around on the counters, but apparently did not see what she wanted. Then, as quick as a flash, before I could comprehend her aim, she took up a volume of one of the very best sets of Scott in the store, bound in tree calf, opened it on the pages, wrote something on it, calmly tore out the leaf, handed it to me, smiled and went out. On looking at the leaf, I saw that she had written a pass for two to her performance that evening! But she did it at the cost of ruining one of our best sets of books in the store."—Philadelphia Press.

Book Chat.

Austin Dobson, the poet, is fifty. He entered the English civil service at sixteen, and was intended for an engineer. He is not a machine poet in any sense.

John Whitcomb Riley's poems bring him from $25 to $50 each. In the early days of his verse-making he was glad to get a tenth of these sums for his poems.

Prot. George Ebers, the Oriental scholar, has blue eyes and blond hair and beard, and looks decidedly Teutonic. He is a paralytic, but does a great deal of work.

Walt Whitman, the good gray poet, is reported to be breaking down again. Some day the grim visitor will step in and tell the poet to "loafe and invite his soul."

Alfred Tennyson, when a young poet, called on bluff, gruff Thomas Carlyle, and together they sat near the fire-place for hours, neither speaking; finally Carlyle accompanied Tennyson to the door, and, shaking his hand warmly, bade the young man come again, for he (Carlyle) had enjoyed such a pleasant time.

One of the handsomest literary men in Gotham is Edgar Fawcett, the novelist. He is a very hard worker and generally gets $3,000 for the serial publications of his novels. He is a scholarly man, and is quick at seeing the shams of social life, and delights to wield his keen lance against them. He is a bachelor and lives at the Union Club.

It is stated on authority that Stepniak is not the real name of the author we know by that signature; it is a nom de plume adapted to conceal his identity from the Russia police, who are on his track endeavoring to connect him with Nihilist outrages, with which he is a known sympathizer; Stepniak lives in London, and one of the two people who know who he is is William Westall, the novelist, who has been his collaborator.

William Dean Howells lives in a delightful apartment house on Commonwealth Avenue, Boston. Mr. Howells is devoted to out-of-door rambles amid the pleasant suburbs, and to long walks through the crooked streets of the old part of the city. Mrs. Howells has great talent for painting, some of her pictures and drawings being exceedingly artistic in design, and displaying rare taste in execution. Since the death of their eldest daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Howells live quite a retired life. A charming coterie, however, of personal and literary friends, have made Boston attractive and pleasant this winter for the novelist and his family.

From Congressman J. J. DeHaven, we received a copy of the Official Congressional Directory, as corrected January 25, 1890, prepared by W. H. Michael. It contains a brief biographical sketch of each member of Congress, both houses; a list of the members of the press, who are entitled to admission in the press galleries. It is also a directory of all the reporters and attaches of both branches of the National Legislature. It contains a list of committees and membership thereof in both houses. There is a brief history of Department duties given. The full list of Envoy and Consular appointments appears. In fact the book is exceedingly valuable for reference. A summary of all the public institutions in and about Washington is given.

Professional Chat.

Dr. Rosa Kerschbaumer, an Austrian oculist, is the first woman licensed to practice medicine in that country. She has chosen a good field to make people see her merit.

A Justice of the Peace who had just married a couple turned to a man and said: "I don't believe the woman will love, serve and obey him." "I don't know," some one replied, "she seems to be a very amiable woman." "I don't think she is," the Justice replied. "Why so?" "Because she used to be my wife."

When the phonograph was a newer invention than it is at the present time, Edison put one of the machines in a clock and placed it in a guest chamber. Being a great lover of a practical joke, he also placed a friend in the guest chamber one night. Just as his friend was disrobing, he heard a voice exclaim: "Eleven o'clock; one hour more!" It is needless to say that slumber did not descend upon the eyelids of the visitor during that hour. At midnight the voice exclaimed: "Twelve o'clock; prepare to die!" This was too much for the visitor, and he sprang from his bed and rushed to the library, where Edison and his friends were waiting patiently, expecting his appearance. The invention was soon explained and quiet restored.

When Mr. Eugene Field, of the Chicago News, is seated for the day's toil he lights a cigar and muses. He demands of himself an answer to these queries: "How do I feel? Am I blue, am I gay, sad, sentimental, or humorous? Shall I do something in poetry, or confine my efforts to prose?" Upon his decision depends the stationery he selects. If his mood is gloomy he traces spidery characters, in midnight ink, on paper with a mourning border. Blue is always a warning to the editor-in-chief that he may glance up some moment and find Mr. Field absent. It is used as a delicate hint that the weather is delightful, the skies unclouded, the air balmy, and that "Gene" would prefer the outside to the inside of the office. Blue ink, well laid on with a firm hand, also indicates that he is going to the theater, and that nothing shall stop him.

"There is one thing I can say about Mr. Blaine," remarked Governor Gear; "he has the most phenomenal memory I have ever known. A few days ago I was calling on the Secretary, when he asked me to sit down. 'Gear,' said he, 'you are the very man I wanted to see. For a long time I have been wanting to ask you about some families which left my old county in Pennsylvania thirty years ago and settled in the part of Iowa which you now represent in Congress. How are the Smithson's getting along? and the Browns?' And Mr. Blaine went on," added Governor Gear, "to make inquiries about no fewer than twenty-five families, a member of which he had not seen for more than a quarter of a century. He not only remembered the names, but characteristics and family histories; and when my own memory was at fault, though I have known nearly every family he made inquiry about, he described the heads to me with such particularity that I could not fail to recall them had I ever known them. A very remarkable thing was that he could remember the names of nearly all the girls whom these men had married, and also the names of their children; and among the children whom he remembered are many of the best men in my State."

When Charles Pfaff was buried in a quiet way a short time ago, his name had no special significance to the younger circles of New Yorkers. But thirty years ago his Broadway restaurant was a famous resort for men of letters, artists, and the race known as "Bohemian." His long table was plain deal, the floor had no carpet except sawdust, pancakes were the most noted article of diet, and drink, talk, and smoke made up for the rest. There Ada Clare, queen of the Bohemians, swung her sceptre, and Harry Clapp, king of the tribe, shared her throne. Both died in obscurity; but this was by no means the case with all the frequenters of the Pfaff Bohemia. Stedman, the poet and broker, William Winter the dramatic critic, Walt Whitman, T. B. Aldrich, Augustin Daly, Olive Logan, Stephen Fiske, and the venerable actor Gayler, who are among the survivors, and Fitz James O'Brien, Frank Bellew, and a host of others who have joined the silent majority, made a success of life, and are by no means the brilliant failures that ignorant commentators in city life would have the public suppose. The Bohemians of New York may like to have a good time—dulce est desipere in loco, Horace says, and he knew all about it—but most of them live as comfortably, and die as well fixed, as the average citizen.

Judge Lubke, of St. Louis, tells the Globe Democrat, some people have very strange conceptions of the functions of a judge and jury. I am reminded of a case tried some years ago in the Circuit Court here in which a prominent druggist was a defendant. The action was for damages brought by the parents of a child whose death, it was claimed, resulted from an erroneous prescription put up by the druggist's clerk. The case was bitterly contested and the jury considered it in their room for three days. It was unnecessary for the defendant to remain in Court after the trial was finished and the jury took the case. The witnesses, attorneys and plaintiffs left, but the defendant remained in Court, constantly watching the door of the jury-room and apparently taking no interest in the other cases which the Court was trying while waiting for the return of the jury in the druggist's case. On the third day of his vigil the defendant grew desperate. Late in the evening of that day he came to me in my room, where I was waiting after the day's docket had been cleared off, and said: "Say, Mister, I think that jury can reach a verdict if they only understood the case; don't you think so?" I said: "Yes; I expect they will agree; that's why I am keeping them together so long." Then, with great earnestness and evident sincerity, he remarked: "Suppose you let me go in the room with the jury and explain the case to them; they won't be long agreeing then." Of course I denied the request, to his great disappointment. The jury failed to agree, and were discharged the next day.

NOTES.

An ancient book on the subject of etiquette issued in London during the reign of Charles II, earnestly recommends to those having aspirations toward social distinction, not to go to sleep while a person is addressing them.

We note with pleasure the event that the Sutter County Farmer has entered on its tenth volume. The Farmer is one of the ablest of our interior papers. Its sledge-hammer strokes have accomplished good, and harm will not come from their continuance.

In Siberia the mosquitos are so large and vicious that their bills pierce the thickest clothing. Overcoats and heavy gloves afford no protection against these troublesome insects. We have heard of some very large mosquitos in the Louisiana and Florida swamps, but these Siberian monsters have the call.

Murder seems to be the least perils of all the felonious pastimes known to this country. Out of 14,770 murderers who took human life in the six years from 1884 to 1889, only 558 paid the penalty of their crimes by yielding their own lives to the law. Electricity cannot make a showing more shocking than this.

In taking the census, none of the details of manufacturers will be made public, nor communicated to any but authorized employees of the census office. The returns of manufacturing establishments will be used only for the purposes of tabulation, and no publication will be made in the census reports that will disclose the operations of individual establishments. This is assured to all.

The appointment of M. R. Beard, as Secretary to W. A. Anderson, Supervisor of Censuses, Second District of California, has been confirmed by the Interior Department, and he has entered upon the discharge of his duties. Next week the commissions, instructions and blanks will be issued to the enumerators of this district. Nothing will be omitted in securing a correct census, and the necessary statistics sought by the department.

Everybody is now calling for auburn hair. It is the color above all others in favor in the world of fashion. The shade is very becoming, especially to women with pretty shades of complexion, olive or fair, as the case may be. The auburn has the warm, bright glow of the sun, without the unbecoming tendency of golden hair to exaggerate features and make them look so much larger. Auburn hair is now in greater demand than blonde hair ever was, and is gaining in favor daily.

The insanity dodge and the alibi are likely to lose the high place they now hold in the criminal's esteem. An Ohio cashier escaped punishment by claiming that a woman hypnotized him and thus forced him to commit the crime of forgery. The woman herself has just been convicted of forgery. Hypnotism will probably be a popular plea in the courts from this time on, but the safest application of the theory will be to have the witnesses for the prosecution so thoroughly hypnotized that they will not testify against the hypnotic on trial.

The people should render every possible assistance to the census enumerators in order to secure accurate statistics of our population, wealth and industries. It will be remembered, that in cities of over ten thousand population, the enumerators must complete their work in two weeks. It should be the pride as well as the duty of citizens to render all the facilities possible in the interest of correctness. What may seem to be impertinent questions are necessary to an accurate system of statistics for the national welfare. We call on all the people to be ready to give full, prompt and accurate returns when the enumerator appears on the 2d day of June, 1890.

It is not at all unlikely that there may be some startling developments in municipal affairs within the next few months. Nobody connected with the city offices seems to know anything about the financial condition of the city, or how to devise ways and means to meet the existing obligations, not to say anything of those to come. The waterworks system, or rather lack of system, gives rise to adverse comment. The apparently helpless condition of the city to cope with the holders of the bonded debt and their allies, is another source of discussion among the taxpayers. The authorities are in the dark regarding street improvements. Even portions of the police department have the decided appearance of acting under orders from parties not connected with the police department, at least in an official capacity; and officers are found to obey these rather than the orders of the chief.

Woodland continues to pick up. The Business Men's Association there celebrated their first anniversary Tuesday evening at the Opera House. The town has the advantage of wealth and enterprise, and when improvement is made there, it is of a substantial character.

Major W. A. Anderson, Supervisor of Censuses, this morning received a telegram from the Superintendent of Census, Robt. P. Porter, adopting the list of enumerators mentioned in another column. It was thought that there would be a special enumerator for the Chinese population, but it seems that this measure has not materialized. The duty of enumerating the Chinese population will devolve upon the regular enumerators.

In certain quarters there is one of those periodical spasms of purity and morality, and the movers are so deeply engrossed in these trifling affairs that they cannot see the glaring crimes that are striking at the very foundation of our body politic. These would-be reformers can see terrors in a few unfortunate creatures who sell 10-cent lottery tickets or deal cards for a faro bank, but cannot or will not see the greater evils. These reform measures are about as consistent as inconsistency can be.

Census enumerators in the country are required to report vineyards, in order that the Department of Viticulture may obtain statistics. Some people have a disposition to avoid giving a correct report of these matters, fearing the facts obtained may be used against them by assessors. In the taking of the census there is nothing to fear from this score, as the reports go directly to the census office, and is seen by no outside party, and appears only in figures, no names being used in the final report. All the details of the census are secret and no one need have any apprehension, or any desire to evade assessors. A correct line of statistics is the object desired, and this is solely a national affair.

Don Juan's graphic description of his advent into the Turkish harem under the disguise of a girl, has been equalled, according to a St. Petersburg dispatch yesterday. There is a monastery there where no female foot is ever allowed to pass the threshold. A young girl who felt like abandoning the world, conceived the idea of securing admission to the monastery to join the holy monks who have the exclusive domain. The young novice met with their favor and was admitted, where she discharged the duties of her station. Just about the time she was to take the final vows, her sex was accidentally revealed to the leading monks, and the favorite little novice was expelled in disgrace for violating the sanctity of the monastery.

Death this week has made sad inroads among men of distinction on this coast. Wm. F. White, who ran for Governor on the Workingmen's ticket in 1879, and who afterward filled important State offices, died at Los Angeles on the 13th. He was the father of Lieutenant-Governor Stephen M. White. William C. Norton died at Auburn on the 11th. He represented Placer county in the Senate in 1877-8, and in the Assembly in 1873-4. He was in his time a lawyer and orator of note. George M. Sabin, Federal Judge of Nevada, also died at San Francisco. He was a jurist of recognized ability, and had made an enviable record as a Union soldier. Josiah Stanford, the eldest brother of the Senator, died at Oakland on Wednesday. He arrived in this State in 1849, and in early days was connected with his brother in business in this city. Though never in public life, he was prominent in business circles.

One of the reminiscences which the Queen loves to recall is of the time when Louis Napoleon was her guest aboard the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. The French monarch praised the sumptuous furnishings of the vessel, and confessed that he had never felt able to afford so great a luxury. "But for you, madame," said he, gallantly, "you are the queen of the seas." This compliment tickled the Queen mightily. The title was a new one, and it hit her fancy. Victoria is a great stickler at formality; she will not tolerate anything like a breach of custom. The custom is, that whenever the Queen visits a town she shall, before leaving that town, knight the Mayor thereof. The form of dubbing a knight is exceedingly simple. The candidate kneels before Her Majesty; she asks his name; he gives it simply, "Andrew Jones," or whatever it may be; the Queen touches him with a sword, and says: "Rise, Sir Andrew Jones." On one occasion the Queen was about to knight the Mayor of one of the smaller cities she had been visiting. The poor fellow was scared almost out of his wits. He was so nervous that when the Queen asked his name, he answered: "Mr. Thomas Hopkins." Whereupon Her Majesty, incensed at this breach of custom, and making no allowance for the poor man's trepidation, exclaimed: "Rise, Mr. Thomas Hopkins," and, throwing the sword aside, sailed indignantly out of the room.

New York is blessed with a Ladies' Health Protective Association that goes about doing good as a sort of "smelling committee." They have abolished many nuisances such as slaughter-houses, soap-boiling establishments and kindred ill-smelling establishments, and now are bent upon having clean streets. What these ladies do not know about the streets of European cities as well as their own is not worth knowing, and they have all the statistics at their fingers' ends. A short time since they called a mass meeting at Chickering Hall. Only men made speeches, and as these chosen orators knew little about the subject, the ladies enjoyed a symposium of the imagination, and were vastly amused. Rev. Dr. Eaton, the leading Universalist clergyman, fired the first gun, and its prodigious echo took away their breath. He said that 300,000 people were employed to clean the streets of Paris, and if he had said 30,000 he would have been extravagant. Lawyer Clark Bell gave the next broadside, saying that 100,000,000 tons of street refuse were dumped into our harbor every year, whereas any lady in the association could have told him that 1,000,000 tons is the extreme limit. Then ex-Postmaster General James, who is a devout Baptist in his native Utica and a spruce Episcopalian in New York, capped the climax by informing the audience that it is the Bible which says that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness!" The ladies have about concluded that unless they can write the speeches for their orators, they will do the speaking themselves at the next public meeting.

The Weather.

The rainfall during the past week, according to the Signal Service reports, was .86 of an inch, making for this season, 33.80, as against a little over 19 inches last season. The highest and lowest temperature during the past week was 90° and 48°, while for the same time last year it was 82° and 47°, with .07 of an inch of rain.

Fourth of July.

Last week we called attention to the approach of the great national holiday. Nothing has yet been done towards perfecting some plan for an appropriate celebration. We might take a lesson from several of the small towns which have already taken the necessary steps towards a celebration. When we take up this question plenty of time in advance, there is always a first class observance of our Natal Day. It is only when we delay until it is too late to formulate proper plans and schemes, that our celebrations are failures. It is time somebody should call a meeting of citizens. The Mayor heretofore has taken upon himself that duty. Let the citizens be up and doing before it is too late.

Railroad Human Nature.

Now and then one finds a person who understands railroad human nature, as exhibited by the gatemen in the depots. Their orders are to pass no one in without a ticket, and it is the easiest thing in the world for them to waive back old age, youth, beauty, and anybody else who wants to pass in to meet a friend expected on that train. One of the surliest officials I ever saw has a gate in the L. & N. depot in Cincinnati, and I have seen him turn stiffly away from desperate men, weeping women, and howling children. To every protestation he has but one answer:

"Can't pass you 'thout a ticket."

The other day while I was watching him, a little blue-eyed woman came gliding into the throng waiting at the gates. Of the two tenders she selected this one to operate on, although anyone could have seen that the other one had the biggest heart. After several people had been turned away, she slid forward in a graceful way and inquired: "Beg pardon, sir, but am I speaking to the president of the road?"

"N—o, ma'am," he stammered, thrown on his beams end by the query.

"Ah! you look so much like him. Are you the superintendent?"

"No, ma'am—not exactly."

"Then you must be the manager?"

"Hardly, ma'am."

"Dear me, but how could the people be so mistaken," she went on. "Half a dozen of them said you were one of the high officials, and I am so disappointed to find you are not. Perhaps, though, you have the general manager's power when he is not here?"

"What is it, ma'am?"

"My sister will be on the 6:30 o'clock, and I so want to go inside the gates and help her with the children. As you must have the authority of the manager in his absence, I make bold to—"

"Certainly, ma'am; walk right in," he interrupted.

"You are so kind."

"Don't mention it."

"But all leading railroad men are ever courteous," she said, as a parting bit of taffy, and then she made a bee line down the depot.—N. Y. Sun.

FLASHES.

It is funny to observe what sacrifices some people make to appear what they are not.

Handcuffs are called bracelets because they are used for "arrest," says the Irishman.

This is a child's description of a cold in the head: "Bofe of my eyes is a leakin', and one of my noses don't go."

There is a new play entitled The Blue Officer. He must have been one of the extra ten policemen of this city.

A clever woman is one who acts like hot water on tea—she brings the sweetness and strength out of everybody else.

We spoil everything by hurry. We are wearing ourselves out by hurry and rush. So eager to live we forget to live.

Matching the Complexion.

For years it was thought that yellow of any shade was peculiarly the color for brunettes, and that blondes should never wear it. This has now been shown to be a great mistake.

A woman of the dearest white skin, with light blue eyes and pale blonde hair, becomes a poem when she dons a yellow gown. A yellow frock and a yellow fan have been known to transform a rather plain blonde into a vision of almost perfect loveliness. How could it fail to be so! All the lines of blonde beauty are fair and sunny. Why, then, should it not follow that they are set off to the best advantage and brought into most admirable prominence by similar tints? To my mind, like has as much attraction for like in the law of beauty as in that of love, for I am not one of those who believe in the doctrine that people are attracted by their opposites.

But it must not be supposed that precisely the same shade of yellow will suit every blonde. There are many types of blonde beauty—as many as there are shades of scarlet—each wholly different and distinct from all the others. In dressing a blonde in yellow, the point is to frame her beauty in that shade which shall harmonize perfectly with it.

It used to be thought that light blue was the color par excellence for blondes. Now, modistes, who are artists in color as well, are awakening to the fact that blue is chilling to blonde beauty, which needs the tints of the sun, and not those of the sky, to give it warmth. It is the brunette, with her own rich warmth of color, who may becomingly wear that shade of blue so long considered sacred to babies.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The word "guinea" owes its origin to a peculiar circumstance. In the year 1666, Sir H. Holmes, a highly distinguished admiral, having contributed to the total discomfiture of the Dutch, under De Ruyter, was sent with a strong division of the victorious fleet to the coast of Holland, where he had the good fortune to capture or destroy, in Schelling Roads, 160 rich merchant ships, valued at about $5,000,000, part of which being freighted with bullion and gold dust from Cape Coast Castle, an African settlement belonging to the enemy. This rich prize was soon after coined into guineas—twenty-one shilling pieces—and acquired the name of Guinea, with reference to the country from which it was derived.

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE

SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY.....MAY 18, 1890.

Sacramento vs. San Francisco.

Game called at 2 P. M.

ADMISSION.....FIFTY CENTS

LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 1:15 and 1:45 P. M. Stop at 3d 10th, and 18th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts. Reserved seats at Golden Eagle cigar store.

BUFFALO BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates. Give it a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. my17

Census Enumerators.

The following is a list of the Census Enumerators appointed by W. A. Anderson, Supervisor of Census for the Second District of California, and the rates fixed for compensation. There are 117 enumerator districts, beginning with No. 1 in Oakland, and ending with No. 117 in Tuolumne. In addition to this there are quite a number of special enumerators yet to be appointed.

ALAMEDA COUNTY.—Geo. A. Parker, Chas. F. Cole, Dwight A. Henderson, William H. King, Wash. I. Robinson, B. S. Marston, Wm. C. Whitman, Walter A. Cooper, Elias H. Broadwell, W. F. Delaney, Charles E. Davis, Wm. H. Ayers, Charles B. Furness, Stephen H. Merrett, Charles W. O'Connor, Edward Lefort, Benj. Haynes, W. H. H. Hamilton, David F. Macy, Chas. H. Spear, Wilbur H. Cox, Jos. D. Armstrong, Wendall P. Crane, Felix D. Granger, Jr., Joseph E. Warmley, Arthur W. Feidler, Jos. B. May, Philip H. Blake, Morgan S. Taylor, Jos. W. A. Hand, Thos. L. Robinson.

ALPINE COUNTY.—Cyrus Coleman.

AMADOR COUNTY.—James A. Greenwood, George H. Dunlap, Benjamin Ross, Chas. O. Mitchell, Wm. S. Jennings, Miss Ella Duncan.

CALAVERAS COUNTY.—Henry J. Peachy, Wm. Casey, Jr., Alex. Brown, Thos. J. Burroughs, Thos. W. Taylor.

CONTRA COSTA COUNTY.—Chas. C. Swain, Albert B. Hoag, Peter G. Loucks, Walter Nellis, John E. W. Carey.

EL DORADO COUNTY.—Collen G. Spencer, Alex. H. McAfee, Martin J. Alhoff, John McGraw, Horace F. Tracy, Hosea B. Turman, Aug. A. Gignac, Sam'l D. Salisbury.

NEVADA COUNTY.—Sherman W. Marsh, Julian Wright, Emil F. Rosenthal, Edmund A. Roberts, John F. Shaw, Jas. B. Lancaster, Angus R. Morrison, Wm. F. King, Jas. A. Stidger, Chas. Morrill, Chas. H. Barton.

PLACER COUNTY.—Henry P. Markert, Henry J. Gray, Warren H. Sawyer, Wm. J. Burns, Preston W. Smith, Clarence H. Cromwell, Volney W. Still.

SACRAMENTO COUNTY.—N. S. Bennett, Jas. T. McNiff, Edward F. Amsden, John J. Trarbach, Jas. T. Barron, Wm. S. Wilkinson, Geo. A. Miller, John J. Cahill, Louis G. Nixon, Richard M. Clarks, Richard Dale, John H. Coyle, Went. T. Crowell, Henry C. Brown, Phil. J. Glass, Alfred Briggs, Charles W. Anderson, George B. Ross, Charles C. Clements, Lucius R. Beckley, Jas. Graham, Alonzo S. Greenlaw, Levi H. Anderson, Herbert E. Crew, John M. Harlow.

SAN JOAQUIN COUNTY.—Sawyer Reid, Edward B. McEneny, Martin M. Nichols, Frank F. Butler, Samuel Leffler, John H. Webster, Harry G. Balkwell, Wm. H. Johnson, Augustus A. Cudner, Jas. D. Huffman, Miss Burdeenia A. Whitney, J. P. Atwood, Edward P. Foltz.

TUOLUMNE COUNTY.—William R. Schaw, Chas. R. Parsous, Ed. F. Doyle, George F. Culbertson, Thos. P. Woodruff.

COMPENSATION.

The following rates have been fixed for compensation of enumerators for the Second Supervisor District of California:

Districts 1 to 31, inclusive—2 cents per capita, 15 cents per farm, 20 cents per establishment of productive industry.

District 32—$5 per diem.

Districts 38 to 48, inclusive—3 cents per capita, 20 cents per farm, 30 cents per establishment of productive industry.

District 49—$5 per diem.

Districts 50 to 53, inclusive—3 cents per capita, 20 cents per farm, 30 cents per establishment of productive industry.

District 54—2 cents per capita, 15 cents per farm, 20 cents per establishment of productive industry.

Districts 55 to 72, inclusive—3 cents per capita, 20 cents per farm, 30 cents per establishment of productive industry.

District 73—$5 per diem.

District 74—3 cents per capita, 20 cents per farm, 30 cents per establishment of productive industry.

Districts 75 to 89, inclusive—2 cents per capita, 15 cents per farm, 20 cents per establishment of productive industry.

Districts 90 to 99, inclusive—3 cents per capita, 20 cents per farm, 39 cents per establishment of productive industry.

Districts 100 to 105, inclusive—2 cents per capita, 15 cents per farm, 20 cents per establishment of productive industry.

Districts 106 to 112, inclusive—3 cents per capita, 20 cents per farm, 30 cents per establishment of productive industry.

District 113—2 cents per capita, 15 cents per farm, 20 cents per establishment of productive industry.

Districts 114 to 117, inclusive—$5 per diem.

It is probable that in districts 32, 64 and 73, the compensation will be $6 per day, and in districts 49, 63 and 111, $5 per day, as Major Anderson, the Supervisor of Census for this district, has asked for these rates.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store. *

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

The popular market men, Garzoli & Genis, at 712 K street, are daily receiving choice strawberries, new potatoes, and in fact everything in the market line. Give them a call. 712 K street. Telephone No. 188. *

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers. *

Of extra value—men's open-front linen bosom (fine-pleats) dress shirts, $1.00; men's dress shirts, open front and back, Marseilles bosoms, $1.50; men's dress overshirts in flannel and silk, 50 cents to $3.90. Red House. *

Our Strides in Millinery.

Extra exertions, extra help and an extra stock of the very latest in flowers, long French sprays, wreaths, buds, etc.; also, Leghorn hats, chip hats in bleach and white, and dress hats of an endless variety of styles, all new and fresh; no old shop-worn goods in the department. Boys' and girls' sailor hats by the case, price ranging from 15 cents to $1.35. Ladies do an injustice to themselves if they do not buy their goods of us, when the profits are equalized in their different departments, at Red House. *

FANCY GOODS

You will find a nice assortment of everything pertaining to this line right here.

New Things Constantly Arriving

Lace Drapery Nets and Flouncings, in Chantilly Lace, at $1, $1.25, $1.90, $2, $2.25, $2.85, and $3.50.

Ladies' plain white Hem-stitched Flouncing, extra fine quality, at 50c.

White Hem-stitched and Embroidered Flouncing, from 75c upwards.

A goodly assortment of Ladies' Dress Buckles, large and small, comprising Pearl, Oxidized, Steel, Jet, Black Crochet, etc.

W. I. Orth,
630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

The Nonpareil

DRY GOODS HOUSE

Cor. 5th and J Streets,

WILL PUT ON SALE

Monday Morning, at 9 o'clock

TO BE CONTINUED UNTIL SOLD,

400 Pieces of 40-inch All-Wool Dress Goods, Plain as well as Fancies For 50 Cts. a Yard.

HOWE'SHigh School and Normal Institute

SIXTH STREET, BET. J AND K,
SACRAMENTO.

Its course of instruction is thorough, and its methods of teaching systematic and ORIGINAL. Those who desire a THOROUGH education, and especially those who expect to make teaching a profession, are cordially invited to examine for themselves its methods of instruction. Its doors are always open; there are no vacations.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Grand Vin de France
Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL

HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND

HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND

SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO

OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento.

Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.

JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON,
Attorneys for Administrator my10-5t

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF EDWARD KRAUS, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Executor of the estate of Edward Kraus, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Wm. E. Gerber, Executor of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento City, Cal.

Dated, April 15, 1890. WM. E. GERBER, Executor.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attorneys for Executor. Apr 19-5t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

In the matter of A. E. Votaw, an insolvent debtor. A. E. Votaw having filed in this Court her petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, by which appears that she is an insolvent debtor, the said A. E. Votaw is hereby declared to be insolvent.

The Sheriff of the County of Sacramento is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all her deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of her estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to her or to any person, firm or corporation or association, for her use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Honorable Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, in open Court, at the Court-room of said Court, on the sixth day of June, 1890, at 1:30 o'clock P. M. of that day, to prove their debts, choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered that the order be published in the THEMIS, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Sacramento, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of the creditors.

And it is further ordered that in the meantime all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed.

Dated, April 21st, 1890. JOHN W. ARMSTRONG,
Judge of the Superior Court.

WILLIAM A. GETT, JR.,
Attorney for Petitioner. apr26-5t

R. DAVIS,
NOTARY PUBLIC,
Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Uncle Jerry at the White House.

The most striking figure in the blue room at the President's reception to the public on Tuesday evening was "Uncle Jerry" Rusk, the Secretary of Agriculture. Very tall and high-shouldered, he loomed up above all the men in the room. His long, white beard, and fair, ruddy complexion, gave him distinction, and, after Mr. Blaine, he attracts more attention than any other man in the Cabinet. "Uncle Jerry" is not enamored of formal administration ceremonies, and his friends get much amusement out of his lack of enjoyment of state occasions. He confesses privately that he "fidgets" under their restraints.

"Now, don't you go to giving me away," he said that evening, in the blue room, "but I can tell you it's a great bore for me to be a dignified Cabinet officer." Then adjusting his glasses, he turned to study the passing line of people who were being shaken through pretty rapidly by the President.

"You see," he added, "this is what I like—a public reception. It's fine. Just look at them. There's a dandy," nodding toward an elderly but spruce man with a woman on his arm, who was smiling and bowing to Mrs. Harrison and her assistants.

"Which one is the dandy?" was asked by an amused listener.

"Oh, both; he is a dandy and so is she. They are having a good time in the White House. There, just see the girls with their hats covered with posies, sweet as the flowers themselves. Why, it's one of the prettiest sights to see the people here. Now, you just hold on with your talk awhile, for for I don't want to lose a bit of a show like this."

"You are right, General Rusk," said a lady near him; "but it's a pity the show is not more frequent. Then, with a little dash of patriotic enthusiasm, she added: "If the time ever comes when we cannot have public receptions in the White House, I think I shall want to live under some other flag!"

"Well, I don't think anything about it; I just wouldn't, that's all. Why, when I was Governor of Wisconsin, do you suppose I had any of your invited parties? Not much. I just sent out word for the people to come—come one, come all—you're all welcome; and they did; and they enjoyed it. So did I."—New York Tribune.

The Freedom of Women.

An English woman of some fame wrote recently in response to an invitation to speak in public on the freedom of women:

"I wish with all my heart this question of woman's rights were settled. I have been tired of it for a very long time; but I am something more than tired of the smoking, slanging, utterly unwomanly specimens of our sex one meets too often nowadays. It was only the other day that I heard from the lips of a fair young girl the astounding statement, made seriously, too, that 'the home was now an exploded notion.' I cannot see what is the use now of simply preaching for or against the habit of woman smoking. I was at a pretty little public function the other other day, and after luncheon I saw at least half a dozen girls smoking. Among them was a distinguished foreigner, but she, of course, simply followed the custom of her country, so she may pass; but to see nice-looking young English girls puffing away beside her was to me shocking in the extreme."

Women, Cows and Mischief.

St. Cuthbert would have no female creature about his place at Landisfarne, not suffering even a cow, saying: "Where there is a cow there must be a woman, and where there is a woman there must be mischief." In the cathedral at Durham, dedicated to him, a black cross in the pavement marked the spot beyond which no woman was allowed to pass. In 1333 Edward III and his Queen went to the priory at Durham and lodged together. In the middle of the night a monk broke into their room and rudely awakened the Royal pair, saying to the Queen that St. Cuthbert loved not the sex, and that she must up and go. The Queen tumbled out of bed and spent the rest of the night in the church, praying for pardon to the Patron Saint, whom she had offended. In 1417 two servant girls dressed themselves as men and "impiously approached the Saint's shrine," only to be severely handled by the authorities.

It is the fashion among many young men of the day to speak of belonging to this or that "gang." The slang is supposed to be of modern origin, but such is not the case. About the year 1770 there existed in England a club called by its members "The Gang," or "Harry-the Fifty Club," which was designed to exemplify in a more or less metaphorical manner the habits attributed to the hero of Agincourt. Of this fraternity the then heir of British royalty—Frederick, Prince of Wales—was a member. In fact, he was its president. An example of the badge supposed to have belonged to this club represents the exploits of the tavern on the one side and those of the highway on the other, the latter containing, moreover, a view of a distant town, with stocks and a gibbet with the motto "Jack Gang Warily." It is not thought, however, that the club was any too wary in sensual enjoyments. A somewhat similar society was that known as the "Monks of St. Francis." The members belonged to the nobility, though a few of them were literary men. One of the leading spirits was Sir William Stanhope, M. B., a younger brother of the celebrated Philip, earl of Chesterfield. He died May 7, 1772. The motto of this society was "Do Whatever You Please," and it is said they lived up to the letter.

A considerable sum of the Russian revenue is annually spent in payment for the corpses of wolves. No fewer than 170,000 of the creatures are roaming about at large. Last year the inhabitants of the province of Vologda killed 49,000 of the brutes, and in the Cassau district 31,000 were killed. The wolves destroyed 213 human beings in the course of the last twelve months.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET.

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents. 703 J Street, Sacramento.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice, SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET. SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6.45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11.40 A
7.05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7.25 P
9.30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico.	6.20 A
7.05 P	Deming, El Paso and East.	6.45 P
8.15 P	Knight's Landing.	7.40 A
10.50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave.	9.55 A
8.00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East.	6.25 P
12-01 A	{ Central Atlantic Express. } { Ogden and East. }	6.00 A
3-00 P	Oroville	10-30 A
3-00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville.	10-30 A
10-40 A	Redding via Willows.	4-00 P
6-15 A	San Francisco via Benicia.	7-25 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia.	11-40 A
6-45 A	San Francisco via Benicia.	9-10 P
10-00 A	San Francisco via Livermore.	26.00 A
10-50 A	San Francisco via Livermore.	2.25 P
6-50 P	San Francisco via Benicia.	11-40 P
10-50 A	San Jose.	2.25 P
7-05 P	Santa Barbara.	9.55 A
6-45 A	Santa Rosa.	11.40 A
3-05 P	Santa Rosa.	7.25 P
8-15 A	Stockton and Galt.	6.45 P
7-05 P	Stockton and Galt.	9.55 A
8-00 P	Truckee and Reno.	6.25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno.	6.00 A
12-05 P	Colfax.	10.20 A
6-45 A	Vallejo.	11.40 A
3-05 P	Vallejo.	7.25 P
7-00 A	Placerville (Mixed).	4.50 P
5-00 P	Folsom.	9.00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co., PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENWARE, CIGARS,

TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.

1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K,

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Farth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from $25
Stylish Pants made to order 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand
ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

The Bank of England doors are now so finely balanced that a clerk, by pressing a knob under his desk, can close the doors instantly, and they cannot be opened again without a special process. This is done to prevent the daring and ingenious unemployed of the great metropolis from robbing this famous institution. The bullion departments of this and other great English banking establishments are nightly submerged in several feet of water by the action of machinery. In some of the London banks the bullion departments are connected with the manager's sleeping-rooms, and an entrance cannot be effected without setting off an alarm near the person's head. If a dishonest official, during either day or night, should take even as much as one from a pile of a thousand sovereigns, the whole pile would instantly sink and a pool of water take its place, letting every person in the establishment know of the theft.

It may not be as widely known as it deserves to be that twenty grains of salicylic acid, given liq. ammon. acet. three or four times a day will so far control a common cold that the aching of the brow, eyelids, etc., will cease in a few hours, while the sneezing and running from the nose will also abate, and will disappear in a few days; and, more fortunate still, the cold will pass off, and not finish up, as is customary, with a cough.

An impressive incident occurred years ago in Hartford. The man who related it was so profoundly impressed with the reality of a supra-mortal meeting and recognition that he never forgot it. He is still living in a Western State. On this occasion he was a watcher at the bedside of a dying man—a printer. He is a "practical," hard-headed man, and one of the last to be given to fancies. For half an hour, he said, the dying man had been sinking. The breathing, growing more labored, became slower and fainter. The watcher thought the man was dead, when suddenly his eyes opened with a glad look of wonder and joyful recognition; he threw up his arms as in an embrace and his whole face was illuminated as he rapturously exclaimed: "Why, mother!" The same instant he fell back dead. "Nothing will ever convince me," said the watcher, relating the occurrence years afterward, "that that man didn't actually see his mother then and there."—Hartford Times.

"Willie," said his father, as he came home at night, "have you been a good boy?" "Did you ask mamma?" asked Willie, doubtfully. "Don't you know?" inquired his father. "Well, it's this way," explained Willie, "Ma's ideas and mine differ as to what is being bad, and I don't want to go back on anything she might say."

KISSES.

(A la Romeo and Juliet.)

A prominent physician calls the kiss "an elegant disseminator of disease." He says, "fever is spread by it, so are lung diseases." Out upon the gnarled and sapless vagabond! Evidently kisses are not for such as he, and the old fox says the grapes are sour. Let him devote himself to making our women healthy and blooming that kisses may be kisses. This can surely be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is simply magical in curing diseases peculiar to females. After taking it for a reasonable length of time there will be no more irregularity, backache, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred ailments.

It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded.

A Book of 160 pages, on "Woman and Her Diseases, and their Self-cure," sent, post-paid, to any address, securely sealed in a plain envelope, on receipt of ten cents, in stamps.

Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. PIERCE'S PELLETS

Purely Vegetable and Perfectly Harmless. Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, Cheapest, Easiest to Take. One Tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Stomach and Bowels. 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

Mexican Social Customs.

Mexicans have some curious customs, with which it might be just as well for strangers to be conversant, says Export and Finance. At a dance, for instance, the "cascaron" plays an important part, and it is frequently a source of much amusement. This "cascaron" is a highly colored egg shell, filled with some sort of sweet-smelling perfume, sachet powder, or bits of fine gilt paper. When a bewitching senorita, with raven hair and roughish eyes, desires to show her preference for a gentleman and invite him to dance with her, she playfully smashes the "cascaron" over his head.

Not long ago one of our bright young New Yorkers was in the city of Mexico, and a Mexican friend invited him to one of the balls in that city. While he was quietly sitting in one corner of the room, a vivacious damsel danced forward to him, and smashed the "cascaron" in the way described. It was filled with bits of gilt paper, and they fell in a shower over his shoulders. He jumped to his feet, and, rushing to his friend, declared that an egg had been broken over his head. Matters were readily and laughingly explained to him, and in five minutes he was waltzing with the damsel, and muttering inward maledictions because he could not talk Spanish.

Times Had Changed.

At Sumter, S. C., there was a large crowd of colored people at the depot as the train pulled in, says the New York Sun. An old bald-headed Uncle Jerry had his head out of the coach set apart for colored passengers, and a man on the platform recognized him and called out:

"Hello, Misser Stivers, is dat you?"

No response.

"Say, Misser Stivers, has yo' losted yo' hearing?" persisted the man as he drew nearer.

"Boy, was yo' talkin' to me?" sternly demanded the old man.

"Sartin. What's de matter?"

"Boy, does yo' want anything of me?"

"Why, how yo' talk! Reckon yo' has got de hoodoo."

"Does yo' evidently reckon yo' knows me?"

"Of co'se I knows yo'. Yo' is old man Stivers."

"When did yo' know me?"

"Last fall. Why, I dun worked wid yo' fur three months."

"An' when yo' dun worked wid me what was I a doin'?"

"Drivin' dem mewls for Kurnel Johnson."

"Exactly, sah. But I want yo' to understand dat dere is a heap o' difference atwixt drivin' dem mewls fur Kurnel Johnson an' ridin' on the kivered kyars along wid white folks. I might a-knowed yo' last fall, sah, but if yo' now desiah to permeate any elongated conversation wid me, yo' mus' git some 'sponsible gem'len to introduce yo'."

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER
CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS

LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER.

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shnert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS

Agents for Rockford Watch Co.

NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MAY 24, 1890.

No. 14.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

For carelessness, neglect, and an almost criminal disregard of matters of public enterprise, the people of Sacramento, as well as the constituted authorities of government, have become a byword and a subject of ridicule. Whenever any public spirited person attempts any municipal reform, the silurian and "do-nothing" at once proceeds to thwart all schemes of improvement or enterprise. Unless each individual can see some benefit inure to him directly, he scouts the idea of local improvement. For years our public streets, and many of our sidewalks, in the main parts of the city have been simply impassable, and a disgrace to the people. There is no excuse for this state of affairs. The people have it in their power to obviate all bad streets. After much labor, a few enterprising citizens have formulated a plan which will avert the recurrence of the situation of this city last winter, where the entire surrounding country was prevented from an ingress into the city, by reason of impassable streets. This plan is to permit the citizens to raise sufficient money by direct vote, that being the only way under the charter of meeting the exigencies of the occasion. In a few days the people will be called upon to exercise their right of the franchise, to determine whether $100,000 shall be raised by issuance of bonds to become a charge upon all the people, to prevent us from undergoing the experience of the last two winters. Every citizen should feel it his duty to come forward and declare himself for the needed improvement, and to that end cast his ballot for the issuance of the bonds. Sacramento has been an unfortunate city, but she is alive to her interests at this time. With improved streets we will be many steps in advance of the past, and thus encouraged, the taxpayer will find it to his interest to foster other public enterprises. There is no danger that the silurians will find strength enough to even make a respectable (or rather lack of respectable) showing against the necessities of this city, namely, the improvement of our public streets. We call on all the friends of this city to come forward and pronounce in favor of the issuance of the necessary bonds to secure proper street improvement.

The Board of Trustees are duly and favorably considering the question presented a couple of weeks ago by THEMIS, regarding the apportionment of the net receipts from water rents, only, into the sinking and interest fund. For four years the city government has been crippled from the effects of the unjust decision of the majority of the Supreme Court. This is a case where we have nothing to lose and everything to gain by reopening the contest, and applying for equal and exact justice. Try the plan, gentlemen of the Board of Trustees, and go into the case with earnestness. There must be no half-heartedness in the matter, if you undertake to make such a contest. You must expect opposition from the allies of the bond holders, and be ready and firm in meeting this antagonism. The city charter is with you—justice is on your side. It never was the intent of the law makers to take 55 per cent. of the gross receipts from water rents for the bond holders. Sacramento has suffered enough from unjust construction of antique laws and hair splitting decisions of certain judges of the past. We think the Court, as it is now constituted, will have a fairer regard for the rights of taxpayers and citizens of our sorely tried city. Judge Hunt broke the column of the attacking creditors, and the Supreme Court affirmed him. Now let the other vital issue come before the Court for a just adjudication on the merits of the case, and we feel assured of success.

A State political contest is approaching; it is one of importance. We have confidence that the Republican convention will present the people a ticket which should be supported. Yet, however acceptable the action of the convention, it has happened that defeat has come. We care not to advert to the causes that brought about the defeat of Mr. Swift four years ago. We have no regard for the influences that caused it; sufficient it is, we say, we regret not that we supported him. His defeat was due to treachery in his own party. In the campaign approaching, speaking from the standpoint of a Republican journal that can be depended upon to support in good faith the action of the State Convention, we care not to see a repetition of the treachery of the past. There will of course be many candidates presented for the various State offices. We doubt not the nominees will be gentlemen of integrity, whom any man who claims to be a Republican can support.

We regard the election of members of the legislature of particular importance in that they will be called upon to elect a United States Senator. We particularly desire that in the election of Assemblymen and of new Senators the very best material be chosen. Unqualifiedly we declare in favor of Senator Stanford for reelection, and we believe that were the question of the selection of a Federal Senator submitted to the popular vote in this State, his majority would be pronounced. We speak in this tone with regard only to his recognized statesmanship and abilities, and in consideration of what he has done and can do in this high representative capacity. Circumstances have recently transpired, which are very generally understood, that have solidified the people in his support, though it can be said that ordinarily appropriate recognition would be given him without solicitation in this matter of reelection. We believe in the past our judgment of the representative of the State has been fair, in that we have treated him with regard only to his ability and the worth he gives the people. True it is, Senator Stanford has wealth, yet the disposition of it is known while he is yet in life—the younger generation will have the benefit of that which he accumulated. Relieved now from the cares of a large business, if it should be that his services are again tendered the State in the upper house of Congress, they should be accepted. The people of this State need brains at Washington.

Concerning matters of Republican politics local to Sacramento county, and particularly to the city, we suggest there had better be a reconciliation between the factions whose petty differences have brought about such disastrous defeats in years late past. If it is desired to successfully maintain a party in a county, its adherents should control it, and no regard should be paid to the few on the one side or the other who will rule or ruin. There is little use of concealing that which everybody knows: that the great mass of the party has had little to do with its control. It has been that the actions of our conventions have been shaped by a few, and that nominees have been openly fought by those claiming to be Republicans. While we have a pronounced majority here, it has been hardly a matter of prudence to accept a nomination on the Republican ticket, and the knife has cut both ways. If there is any sense in pursuing the follies of the past, we fail to see it.

In this State Mr. Justice Field is losing the respect due from a people to a Justice of the United States Supreme Court. On the occasion of the killing of Judge Terry, at Lathrop, in August last, we reviewed the circumstances connected with the homicide and the careers of the actors, and justified the action of Neagle. Very generally the press of this State viewed the matter as we did. With that Field should have rested. It is, however, a fact that before, a week, indecent publications in some papers were made concerning Terry, and to the discredit of the leading papers of the State, particularly those of San Francisco, columns of extracts from journals were republished laudatory of Field, justifying Neagle, and condemnatory of the dead man. We know enough of the conduct of modern journalism that the republication of those articles was paid for, and that their reproduction was but a silly effort to fortify general public sentiment. Who provided the money we know not; it would hardly be just to Mr. Justice Field to charge that he furnished the lack of brains that prompted their reproduction. It was expected Neagle would be tried as any other homicide. That he would have been acquitted by a jury in this State will be conceded by any reasonable man. The disposition of the case, however, is not satisfactory.

It seems that Mr. Justice Field is not willing that his dead former associate shall rest quietly in his grave at Stockton, and that he is disposed to soil the judicial ermine by attacking, in the executive and legislative departments, with which he should have no concern, those who have spoken favorably of the dead. E. G. Waite is a pioneer resident of this State. He represented Nevada county in both branches of the legislature, and filled with credit prominent federal positions. He has been identified with journalism, and at one time was the political editor of the Sacramento Union. At the request of the California delegation, the President nominated him to be Register of the San Francisco Land Office; the Senate refused to confirm the nomination. It develops that this action was brought about through the influence of Justice Field, and that it was to punish Waite that he had written an article in the Overland Monthly eulogistic of Terry. We are somewhat surprised that a man occupying the dignified position Field does, stoops to punish the friend of the dead. His own early career in this State is hardly what it should have been. He is now claiming that respect should be accorded the bench. His treatment of Judge Turner, by whom he was disbarred in 1850, is not particularly to his credit in that it was undignified. Turner published a book in relation to the matter, the last edition of which was issued in 1856. In this little volume are contained some matters written in very plain English. It seems that articles were published concerning Judge Turner, in one of which, printed July 27th, in the Placer Times, in this city, over the signatures of Field and others, appeared among other things, the following:

Judge Turner is a man of depraved tastes, of vulgar habits, of an ungovernable temper, reckless of truth when his passions are excited, and grossly incompetent to discharge the duties of his office. It is a sad thing that such a man should ever be clothed with the judicial ermine.

In that Field could then write such language concerning a judge, we are justified in quoting the reply of Judge Turner, which related to him personally. It appears in the book before us, and concerns matters that transpired before very many of the present inhabitants of this State were born. In the course of Judge Turner's reply, he said:

Who, then, is Stephen J. Field? This man who, skulking behind the attenuated and pusillanimous form of a country editor, hurls forth his lying slang and abuse, which, forsooth, he has neither the manliness nor the courage to openly father! This man who has tried to make the public take sides in a purely personal quarrel, which his own Falstaff disposition forbade him personally assuming! This man whom I have published as a "perjured, damned villain," whom I attempted to chastise with a switch, and who had no courage to resent the former, and just speed enough in his system to avoid the latter! This man of such judicial power, who, in a personal matter, cries, Caesar-like, to the public, "Help me, Cassius, or I sink." and on my approach "his coward lips do from their color fly!" This man, in a word, whose life, if analyzed, would be found to be one series of little minded meanlinesses, of braggadocio, pusillanimity and contemptible vanity, which, when known, will sink him so low in public estimation that the hand of the resurrectionist can never reach him. Such is Stephen J. Field, who, having failed to awe me by his great legal ability, and who vainly thought to defy my court with impunity, now, behind numerous editorial squibs, seeks to inflame the public mind by making charges which are as false as the heart which conceives them is base and cowardly. Whatever I have said, I reiterate I can prove. Whatever I have done judicially or otherwise, I reiterate I hold myself amenable, not only to the laws which I am alleged to have violated, but also personally responsible in any and under all circumstances.

We reproduce this ancient history simply to justify the impression that is very general here, that Field is too vindictive, and particularly so when occupying a distinguished judicial office. In this State, while at the bar, he had trouble with two Judges—Turner and Barbour—one of which resulted in a legislative investigation, and the publication of considerable scurrilous matter on both sides. In the case of the other Judge, it terminated in a challenge to fight a duel. Judge Turner died at Jacksonville, Oregon, August 6, 1869, and Judge Barbour in Virginia City, May 11, 1872. Since their deaths Justice Field has deemed it prudent to issue a book explaining his difficulties with them. They of course cannot reply. The criticisms we make of this pursuit of Judge Terry after death, by the Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court we base on his own admission made in a newspaper interview recently, in which he is reported as having said:

When Waite's nomination for Register was made I handed to a Senator an article written by Waite in the Overland Monthly of October, eulogistic of the late David S. Terry. Much surprise was expressed by the Senator at the tenor of the article, the Senator stating that it was a reflection upon the Administration in designating the Marshal to protect Judge Sawyer and myself from murderous assaults by Terry, for if he was, as represented by Waite, a "man of sterling integrity of purpose," it was meant, if it meant anything, that Terry was a man of high principles and pure character, having honorable purposes of action. It was quite evident from what the Senator to whom I gave the article and other Senators said, that it would be impossible for the nomination of Waite to be confirmed. Quite certain I am that neither Governor Stanford, who was his friend, nor the whole delegation from California, could have secured his confirmation.

Beauty and mind are the two most difficult words to define which, perhaps, are to be found in the English language. Beauty is that element of features, color, and form, which, when seen by the eye, instantly pleases alike the educated and uneducated. Byron has said:

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

Yet the fancy of poets, and the impassioned strains of eloquence, have failed to catch what it is in the human face and form, in the landscape, or the vaulted heavens, that we feel to be beauty. There is also a beauty in acquisition, in usefulness, in matters perceived by the mind's sight alone. Mind is the intelligent power in man that remembers, judges, feels emotion, creates thoughts, and has perceptive power. It commands, it wills, it directs, builds, thinks, worships, measures the heavens, explores the earth. It is the attribute of God in man—ever spoken of, but never truly understood, as its limits and bounds are yet unfixed, and cannot, till ages pass, if ever, be fully discovered in this earthly life. Mind and beauty! they seem to link us to heaven in their highest sense and noblest attributes. Who that has gazed on beauty, whether of the scene-strewn earth, or star-lit sky, but has had the mind elevated to higher aims and nobler feelings. Who that has ridden upon the bosom of the tossing ocean, and has viewed her mountain storm-waves in wild commotion, but has felt a sublime awe at its terrific beauty? The simple loveliness of the way-side flower can, too, speak peace and gladness to a perturbed and inquiet spirit. All classes and kinds of men feel beauty's universal language, its powers by turns to enchant, awaken and subdue the soul.

But woman's beauty, in its life-warm freshness, enthralls and commands more than all these, yet when this beauty is disunited from mind, when not connected with a pure and lofty soul, it but resembles flowers plucked from their native soil and strewn to wither and die upon the dreary grave. Who that reads of the mighty minds of the past—of all time—the heroes, prophets, priests and kings of men, but must glory in the power of mind? We mean not by this the mere leaders by position. These have not been the real great of the earth. Leonora and Prince d'Este, though perhaps despising the poet Tasso, yet live in human memory by his verse alone. Humboldt lived the associate of kings, but as a contributor to human knowledge, was more, by far, a king of men than they, who were kings not by right of mind, but by the accident of birth. Bacon was mightier to change human thoughts than a whole line of English sovereigns. Copernicus was an obscure Polish priest, who had the protection, but not even the position of a bishop, and yet he rewrote the course of the stars. Moses was a mighty teacher and prophet of truth in far back ages; so were Confucius and Socrates; so in later years were Luther, Zuinglius, Calvin and Wesley. These are men who, however we may be at variance with them, were the great of the earth. Washington, too, perhaps a less gifted warrior than some the world has known, taught mankind that goodness and greatness on the tented field were possible. Hannibal, Caesar and Napoleon were great in their way. But the true lover of his race knows that "The tears of the widow and orphan must nourish,

The laurel that circles the brow of the brave."

In fine, beauty is most charming when its elements are united with the glory of goodness. A ray of beauty seems to linger around the act of love and mercy through all the ages, and mind takes on the shapes and line of evil and deformity when selfish ambition, grasping avarice, or indifference to the race, marks its unworthy, though gifted possessor.

SOME UNWRITTEN HISTORY.

Sacramento in Embryo—How Government was Established from Chaos.

PART XIII.

The President called the second meeting of the City Council for Tuesday evening, August 21, 1849. A. M. Winn and Berryman Jennings, two of the members elect not present at the former meeting, appeared and took the oath of office, James S. Thomas, First Magistrate, administering the oath. Clerk Harper being absent Clement W. Coote was chosen as clerk pro tem, and after the reading and approval of the minutes of the preceding meeting, Councilman Winn offered the following:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to draft a constitution for the government of the City Council, defining their powers and fixing their duties, which resolution was adopted; and the President appointed Councilmen Winn, Rogers and Chapman to constitute such committee.

Mr. Winn also offered the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the obstructions on the public landing of this city is a great inconvenience, and that the First Magistrate, James S. Thomas, be required, through the Sheriff, to cause all artificial obstructions on the public landing of the city, to be removed within ten days from August 22, 1849.

Thereupon William Stout tendered his resignation as President of the City Council, which was accepted, and John P. Rogers was elected President pro tem. The Council then adjourned to August 25th, in the evening. It would seem from the resolutions quoted that the First Magistrate was considered as the fountain of political power, with the Sheriff as his executive officer, the City Council being the power behind the throne guiding governmental action.

At the next meeting of the City Council, M. L. McLellan, Councilman elect, appeared and was sworn into office and took his seat. Thereupon A. M. Winn was unanimously elected permanent President of the Council, and on motion of Councilman Robinson, it was resolved that the several Committees on Wharves and Streets, Finance, and on Ordinances, be authorized to employ a suitable person as clerk. The committee on procurement of suitable room for meetings of the Council reported that Mr. Rogers had tendered the use of his office for future meetings of the Council. The committee on the preparation of a suitable constitution was granted further time. The committee on wharves and streets reported that their investigations had resulted in their conviction of the existence of the gross violation of the rights of all citizens, through the unauthorized obstruction of Front street, caused by the erection of landings and placing other obstructions and impediments to the free passage to and from the landing, and the committee recommended that the Council take immediate steps to remove such obstructions from the public streets, as they have already proved injurious to the public welfare. The committee also reported that, in their opinion, the mooring of vessels to the landing, to be used as store ships for the retail of cargo, paying no tax and free from all obligations to pay rent, gave the owners an undue advantage over other dealers who have been instrumental in building up business in the city, and that this state of things is highly disadvantageous to the best interests of the city and contrary to law.

The committee recommended that vessels arriving and selling off their cargoes from on board, shall be subject to the payment of a tax, by which means a fund may be created to be used in grading and otherwise improving streets. The committee also reported that a Harbor-master should be provided for and elected to see that all ordinances concerning the matters of the report be carried into effect. This report was by the Council received, and on motion it was referred to the Committee on Ordinances to draft the proper legislation.

This proposed legislation on the part of the city authorities, brought to the front masters of vessels, supercargoes and others interested in maintaining their exclusive occupation of the levee without cost, and their protests were read at the next meeting of the Council, held on the evening of 30th August, 1849. These protests were by the Council promptly laid on the table, and A. M. Winn, President of the Council, on leave, addressed the Council on the importance of preparing and enforcing the requisite ordinances on the subject of such vital importance to the city as the continued obstruction to the levee and streets of the city, and on motion it was voted that if litigation should occur in any attempt to enforce the ordinances or orders of the City Council, that Col. J. C. Zabriskie be employed as attorney for the city. The Council thereupon adopted a resolution fixing penalties for refusing to remove obstructions to the free use of the public levee, as follows: For the first offense, $100; for a second offense, $250; for a third offense, $500. The resolution also provided for imprisonment, but we are unable to ascertain the terms of imprisonment as the original resolution is lost and no print of it is extant. It was further resolved by the City Council, that in the event of resistance being offered to the Sheriff while discharging his duties, specified by ordinance or resolution of the Council, that he be and hereby is authorized to call upon the posse committatus to assist in enforcing any of the resolutions adopted by the Council. Thereupon Dr. Chapman was elected Treasurer of the City Council, and it adjourned.

The City Council again convened Monday, September 3, 1849. The committee on preparation of constitution owing to the peculiar nature of their business and the absolute necessity for the exercise of great care, caution and judgment to discharge their duties properly, and to the interests of the city, requested an extension of time for making their first report, which request was granted. Mr. D. Hanna, Sheriff for the city of Sacramento, to whom was entrusted the responsible duty of carrying into effect the ordinance enacted for the purpose of removing all obstructions from the levee, being called upon by the President, reported that he had encountered no serious opposition or resistance of any kind; that the majority of the citizens occupying the levee displayed the utmost alacrity in obeying the order of the City Council, and that owing to the peculiar situation of some of them, he had taken the liberty of granting them further time for removal. This report was heard with much pleasure by the Council, and the lenient policy adopted by the Sheriff was approved. The City Council at this meeting received a communication from the citizens of San Francisco soliciting the coöperation of the Council in the laudible enterprise of relieving the sufferings of our fellow countrymen now emigrating to this territory, and thereupon, on motion, a corresponding committee of three was appointed by the President for the purpose of coöperating with the citizens of San Francisco in accomplishing this most humane and laudable enterprise, and Councilmen Robinson, Gillispie and McClellan were appointed. Thereupon Councilman Gillispie presented the petition of William W. Warner, praying for the exclusive privilege of establishing a ferry on the Sacramento river, which was read and referred to the Committee on Wharves and Streets.

Who can now say that the City Council, improvised as it was, called into existence by necessity if you will, had no mission to perform. Those who came here for trade had been used to law and could submit to its administration. All understood the necessity of some officer who could regulate conflicting claims and adjust differences of opinion, and they quietly submitted to the authorities they found in existence without inquiry into the jurisdiction assumed.

To Encourage Big Families.

What was at first regarded as a joke in connection with the proposed bounties on children in Canada has passed into the domain of actual fact by the legislative enactment of the bill entitled "An act to confer a privilege upon fathers of families who have twelve children living," the preamble of which contains the following: "Whereas, It is advisable, following the examples of past centuries, to give marks of consideration for fruitfulness in the sacred and civil bonds of matrimony, therefore, her majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislature of Quebec, enacts as follows:" Then come the provisions of the bill granting "100 acres of public lands to every father of a family, whether he be born or naturalized in his province, who has twelve children living, issue of a lawful marriage, who, in order to benefit by the advantages granted by the act, must present a petition to the Provincial Secretary, accompanied by his certificate of marriage, a certificate of baptism of each of the children, as well as a certificate, sworn before a justice of the peace, giving the number and names of his children."

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

W. J. Scanlan is having another new Irish drama, called Mavouneen, prepared for him.

Flora Walsh, Alice Evans, and George F. Marion are reported to have made distinct hits in Charles H. Hoyt's new play, A Texas Steer.

Dark has a good hold on stage titles. We have After Dark, Before Dark, Dark Days, A Dark Secret, A Dark Life, and Dark Deeds.

Minnie Gale's salary in the Booth-Barrett company next season will be $500 a week, probably the highest paid to such a young actress; who a few years ago was a Brooklyn amateur.

Edwin Booth has obtained permission from the trustees of Trinity Church to have George Frederick Cook's monument restored, and the work is now going on. It will be completed by June 12th.

The Alard family's Stradivarius, which dates from 1716 and is the only violin of the famous maker that is in perfect preservation, has been sold to a Scotch collector. Association with the bag-pipe may cause the fiddle to lose tone.

Miss Mary Howe, of Battleboro, Vt., is spoken of by a Boston journal as another Gerster. "She has a brilliant and flexible soprano voice," the editor says, "and sings colorature music." She probably receives much more money for her singing.

The management of the Grand Opera at Paris was recently changed, and upon an examination of the books an expenditure of $30,000 annually was noted for which no explanation was given. Investigation showed that the money was expended in securing favorable "criticisms" in the press for the various performers. An attempt was made to cut off this drain, but it failed most signally.

Fannie Kemble's performance of Julia in Knowles' play of The Hunchback, is said to have drawn more tears than any stage representation since John Kemble and Mrs. Siddons appeared in The Stranger. Fannie's father, Charles Kemble, was the original Sir Thomas Clifford and James Sheridan Knowles, the author, the Master Walter. There is a capital story anent the first performance. In the boxes with Mrs. Kemble were Knowles' two daughters, unsophisticated country girls, who had not been in a theater a half dozen times in their lives. They had heard their father, however, talk of plays being hissed, and thought it was a necessary part of the performance, so, after listening for some time to the enthusiastic plaudits that followed every scene, one of them innocently inquired of their chaperone, "When will the hissing begin?" Charles Kemble said of Knowles' performance that "the only gentleman who did not understand the author was the gentleman who played Master Walter."

Book Chat.

George Meredith has been suggested as Lord Tennyson's successor in the Poet Laureateship in England. Algernon Swinburne is also mentioned. Tennyson should write an ode on the situation.

William Black's new novel is to be called, "Stand Fast, Craig-Poyston," and the characters will include seven Scotch persons and two representatives of the United States. The novel will appear serially in this country and England.

Lord Coleridge doesn't like the editor of the present day. He thinks the editor doesn't know much. "In former times," he asserts, "knowledge was wider, deeper, and more exact, and imparted with much more force, width, and power than in the present day. Such men as Raleigh, Hooker, Down, Hobbs, Locke, and Defoe were leaders of thought; but to-day it is the newspaper editor and the periodical writer." Coleridge was in choleric mood when he attacked the editors.

Doña Emilia Pardo Bazan, who wrote the article on Spanish women in the Fortnightly a short time ago, is the best abused woman in Spain, and the cleverest and most courageous who has gone into print in a long while. In that semi-Moorish nation, where, until a decade ago, a woman veiled almost as closely as an Oriental, it is not hard to imagine the hubbub this beautiful creature has raised with her pen. Fortunately she is related to one of the oldest and noblest families in Galicia, and has the advantage of rank and birth. She is said to be pretty, piquant, extremely nervous in temperament, and as charming and witty in conversation as Bernhardt.

F. H. Saltus, the father of Francis E. Saltus and Edgar Saltus, lives at the Lennox House, Greenwich, Conn. Mr. Saltus was married twice. The late Frank Saltus and Edgar were half brothers. Saltus pere is proud of the literary triumphs won by his sons. He is never tired of talking of Francis, and likes to show his friends letters written about the dead poet by Longfellow, Aldrich, and others. He is inclined to think that Edgar Saltus' "Anatomy of Negation" is a book likely to attain immortality. Mr. Saltus is a thorough man of the world, with an old-fashioned elegance of manner that is very attractive. He is looking eagerly forward to the posthumous publication of his son Frank's manuscripts.

Albion W. Tourgee's "Pactolus Prime," deals with elements that have already been handled with fine wisdom and force by the same author. It brings up the war, the race problem, and modern American amalgamation. It deals with these things in the sincere, incisive and convincing manner characteristic of this author, and the story as a story has considerable merits. Judge Tourgee is always open to the criticism of making fiction palpably a vehicle for propaganda, but the criticism might justly be laid upon so many others nowadays that it might seem invidious to again raise that suggestion. There is no valid argument why fiction should not serve this purpose, but it is probably reasonable to urge that it should not "give away" its motives. "Pactolus Prime" is a worthy number of that vigorous and influential list of books which Judge Tourgee has produced.

To those who know Robert Lewis Stevenson at all, it is no surprise that he has decided to live in far-distant Samoa, and has bought himself several hundred acres of land. In fact, I question whether Stevenson could do anything to surprise his friends. The odd and unexpected have become synonyms with his name. I doubt whether there is a more eccentric author to-day than Stevenson. He never seems to know his own mind from one day into another, and were he to-morrow to turn up in New York, his friends would merely arch their eyebrows. Said one of his closest friends to me yesterday: "Stevenson is just crammed full of oddities, and the most unreliable man who wields a pen. Let him promise to write you an essay, a story, or a poem, and it positively amounts to nothing. The next day he has forgotten all about it, and before you know it he is in some heathenish part of the country, or off in the middle of some unreachable body of water, which defies the mail or the telegraph. He hates to write letters, scarcely ever answers a single one he gets, while all the time you are just wild for 'copy' promised months ago. Eccentric? decidedly so; he is more, he is aggravating almost beyond endurance, and if he were not such a paying 'card' not an editor or publisher would put up with his oddities."

Mark Twain's success in life seems to have made him crusty and sour. - Years ago, when he was struggling for fame and fortune on the Pacific coast, those who knew him said he was warm hearted and cordial. But he is certainly far from that now. I saw him on the street awhile ago, dressed in a dark business suit. He has an attractive face, a splendid head set upon a pair of strong shoulders. His eyes are clear, and his mouth denotes great firmness. His hair is silvering gradually, although there is an abundance of it. His mustache is reddish, and his eyebrows are heavy. Mr. Clemens lives in style in Hartford, Conn. His home is on Farmington avenue. It is a house luxuriously furnished, and filled with rare pictures and books. The occupant of the house adjoining is Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, and not far away is the home of Charles Dudley Warner. Mr. Clemens never talks about his book except to those whom he knows intimately. But there is one topic that he is willing to discuss at any time, and that is international copyright. In fact, it may be said that he is a crank on the subject. His books still sell well. His "Innocents Abroad," the most successful of all his literary ventures, has a steady sale, and his fortune is estimated by those who know him to be considerably over $2,000,000. Sometimes fun pays.

Professional Chat.

Young Dr. Freshfield—And why won't you let me feel your pulse, Miss Dollie? Miss Dollie—Well you may, but I shall stick out my tongue at the same time to show that your action is strictly professional.

Ex-Secretary of War Belknap is one of the best-known men in the city of Washington. He grows rounder and jollier and more red in the face as the years go by, and the circle of his friends appears to be continually widening. He is a gastronome, a wit, and a story-teller. He makes ten or fifteen thousand dollars a year as a claim agent and spends it all. He has a lovely family and a luxurious home.

Chief-Justice Fuller looks a good deal more like a cavalry officer than the presiding Judge of the United States Supreme Court. Even seated on the bench, with the golden eagle flapping its wings over his head, and clad in the silk robes of his office, there is little of the judicial about his appearance. It is the heavy mustache, nearly white, that distinguishes the Chief-Justice from his brethren and gives him a war-like look. He is certainly the handsomest man on the bench; men and women agree as to that.

Many stories are told at the expense of the well-known German ex-magistrate with the glass eye. One day while trying a case with a jury he fell asleep, but as the glass eye was open the lawyers and those interested in the case knew it not, nor that their testimony was all for naught. They only discovered that the genial j. p. was sound asleep when one of the lawyers arose and asked for the decision of the Court, and not receiving an answer demanded of the constable what was the matter. The constable then hastily awoke the sleepy squire and formally stated to the assemblage that the eye which had been open was glass. The case had to be tried again from the start, as the magistrate hadn't heard a word of the testimony.

A story which illustrates the resources of the Arabian lawyer, and which may offer some suggestion to the members of the legal profession in this country. An English merchant, staying at an inn in one of the smaller towns, placed on deposit with the landlord £300. He neglected to take a receipt for the money, and when a few weeks later, having been absent on a short journey, he had occasion to ask for it, the landlord opened his eyes with well feigned astonishment and pretended to have forgotten the transaction. The Englishman was naturally enraged, but he had no proof and no witness, and in his extremity he sought the advice of a native lawyer. This wise man of the East reflected a moment, and then gravely said: "Entrust another £300 to the keeping of the landlord, but be sure to have a witness on hand." The Englishman was puzzled to know how this would help him, but he did as he was directed. "Now," said the lawyer the next day, "go and claim the money, but don't take your witness with you." This was done, and the innkeeper, ill-prepared to practice the same deceit the second time, handed over the notes. The traveler once more sought his legal adviser, who said to him: "It is well. Approach your host again, accompanied by the witness, and demand your money." The Englishman followed his instructions. "But I gave you your money," protested his host. "Come, now," replied the merchant, "here is a man who was present at the time. He will tell you that he was not a witness of what you claim. He saw me hand you the money. Be quick, please; I must leave the city." The landlord was outwitted. He saw the trap, but it was too late, and without more ado he made good the sum.

J. H. McKune was elected County Attorney in 1850, and part of his business consisted in prosecuting cases before the Court of Sessions of Sacramento county. One day in the latter part of September of that year, he was sitting within the bar awaiting the opening of that Court. Set for trial for that day was an indictment against some obscure thief for stealing a ham from a grocery on Front street. Shortly before the Court opened there came inside the bar a tall, lank, bony, stoop-shouldered Kentuckian, just in from the plains, ox whip in hand, slouch hat well worn, overalls tattered and discolored by every kind of soil found between the Missouri river and Sacramento, shoes so worn as to scarcely hold to his feet. With a smile which could scarcely be seen through the alkali which seemed to pervade his whole system and form a crust over his features, he approached Mr. McKune and inquired whether the case of the People v. Arbuckle was for hearing that day. Judge McKune said "yes," and then inquired, "are you the accused?" With the smile deepening to a sardonic grin the visitor said, "no, I am counsel for the accused. Here is my license to practice law in all the Courts of Kentucky, and I will thank you if you will move my admission to practice in this Court." Mr. McKune apologized as best he might, but from what we know of him the apology must have been a signal failure. The license produced was regular on its face, and it certified that Zach. Montgomery has studied his profession in one of the first colleges in Kentucky, that he was learned in the law, and that he was admitted to practice in Kentucky. The Court opened. The case of the People v. Arbuckle was tried. Zach. Montgomery was marked as his counsel. He made a most ingenious defense, and his appeal to the jury was characterized by an energy and show of legal learning then seldom heard in a defense of that kind. But it was too plain a case. The jury found against him. But Zach. Montgomery and Mr. McKune became fast friends, and shortly after entered into copartnership in the practice of law.

NOTES.

Parties willing to contribute flowers for Memorial Day, will kindly send them to Granger's Hall Thursday afternoon or Friday morning, May 29 and 30, or notify Mrs. Alice Kellogg, 821 J street, and they will be called for.

The citizens of Sacramento have taken the initiative in forming a "World's Fair Club." This city should have a fine representation at the World's Fair, and the gentlemen named as members of the Club Committee owe it to themselves and to this community to leave nothing undone to accomplish the object for which the Club was created.

As usual, there was a plentiful lack of enthusiasm, as well as attendance, at the Fourth of July meeting last night. However, P. E. Platt, the Chairman of the meeting, is a live, go-a-head man, and will infuse some life into the project. It seems strange that we always have to goad our citizens to a proper recognition of our Natal Day.

There are whispers, that the prophecy of THEMIS made last week, concerning revelations in municipal affairs, are about to be realized at a much earlier date than given. Look out for short corners, you members of the municipal government officials. There is a tidal wave coming which may engulf some of the departments of the city government.

A member of the alleged Law and Order League addressed one of our regular policemen, saying: "Young man, you had better have a look out for your position." "Well," said the officer, "you can just bet your bottom dollar I will look out for my place. I had enough trouble in getting on the force, to warn me to keep a look out for the main point."

Abram S. Hewitt is credited with saying: "If I were offered a fortune without education or an education without fortune, I should unhesitatingly accept the education." As the gentleman has both in delightful combination, he is, perhaps, not the best judge as to which is the most desirable as a sole possession. The opinion on this subject of old college valedictorians who are now working for scant salaries would be of interest.

The Bee remarks: "The Grand Jury were down town the other day, and among other things, they paid the waterworks office a visit. Clerk Coffey was found to be ready to tell all he knew about the books and the system of collection, and in the course of the visit produced the formidable list of delinquent rate-payers. Some of the names were seen to be charged up with several years' unpaid dues, and the Grand Jurors were duly surprised. In looking over the long list, however, a sudden pall came over the enthusiasm of the jury, for there, in letters both bold and bright, were the names of more than one of the jurors themselves. It is said that the investigation on this line did not continue very long after this discovery, and it will be interesting to know what the jury will have to say about the delinquent water takers when they come to make their final report." This matter established what we have criticized, that the collections of water rates have been inefficiently made. There is no excuse for this formidable list of delinquents, because the people are willing to pay. The trouble has been, the bills have not been presented in some cases for over three quarters. It is no discredit to a citizen that his name appears on the delinquent list—it is, however, not creditable to the past management of the water works and the system of collecting. It is but just to remark in this connection that the present Clerk has been in office but a few weeks, and he cannot be reasonably blamed. We are not aware of the amount of these delinquencies, but assume they are considerable. They work a hardship on rate-payers and loss to the city.

FLASHES.

There are too many poor typewriters and not enough chambermaids.

The queen of diamonds is often the knave of hearts.

Many of our great men are of simple taste—they take it straight.

The highest imaginative and creative qualities of the literary man must include feminine qualities.

It is about time the "frog lease" of the government site for our new postoffice to expire, and that work be commenced on the new structure.

The Weather.

The highest and lowest signal service temperature during the past week was 90° and 52° with generally southerly winds prevailing. The highest and lowest temperature during the same time last year was 88° and 49°, with clear weather prevailing. There was no rainfall during past week, nor was there any during the same time last year.

Memorial Day Services.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the proper observance of Memorial Day, have completed their work, and the evening exercises to be held at the Clunie Opera House bids fair to excel anything ever before attempted by the G. A. R. The Misses Carly, Lyon, Fitch and Hatch, accomplished singers and all Sacramento young ladies, will render solos on that occasion. A sextette by Mesdames Carter, Larkin, Bidwell, and Misses Hatch, Harrison and Dake. A quartette by Mrs. Percy Ross, Mrs. Addie Carter, Messrs. Milliken and Crocker, and recitations by Mrs. R. P. Pedlar and Albert Hart will prove pleasing features of the entertainment. The talented young orator, Hon. Jud. C. Brusie, will deliver the oration. The small sum of 25 cents will be charged for admission. The committee requests that citizens display the national colors on Memorial Day. The parade, notice of which will be found in this issue, will start from Grand Army Hall promptly at 2 P. M.

By the Light of the Moon.

The ladies of the Museum Association have arranged for a moonlight excursion on June 5. The ladies and their guests expect to have an interesting trip. Those contemplating becoming members of the happy party should not fail to consult Mrs. E. C. Jordan, 1111 D st., or Mrs. Bonnheim, at 1408 N street. There is much amusement in these moonlight excursions.

Athletic Club Exhibition.

The Sacramento Athletic Club, on Monday evening, May 26, will give an exhibition of gymnastics, fencing and other athletic acts. This is the Club's "Ladies' Night," and nothing will be left undone to make the entertainment one of the most refined ever given in this city. The young gentlemen who are members of and manage this Club, are of the highest social standing. The last public entertainment given by the Club was a pronounced success, and the exhibition to be given on Monday night will eclipse the former effort.

The great military drama, Paul Kaurer, was presented last night at the Metropolitan to a good house. Jos. Haworth is an accomplished actor, and possesses rare emotional powers. The dream scene last night was vivid and realistic. The company is strong. Paul Kaurer again to-night. Miss Lizzie Rechelle is an actress of merit, endowed with beauty and grace.

St. Paul's Church.

The Rev. John F. von Herrlich will preach Sunday morning on the subject, "The Feast of Levi;" and in the evening on "The Fall of Absalom"—a sermon to young men. The offertory will be sung by Herman de Laguna, of San Francisco. Morning service at 11 o'clock; evening at 7:30; Sunday school at 9:30 A. M.; Mission service, New Pavilion, 3 o'clock.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAAR.

S. E. Corner Third and J Streets.

N. ZEMANSKY Proprietor.
Gents' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Boots, Shoes

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON.

First-class make. Apply
MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

Moonlight Excursion.

MEMBERS OF THE LADIES' MUSEUM ASSOCIATION, and their friends, who desire to attend Moonlight Excursion,

THURSDAY, JUNE 5th,

Must apply soon for their tickets, as the subscription closes at 350. Apply to MRS. E. C. JORDAN, 1111 D street, or to MRS. BONNHEIM, 1408 N street. Or, for convenience, to MR. BONNHEIM, at Weinstock, Lubin & Co.'s.

JESSE SLAUGHTER,

Office, No. 1217 Fifth Street.

PLASTERING, WHITEWASHING, CLEANING OF CESSPOOLS, Etc.

Also, CITY SCAVENGER.

Burying of dead animals attended to at short notice.

Don't forget the number—1217 Fifth street, the old stand, where I have been for 25 years.

MEMORIAL DAY PARADE!

MAY 30th, 1890

Grand Marshal O. P. DODGE
Chief Aid GEO. S. FISHER
Aids E. C. JORDAN,
W. H. LARKIN,
F. GUSTAVENSON,
S. A. HURLBURT,
J. A. ADAMS.

Brigadier General T. W. Sheehan and Staff,
Fourth Brigade Signal Corps, mounted,
First Artillery Band,
First Artillery Regiment, Col. J. W. Guthrie, com'dg
Sacramento Hussars, Capt. Shoemaker, commanding.
Bersaglieri Guard, Capt. Di Sano, commanding.
Governor and Staff and State Officials,
President of the Day, and Orator,
Sons of Veterans Drum Corps,
Sons of Veterans, Capt. L. C. Jordan, commanding,
Hussar Band,

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

Summer Post C. H. Stephenson, Commander
Warren Post L. W. Grothen, Commander
Fair Oaks Post W. H. Ennis, Commander
Mexican Veterans, Pioneers,
Woman's Relief Corps and Ladies of the G. A. R.
City and County Officials, in carriages.

The procession will form at 2 P. M., sharp, right resting on Tenth and L streets, facing west.
Military forming on L street, right resting on Tenth; Grand Army of the Republic, Woman's Relief Corps and Ladies G. A. R., Tenth street, right resting on L; citizens in carriages, on Tenth street, right resting on L.
The route of march will be on L, to Ninth, to K to Second, to J to Tenth, to the Cemetery.
Citizens are requested to display the National colors.
O. P. DODGE, Grand Marshal.
G. S. FISHER, Chief Aid.

Evening Programme.

CLUNIE OPERA HOUSE.

1. National Airs Orchestra
2. Invocation Rev. W. C. Merrill
3. Address of Welcome W. B. Maydwell
4. Solo—"Gimme Alfin il Momento" Mozart
Miss Nina V. Lyon.
5. Recitation—Memorial Poem Mrs. R. P. Pedlar
6. "Hail Columbia" Orchestra
7. Quartette—"The Artillerists' Oath"
Mrs. Percy Ross, Mrs. Addie Carter, Messrs.
Milliken and Crocker.
8. Oration Hon. Jud. C. Brusie
9. Solo—"Rest, Weary Soldier, thy Warfare is over."
Miss Gertie Carly.
10. Sextette "Sleep, Soldier, Rest."
Mesdames Carter, Bidwell, Larkin, Misses
Harrison, Hatch and Dake.
11. Solo—"Tender and True" Lyle
Miss Irma Fitch.
12. Overture Orchestra
13. Solo—"The Last Command" Miss Grace Hatch
14. "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" Orchestra
15. Recitation "Wounded," in character
Albert Hart.
16. "America"
Accompanist—Miss Louise Milliken.

CENSUS NOTES.

Enumerators are forbidden to give any information of their work, under penalty of a criminal prosecution.

An effort will be made to have a per diem fixed for enumerators in all the difficult and thinly settled districts of the 2d Supervisor District. Our Pacific Coast people do not relish the idea of working for the rates which might be acceptable to those on the Atlantic side.

Any one refusing to answer the schedule questions in the matter of taking the census, is liable to prosecution for misdemeanor, it being such to refuse to give the required information. All citizens should be prompt as well as ready in giving the enumerators the necessary information.

On the 22d day of June the work of collecting statistics of manufactures for the report of the eleventh census will be inaugurated throughout the entire country. The value of this report must depend wholly upon the accuracy and thoroughness with which manufacturers answer the questions propounded.

After an enumerator has undertaken the work of enumeration he is not at liberty to quit at pleasure, but must complete his work under the penalty of prosecution for misdemeanor for refusal or neglect. Accident or illness is the only excuse. The law is very strict in this regard.

Enumerators for Stockton, Sacramento and Oakland will not be required to obtain any statistics concerning mechanical industries, as in these cities there will be special enumerators for that duty. Unless special enumerators are selected for institutions such as almshouses, asylums, prisons, colleges, etc., the district enumerators will take the census of all institutions in his district.

There seems to be a little confusion regarding the boundaries of enumerator districts in Amador and San Joaquin counties. It must be understood that the districts were established on the township boundaries of 1880. The township and ward boundaries of those counties, as they existed in 1880, were accepted because the Supervisor of Census was not advised of any changes. In Calaveras county the changes were known, and thus the districts were framed in accordance therewith.

The following special enumerators have been commissioned by Major W. A. Anderson, Supervisor of Census, under instructions from Census Bureau at Washington: T. Grady, for California Institutions for Deaf Dumb and Blind, Berkeley; Mrs. Clara Case, for Home for Aged Women, etc., N. Temescal; Mrs. John Yule, for Pabola Hospital Association, Oakland; Joseph Sanders, for Industrial Home for Mechanical Trades for Adult Blind, Oakland; Sister Superior, for Grass Valley Orphan Asylums; W. H. Robinson, for Folsom State Prison; H. W. Taylor, Insane Asylum, Stockton; Mrs. W. C. Ramsey, for Stockton Business College and Normal Institute.

Enumerator Districts.

Following are the divisions of the wards of Oakland into sub-districts for the coming census:

District 1.—First ward, first—Commencing at the intersection of the bay and San Francisco and Seventh street, south side of Seventh street to Adeline street, on the west side of Adeline street to the bay and along the bay to Seventh street.

District 2.—First ward, second—Commencing at the intersection of the bay and Seventh street, north side of Seventh street to Adeline street, west side of Adeline street to Tenth street, on the south side of Tenth street to Peralta street, west side of Peralta street to Lincoln, to the bay, along shore of bay to Seventh street.

District 3.—First ward, third—Commencing at the intersection of the bay and Lincoln street, north side of Lincoln street to Peralta street, from Peralta to Tenth street, north side Tenth street to Adeline street, west side of Adeline street to Fourteenth street, south side of Fourteenth street to bay, along shore of bay to Lincoln.

District 4.—First ward, fourth—Commencing at the intersection of the bay and Fourteenth street, north side of Fourteenth street to Adeline, west side of Adeline street to Twentieth street, south side of Twentieth street to the bay, along bay to Fourteenth street.

District 5.—First ward, fifth—Commencing at the intersection of the bay and Twentieth street, north side of Twentieth street to Adeline, west side of Adeline to charter line, south side of charter line to the bay, along bay to Twentieth street.

District 6.—Second ward, first—Commencing at the intersection of Adeline and Twentieth street, on the east side of Adeline street to charter line, south side of charter line to Grove street, on the west side of Grove street to Twentieth street, and north side of Twentieth street to Adeline street.

District 7.—Second ward, second—Commencing at the intersection of Twentieth and Grove streets, east side of Grove to charter line, south side of charter line to Wild Cat Gulch, west side of the gulch to Lake Merritt, west shore of Lake Merritt to Twentieth street, north side of Twentieth street to Grove street.

District 8.—Third ward, first—Commencing at the intersection of Tenth and Adeline streets, east side of Adeline street to Twentieth street, south side of Twentieth street to Brush street, west side of Brush street to Tenth street, north side of Tenth street to Adeline street.

District 9.—Third ward, second—Commencing at the intersection of Tenth and Brush streets, east side of Brush to Twentieth street, south side of Twentieth to Broadway, west side of Broadway to Tenth street, north side of Tenth to Brush.

District 10.—Fourth ward, first—Commencing at the intersection of Adeline street and the water front, east side of Adeline to Fifth, south side of Fifth to Brush street, west side of Brush to water front, water front to Adeline.

District 11.—Fourth ward, second—Commencing at the intersection of Adeline and Fifth streets, east side of Adeline to Tenth street, south side of Tenth to Brush, west side of Brush to Fifth, north side of Fifth to Adeline.

District 12.—Fourth ward, third—Commencing at the intersection of Brush and Fifth streets, east side of Brush to Tenth street, south side of Tenth to Broadway, west side of Broadway to Fifth, north side of Fifth to Brush.

District 13.—Fourth ward, fourth—Commencing at intersection of the water front and Brush street, east side of Brush street to Fifth street, south side of Fifth to Broadway, west side of Broadway to the water front, along water front to Brush street.

District 14.—Fifth ward, first—Commencing at the intersection of Broadway and Tenth streets, east side of Broadway to charter line, south side charter line to Lake Merritt, west shore of Lake Merritt to Tenth street, north side Tenth street to Broadway.

District 15.—Sixth ward, first—Commencing at the intersection of Broadway and the water front, east side Broadway to Fifth street, south side Fifth street to water front, along water front to Broadway.

District 16.—Sixth ward, second—Commencing at the intersection of Broadway and Fifth streets, east side Broadway to Tenth street, south side Tenth street to water front, along water front to Fifth street, north side of Fifth street to Broadway.

District 17.—Seventh ward, first—Commencing at the intersection of water front and Sixth avenue, east line water front to Lake Merritt, east shore Lake Merritt to Indian Gulch, south side Indian Gulch to Clinton street, west side Clinton street to Sixth avenue, west side Sixth avenue to water front.

District 18.—Seventh ward, second—Commencing at intersection of water front and Sixth avenue, east side Sixth avenue to Clinton street, east side Clinton street to charter line, south side charter line to county road to Moraga valley, west side of road to Thirteenth avenue, west line of Thirteenth avenue to water front, along water front to Sixth avenue.

District 19.—Seventh ward, third—Commencing at the intersection of Thirteenth avenue and the water front, east line of Thirteenth avenue to county road, east side of county road to charter line, south side of Milbury street west to charter line, west side charter line to water front, along water front to Thirteenth avenue.

District 20.—Oakland township, West Berkeley and Ocean View.

District 21.—Oakland township, Temescal and Bay View.

District 22.—Eden township, San Leandro and San Lorenzo.

District 23.—Eden township, Haywards, Mt. Eden and Castro Valley.

District 24.—Washington township, Alvarado and Centerville.

District 25.—Washington township, Niles and Mission.

District 26.—Murray township, Sunol, Dublin and Pleasanton.

District 27.—Murray township, Livermore and Altamont.

District 28.—Brooklyn township, all outside of Oakland.

District 29.—Alameda township, commencing at the intersection of Harrison street and San Leandro bay, along the west and north shores of San Leandro bay to Park, east line of Park to Harrison street, south side of Harrison street to San Leandro bay, also that part of Alameda west of Euclid street.

District 30.—Alameda township, commencing at the intersection of Euclid street and the bay, east side of Euclid street to the water front, along water front to Willow street, west side of Willow street to bay, and along the shore of bay to Euclid street.

District 31.—Alameda township, commencing at the intersection of Willow street and the bay, on the east side of Willow street to Encinal line, on the south and west of Encinal line to bay, along shores of bay to Harrison street, on the west side of Park street to bay, and along shore of bay to Willow street.

District 32.—Alpine county.

Amador county is divided into six districts:

District 33.—Township 1, including Jackson.

District 34.—Township 2, which embraces Ione city.

District 35.—Township 3, Volcano.

District 36.—Township 4, Sutter Creek and Amador.

District 37.—Township 5, Drytown.

District 38.—Township 6, Plymouth and Fiddletown.

Calaveras county has five districts:

District 39.—Angels township.

District 40.—San Andreas.

District 41.—Jenny Lind.

District 42.—Murphys.

District 43.—Mokelumne.

Contra Costa county has five districts:

District 44.—Township 1, Martinez, Pinole, San Pablo, Port Costa, Crockett and Selby.

District 45.—Township 2, Lafayette, Walnut Creek and Davisville.

District 46.—Township 3, Pacheco and Concord.

District 47.—Township 4, Clayton, Nortonville, Summerville and New York.

District 48.—Township 5, Antioch, Empire, Brentwood and Byron.

El Dorado county has eight districts:

District 49.—Lake Valley and Georgetown townships.

District 50.—Mountain and Cosumnes.

District 51.—Coloma and White Oak.

District 52.—Kelsey, Greenwood and Salmon Falls.

District 53.—Mud Springs.

District 54.—City of Placerville.

District 55.—Placerville township, outside of city.

District 56.—Diamond Springs.

Nevada county, eleven districts:

District 57.—Nevada township, that part lying south of Deer creek.

District 58.—Nevada township, that portion lying north of Deer creek to suspension bridge, along south line of Blue Tent road to South Yuba river.

District 59.—Nevada township, that portion lying north of Deer creek to suspension bridge, along north line of Blue Tent road to South Yuba river.

District 60.—Grass Valley township, that portion lying south and west of Bear river, to the old stage road to Colfax, west of said road to the town of Grass Valley, and along the east side of Wolf creek to Bear river.

District 61.—Grass Valley township, that portion lying north and east of the old stage road to Colfax.

District 62.—Grass Valley township, that portion lying north and west of Wolf creek, including the town of Grass Valley, thence along the narrow gauge railroad to the township line.

District 63.—North Bloomfield and Eureka townships.

District 64.—Washington and Little York.

District 65.—Bridgeport.

District 66.—Rough and Ready.

District 67.—Meadow Lake.

Placer county, seven districts:

District 68.—Townships 1 and 9, Roseville, Allen, Newcastle, Rocklin and Pino.

District 69.—Township 10, Lincoln and Sheridan.

District 70.—Township 3, Auburn and Clipper Gap.

District 71.—Townships 5 and 6, Todd's Valley, Forest Hill, Bath and Michigan Bluff.

District 72.—Township 4, Colfax, Gold Run and Dutch Flat.

District 73.—Townships 7, 8 and 11, Iowa Hill, Damascus, Deadwood, Tahoe, Last Chance, Cisco, Summit, Martins Valley and Griffith.

District 74.—Ophir and Virginia.

Sacramento county, twenty-four districts; Sacramento City:

District 75.—All that portion north of K street and west of 4th street, including Slater's addition.

District 76.—All north of K street and between 4th and 7th streets.

District 77.—All north of K street and between 7th and 10th streets.

District 78.—All north of K street and between 10th and 12th streets.

District 79.—All south of K and west of 2d street; also, all south of O and west of 4th street.

District 80.—All south of K between 2d and 4th streets, and north of O street.

District 81.—All south of K between 4th and 6th streets.

District 82.—All south of K between 6th and 8th streets.

District 83.—All south of K between 8th and 10th streets.

District 84.—All south of K between 10th and 14th streets.

District 85.—All south of K between 14th and 19th streets.

District 86.—All south of K between 19th and 31st streets.

District 87.—All north of K between 12th and 14th streets.

District 88.—All north of K between 14th and 19th streets.

District 89.—All north of K between 19th and 31st streets.

District 90.—Sutter township.

District 91.—Granite.

District 92.—Lee and Cosumnes.

District 93.—Alabama and Dry Creek.

District 94.—Franklin.

District 95.—San Joaquin.

District 96.—American and Center.

District 97.—Natoma and Mississippi.

District 98.—Georgiana.

District 99.—Brighton.

San Joaquin county, twelve districts; City of Stockton:

District 100.—First ward—All that portion of the city lying west of Hunter street and south of Weber avenue.

District 101.—Second ward—That portion commencing at the intersection of Tule street and Weber avenue; north side of Weber avenue to California street; west side of California to Flora street; south side of Flora to Tule street; west side of Tule street to Weber avenue.

District 102.—Second ward—That portion commencing at the intersection of California street and Weber avenue; north side of Weber avenue to East street; east side of East to Park street; south side of Park to California street; east side of California to Weber avenue.

District 103.—Second ward—That portion commencing at the intersection of East and Park streets; north side of Park to California street; east side of California to Flora street; north side of Flora to Tule street, being all that portion of the Second ward lying north of Park and Flora streets.

District 104.—Third ward—That portion commencing at the intersection of Sonora and Hunter streets; north side of Sonora to East street; east side of East to Weber avenue; south side of Weber avenue to Hunter street; east side of Hunter to Sonora street.

District 105.—Third ward—That portion commencing at the intersection of Sonora and Hunter streets; south side of Sonora to East street; east side of East to South street; south side of South to Hunter street; east side of Hunter to Sonora street.

District 106.—O'Neil township.

District 107.—Union and Library.

District 108.—Elliott.

District 109.—Elkhorn.

District 110.—Dent.

District 111.—Castoria and Tulare.

District 112.—Douglass.

Tuolumne county, five districts:

District 113.—Sonora.

District 114.—Township 1 outside of Sonora.

District 115.—Township 2.

District 116.—Township 3.

District 117.—Township 4.

The Nonpareil!

Cor. 5th and J Streets,

Monday June 2, at 9 A. M.

GREAT SALE of SILKS

Thousands of Yards of Surahs, Gros
Grains, Rhadames,
Radzimers, Brocades, Stripes and
Plaids, Reduced to

25c, 50c, 75c, $1.00 PER YARD.

Goods on Exhibition all week.

NEW ITEMS. Cart For Sale!

NEARLY NEW!

CHEAP FOR CASH!

C. A. FISK, - 408 J Street.

Sizes now complete in all the grades of Thomson's Glove-fitting Corsets.

Thomson's Summer Corset, $1.

Infants' fast black, fine quality, ribbed Cotton Hose, 45c.

Infants' cream white Swiss ribbed
Silk Vests, sizes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, price, $1.25, $1.35, $1.50,
$1.65, $1.75.

Little Misses' Parasols, 25c, 50c,
70c, 80c, $1, $1.25.

Children's Gauze Vests, 20c, 25c, and 35c.

Ladies' Gauze Vests, 25c.

W. I. Orth,

630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

Fine Table
Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans
Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL
HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND
HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND
SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO
OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

THE PATTEN OF THE SHINGLE.

When the angry passion gathering in my mother's face I see
And she leads me in the bedroom—gently lays me on her knee
Then I know that I will catch it and my flesh in fancy itches
As I listen for the patter of the shingle on my breeches.

Every tinkle of the shingle has an echo and a sting.
And a thousand burning fancies into active being spring;
And a thousand bees and hornets 'neath my coat-tail seem to swarm.
As I listen to the patter of the shingle, O, so warm!
In a splutter comes my father—whom I supposed had gone—
To survey the situation, and tell her to lay it on;
To see her bending o'er me as I listen to the strain
Played by her and by the shingle in a wild and weird refrain.

In a sudden intermission, which appears my only chance,
I say: "Strike gently mother, or you'll split my Sunday pants."
She stops a moment, draws her breath, the shingle holds aloft,
And says: "I had not thought of that—my son, just take them off."

Holy Moses! and the angels, cast your pitying glances down,
And thou, O, family doctor, put a good soft poultice on;
And may I with fools and dunces everlastingly commingle
If ever I say another word when mother wields the shingle.

A Night Reporter's Observation.

Told at the Central Station: I wonder why it is that women most always answer the ring or the knock at the door at night? My business, of course, often compels me to call at unseasonable hours. I have noticed that the later the hour the more apt is a woman to answer. Is it because the man is a coward or because he is out at a club somewhere and his wife is waiting up for him? Nine times out of ten if the man is at home and he can be induced to answer, he raises a front window and sticks out his head and asks: "What is it?" A woman's query is: "Who's there?"—Chicago Tribune.

The Country Editor.

He riseth in the morning and knoweth not what a day may bring forth. If he telleth all the news he runneth a great risk of having a tin ear put on him; and if he telleth not the news, the people say he is n. g., and there is no joy in it. The crafty man cajoleth him into giving him a 50 cent puff for a 5-cent cigar, and fond mothers frown on him if he fails to flatter their freckled-faced broods; and all his ways are ways of woe, and his days are full of sorrow. The life insurance man setteth snares for him, and on the whole he hath a deuce of a time. —German-toren Republican.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavit or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at (1) J Street, 1st stairs, Sacramento.
Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.

JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON,
Attorneys for Administrator my10-5t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO—ss. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

In the matter of A. E. Votaw, an insolvent debtor. A. E. Votaw having filed in this Court her petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, by which appears that she is an insolvent debtor, the said A. E. Votaw is hereby declared to be insolvent.

The Sheriff of the County of Sacramento is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all her deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of her estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to her or to any person, firm or corporation or association, for her use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered that all the creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Honorable Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Sacramento, in open Court, at the Court room of said Court, on the sixth day of June, 1890, at 1:30 o'clock P. M. of that day, to prove their debts, choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered that the order be published in the THEMIS, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Sacramento, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of the creditors.

And it is further ordered that in the meantime all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed.

Dated, April 21st, 1890.
JOHN W. ARMSTRONG,
Judge of the Superior Court.

WILLIAM A. GETT, JR.,
Attorney for Petitioner. apr26-5t

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE AND CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO.,
703 J Street, Sacramento. Agents.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

BUFFALO

BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates.

Give it a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. my17

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

Gattmann & Wilson,

IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN

Fancy and Staple DRY GOODS

601 J STREET. SACRAMENTO.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

Gas and Steam Fitter.

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
9:30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6:20 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6:45 P
6:25 P	Knight's Landing	7:40 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6:00 A
3:00 P	Oroville	10:30 A
3:00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willows	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7:25 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
6:45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9:10 P
10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	8:00 A
10:50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara	9:55 A
6:45 A	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa	7:25 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno	6:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno	6:00 A
12:05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:45 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo	7:25 P
7:00 A	Placerville (Mixed)	4:50 P
5:00 P	Folsom	9:00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

DEALERS IN

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES

CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENWARE, CIGARS,

TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.

1109 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Farth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from.....	$25
Stylish Pants made to order.....	6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from.....	25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from.....	30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from.....	40

And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Marinosa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

TUFTS'

Yerbine COUGH Balsam

WILL

CURE YOUR COUGH, COLD, OR INFLUENZA sure, or money refunded.

A. C. Tufts, Druggist, 10th and J Sts.

C. H. Stephenson, DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Of the School of Journalism.

The heavy editorial writer went into the managing editor's room, and said: "Colonel, I am afraid I cannot reflect credit on the paper in the morning."

"Ah," responded the managing editor, "that is strange. You have been with us only two weeks, and now you come and tell me that you cannot reflect credit on our paper after having done so much. I fear, sir, that our readers will complain. You are the life of the sheet you know."

"Yes, I know that; but you know that there are times when the human mind, no matter how well it may be trained, refuses to work. My mind is not working to-day."

"Got a lay off, eh?"

"I don't know what you mean by lay off, but I tell you in all candor—for I am very frank—that my mind is not working to-day. The mind, sir, when it has been overburdened with thought, must needs lie down and rest."

"Yes, so I have heard."

"Ah, so you have heard," said the editorial writer. "I understand and fully appreciate your meaning. Your mind never needs the rest which mine must have, for you do not write anything. You merely read the thoughts that other men have put down."

"That's all."

"And how you must appreciate your position," the editorial writer declared. "You have nothing to do but drink at the fountain erected for you by others. But don't you think that after awhile you might be able to write something? Such reading, you know, must after a time improve the mind."

"I have hoped so," said the managing editor.

"Ah, and I trust that your hopes may be realized, for since my connection with this paper, I have taken an interest in you."

"Thank you," said the managing editor. "By the way, how long have you been a newspaper man?"

"I have been a journalist ever since my connection with the college, and I have ever been a thinker. I am sorry, sir, that my mind is not working to-day, for I have something of great importance to write."

"Pray don't mention it; but, stay, give the porter your subject, and doubtless he will write it up for you. There, now, I have offended you. How can I ever forgive myself? How I wish that I could recall those hasty words. Perhaps it were better that you leave the paper."

"Oh, no, I forgive your thoughtlessness."

"You may, but I cannot," the managing editor declared. "You must leave, though it should kill the paper."

"I will stand by the paper."

"No, I don't think you will. Here, Bill (calling the porter), show this old blather-skite out. Good bye, sir. You are the last professor from the school of journalism that shall have a trial on this sheet."—Arkansas Traveler.

So confident are the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy in their ability to cure Chronic Catarrh in the Head, no matter how bad or how long standing, that they offer in good faith, the above reward, for a case which they cannot cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.

Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness, difficulty of clearing throat, expectoration of offensive matter, breath offensive; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. Only a few of these symptoms likely to be present at once. Thousands of cases result in consumption, and end in the grave.

By its mild, soothing, antiseptic, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases. "Cold in the Head" is cured with a few applications. Catarrhal Headache is relieved and cured as if by magic. It removes offensive breath, loss or impairment of the sense of taste, smell, or hearing, watering or weak eyes, and impaired memory, which caused by the violence of Catarrh, as they all frequently are. Sold by druggists, at fifty cents. Manufactured by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS Purely Vegetable. Gently Laxative, or Cathartic, according to size of dose. By druggists. 25 cents a vial.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal.

The popular market men, Garzoli & Genis, at 712 K street, are daily receiving choice strawberries, new potatoes, and in fact everything in the market line. Give them a call. 712 K street. Telephone No. 188.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers.

Of extra value—men's open-front linen bosom (fine-pleats) dress shirts, $1.00; men's dress shirts, open front and back, Marseilles bosoms, $1.50; men's dress overshirts in flannel and silk, 50 cents to $3.90. Red House.

Our Strides in Millinery.

Extra exertions, extra help and an extra stock of the very latest in flowers, long French sprays, wreaths, buds, etc.; also, Leghorn hats, chip hats in bleach and white, and dress hats of an endless variety of styles, all new and fresh; no old shop-worn goods in the department. Boys' and girls' sailor hats by the case, price ranging from 15 cents to $1.35. Ladies do an injustice to themselves if they do not buy their goods of us, when the profits are equalized in their different departments, at Red House.

Surgery's Advance.

Some remarkable achievements in surgery are reported from Berlin. At the Surgical Congress Professor Gluck demonstrated the successful substitution of catgut, ivory and bone freed from chalk for defects in bones, muscles and nerve sinews. The juices of the body are sucked up in the inserted material, thereby establishing the junction of the separated ends without any shortening of the part. He presented the cases of patients in whom there had been an insertion of from six to ten centimeters of catgut to supply defects in the leaders of the hands, to which complete mobility had been restored. In the case of another patient, Professor Gluck removed a tumor from the thigh, causing a considerable defect in the bone. He inserted ivory, and no shortening ensued. In another case, he removed a large piece of nerve in the groin and inserted catgut, and the functions remained completely satisfactory.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES
212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER.

1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER.

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors
and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN,
Formerly of Agricultural Park.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE LEMMS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, MAY 31, 1890.

No. 15.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

Since the return of Mr. J. V. Coleman, of San Francisco, from Europe, where he has been in company with his mother for the benefit of her shattered health, there has arisen quite a boom in Democratic circles in his interest for the gubernatorial nomination at the San Jose convention next August. Prior to his return his name was heard now and again among a few, especially among the younger of his acquaintances; but then it was all based on possible availability and popularity among the young men of the State. Now, however, the boom in his favor has assumed definite shape, till he in reality has quite a following, and the circle of his friends grows apace as the time for holding the convention comes nearer. With the Democratic Convention or its ticket we have nothing to do; with the individual aspirants who will go before it for preferment we have no controversy, but we only speak of this special case to cite it as another example of the power of money in all things, particularly with the managing manipulators of political fights. Of Mr. Coleman's character as a gentleman and as a good citizen nothing but good can be said, and as for his attainments, it is presumable that he profited by the opportunities he had of going to some of the best educational institutions in the State, just as thousands of other young men have before him and will hereafter; but let us suppose for a moment that Mr. Coleman was a poor man, but possessed of the mental riches of a Socrates, who, of all his acquaintances in California, would ever think of associating his name with a nomination for Governor? Or, being wealthy, as he is now, suppose by misfortune he became insolvent a few days before his convention is to sit, how many of his present enthusiastic friends would there be found to think him fit to be Governor? Then is it not Mr. Coleman's possession of wealth that makes him appear so fitted for the place?

It has always been a source of wonder why the poor young man of education, of erudition, of scholarly attainment—the young man who devotes his life to the cultivation of his talents by close application and constant study, is never thought of in connection with official position when conventions are held. No; the designing, political buzzard is hovering about and keeps a keen eye open for his prey, and stands prepared to devour him just as soon as the victim's pride and vanity can be tempted by the offer of public office. It is not an answer to the general question to say that because a young man is rich he should be encouraged to seek office and thus enable him to do something besides pass his time in bar-rooms and at the card table, or even in worse pastimes. It will not do; for no one will dare advance the idea that a young man, at least not in California, who is poor, be he ever so learned, can ever be thought of for a high office in either party. We can name hundreds of young gentlemen in this State, who are of excellent attainment in literary pursuits, and whose lives are devoted to the constant pursuit of knowledge, and whose private lives and characters are as pure as man's can be, yet who cannot think of aspiring to office simply because God made them poor. This condition of affairs characterizes not only California but has its footing all over our country. It is too well known that only the rich or the dishonest dare make an effort to rise above the level of his poverty by the path of politics, beset as that path is with rapacious and dishonest managers, whose idea of patriotism is gauged by the size of a candidate's pocketbook. It speaks badly for the future of our country.

We believe that the lawyers of Sacramento should organize a Bar Association. The proposition has been discussed for years, but for some reason or other it has been delayed from time to time and nothing has been done. Sacramento occupies a commanding position both geographically and commercially speaking. The various small towns, that are in a measure connected with and dependent upon our city, look for aid, comfort and advice to our ably conducted Board of Trade. At our Board of Trade are discussed all questions that in any wise affect our material prosperity. For the very reason that we have no Bar Association the Board of Trade naturally is compelled to discuss and settle questions that more properly should be determined by our lawyers. The discussion of the settlement of the city bond question—the method of payment of our city debt, the adoption and passage of a new city charter—the powers and correct procedure of our Board of Trustees in letting contracts for improving our streets, and all matters of interest that are peculiarly within the province of a Bar Association.

But there are other matters that are crying out for the immediate attention of the lawyers of Sacramento. There is no standard by which any lawyer or citizen can gauge the settlement of fees for legal services rendered. That all men are worthy of their hire, is a trite maxim, and is as applicable to lawyers as to any other trade or profession. It is popularly believed that lawyers are very much overpaid for the services they render. This is not true in fact. The vast mass of litigation and office work that is attended to in cities of the size of Sacramento, and in smaller towns where there are no bar associations is done at rates which are positively ruinous to the pocket of the lawyer. In order to obtain a competence, the lawyer must do a large amount of business. If he obtains it he cannot attend to it all carefully. He cannot give each case that amount of preparation that it requires to bring about a satisfactory result. The successful lawyers of the world are those who take but few causes a year, and by exhaustive labor upon each case, present all the law upon the issues involved therein. And then not being bound down by any standard of fees, they are enabled to adopt Judah P. Benjamin's rule: "First a retainer; then a reminder; then a refresher, and lastly a finisher."

Another fruitful cause of trouble to litigants arises from the fact that it has grown to be a common practice for clients to present a line of facts to their lawyer and say that in case there is any litigation to arise out of the matter, he will be employed, and then only a comparatively small fee is promised him. The lawyer thus impressed cannot, in the nature of things, view the facts with the same unprejudiced mind that he could if paid for the actual work he did. Again, a lawyer is an officer of the Court. No judge can know all the law, and in the hurry of a trial the Court must, to some extent, depend upon the interpretation of the law by counsel. A tricky, unscrupulous lawyer, knowing this to be a fact, can in some measure impose upon a Court. Again, there are lawyers who will stoop to the most despicable tricks to obtain business, and having obtained it will resort to the same methods of chicanery to obtain verdicts. The evils to which we have alluded to can easily be redressed by a Bar Association. This association could in a large measure regulate the fees in given cases, and in case of dereliction of duty, or the chicanery of any attorney, the association would be powerful enough to bring the offender to the bar of justice. A properly conducted Bar Association would be of incalculable benefit to the community at large. It has been said "that personal security and private property rest largely upon the wisdom, the stability and the integrity of Courts of Justice."

In all large cities the question of the personnel of the judiciary is almost exclusively left to the dictation of the bar associations. As much as possible the question of the political complexion of a candidate is eliminated. Candidates for the bench are chosen not on account of the "pull" they may have in politics, but for their honesty, ability and fitness for the position; and let it be once promulgated that a candidate has secured the support of the bar, he is almost certain of election. We, therefore, in the interests of the lawyers themselves, and the community at large, call upon the lawyers of Sacramento to immediately take steps to organize a Bar Association.

The political campaign in this State that is approaching is of peculiar importance. It means the selection of the entire State, Congressional and county tickets, and the election also of members of the Legislature that will be called upon to choose a United States Senator. As we have heretofore said, we have confidence the Republican Conventions will present acceptable tickets. Ex-Congressman Markham has been suggested as a candidate for the gubernatorial office. So also has General N. P. Chipman. Either will be acceptable. We are fully aware that against Markham considerable mud has been unjustly thrown. His career in Congress we have never heard adversely criticised, and about all that has been said against him has been by men who were not Republicans four years ago. Gen. Chipman served with credit in the civil war; for several years he was a member of Congress from the District of Columbia, and since he has resided in this State has made many friends. Lately a movement has been inaugurated, that has considerable significance, in favor of Congressman Morrow for Governor. There can be no mistaking that the backing of Morrow is strong. Either of these men, if nominated, should receive the support of the party and of the people.

We have intimated that there should be a reconciliation of the Republicans in this county. We are gratified the expressions we have made looking to that end have been received with favor by very many earnest Republicans. The disruption here has simply hurt. It has brought about the election of a Democratic Board of City Trustees. It is hard to say it, yet the fact is, that this city is about without governmental heads, and that with a population of upwards of 30,000, and property of value about $26,000,000, we have not the management we are entitled to. It will not be seriously contended that if the important interests we have were the property of a private individual or a corporation they would be entrusted in the hands of the gentlemen whom the people of this city have selected to control. This has resulted because the people have paid so little attention to matters political in the past. The grasp of the petty politician is dangerously near the municipal throat. We fully understand that the power of a public journal avails only when it speaks with truth and justice. We believe the people of Sacramento fully appreciate the dilemma in which they have placed themselves. The people are alone to blame. They have had opportunities to nominate and elect municipal officers of capacity and good judgment, and have simply thrown those opportunities away. So far as the citizens are concerned, they have confidence in the city, yet it must be said our men of capital do not feel disposed to place their money here in important enterprises. The reason is very well understood. The man who invests money in property in Sacramento is compelled to assume a mortgage to cover the follies of the past administrations. This city has been a mendicant before the Legislatures and tribunals of this State. Her representatives in the Legislature have been compelled to beg; the calendar of the Supreme Court has been loaded down with cases in which Sacramento city pleads poverty. At this very time a case is there pending, wherein the city is seeking to avoid the payment of the wages due to some police officers, who performed their services, and who in conscience should have the money they earned. We are also confronted with the proposition that our schools must be closed, because the funds in that department will exhaust. It simply means in both of these cases that the Trustees have made an insufficient tax levy. We do not believe if the revenues of this city are properly collected and applied there will be any necessity for this condition of affairs.

We have heretofore spoken of the management of the city waterworks—an important source of municipal revenue. It is a fact, as we stated in former numbers, that bills against citizens have been permitted to run an unreasonable length of time without presentation; that bills have been presented to citizens when the money had been paid and the receipts were in existence; that on the incoming of the present clerk the delinquencies were formidable, and that no attention has been paid to the laws and ordinances governing that department. We had occasion to inquire into these matters recently at that office, and the excuse was made us that the collectors could not be held responsible, in that they were accountable to a superior, and had to do as he directed. It is very unfortunate if there has been such a superior; is equally unfortunate if the people of this city had subordinates who would obey instructions to do wrong. The controlling officer in a public position does of course control those under him, but only so far as he directs them right. Again, in reference to the matter of the presentation of bills that had been paid and their payments evidenced by receipts, the excuse was made that a new man had been put on and that perhaps he had got into the wrong houses. In view of these matters and these admissions we can only say it is of little use for our business men to put signs over their stores, and for our people to have their numbers on their houses, unless the city authorities will employ a small boy to interpret what they mean to the persons who are collecting revenues. It is certainly apparent from what little we have been able to ascertain, that the water works department has been very loosely conducted and a rigid investigation should be made. No harm can come from it; good might result. As it has been managed, we sincerely believe the city has lost much money to which it was entitled.

Gentlemen of prominence, and who have concern in the advancement of Sacramento, have spent much time and labor to bring about the improvement of our streets and levees, and to advance the city materially. It strikes us, however, we can never attain that end unless there will be a little more business shown in the management of our municipal government; and certainly it is, the people of this city must pay more attention than they have to the selection of their officers. If we had three men of business ability at the head of our city government it would result in the abolition of the Monday matinees that occur at the City Hall, yet in benefit to the inhabitants.

The oldest ruins in the world are probably the rock-cut temples of Ipsambut, in Nubia, on the left bank of the Nile. They are over 4000 years old.

[Written for THEMIS.]

FORTUITIES OF GREATNESS.

How complex and delicate is our mental organization! Where shall we find a comparison that will aid in conveying our meaning? There is nothing in the whole range of art sufficiently nice in its structure or sensitive to the touches of external influence to represent the nature of our intellectual and moral mechanism. As God is infinitely above man, and as humanity is his master-piece, so must the most perfect manifestations of human genius be infinitely inferior in sublimity, beauty and delicacy, to the constitution of man.

The mind has been compared to an instrument of many strings, susceptible to the slightest touch or the faintest breath; but the Mozarts, the Haydns, and the Beethovens of music strive in vain to tell us of the delicacy of that spiritual harp of a hundred strings which the Almighty has strung with the fibres of the human brain. As an instrument of music with many notes is capable of many and most delightful memories when rightly attuned and skillfully played, so the multiplied notes or organs of the mind, when struck by proper influences from without, realizes our highest ideals of angelic music; and as, on the other hand, when a complicated instrument is discordant and unskillfully played, the most frightful charivari is produced; so an external combination of evil influences produces on the mind all the discords of moral and intellectual madness which are exhibited in the dark history of human life.

Did you ever reflect on the extreme delicacy of the thoughts, feelings, emotions and susceptibilities of human nature? Did you ever notice the nicety of that mental balance which is essential to a perfect existence? How trifling seems the circumstance that sometimes turns the scale and fills up a life of misery that should be constantly overflowing with unbidden joy! Often we see a spirit, or rather the embodiment of the invisible spirit, that seems in all respects ordained for nobility and happiness become the source of keenest anguish and most startling deformity of moral life, by a simple breathing of an untoward breath. On the other hand, we occasionally see one that, apparently doomed to ruin in all its ruling loves, at once rise almost to an angel of light and beauty by the influence of a trifling circumstance.

If it would be interesting to you to study this subject, glance with me into the history of Greatness and note the examples I have marked of glory and immortality, completely won, that once trembled with the weight of a breath or was suspended with less than a spider's web. Perhaps we shall be impressed with some wholesome philosophical truths by such a review, and be better enabled to understand and assist in perfecting a system of mental culture that will save multitudes from misery and contribute much to the sum of human goodness and happiness.

Perhaps the life of William Cowper is as forcible an illustration of this point as can be found, in consequence of its eventful character, in respect to what is called sanity and insanity. In it we shall see how susceptible was his mind to external influences. In it, too, we shall see on how small a point human greatness often hangs.

William Cowper was born in 1730. His father was John Cowper, second son of Judge Cowper, and chaplain to George II. With this parentage we might expect a strong and well-fortified mentality in the son, for his grandfather must have possessed strong abilities to attain a high position in the law, and certainly a man of inferior power could not have obtained the office in the royal household which his father held. But the poet, in his youth, was constitutionally shy and diffident. Familiarity with courtly habits and the manners of high life from the first moment of his existence did not give him sufficient boldness to be himself and maintain his dignity among his fellows. The contention and bustle of a Westminster education did not subdue his timidity in any degree, says his biographer, so that, though he obtained considerable classical education, he said of himself that he "was never able to raise his eye above the shoe buckles of the elder boys, who tyrannized over him." This peculiarity of his character, which finally proved so fatal to his happiness and his mental equilibrium, was probably due to a similar defect in the maternal mind, whose timidity undoubtedly rendered his mother most unhappy in maintaining her position in society. Doubtless the annoyance that afflicted her through this defect immediately previous to the birth of the poet, stamped the same peculiarity on his embryonic mind. Thus we see how trivial a circumstance may produce the greatest consequences to a human being, even before his birth.

From the Westminster seminary Cowper passed to the Inner Temple, where he continued to the age of thirty-three. How he passed this most important period of his life we are not informed. It is certain, however, that even with Lord Thurlow for his preceptor, he made no proficiency in the law. A very few slight pieces of composition are the only productions of fifteen years of literary leisure. This period was spent in idleness and gaiety, but these did not correct the malady of his nature. At the age of thirty-one, his friends procured for him the office of recording clerk to the House of Lords; but the idea of reading in public was a source of such torture and apprehension to him, that he resigned that place, and had influence enough to exchange it for that of the clerk of the journals, which was supposed to require no attendance; but an unlucky dispute in Parliament made it necessary for him to appear in his place. His terrors, continues his biographer, rose to such an astonishing height, that his reason was overwhelmed. For several months he had carefully prepared himself, but he trembled in the belief that his knowledge would all forsake him at the bar of the House. This apprehension increased to such a degree, that when the dreaded day arrived, he was unable to make the experiment. He was compelled to relinquish a station, the prospect of which so seriously affected his constitutional sensibilities. This conflict between his ambition and his diffidence nearly destroyed his health and faculties; so that the efforts of two learned and benevolent divines failed to restore a lasting tranquillity. He was removed to St. Albans, where he resided a considerable time, under the care of the eminent Dr. Cotton, a scholar and a poet of rare accomplishments and peculiar sweetness of manners. After a year's treatment, his mind began to emerge from its confusion, and he began to seek consolation in scriptural studies and religious meditation. He formed an acquaintance with the family of the Rev. Mr. Unwin, with whose widow the greater part of his subsequent life was passed. His letters, at this time, are of a deep devotional cast, and bear evidence of continued depression. After the death of Mr. Unwin, Cowper retired with his widow to the village of Olney, in 1768, where he continued the same pious and secluded habits until 1772, when his faculties were again obscured for the space of eight years, during which, he was attended by Mrs. Unwin with the tenderness and constancy of affection. In 1780 he began to recover, and his first mental employment was the tuning and education of three young hares, which he afterwards celebrated in verse. He was soon induced by his affectionate companion to compose some moral pieces for publication, in the hope of giving some salutary employment to his mind. At the age of fifty, therefore, Cowper began to write with the view of diverting his own melancholy and of subserving the cause of morality. Whether his writings benefited the world or not, it is certain they were most beneficial to himself. In a letter to his cousin he said: "Dejection of spirits, which I suppose may have prevented many a man from becoming an author, made me one. I find constant employment necessary, and therefore take care to be constantly employed. Manual occupations do not engage the mind sufficiently, as I know by experience, having tried many. But composition, especially of verse, absorbs it wholly." In this example we find a mind that oscillated between the total eclipse of a dreadful insanity and the clear radiance of an illuminated genius. We see how little would becloud it, and how essential was a constant employment to the supremacy of his noble powers. How deep must have been that melancholy which settled in thick darkness over his spirit, and how weak must have been the organs of hope to encourage, of self-reliance to sustain, and of combativeness to embolden him!

In this case, too, we see the necessity of action, mental employment, for self-preservation, to have been the harbinger of Cowper's greatness. He learned, when past the middle of life, that he must "be constantly employed," in order to preserve his sanity. In the following facts we find another fortuity of that excellence he attained in the conception and composition of poems which will live as long as the English language shall endure.

His first volume appeared at the close of 1781, but was not popular in consequence of being too serious for one class, too satirical and witty for another, and of too harsh and negligent versification for the public generally. About this time he became acquainted with the widow of Sir Thomas Austin, who became his warm friend, and to whose suggestions are due many of his celebrated productions. "John Gilpin" was suggested by this lady, the story of which was told him from the recollections of her childhood, to dissipate the gloom of the passing hour. The laughter it occasioned kept him awake most of the night, and he converted the story into a ballad. In 1783 this lady also suggested "The Task," which is said to have been the best and most popular of his performances. The anecdote is thus related:

This lady happened as an admirer of Milton, to be partial to blank verse, and often requested her particular friend to try his powers in that species of composition. After repeated solicitations he promised, if she would furnish a subject, to comply with her request. "O," she replied, "you can never be in want of a subject—can write upon any—write upon this sofa!" The poet obeyed her command, and from the lively repartee of familiar conversation arose a poem of many thousand verses, unexampled, perhaps, both in its origin and in its excellence.

The next case I have marked for this connection in that of Alfieri, who was born in Piedmont, in 1749. The extreme susceptibility of his spirit is evidenced in the powerful impression which music made upon his mind. When we notice the influence of the divine art in his case, how brilliantly does his spirit contrast with our dull susceptibilities! He attended the opera, and thus described the effect upon himself:

This varied and enchanting music sunk deep into my soul, and made the most astonishing impressions upon my imagination. I am fully convinced that nothing acts so powerfully on my mind as all species of music, and particularly the sound of female voices, and of contralto. Nothing produced more varied or terrific sensations in my mind. Thus, the plots of the greater number of my tragedies were formed either while listening, or a few hours afterward.

Music is not often valued as a powerful spur to greatness. It is generally regarded as one of the gentle and serene arts, the practice of which will do for an accomplishment, but is of little account as a manifestation of those faculties which lead to renown and immortality. But here we find the latent energies of a great mind awakened from their slumber by the potency of its charms and the inspiration of its harmonies. Under its influence we find the faculties of Alfieri so aroused and attuned that he could conceive the whole compass of a tragedy during a brief concert. Wonderful, too, that the spiritual, soothing strains of music should so stir up the terrible in his soul, as to carry his mind over the track of tragical life! Music, whose office seems generally to be to cheer the afflicted, to revive the drooping, to cure the sick, to console the imprisoned, to allay the passions, and to bind the ferocious beasts with its spell, seems, in this case, to have aroused the lion of the human soul, enabled it to feel its might, and carried it in triumph through one of the most difficult channels of greatness.

The third example is no less than the Bard of Avon, the mere mention of whose name is sufficient to call out the hearty applause of the people of any clime and of any language. In the middle of the sixteenth century, the stage was a mere play-house, that pandered to the vilest tastes and passions of mankind. Little of true excellence or dignity appeared on the boards. It groaned for a deliverer, and humanity sighed for a savior from its corruptions. All at once, the people were delighted with the appearance of the boy Shakespeare at a play-house in London. This thing of the stage was, to his mind, suggestive of mighty intellectual achievements; and thus was a life of poetic glory commenced that has never been eclipsed, and, if it were not too rash, I would say it never will be. Shakespeare elevated and dignified the stage, infused an exalting spirit of virtue into its entertainments, and filled the actor's tongues with those noble sentiments, so exquisitely and sublimely expressed that the vulgar were moved to some loftier conception of the true life. But, as our curiosity is somewhat excited by this man, Shakespeare, how came he at a London play-house? Why, in that period of youthful vigor, while the spirits ran high, and when the mind had no positive enjoyment, William thought it would be nice sport to have an adventure with a band of deer stealers, in robbing the park of Sir Thomas Lacy, near Stratford. But all at once the enjoyment of this adventure was interrupted, when he found himself detected as particeps criminis in that which he had not even dreamed to be anything but good sport. To escape the punishment of the law, William had energy enough to fly from his family and bury himself in the great city of London until Sir Thomas should forget the loss of his deer. Thus did a crime make William the full-sized Shakespeare that we see him to be in his works; and every year, for nearly three centuries, has added to the monument of his renown.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

An odd mistake was made some time ago, writes Tom Keene to the Boston Herald, by a man who had a patriotic turn of mind, a virtue which he thought Shakspeare lacked. We were playing Othello. The man who was playing the Duke of Venice was very imperfect in his lines, and relied a great deal on the prompter. In the first act, third scene, in the council chamber, just after Desdemona and Iago enter, the Duke should say:

I think this tale would win my daughter, too,
Good Brabantio.
Take up this mangled matter at the best.
Men do their broken weapons rather use,
Than their bare hands.

After he had said "Good Brabantio" he was stuck dead. The prompter read him the lines, and was surprised, as was the entire audience, to hear him repeat this remarkable sentence: "Take up the star spangled banner and bear it west."

Sarah Bernhardt is studying a historical play, La Dame du Challant, adapted from the Italian. The action passes at Milan in the 16th century, when Lombardy was the battlefield of French and imperial armies. There will be great scope in it for dress.

Mattie Ferguson, the pretty soubrette of Scanlan's company has bought a farm in Ohio and is going to devote herself to raising chickens during the summer. She is enthusiastic on the subject and spends most of her time planning for the campaign.

Gounod is almost exclusively occupied nowadays with writing religious music, and by doing it he is making very large additions to his fortune. The whole cast of his mind is religious, and he prefers writing for the church to composing for the opera.

Actors are not without superstition says the New York Sun. Their belief in luck is, in a certain sense, a part of their lives. De Wolf Hopper says that he felt alarmed and nervous to an extraordinary degree until to minutes before the curtain went up on his opening night at the Broadway. Then a little present was handed him which revolutionized his feelings and convinced him that nothing but prosperity would follow him during the night. The present was an English silver penny. They are no longer coined and are very rare. The popular name for the coin is "luck penny." Before she went to the theater on Monday night, Rosina Vokes disengaged the "luck penny" from her bangle, placed it in a small silver box, sealed it, and, driving up to the Broadway Theater, left it at the stage door for Mr. Hopper. The comedian carried it all the way through the play, and should any one now attempt to get it away from him he is likely to have an exceedingly diverting struggle.

The knowledge is very general, says the Chicago Herald, that there exists a feeling of jealousy between the two noted English actors, Henry Irving and Wilton Barrett. When the latter first resolved to come to this country it is stated that the feeling on the part of Irving grew very strong, and meeting on the Strand one day, he said in his halting tones: "So—eh—Barrett, I eh—hear you are—eh—going to America." Barrett replied, in his highly dramatic voice: "Well, I had a thought of so doing, Irving." "Well—eh—America is a—eh—young country; good—eh—you know, but you—eh—must discriminate." "So I have a—heard." "What do you—eh—propose to inflict on—eh—them, Barrett?" "Well, I had a first thought of playing Claudius, and then, a—perchance, to give them Hamlet." "Hamlet? Why, I—eh—have played Hamlet there." This was said with such an air of superiority that Barrett was nettled, and he snapped out angrily: "Well, confound you, do you a—think you are the only man that can play Hamlet?" "No! no! But I—eh—think you—eh—are the only man that can't."

Mme. Patti is a philosopher as well as an artiste. "Good looks, which are nothing more than perfect bodily health," she says, "are woman's stock in trade, while her talent, whatever it may be, is her capital. I have treasured both, but in doing so I had to forego many of the pleasures that the multitude of women enjoy. When I do not sing, I go to bed as early as an infant, and always sleep in a room without a fire. I have the window wide open, because I do not think it wise or safe to breathe again the same air. In getting fresh supplies for my lungs I frequently experience bodily discomfort. Then I rest—not momentarily, but whole days at a time. Our clothes and furniture are protected from wear by not using them. As I don't care to wear out I adopt the plan of a good housekeeper to save myself. I don't rock, I don't fret. I never read or allow people to tell me about the horrible or grewsome, for those things distress and worry me, which agitation can do nobody any good, and does me a great deal of injury. I not only believe, but know for a certainty, that women fret away their youth and beauty. Care is a disease of the mind, and as insidious as any that preys upon the body. I have no home cares to bother me, and I don't permit my friends to provide any. Mind, I like women and I love society, but one can pay very dearly for social intercourse and friendship."

Book Chat.

Mary J. Holmes, the novelist, will spend the summer in the Peninsula of Alaska and collect material for another book to be delivered for the holidays.

Leon de Tinseau is one of the new writers who has grown rapidly in public favor. He made his appearance a few years ago. His first novel was well accepted, and his success has been remarkable.

Constantine Constantinowitz, the Grand Duke, recently arrested and imprisoned by the Czar's command for publishing a revolutionary poem, is a newhew of Russia's autocrat. He is 32 years of age, and published his first volume of poems in 1886. This is not the first time a poet has been shabbily treated by an uncle.

M. Filon, a French literary critic, has just estimated that in his latest novel the great realist has introduced no less than fifty-four bloody deeds, and winds up the book with a picture of eighteen railroad cars filled with soldiers rushing on toward certain destruction. The analyst, by some oversight, fails, however, to give us the exact number of the soldiers.

Probably few people, even among devout churchgoers, are aware of the discovery and the publication in this country of what many biblical scholars of high standing regard as a lost book of the Bible. Not a few erudite theologians, indeed, are inclined to accept it as of equal authenticity with some other sections of the Old Testament. Such is the peculiar status of the Book of Enoch. It purports to contain the prophecies of the holy seer, who, translated from earth to heaven, as was Elijah, received his information, not so much by dreams and visions like the prophets of old, but rather on a tour in company with the angels, made to the ends of earth and heaven.

Professional Chat.

Ministers like their little jokes as well as any one else, says the Chicago Herald. Chaplain Wharton, of the Grand Army of the Republic for the State of Wisconsin, is no exception, and he perpetrated one awhile ago which acted as a boomerang; it came back and hit him hard. It was at some G. A. R. affair, where speeches were being made, and one speaker desired to refer to the incident mentioned in the Bible where some one tied the tails of two foxes together. The speaker was at a loss to remember who the person was, and he asked the chaplain. With face as sober as a judge, that gentleman said it was Goliath. The speaker went on with his talk and made his reference, speaking Goliath's name with all confidence. Some one behind pulled his coat-tail and said in a whisper: "It was not Goliath; it was Absalom." This rather knocked him out for a moment, but, quickly recovering, he said: "Well, there appears to be a little discrepancy about who it was that tied the foxes' tails together. As I was not sure about it myself I went to Chaplain Wharton, thinking he should be authority on the matter, and he told me it was Goliath." This so completely turned the laugh upon the chaplain that the speaker got back his composure and finished his remarks in good style.

Senator "Cush" Davis of Minnesota tells the Chicago Herald how he got his first client. He says: "Away back in eighteen hundred and ever so few—yes, that's definite enough—I was trying to practice law in a little town in Northern New York. It was long before the day of corporations and their natural sequence, corporation lawyers, and young men had to hustle for themselves, and a mean, inactive kind of hustling it was. Well, my shingle had been out for about six months, and I had been the busiest man—doing nothing—you can imagine. I began to be discouraged. One day—it was a 3d of May—a man did appear in my office and informed me that he was a stranger, and, needing legal advice, had applied to the local Judge, who had told him to come to me, as it was a well-known fact that I had never lost a suit. I was staggered for a moment, but came to time like a little man and admitted he had heard truly. I had never lost a suit—nor had I, he being my first client. I suppose I should add that the Judge's practical joke made my fortune, but truth compels me to admit that it didn't. It took a great many years of very hard work to do that."

A Western Senator, says the New York Tribune, who was much interested in having a young woman appointed as typewriter in one of the departments, said, after he had used all arguments at his command in her favor: "Well, Mr. Secretary, I hope Miss S— will be appointed, and if you and I stick together I think she will." "That expression makes me think," said the Secretary, "of an old friend of mine, a country lawyer, very clever he was, sharp and bright, with a keen sense of humor. He was at one time arguing a case before a jury of his fellow-townsmen. The lawyer on the other side and the Judge were both from the city. The Judge was a fat, sleek, pompous sort of a man, possessing just the characteristics most irritating to the provincial. The lawyer, a conceited, egotistical snob, had all the law points in his favor, and he imagined the case would be a 'walkover' for him, and that the trial was only a matter of form. It was a case of a corporation against a private individual. The city lawyer represented the corporation, and my friend the individual, who was a neighbor of his. The lawyer for the plaintiffs handled his case in a bullying sort of a way, talked over the jurors' heads and tried to astonish them with his knowledge. My friend made all the foolish points possible, knowing they would be overruled, and did his utmost to irritate the Judge, an irascible old fellow at best. The city lawyer he put in the most ridiculous light possible, poked quiet fun at him, mimicked him slyly and had the jury laughing at the visitors most of the time. After he had finished his argument he said: 'Now, gentlemen of the jury, this city lawyer and this city Judge have come down here to win this case. From the rulings and from the points made I guess they think that no one else knows anything about here; but, gentlemen of the jury, if you and I stick together, I think we can beat them yet.' It is needless to say that notwithstanding the Judge's charge in favor of the plaintiffs, the jury stuck to their fellow-townsmen and found for the defendant."

NOTES.

There are plenty of small potatoes in the market. Indeed, "small potatoes" can be found in very many high public places.

Frozen coffee with whipped cream on top is going to be the popular ice. This will be indeed the queer blending of ice, cream and coffee. What next?

Miss Louise Imogene Guirney, the poetess, thinks nothing of walking twenty miles.—Exchange.

Neither do we; we have more important things to think about.

A real estate firm of this city announces "lots for sale," and advances in praise of their desirability the fact that they are near a brewery. Nothing is said, however, of free beer, and until that privilege is guaranteed, such lots must go begging.

A correspondent in the Record-Union calls on the Improvement Association and Trustees to change the names of our streets. Some months ago THEMIS presented this question to the public in an extended editorial, and gave reasons for the change.

An eminent divine, Rev. Dr. Thomas Dixon, Jr., of New York, in speaking of Sunday newspapers, said: "The Sunday newspaper is no rival of the pulpit. The preacher," he declared, "who cannot hold his own against cold type is not called to preach, and the sooner he quits trying the better for him and the cause he represents." And he added: "To be quite candid, I would rather myself read a live newspaper than listen to a dead man try to preach."

That great storm and world distinction prognosticator Wiggins, has again made a wonderful discovery in earthly disturbances. He claims that the planet Venus, which now shows so bright in the western horizon in the evenings, is the cause of the recent earthquakes. While the goddess Venus was considered by the ancients as the purifier, and at the same time the goddess of corpses, she ought not to be held accountable in these days for Wiggins' reckless prognostications. Indeed Venus, like Eve, has caused trouble enough to mankind without having Wiggins utilize her for a destructive element in these days.

Now come some French doctors who perform the extraordinary surgical operation of removing fat from the human body. An experiment was tried on a literary fat man. The surgeons raised the skin and cut away four and a half pounds of the adipose tissue. The patient was under the influence of chloroform while thus being pared away. The patient is doing well and well pleased at the reduction in his flesh, and proposes to undergo further parings. It may be a little uncomfortable to be fat, even a literary fat man, but we think this degraisage operation is rather a hard alternative. We prefer our adipose.

There is an Alabama man living in Montgomery, who never felt hungry, thirsty, or sleepy in his life. He has gone sixteen days without food, but generally eats once a day. Once he went seven months without more than an hour's sleep. In forty years he has never swallowed a glass of water. This fellow is an undertaker, and certainly must answer the description usually accorded to that class—"cadaverous." He was a Confederate soldier. If all Confederate soldiers had been like him, they might have outwinded Uncle Sam in that bitter contest of a quarter of a century ago. When this fellow dies he will make a fine subject for medical investigation.

The Board of Trustees have acted on our advice, and ordered the apportionment of only 55 per cent of the net water rates into the interest and sinking fund. This action will without doubt bring upon the Treasurer, Auditor, and Trustees legal proceedings. It may transpire that an order for contempt will be invoked against the officers, for disobeying a former order and judgment of the court. But it seems that a full answer to this is the fact of different parties and a different action, not to mention a different formation of the court. What we desire is to again be permitted to present the justice of our cause to the Supreme Court. This will certainly be accorded us.

Astronomers say that the fabulous number of 20,000,000 stars all aglow, can be seen with a powerful telescope. When we consider that the nearest of these is 200,000 times as far from us as the sun, and that it would take from three and a half to twenty-one years for the light which reaches us to cease if they were extinguished, we cannot grasp and hold the vast conception in our minds. Yet it is supposed that each of these is a central sun, with its own colony of planets circling round it, which in size are vastly superior to those of our own solar system, and are traveling through space with such speed that it is impossible for us to comprehend it. The star Sirius is said to be moving fifty-four miles a second, or 194,400 miles per hour, a flaming mass, leading its brood of planets through illimitable space.

It won't be long before there will be interjected in our language the original "coinage" of words by "Josie Armstrong," a bright soubrette character in The Senator. Among the "catchy" words is that of "Woody." The little daughter of the "Secretary of State," in the play, has the favor of everybody and usually manages to have her own way, and when crossed by her father she gives expression to the words: "Don't be 'Woody,'" meaning, doubtless, not to be absurd or objectionable.

A Rev. gentleman by the name of Randolph S. Foster, of Boston, writing upon the influence of the stage and drama, after admitting that he never witnessed a play, says that he does not see how it would have been possible to retain his religion if he had indulged in such frivolous and worldly amusement, so wholly devoid of spirituality and Christian faith. This bigot thinks that spiritual comfort and strength exists only by abstaining from witnessing the drama. Here is a man pretending to be a teacher of men, who condemns the drama, having never seen its presentation. With him anything that is bright and cheerful, or gives amusement is unchristian. The Almighty never intended such an interpretation of religious faith. Such fanatical notions are not religion. The great brainy men of the church do not entertain these narrow and senseless views. The drama is one of the greatest and best educators in the true faith and religion that exists, when properly presented. It was founded by the church.

CENSUS NOTES.

It is estimated that the cost of taking the census will exceed ten million dollars.

All towns and villages must be enumerated separately, in order that the population of villages within townships may be distinguished from the remainder of the township. The population of these minor civil divisions is especially important for statistical purposes.

The Consul-General of China has issued a proclamation to all Chinese on this coast to furnish the enumerators with all the information required. This proclamation is published in the Chinese language, and each enumerator will be furnished with a copy, which must be shown to the Chinese in the several districts. Much annoyance and delay will be avoided by this timely act.

There are many searching questions relating to property, indebtedness, mental and physical infirmities, that will be asked by enumerators, which may seem impertinent. Full answers, for statistical purposes, are required, and those who are interrogated can feel assured that the information will not affect their personal standing in the least, as these returns never reach publicity, except in the form of general tabulated statistics.

In San Joaquin township, of Sacramento county, enumerator district 95, James Graham failed to qualify, and Irwin M. Woodard was appointed in his place. E. B. McEneaney, of Stockton district No. 101 declined to serve, and Willis A. Severy was appointed to fill vacancy. Wm. Casey, Jr., of San Andreas, Calaveras county, district No. 40, was appointed to a place in the Collector's office at San Francisco, which will render it necessary to fill the vacancy on Monday. There may be two or three other changes in enumerators.

On Monday, June 2d, the enumerators of the 11th census will commence the work of enumeration in all the States and Territories of the United States. The work is important, and enumerators should make it a matter of pride to have their returns accurate and complete. Each locality is deeply interested in having a full and correct enumeration of the population, and accurate statistics. In cities of over 10,000 inhabitants, the work of enumeration must be completed on or before June 14, 1890. In districts in the country the work must be finished on or before July 2, 1890.

W. A. Anderson, Supervisor of Census, has expressed himself exceedingly grateful for the assistance of a number of gentlemen in the several counties embraced in the Second Supervisor district, in securing suitable men for the positions of enumerators. Among whom he wishes to specially mention are Hon. John B. Ruddick, of Calaveras county; Erastus Bond, Nevada; J. C. Boutman, Alameda; H. A. Weaver, San Joaquin; R. R. Bunker, Contra Costa; Geo. F. Culbertson, Tuolumne; Hon. Thos. Frazer, El Dorado; Wm. Jennings, Amador.

The word family, for the purposes of the census, includes persons living alone, as well as families in the ordinary sense of that term, and also all larger aggregations of people having only the tie of a common roof and table. A hotel, with all its inmates, constitutes but one family within the meaning of this term. A hospital, a prison, an asylum is equally a family for the purposes of the census. On the other hand, the solitary inmate of a cabin, a loft, or a room finished above a store, and, indeed, all individuals living out of families, constitute a family under the census act. A person's home is where he sleeps.

W. A. Anderson, Supervisor of Census for the Second District of California, has completed all arrangements, and furnished the necessary instructions and blanks to the enumerators. Some delay was experienced on account of the tardiness of enumerators in forwarding qualifications. A slight delay was also caused by the refusal of Postmaster Stephens to register the extensive mail without the fees being prepaid. While there were instructions to the Supervisor of Census that no fees were to be charged, the postmaster had not been so advised by the head of the postoffice department at Washington until the latter part of this week.

FLASHES.

It isn't necessary to "call" a hen to make her "lay down."

The king of the Sandwich Islands is a noble monarch.

Society Note—The ciphers are as two to one in any 400.

Take care of the dollars and the sense will take care of itself.

What would a female centipede bred in Chicago look like?

A magistrate's examination is a sort of Court of In-squire-y.

A piece of a woman's mind is not good for the peace of other minds.

The most desirable people are those who mind their own business.

When a starving wretch steals a loaf of bread, it is a case of pity larceny.

A girl with a dimple in her cheek never lets it suffer from lack of exercise.

The society girls' pictures we see in the big daily papers are not interesting.

There's a good deal of hoe-cus poker-us about an agricultural Congressman.

If the bore would only turn on himself what an experience it would be to him!

The Veterans.

Yesterday was observed as a holiday with all due spirit. The several Grand Army Posts and Women's Relief Corps, escorted by the military, formed a procession and marched to the cemetery where the beautiful memorial services and ceremonies were performed with credit to this community. There never was a custom which touches the heart and sentiment so deeply yet simply as the one of decorating the graves of our departed heroes. The memories of such occasions are more endurable than if etched in tablets of marble. The old fellows who have "touched the elbow" and bore old glory through the land, at times when it indeed tried men's souls, marched yesterday with heads erect, though perhaps with enfeebled step on account of advanced age, with the bearing of the genuine heroes, which they were. In the evening there were appropriate literary exercises at the Clunie Opera House.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The directors of the Sacramento Athletic Club have decided, by special request of the people of Sacramento, to repeat the entertainment given on the 26th of May. It will be repeated in the latter part of June.

Wm. E. Oughton, one of the best known printers in the State, and who for upwards of twenty years was connected with the State printing office, in positions of responsibility, died in this city Thursday night. He was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity. The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from Masonic Hall.

Miss Hattie Nelson, the daughter of Clarence Nelson, of this city, graduated from the University of the Pacific, at College Park, Santa Clara county, on Tuesday last. As a part of the graduating exercises of the Conservatory of Music, Miss Nelson closed the exercises with a splendid rendition of Chopin's nocturne in E flat opus No. 9, which she executed with a master hand. She followed this with a gem from Weber. In all the selections of Miss Nelson she displayed exquisite taste as well as execution.

How to Keep Your Skin Nice.

You want to keep your skin nice all summer? Well, then, here are some rules for you:

Don't bathe in hard water; soften it with a few drops of ammonia or a little borax.

Don't bathe your face while it is very warm, and never use very cold water for it.

Don't wash your face when you are traveling, unless it is with a little alcohol and water or a little vaseline.

Don't attempt to remove dust with cold water; give your face a hot bath, using plenty of good soap; then give it a thorough rinsing with water that has had the chill taken off of it.

Don't rub your face with a coarse towel; just remember it is not made of cast-iron and treat it as you would the finest porcelain—gently and delicately.

Don't use a sponge or linen rag for your face; choose, instead, a flannel one.

Don't believe you can get rid of wrinkles by filling in the crevices with powder. Instead, give your face a Russian bath every night—that is, bathe it with water so hot that you wonder how you can stand it, and then with cold water that will make it glow with warmth; dry it with a soft towel and go to bed and you ought to sleep like a baby, while your skin is growing firmer and coming from out of the wrinkles and your rest.—N. Y. Sun.

The Window Washer.

A holy terror is a terror a little more terrifying than any other kind of a terror. The window washer clearly comes under this head.

Pass along the street almost any evening, and somewhere you will encounter the window washer. If it is a female, and it often is, her dress will be tucked up so as to display the fact that her husband works in the rolling mills and she wears his shoes. There she stands in the middle of the pavement, with a bucket of water in front of her and a brush with a handle long enough, apparently, to reach across the street. She also has a tin dipper. With this outfit the window washer can create more genuine havoc than a cloud-burst.

It is strange that star-eyed Science has not long ago come to the aid of suffering and bedraggled humanity and found some means of cleaning windows other than the long-handled brush, the bucket of water, and the woman who is oblivious to the presence of everybody on the face of the earth but herself.

Before you reach the block where the window washer is at work, you can see her long-handled brush working like a piston-rod high above the heads of the affrighted populace. You can likewise hear the sousing of the water as she dashes it with the dipper against the window. That is the time to turn and flee, and he who does not is lost. But the average man is careless of his personal safety, and he goes on only to get tangled up with that long-handled brush, and—if he isn't lucky—to fall over it and break his neck. If he doesn't break his neck he can calculate on getting a gallon or two of dirty water down the back of it, which is quite as bad.

Nobody can throw water from a tin dipper and tell where it is going to hit, and the window washer least of all. Vital statistics show us that, of the water which a window washer attempts to throw from a tin dipper, only 3 per cent goes on the window, the rest going on the crowd.

There is only one absolute guarantee against the awful work of the window washer, and that is to always travel by the elevated road.—N. Y. World.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARGARET FEE, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Henry Fee, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Fee, deceased, to the creditors of, and to all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice to Henry Fee, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 62½ J street, Sacramento, Cal.

Dated May 26, 1890.

HENRY FEE, Administrator.

TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m315

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARY W. L. AIKEN, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of the estate of Mary W. L. Aiken, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 62½ J street, Sacramento, Cal.

Dated May 26, 1890.

EDWARD F. AIKEN, Administrator.

TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m315

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO. In the Superior Court in and for said county.

In the matter of the Estate of Matthew Hodge, deceased.

Notice is hereby given that Friday, the 6th day of June, 1890, at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, and the Court-room of said Court, at the Court-house, in the City of Sacramento, County of Sacramento, and State of California, have been appointed as the time and place for proving the will of said Matthew Hodge, deceased, and for hearing the application of James O'Brien and Terry McCabe for the issuance to them of letters testamentary thereon.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, this 24th day of May, 1890.

[Seal.] W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk.

By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk.

TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Petitioners. m31d

DRAMATIC NOTES.

E. H. Sothern will also repeat his engagement of last year, by presenting Lord Chumley at an early date.

To-night Hermann's Transatlantic Vau-devilles will give one of their unique entertainments. This is a combination of the ablest talent in this line on the continent.

Shenandoah, the great dramatic success of the day, will be produced at the Metropolitan next week. The play is great—the company excellent. There will be crowded houses during the engagement.

The Sacramento Athletic Club entertainment on Monday night was a brilliant success. It is probable that this choice affair will be repeated at the Club rooms at an early date. The Club deserves well from the public. Many were astonished at the wonderful improvement accomplished in the space of less than a year.

Last night Mlle Rhea, one of the greatest artists on the stage, appeared at the Metropolitan in her famous character, "Josephine, Empress of the French." Mlle Rhea has wonderful emotional as well as dramatic power. The artist has not a full command of the English language, but the dialect, in some parts, gives rather a pleasing character to the personation. The company was good.

The Senator, one of the three dramatic sensations of the past year, will be given here early in July. W. H. Crane has with him the best company of artists we have seen for many years. The play is a strong presentation of political and diplomatic tip at the Capital. There is much of the real life in the play. The quaint dialect framed for "Josie Armstrong" has a characteristic reudition at the hands of Miss Jane Stuart, which would make a cat laugh.

Sam. Wetherill.

Nellie Wetherill, the actress, died in New York two weeks ago. She was the widow of Sam. Wetherill, long manager or advance man of traveling troupes on this coast. The telegram that announced Mrs. Wetherill's death says her husband was at one time a California State Senator. Not so; Sam, through some political freak or another, was elected to the Twenty-first Assembly (1875-6), from the Ninth District, San Francisco. Poor Sam., genial, genteel and eccentric, always a friend and never sober, was more ornamental than useful. When condition permitted him at all to be in the Assembly Chamber, his seat on the floor, the furthest back and nearest the lobby, was ornamented and easily distinguished by a fine pair of patent leather top-boots, set high on his otherwise useless desk, invariably worn outside of a neatly made, tight-fitting pair of lavender trousers, above which was worn a genuine and gorgeously trimmed sealskin sack coat, the envy of many a lady that winter. It is well remembered by his colleagues of that session, that Sam. made no effort to establish a reputation, either as an orator or a statesman. He did once rise to his feet, late one afternoon, after a long, tedious debate on an important measure in which every member but him was deeply engrossed, and move to adjourn as he "was d— hungry." His voice startled the hall, for it was the first time that voice had ever been heard in that chamber. Of course the motion was carried without a dissenting voice in deference to the member who had never troubled the House before—nor did he ever again. But Sam. Wetherill left a record of his membership behind him, and it will not be forgotten so long as the appendix of the House is extant. During that, as well as other sessions, it was customary for members to draw on the Secretary of State for whatever stationery they desired, and there was no limit to the amount to be drawn. This was exclusive of postage stamps, for that session the Assembly allowed fifteen dollars worth to each member. As to paper, pens, ink, rulers, ink-stands, paper-cutters, weights, shears, files, and any and everything sold or thought of by the stationer, some of the members, untroubled by that unknown quantity called "conscience," made full use of the privilege and drew as much as would stock an ordinary country store. Assemblyman Wetherill never introduced a bill, a resolution, or any matter or thing that required the use of pen, ink or paper; nor did he ever write a letter or note—so said those who sat nearer to him; not that he could not write or that he was illiterate, for he was educated and wrote a hand as beautiful as a Spencerian copy; but he cared nothing for it and as to the business of legislation, he felt there were others there who would attend to affairs of State. Still, Sam. had his stationery account with the State, and curious though it may sound, his bill for material coming under the head of that generic term and furnished by the Secretary of State, was vastly larger than that of any other member of the Assembly. About every week the Committee on Public Expenditures and Accounts examined the accounts of the House and reported. Invariably Sam. Wetherill's bill loomed far above any other and at the end of the session it amounted to over forty dollars, while such men as Judge Archer, of San Jose, Judge J. V. Coffey, now on the Superior bench in San Francisco, Gen. Jno. R. McConnell, of Los Angeles, the hardest and most diligent workers of that body, had only drawn three or four dollars worth. But it was Sam's big heart and generous soul that enabled him to appear to be the most liberal patron of the State, and occurred this way: his friends from San Francisco or elsewhere, or those who professed acquaintance, would go to him saying they had a "little writing to do" and would like some paper; Sam. would write an order on the Secretary of State to "let the bearer have what stationery he wants and charge the same to my account." The "bearer" never failed to avail himself of the opportunity of taking away what would last him for an indefinite time, and many of them were supplied for years. Sam's wife, Nellie, just dead, did what she could to have him appear to advantage at the Capitol, but she made a sorry failure, for his ten dollars a day was too much for him. He had lost caste among theater people, who had long ignored him as a manager, owing to what we call "erratic habits," and hence his per diem was a windfall which only served to enable him to continue to be "erratic," and to ornament his desk with his patent leathers when at Sacramento was about the last legitimate work Sam. ever did.

Shortly to be Heard From Having purchased an immense stock of goods at a forced sale, the same will be placed on sale next week. (See Record-Union ad. Monday for day of commencing.) This stock is miscellaneous, consisting of a great variety of dry goods, fancy goods, gents' furnishing goods, ladies' kid Oxfords, French kid shoes, opera slippers, gents' extra fine summer weight coats and vests, gents' single light weight coats, gents' dress vests, white and figured Marseilles, fifty dozen gents' lounging coats, and many other lines at unparalleled low prices. Riveted overalls, 9 oz., blue, 65c, always been 75c, at RED HOUSE.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal.

The popular market men, Garzoli & Geuis, at 712 K street, are daily receiving choice strawberries, new potatoes, and in fact everything in the market line. Give them a call. 712 K street. Telephone No. 188.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAAR.

Gents' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Boots, Shoes

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON.

First-class make. Apply MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

Moonlight Excursion.

THE SUBSCRIPTION LIST TO MOONLIGHT Excursion will be left open until

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4th,

Those desiring tickets can get them of MR. BONN-HEIM, at Weinstock, Rubin & Co.'s. The M and J Street Cars will await the excursionists on their return.

JESSE SLAUGHTER,

Office, No. 1217 Fifth Street.

PLASTERING, WHITEWASHING, CLEANING OF CESSPOOLS, Etc.

Also, CITY SCAVENGER.

Burying of dead animals attended to at short notice.

Don't forget the number—1217 Fifth street, the old stand, where I have been for 25 years.

The Nonpareil!

Cor. 5th and J Streets,

Monday June 2, at 9 A. M.

GREAT SALE of SILKS

Thousands of Yards of Surahs, Gros

Grains, Rhadames,

Radzimers, Brocades, Stripes and

Plaids, Reduced to

25c, 50c, 75c, $1.00 PER YARD.

WARRANTED

Fast Black!

50 dozen Misses' Ribbed Black Cotton Hose full-finished, sizes 5 0 9,

33 1-3 cts. a pair, worth 50 cts.

100 dozen Ladies' Black Cotton Hose, ribbed or plain, full-finished, sizes 8 to 10, 33 1-3 cts. a pair, worth 50 cts.

50 dozen Ladies' plain Black Cotton Hose, shaped ankles, trimmed seams,

12 1-3 CENTS PER PAIR.

The dye in these hose is purely vegetable and Warranted Fast Black.

W. I. Orth,

630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the ECLIPSE CHAMPAGNE, 530 Washington St. SAN FRANCISCO.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Cart For Sale!

NEARLY NEW!

CHEAP FOR CASH!

C. A. FISK, - 408 J Street

Blacksmith's Aprons.

Everyone knows that a blacksmith wears a leather apron, and must have noticed that this apron is slit and often fringed at the bottom, says the Electric News. As an English legend, it is related that once upon a time Alfred the Great called all the trades together to appoint a Trades King. He declared he would make that man King who could best get on without the help of others for the longest period. He made a feast, and asked a workman from each trade to come and bring a specimen of his work and the tools used in making it.

The blacksmith brought a hammer and a horseshoe, the tailor brought his shears and a new coat, the baker his peel and a loaf, the shoemaker his awl and a pair of new shoes, the carpenter his saw and a nice box, the butcher his chopper and a joint, the mason his chisel and a carved stone. The tailor's coat was of such surpassing beauty that all the guests declared themselves beaten, and the horseshoe, the bread, the shoes, the box, the meat and the carved stone were all thrown aside. The tailor was pronounced Trades King by Alfred and was duly installed. The blacksmith was angry, and declared that he would do no more work while the tailor was King, and he actually shut up his shop and disappeared.

One day as King Alfred was riding along his horse cast a shoe, and he was the first to need the services of the blacksmith, but he could not get into the shop. Then all the other tradesmen, including the tailor, tried to shoe the King's horse, but each one not only failed, but broke his tools and could not carry out his proper business until they were mended.

King Alfred and the tradesmen then broke open the shop and tried to use the blacksmith's tools. The King tried to shoe his horse, the tailor to mend his shears, and each one endeavored to mend his tools. The horse kicked the King, the tailor bruised his fingers, the fire would not burn, and everybody got into everybody's way. The butcher shoved the baker, he shoved the shoemaker, who in turn shoved the carpenter, who shoved the mason, who shoved the tailor, and in the general confusion the anvil was knocked over.

About this time the blacksmith walked in, looking very angry. The King, however, made a humble bow, and said: "I was wrong to be led away by a gaudy color of a coat, and I now revoke my decision and proclaim the blacksmith King." All the trades except the deposed tailor, begged the smith to mend their tools. So he shod the King's horses, and mended the tools of all who asked; but, in order to show his magnanimity, he made the tailor a brand new pair of shears. King Alfred proposed to drink the health of the new King, and to sing a song to his honor, at the second feast which he gave.

The tailor, however, did not reciprocate the blacksmith's kindness, but while the others were singing, crawled under the table and slit the blacksmith's leather apron, and cut the lower edge into a regular fringe. From that day no true blacksmith has ever thought of wearing an apron that was not slit and fringed at the bottom.

Buddhism in Paris.

It was recently stated that extraordinary progress was being made by Buddhist doctrines in Vienna and other towns of Central Europe. It is now said that a decided move in this direction is taking place in Paris. The phenomenon is probably to be accounted for by the fact that people who have discarded Christianity, find themselves unable to get on after a time without some kind of religion or philosophy, and so turn their attention to any new thing in the hope of filling up the vacuum. M. Leon de Rosny, one of the most popular of the Sorbonne professors, has been lecturing recently on Buddhism, and he says he could never have imagined that it could have taken root in France as it has done. He is of opinion that the growing favor in which it is held is due to the fact that, far from being in conflict with modern science, it really contains the principles of the truths expounded by our savants. Its disciples are most enthusiastic, and here-in lies a danger, for they complicate Buddha's pure philosophy with a variety of supernatural theories, and dabble in spiritualism, hypnotism, and other uncanny practices, in the forefront of which "magic" may be placed. But M. Leon de Rosny declares that the leaders of the movement deplore this diversion, which is at variance with Buddhist doctrines, and proclaim that they have absolutely nothing to do with the "occult sciences." He fears, however, that the most ridiculous extravagances will be indulged in, as no conception can be formed of the amount of fanaticism, which is a special feature of the new school. Every day he receives visits from distinguished persons who affirm that they are thorough-going Buddhists, and one of them has just asserted that he has at least 30,000 co-religionists in Paris. The Vice-President of the Academy of Medicine has entered their ranks, and the captain of a French frigate, who returned from a cruise in Chinese waters lately, says that one-third of his crew has embraced the doctrines of Buddha.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents. 703 J Street, Sacramento.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

BUFFALO BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates. Give it a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. my17

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England. 1002 J Street, Sacramento.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDougall,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done. Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Gardeu City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6.45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7.25 P
9.30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6.20 A
7.05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6.45 P
6.25 P	Knight's Landing	7.40 A
10.50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9.55 A
8.00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6.25 P
12-01 A	{Central Atlantic Express...}	6.00 A
	{Ogden and East...}
3-00 P	Oroville	10-30 A
3-00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10-30 A
10-40 A	Redding via Willows	4-00 P
6-15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7-25 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11-40 A
6-45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9-10 P
*10-00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	26-00 A
10-50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2-25 P
6-50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11-40 P
10-50 A	San Jose	2-25 P
7-05 P	Santa Barbara	9-55 A
6-45 A	Santa Rosa	11-40 A
3-05 P	Santa Rosa	7-25 P
8-15 A	Stockton and Galt	6-45 P
7-05 P	Stockton and Galt	6-45 P
8-00 P	Truckee and Reno	6-25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	6-00 A
12-05 P	Colfax	10-20 A
6-45 A	Vallejo	11-40 A
3-05 P	Vallejo	7-25 P
7-00 A	Placerville (Mixed)	4-50 P
5-00 P	Folsom	9-00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.

T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Graingers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.
Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—Aud You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENSWARE, CIGARS,

TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.

1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Farth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from	$25
Stylish Pants made to order	6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from	25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from	30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from	40

And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city.

Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199.

Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

C. H. Stephenson,
DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento.

Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.

JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Attorneys for Administrator my10-5t

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

Famous Boys.

A Swedish boy fell out of a window and was severely hurt, but with clenched lips he kept back the cry of pain. The King, Gustavus Adolphus, who saw him fall, prophesied that that boy would make a man for an emergency, and so he did, for he became the famous General Bauer.

A woman fell off the dock in Italy. She was fat and frightened. No one of the crowd of men dared to jump in after her, but a boy struck the water almost as soon as she did, and managed to keep her up until stronger arms got hold of her. Everybody said the boy was very daring, very kind, very quick, but also very reckless, for he might have been drowned. That boy was Garibaldi, and if you will read his life you will find these were just his traits all through—that he was so alert that nobody could tell when he would make an attack with his red-shirted soldiers; so indiscreet sometimes as to make his fellow-patriots wish he was in Guinea, but also so brave and magnanimous that all the world, except tyrants, loved to hear and talk about him.

A boy used to crush the flowers to get their color, and painted the white side of his father's cottage in Tyrol with all sorts of pictures, which the mountaineers gazed at as wonderful. He was the great artist, Titian.

An old painter watched a little fellow who amused himself making drawings of his pot and brushes, easel and stool, and said: "That boy will beat me one day." So he did, for he was Michael Angelo.

A German boy was reading a blood-and-thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now, this will never do. I get too much excited over it; I can't study so well after it; so here goes," and he flung the book out into the river. He was Fichte, the great German philosopher.

There was a New England boy who built himself a booth down at the rear of his father's farm, in a swamp, where neither the boys nor the cows would disturb him. There he read books like Locke on "Human Understanding," wrote compositions, watched the balancing of the clouds, reveled in the crash and the flash of the storm, and tried to feel the nearness of God who made all things. His name was Jonathan Edwards.

An ancient worthy, fortunate in having a worthy daughter, who was also fortunate in having two suitors for her hand, consulted a philosopher as to which he should award her, saying that one was a man of worth but without money, and the other a man of money but without worth. "My friend," said the philosopher, "better a man that needs money, than money that needs a man to make a good use of it."

GORMANBIZING,

or overeating, or the partaking of too rich and indigestible food, is a common cause of discomfort and suffering. To immediately relieve the stomach and bowels from such overloading, a full dose of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets is the best remedy. They operate gently, yet thoroughly, without griping, nausea, or other unpleasant effects.

If the too free indulgence in such intemperate eating has deranged digestion, causing dyspepsia and biliousness, attended with a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in mouth in the morning, on arising, drowsiness after meals, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity and hypochondria—then you need to follow up the use of the "Pellets" with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, to tone up the stomach, invigorate the liver, and set all the processes of digestion at work. While curing indigestion, it purifies the blood, cleansing the system from all humors and blood-poisons—no matter of what name or nature, or from what cause arising. There is nothing similar to it in composition or approaching it in results. Therefore, don't be duped and induced to take some substitute, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit.

Manufactured by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

$500 OFFERED

by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head.

When a Cat's Sneeze is Lucky.

There is a curious custom in Modern Greece. The groom is shaved by a young man whose parents are both living, while the young man and girls sing: "Razor silvered and gilt, shave tenderly the young man's cheeks, don't leave a hair, lest the parents of the bride should think him ugly." The groom is lightly sprinkled with water on leaving the home for the ceremony. The bride must visit the oven in company with her father, or a near relative, to salute it and obtain leave to set out.

In the Vosges Mountains the young women who dress the bride, strive as to who shall stick the first pin in the bridal robe, as the successful one will be married the same year. It was lucky for English bridesmaids to throw pins away. The bride must not look into the mirror after she is dressed for the ceremony, unless she puts on some article of apparel afterward.

In Russia the bride must avoid eating the wedding cake on the eve of the ceremony, or she will lose her husband's love. The sneezing of a cat on the eve of a marriage was considered a good omen in the middle ages; but the howling of a dog then, as now, was especially ominous.

The bees are informed of a wedding in Derbyshire, and their hives decorated.

In Scotland it is deemed especially ominous for a lump of soot to fall down and spoil the breakfast on the day of the wedding, for a bird to die in its cage, or for a bird to sit on the window-sill and chirp long. The bride must carefully avoid breaking a dish on that day.

It is particularly ominous to meet a funeral. Bride or groom was certain to die soon, as the sex of the person buried was male or female. In one part of Yorkshire the groom, on meeting a male acquaintance, rubbed his elbow for good luck.

Especially ominous are hitches or accidental happenings during the ceremony.

The Romans deemed it an ill omen to meet certain animals on the way to the ceremony. A priest, hare, dog, cat, lizard, or serpent was unlucky in the middle ages—a wolf, toad, or spider lucky.

In Brittany, if the wife seeks to rule, she must take care that the ring when placed on her finger shall slip at once to its place, instead of allowing it to stop at the first joint. The bride who lost her ring lost her appetite, and to break it portended death. Attention is also paid in this province to the altar candles. If they burn brightly throughout the mass the couple will live harmoniously. The one whose candle burns with the brightest flame will live longest. If one goes out, then its donor will die that year.

Lawyer (drawing will)—Your estate is much smaller, sir, than is generally supposed. Sick Man—Yes, but keep that quiet until after the funeral; I want a good show of grief-stricken mourners.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER
CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.
M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSNER.

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN,
(Formerly of Agricultural Park.)

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento
SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,
No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

—•••••—

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES
212 J ST. and 901 K ST.
Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

Dealers are claiming that their pianos have a solid iron frame, just like the MATHUSHEK. We wish to make it clear to the public that the MATHUSHEK PIANO, of New Haven, Conn., is the ONLY PIANO MADE having a solid iron Wrist Plank, and the tuning pins set in same, statements to the contrary notwithstanding. Thin iron plates are only a detriment and gotten up to deceive the people. Hence this old claim that certain pianos are like the Mathushek, is exploded

JOHN F. COOPER.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE EMERSON

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1890.

No. 16.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The dreadful railroad disaster that occurred on Decoration day at the Webster street draw-bridge on the narrow-gauge road in Alameda county, continues to absorb public attention. The matter has been investigated by the Coroner's Jury, and their finding is that the death of the fifteen unfortunates was "caused by the criminal negligence on the part of S. Dunn, the engineer of the Oakland local narrow-gauge train on the South Pacific Coast Railway, by running his engine and one car off the bridge into the estuary, and we find the said S. Dunn guilty of manslaughter. We also find that the railroad company do not take sufficient precaution to signal trains when approaching the aforesaid draw-bridge." This sad accident is but a recurrence of what has heretofore happened in the history of railroading both here and elsewhere—the result of gross carelessness. While it is true disasters of magnitude of this character are infrequent, it is likewise true when they have transpired the cause can be attributed, as a rule, to either the incompetency or carelessness of some employe occupying a position of grave responsibility. The position is simply this: The citizen traveling by land or sea reposes entire confidence in the skill and good judgment of the employes of the carrier, and in the case of a railroad, reasonably expects that the understanding between those employed to direct the train and those who are charged with the signaling, is so perfect as to avoid danger. It cannot be presumed that railroads can be operated without occasional accidents that can be classed as unavoidable, and due to circumstances beyond human foresight. Accidents of that character are, however, remarkably rare when compared with those of the nature of the one concerning which the people are now interested.

Let us review the history of the railroad accidents of this State that have involved the greatest destruction of human life. On November 14, 1869, a regular express train left Oakland, traveling over the Western Pacific road. It was understood that at Simpson's Station, in Alameda county, where it was due about 9 o'clock in the morning, it would pass a train traveling in the opposite direction. The person who had charge of the station and whose duty it was to see that one of these trains should not proceed before the other had arrived, went to his breakfast. In the meantime a gravel train passed and he assumed it was the train conveying passengers. When the regular express came along the conductor was informed the road was clear. The train proceeded, and very shortly came in collision with the other passenger train traveling at full speed in the opposite direction. The force of the shock telescoped some of the cars; fourteen lives were lost, and a number of persons injured more or less. Among the destroyed was Judge Alexander W. Baldwin, of the State of Nevada. At the State Fair held in this city in 1880, there was in attendance President Hayes and a party of distinguished visitors. There was an encampment of the First Infantry Regiment of San Francisco. On September 26th a train left this city, conveying that regiment to their homes. The locomotive was driven by William C. Brown, and when the train reached the mole at Oakland, the engineer suddenly discovered that the wrong signal had been given by a switchman. It resulted in the locomotive being turned aside from the true course and plunged into the waters of San Francisco bay. In that case when the engineer discovered the error, he instantly realized its import and the gravity of the situation. He lost not an instant to act, and so controlled his engine that he saved the train at the expense of his own life. His dead body was found in the cab, his hand still clinging to the lever. His remains are in the city cemetery here. Over them the members of the regiment erected a monument. We quote from a journal published at that time a description of it in that it may serve ten years after the occurrence to add a little more in the way of justice to a deserving hero:

THE ENGINEER'S MONUMENT.

The monument to be erected in the City Cemetery to the memory of the brave engineer, Wm. C. Brown, of this city, is now about ready to be set up. It consists of a broad granite base with a marble sur-base, on which rests a pedestal of the finest granite, above which rises a plain marble shaft surmounted by an urn. The monument will, set up, stand a little over seven feet in height. On one face of the die part is this inscription: "Erected to the memory of Wm. C. Brown, railroad engineer, by the First Infantry Regiment, N. G. C., whose lives he saved on Oakland wharf, September 26, 1880, by sacrificing his own. He died at his post. Aged 23 years, 1 month and 7 days." On another face of the die part is a sunken panel, and at its greatest depth is seen the mouth of a tunnel from which is just emerging a locomotive bearing on its dial plate the number of Brown's engine on which he remained when it plunged into San Francisco bay—155. This design is very skillfully worked out, and is an artistic piece of chiseling. Arched above this panel is a line reading "All Honor to the Brave." On one face of the square shaft is a panel in which is raised by chiseling crossed muskets, over and below which are the words "First Infantry Regiment, N. G. C." Below all is the word "Rest." The monument is a fitting tribute to a heroic man, and does honor to those who have caused it to be constructed.

What a contrast between the action of Brown and that of Dunn? On July 4, 1868, an Italian picnic excursion, when returning to San Francisco, were passing on to a ferryboat at Oakland. The apron connecting the boat with the wharf fell and precipitated some sixty persons into the water and twenty lives were lost. While the facts of that occurrence are not now before us, we will assume the accident was due to carelessness on the part of some one, though it may have been unavoidable. On January 20, 1883, five cars containing passengers, and from which the locomotive had been detached, were standing on the track at Tehachapi. They ran down an inclination and soon attained a frightful speed—so great that in turning a curve in the road they left the track and were precipitated over an embankment. They caught fire and about twenty persons perished. The cause of the accident was attributed to the fact that the brakeman had not properly set the brakes. These we believe include the most noted of our railroad disasters in which, with the exception of that of 1880, a considerable number of lives were destroyed, and in each of those instances, as well as the one that occurred recently, they are directly attributable to inexcusable carelessness.

There is at present, as does happen about every two years, considerable discussion in regard to the matter of the registration of the voters of the county. Primarily, under the United States Constitution, every citizen, whether native or naturalized, has the right to vote, yet each State is empowered to reasonably restrict this right, to the end there should be no abuse of it. The Constitution of this State grants the right of suffrage to every male citizen who shall have been a resident of the State one year next preceding the election, of the county ninety days, and of the precinct thirty days, certain exceptions, of course, being provided, affecting Chinese, incompetents and criminals.

The Political Code, reiterating the terms of the Constitution, adds as a qualification, "and whose name shall be enrolled on the Great Register of such county." It is provided in that Code, that there shall be kept in the office of the County Clerk a register of voters, and Sections 1094 and following very specifically define how that register shall be prepared. Section 1096 provides that "such entry must show: (1) The name at length; (2) The age, omitting fractions of years; (3) The country of nativity; (4) The place of residence (giving the ward or precinct); (5) If naturalized, the time and place of naturalization; and, (6) The date of the entry of each person." The object of the law evidently is, that each voter shall be particularly identified. Provisions are made in Section 1106 of the same Code for cancellations, and they are very specific. If that section were strictly followed, any intelligent citizen can see that the great expense of re-registering the voters of the county would rarely have to be met. The section reads as follows:

1106. The Clerk must cancel the entry in the following cases:

1. At the request of the party registered.
2. When he knows of the death or removal of the person registered.
3. When the insanity of the person registered is legally established.
4. Upon the production of a certified copy of a judgment of the conviction of any elector of any infamous crime, or of the embezzlement or misappropriation of any public money, in full force against the person registered, or upon information of such conviction obtained as hereinafter provided.
5. Upon the production of a certified copy of a judgment directing the cancellation to be made.
6. Upon the certificate of the Board of Election of any precinct, sent up with the election returns, stating the death or removal, within their own knowledge, of the person registered.
7. When it appears by the returns made by the Board and Clerks of Election that the respective party did not vote during the next preceding two years at any general or special election.
8. The Clerk shall cancel upon the Great Register every name found thereon which is found upon the register of deaths, provided for in section three thousand and seventy-nine of this Code.
9. Every Judge before whom proceedings were had which result in any male person being declared incapable of taking care of himself and managing his property, and for whom a guardian of his person and estate is accordingly appointed, or which result in such person being committed to a State Insane Asylum as an insane person, shall file with the County Clerk a certificate of that fact, and thereupon the Clerk shall cancel the name of such person upon the Great Register, if found thereon.
10. The County Clerk shall also, in the first week of September, in each year, examine the records of the Courts having jurisdiction in cases of infamous crimes, and the embezzlement or misappropriation of public money within his county, and cancel upon the Great Register the names of all persons appearing thereon who shall have been convicted of an infamous crime, or of the embezzlement or misappropriation of public money in such Court, and which conviction shall have been carried into effect. [In effect April 16, 1880.]

Two years ago Sacramento county, at very considerable expense, re-registered its voters, and the identification was made so complete, under the system of precinct registration, that in the case of those in the city the particular numbers of their places of residence were given, and in the county their precinct designations. They were classified in small territorial subdivisions. With most of them there has been no change of residence, and it seems a useless expense for the county to throw aside the data which cost so much to collect, and do the work over again. Why not adopt a business view of this matter: Cancel those the law contemplates shall be cancelled, and have a notice published by the Board of Supervisors that those who have removed shall indicate their new places of residence within the county. Of course the new registrations can readily be adjusted. If this plan is adopted it will result in three effects: (1) The avoidance of inconvenience to citizens of permanent residence, and possibly prevent the disfranchisement of some of them; (2) The weeding from the register of those whom the law contemplates should not be carried on it; and, (3) The saving to the county of the great cost that will naturally follow a re-registration.

[Since the above article was written and in type, the Board of Supervisors has ordered an entire re-registration of the electors of Sacramento county. We adhere to the views above expressed and believe that the Supervisors have saddled a very large and entirely useless expense upon the taxpayers of the county. Before the Board took action on the matter, the District Attorney, upon request of the Board, advised it that a new Great Register was entirely unnecessary. We think that a meeting of the Board should be immediately called and its action rescinded.]

Gold, silver, diamonds; steamship, railroad, telegraph subsidies; bonanza quartz mines, of Golconda wealth; donations and souvenirs from the farthest ends of the globe—the five geographical divisions of the universe: the ancient dark lands of the Cannibal Islands, rare old Italy, with its sensuous clime and rich store of curios; la belle France, historic of all that is dreamed in love; stolid and staid England, with its phlegmatic life; all the corners of our own lovely land, blessed of all countries, each, all and every one united and lent their undivided efforts and stores of golden grandeur to bring about and aid in the consummation of one of the most magnificent and brilliant weddings in the fore part of this week that ever startled a people, or dazzled the imagination and silenced the pen of description by its unsurpassed and unparalleled brilliancy, either in America or among the crowned heads or nobility of foreign lands. The combined millions of the contracting parties were drafted upon, and in the arrangement of the pageantry no pains nor even diminutive fortunes were spared to make the affair such an one as would be the admiration of the favored selected to look upon it, and become a reminiscence, back to which the memory might turn in future years and ponder as the heart beat in fond recollection of the past joy, when youth and beauty met to do honor to the occasion. For months the artisan and worker in design had devoted the time to a transformation of the already regal palace of the bride's mother into an abode only described in Melnotte's painting of Pauline's future home. Thousands of friends from the world over were made happy by invitations to be at this great feast. The young bridegroom, rich beyond count, handsome and popular, hailing from New York, brought with him his favored friends of the four hundred, to act as best men. The occasion and the ceremony were indeed gorgeous, rare beyond the most extraordinary. The church was called on by three of its chosen dignitaries to bless the nuptials. And then ensued the feast in a modern garden of Paradise, partaken from golden and crystal table appointments, and never did Juno and her retinue indulge in more sumptuous style.

The bond of union tied, this newly-made two in one take their departure for the honeymoon voyage of undetermined duration, followed by the benedictions and blessings of relatives and friends. The plans of enjoyment for the bride's diversion and beguilement include the first year of ocean life aboard of a regal yacht that Cleopatra might have demanded at the hands of her Antony, had she met it in her voyage down the Nile to greet and comfort the grim-visaged and love-lorn bachelor. The outlay of money at this American yet princely affair counted, it is alleged, into the millions, when the rare and costly gifts are considered. The sum thus represented would keep in thrifty life many a poor family in the land could it but be equitably divided among the deserving. How many small homes of a few acres of ground would it not suffice to support, with happy families as owners to till the soil, build up communities, and settle the country, erecting churches, school-houses, mills and factories, to give employment to the needy poor. Add to the amount already offered on the altar of love's young dream that other sum not yet calculated, that will be expended in the world's voyage, and one has a sum unequalled at a wedding in any period. With all this pomp and wealth there must have been a corresponding degree of love and of affection, and not one of the guests bidden to that festive hall, or, indeed, any one, but wishes the pair a world of joy and all the happiness true love should impart. Still, even that affair was not without its skeleton, hemmed about though it was by a cordon of such golden material that it would appear to have been impossible for any unkind feeling to have passed the sacred confines. And yet the fair bride, supported on the arm of a father, who before that auspicious occasion had not darkened the door of that mansion for years; and it would seem that even then the two parents did not recognize each other, but were as strangers. May the same melancholy fate never overtake the young soul that went forth from that house that night amid so many joyous wishes.

Just on the other side of the Bay from where this gathering of the rich assembled, on that same day there occurred another and a different wedding. On a well tilled farm, in a cosy cottage well filled with things material as well as with the fond hearts of doting parents, who had looked during life for her well-being, there lived a fair maiden just of the age of the richly favored one in the great city. This one of the country home had also been highly educated, for it had been the life hope of the father and mother to see their only child well tutored, and although pushed hard at times for the means, yet they succeeded in giving her such an education as became a good and studious girl. She had scores of admirers, any one of whom would have been happy in calling her wife. But she fancied a noble young farmer, who by his industry had made for himself a home in the same valley in which had been born and lived the object of his devotion. He was honored and respected by all, and when it was known that the two were to unite for life's march, people said it was indeed a union of hearts, and that he would always make her a good living, as he had already proved himself a good citizen. But they were married; not amid the stylish surroundings of the city bridegroom, but in simple way at the village church, accompanied by the bride's playmates of childhood; he attended by a few of his stalwart friends of his neighborhood. Nature contributed the music of the birds, the flowers of the field, the smile of sunshine; the parents gave their united blessings, and the young people crossed the Bay to spend a day or two by themselves, to then return to their farm-home where the bride met all she required to begin her life of housekeeper, for her frugal and provident lover-husband had made sure that she should not lead a life of toil, and hence had provided all those essentials requisite to happy and comfortable housekeeping. They are content, and no dream of dissipation in foreign halls, of knights and ladies, ever disturbs their slumbers, but their lives are devoted to a continued study of what they can do to make each other happier and how they can benefit mankind.

Pepys Liked Eating.

Pepys was especially fond of good eating, good drinking, fine clothes, the theater, and flirtation, and his diary is full of his performances in all these directions. Within a week of the beginning of his diary, he dines with his cousin, Thomas Pepys—a very good dinner, "only the venison pastry was palpable beef, which was not handsome." Very few days pass without his mentioning, in greater or less detail, what he had for dinner; whether it was the remains of a turkey dressed by his wife, in the doing of which she burned her hand, or of simple bread and cheese, and a cup of ale, or, as times got better, of a boiled haunch of venison, or of "a hog's harslet, piece of meat I love." He sometimes gives the full menu. "We had a tricassee of rabbits and chickens, a leg of mutton broiled, three carps in a dish, a great dish of a side of lamb, a dish of roasted pigeons, a dish of four lobsters, three tarts, a lamprey pie (a most rare pie), a dish of anchovies, good wine of several sorts, and all things mighty noble and to my great content." This was for a party of seven besides himself and wife. Well might he say: "My dinner was great." At another time he says: "To church in the morning, and so to dinner; and Sir W. Penn and daughter, and Mrs. Poole, his kinswoman, came by appointment to dinner with us, and a good dinner we had for them, and were very merry." And then they went to church again, afterward supping at Sir W. Penn's, and Pepys drank so much wine "that I was even almost foxed." So that he went home and "durst not read prayers, for fear of being perceived by my servants in what case I was."—Chicago Herald.

[Written for THEMIS.]

CURIOSITIES OF GREAT MEN.

Among the curious facts which we find in perusing the biographies of great men, are the circumstances connected with the composition of the works which have made them immortal.

For instance, Bossuet composed his grand sermons on his knees; Bulwer wrote his first novels in full dress, scented; Milton, before commencing his great work, invoked the influences of the Holy Spirit, and prayed that his lips might be touched with a live coal from off the altar; Chrysostom meditated and studied while contemplating a painting of St. Paul; Bacon knelt down before composing his great work, and prayed for light from heaven; Pope never could compose well without first declaiming for some time at the top of his voice, and thus rousing his nervous system to its fullest activity; Bentham composed after playing a prelude on the organ or whilst taking his "ante-jentacular" and "post-prandial" walks in his garden—the same, by the way, that Milton occupied; Saint Bernard composed his "Meditations" amidst the woods. He delighted in nothing so much as the solitude of the dense forest, finding there, he said, something more profound and suggestive than anything he found in books. The storm would sometimes fall upon him there without for a moment interrupting his meditations. Camoens composed his verses with the roar of battle in his ears, for the Portuguese poet was a soldier, and a brave one, though a poet. He composed others of his most beautiful verses at the time when his Indian slave was begging subsistence for him in the streets. Tasso wrote his finest pieces in the lucid intervals of madness; Rousseau wrote his works early in the morning, and wrote till late at night; Aristotle was a tremendous worker. He took little sleep, and was constantly retrenching it. He had a contrivance by which he awoke early, and to awake was, with him, to commence work. Demosthenes passed three months in a cavern by the seaside in laboring to overcome the defects of his voice; there he read, studied and declaimed. Rabelais composed his life of "Gargantua" at Bellay, in the company of Roman cardinals and under the eyes of the Bishop of Paris. LaFontaine wrote his fables chiefly under the shade of a tree, and sometimes by the side of Racine and Boileau. Pascal wrote most of his thoughts on little scraps of paper at his by-moments. Fenelon wrote his "Telemachus" in the palace at Versailles, at the court of the grand monarch, when discharging the duties of tutor to the Dauphin. That a book so thoroughly democratic should have issued from such a source, and written by a priest, may seem surprising. De Quency first promulgated his notion of universal freedom of person and trade, and of throwing all taxes on the land—the germs, perhaps, of the French Revolution—in the boudoir of Madame de Pompadour! Luther, when studying, always had his dog lying at his feet—a dog he had brought from Wartburg, and of which he was very fond. An ivory crucifix stood on the table before him, and the walls of his study were stuck around with caricatures of the Pope. He worked at his desk for days together without going out; but when fatigued, and the ideas began to stagnate in his brain, he would take his flute or his guitar with him into the porch, and there execute some musical fantasy (for he was a skillful musician), when the ideas would flow upon him as fresh as flowers after summer's rain. Music was his invariable solace at such times. Indeed, Luther did not hesitate to say, that after theology, music was the first of arts. "Music," said he, "is the art of the prophets; it is the only other art, which, like theology, can calm the agitation of the soul, and put the devil to flight." Next to music, if not before it, Luther loved children and flowers. That great gnarled man had a heart as tender as a woman's. Calvin studied in his bed. He ate his meals in his bed. Every morning, at five or six o'clock, he had his books, manuscripts and papers carried to him there, and he worked on for hours together. If he had occasion to go out, on his return he undressed and went to bed again to continue his studies. In his later years he dictated his writings to secretaries. He rarely corrected anything. The sentences issued complete from his mouth. If he felt his facility of composition leaving him, he forthwith quitted his bed, gave up writing and composing, and went about his outdoor duties for days, weeks and months together. But so soon as he felt the inspiration fall upon him again, he went back to his bed, and his secretary set to work forthwith. Cujas, another learned man, used to study when laid all his length upon the carpet, his face toward the floor, and there he revelled amidst piles of books which accumulated about him. The learned Amyot never studied without the harpsicord beside him; and he only quitted the pen to play it. Bentham, also, was extremely fond of the piano-forte, and had one in nearly every room in his house. Richelieu amused himself in the intervals of his labor, with a squadron of cats, of whom he was very fond. He used to go to bed at eleven at night, and after sleeping three hours, rise and write, dictate or work till from six to eight o'clock in the morning, when his daily levee was held. This worthy student displayed an extravagance equaling that of Wolsey. His annual expenditure was some four millions of francs, or about £170,000 sterling. How different the fastidious temperance of Milton! He drank water and lived on the humblest of fare. In his youth, he studied during the greatest part of the night; but in his more advanced years he went early to bed—by nine o'clock—rising to his studies at four in summer and five in winter. He studied till midday; then he took an hour's exercise, and after dinner he sang and played the organ, or listened to others' music. He studied again until six, and from that hour till eight he engaged in conversation with friends who came to see him. Then he supped, smoked a pipe of tobacco, drank a glass of water, and went to bed. Glorious visions came to him in the night, for it was then, while lying on his couch, that he composed in thought the greater part of his sublime poem. Sometimes when the fit of composition came strong upon him, he would call his daughter to his side to commit to paper that which he had composed. Milton was of the opinion that the verses composed by him between the autumnal and spring equinoxes were always the best, and he was never satisfied with the verses he had written at any other season. Alfieri, on the contrary, said that equinoctial winds produced a state of almost complete stupidity in him. Like the nightingales, he could sing only in summer; it was his favorite season. Pierre Corneille, in his loftiest flights of imagination, was often brought to a stand still, for want of words and rhyme; thoughts were seething in his brain which he vainly tried to reduce to order, and he would often run to his Thomas "for a word." Thomas rarely failed him. Sometimes, in his fits of inspiration, he would bandage his eyes, throw himself upon the sofa, and dictate to his wife, who always worshiped his genius. Thus he would pass whole days dictating to her his great tragedies; his wife scarcely ventured to speak, and was almost afraid to breathe. Afterwards, when a tragedy had been finished, he would call in his sister Martha, and submit it to her judgment, as Moliere used to consult his old housekeeper about the comedies he had newly written. Racine composed his verses while walking about, reciting them in a loud voice. One day, when thus working at his play of "Mithridates," in the Tuileries Gardens, a crowd of workmen gathered around him, attracted by his gestures; they took him to be a madman about to throw himself into the basin. On his return home from such walks, he would write down, scene by scene, at first in prose, and when he had thus written it out he would exclaim: "My tragedy is done," considering the dressing up of the acts, in verse, as a very small affair. Magliabecchi, the learned librarian to the Duke of Tuscany, on the contrary, never stirred abroad, but lived amidst books and lived upon books; they were his bed, board and washing; he passed eight and forty years in their midst, only twice in the course of his life venturing beyond the walls of Florence, once to go two leagues off, and the other three and a half leagues, by order of the Grand Duke. He was extremely frugal, living upon eggs, bread and water, in great moderation. The life of Liebnitz was one of reading, writing and meditation; that was the secret of his prodigious knowledge. After an attack of gout, he confined himself to a diet of bread and milk. Often he slept in a chair, and rarely went to bed till midnight. Sometimes he was months without quitting his seat, where he slept by night and wrote by day. He had an ulcer in his right leg, which prevented his walking about, even had he wished to do so.

Wedding Breakfasts.

Formal wedding breakfasts, or such as are given in England, have never been very popular here, most brides preferring to give a reception instead, and have tables set with refreshments where people can come and help themselves as they please; but for the moment, the fact of a custom being an English one is sufficient to make it obligatory upon a certain set of people in New York to follow it whether it is convenient and suitable or not, says the Illustrated American. Consequently, the question of the wedding breakfast is one that gives the bride and her mother many anxious moments, for it is expected by those invited that some pretty novelties will be offered them as at the average fashionable dinner party. One of the prettiest wedding breakfasts ever given in New York was served upon two great heart-shaped tables that touched at the point. There was a great heart of roses in the center of each table, white roses in one and pink in the other. At every plate was a heart-shaped pink silk box filled with wedding cake. It was a delightful way of seating the guests, too, besides being so pretty to look at, as in this way every one was brought close together, and the hilarity could be general.—Boston Traveller.

M. Alexandre Dumas is now a hale, vigorous man of some 66 years, broad-shouldered and strongly built, with gray hair, the ample forehead of a thinker and observer, and with a shrewd, satirical expression.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Miss Mildred Fuller, daughter of the Chief-Justice, assumed a part in an amateur performance of Pygmalion and Galatea, in Washington, a few days ago.

A twelve-year-old pianiste from Australia, named Elsie Hall, is attracting considerable attention in London. She has been elected to a scholarship at the Royal College of Music.

It is said that Carmencita, after finishing her work in a New York variety show, is frequently driven to the houses of the so-called aristocracy, where she dances for the enjoyment of the 400.

Ada Cavendish, who once made a tour of America, has announced her intention of returning to the stage. Miss Cavendish belongs to the old school. She is more prehistoric than Lotta or Maggie Mitchell.

"A Connecticut Yankee at the Court of King Arthur," Mark Twain's latest book, is being dramatized by Howard P. Taylor, by arrangement with the author. Mr. Taylor has completed two acts, which are highly spoken of by several critics to whom they were read last week.

Sarah Bernhardt is learning a historical play, La Dame du Chantant, adapted from the Italian. The action passes at Milan in the sixteenth century, when Lombardy was the battle field of the French and Imperial armies. There will be a great scope in it for dress. As Cleopatra, in Paris, Sarah will appear as a true Egyptian woman, with her skin golden-like and her hair black. Cleopatra died from the biting of an asp. In order to get used to that kind of an animal, Sarah Bernhardt came to the rehearsal bearing as a bracelet a small snake from the forest of Fontainebleau.

Book Chat.

I envy that boy as he trots down the street,
With his bright, glowing face and his light-tripping feet,
No honor, no joy, no wealth of a king
Could unto our barefoot such happiness bring.

His jacket is ragged, and brimless his hat;
But what cares a barefoot for trifles like that?
Care catches us all in the world's great din,
But swift must she be to overtake him.

The woods know a tale, the brooklet a song,
They'll chant in his ears through the whole day long;
The squirrel has a secret she'll give him to keep,
The trout waits his coming where shadows lie deep.

And at night, when Nature her lesson has said,
He drops off to sleep in his ungarnished bed;
For stocks may decline, or assessments may rise,
But no dread of the morrow drives sleep from his eyes.

Could I lay the pen down, upon care turn the key,
And dash through the woodland as joyous as he,
The wealth of a world might wait at my feet,
But ne'er would I barter contentment so sweet.

So I turn to my desk with a half-hidden sigh
Whenever barefooted boyhood goes by,
For, whatever my place in the cohorts of men,
A barefooted boy I'll ne'er be again.

Zola's new book will be called "Money." The author is frank enough to say his theme is sordid.

Annie Reeves Aldrich, the writer, is 25, of medium height and attractive appearance, with clear, gray eyes and brown hair. She looks upon literature as a business.

General Benjamin F. Butler's reminiscences will be ready this fall. It is safe to predict that they will make what Horace Greeley used to call "mighty interesting reading."

The Southern author, George W. Cable, is a slim built, somewhat awkward looking man of middle height, with dark, beetling brows and a high forehead, surmounted by a shock of black hair.

"Men and Women I Have Executed" is the title of Hangman Berry's book; Marshall P. Wilder calls his, "Men I've smiled with." Manager Pond should secure those two authors for a series of readings. They would make just about such a team as Mark Twain and George W. Cable.

Texas invented the word "karporama," which is good Greek if not good English. The New York word "electrocute," which is pushing "karporama" for first place in the newspapers, is neither Greek, nor Latin, nor English. It is a monstrous linguistic bastard—a mongrel impossibility of a word—but there is a mournful probability that everybody will soon be compelled to use it.

Of the original edition of the sonnets of Shakespeare, published by Geo. Daniel, of London, in 1609, there are but two perfect copies known. One of these is in the British Museum; for the other, $5,000 was paid but a short time ago. As the book is very small, only 7 by 4 inches, and weighing less than 10 ounces, it has been figured that at that rate each ounce of the precious volume brought $500, or many times its own weight in gold.

Professional Chat.

The eighth woman lawyer has been admitted to the Supreme Court of the United States. This is a progressive age.

The books of the late Samuel J. Tilden show that he expended in all between $800,000 and $900,000 on Greystone, his summer residence on the Hudson.

A Maine young woman who was asked the place of her nativity, replied that she wasn't born anywhere in particular, as she was the daughter of a Methodist minister.

While living in Lexington, General Lee had the habit of writing on small slips of paper. Among the number found is the following: "Honesty in its widest sense is always admirable. The trite saying that 'Honesty is the best policy,' has met with the just criticism that honesty is not policy. This seems to be true. The real honest man is honest from conviction of what is right, not from policy."

At a recent gathering of ministers one speaker told an anecdote which admits of large and varied application. It was the story of a minister who said some strong things about horse racing. He was told after the sermon that he had touched one of their best members at a tender point. "Well," said the preacher, "I cannot change my sermon for him." In the evening the man was introduced to the minister, who said: "I understand that what I said touched one of your weaknesses. I assure you that I was altogether unconscious of the weakness when I said it." "Oh, do not trouble yourself," said the man. "It is a very poor sermon that does not hit me somewhere."

At the reunion dinner of a college fraternity, a few days ago, says the New York Evening Sun, the following story was told by a young lawyer who had heard the original declaration. In his father's congregation there was an old man much given to long speeches and startling rhetorical effects in the weekly prayer meeting. One evening the old gentleman was moved to some consideration of the wonders of the universe, and after suggesting that it is a matter of amazement that the Lord could have made so many different things as the world contains, and "made them all different," with a last splendid burst he cried out: "My friends, does it not amaze you to think that when the Lord made the mountains he knew how to make a dew drop, and that when he made me he knew how to make a daisy?"

Two young men graduated from a well known medical school, and both went into practice in New York, says the Brunswick (Me.) Telegraph. One was a bright fellow and hard worker and a modest man, the other a man of showy parts and not given to overwork. The latter soon secured a handsome practice. The other got little practice and when making a call upon his classmate remarked: "How is it J. that you who never worked in school, who often came to me for assistance over knotty matters, which I rendered (and J. admitted all as stated), have a large practice, while I am not yet earning a living!" "Come to the window and I will explain to you the whole case. Of every 100 persons you see passing up street 80 at least are fools. I am doctoring to the 80 while you are attending to the 20 wise men."

This story of Congressman Allen, of Mississippi, says the New York Tribune, about the foreman of the jury in a small town in his State will be appreciated by lawyers: Mr. Allen was waiting for a case to be called in a little country Court-house, and he listened with no especial interest to another case which was under consideration. At the end of the trial the Judge instructed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant. A little later Mr. Allen met the foreman of the jury in one of the hallways of the Court-house just coming from consultation. "Hello, John," said the foreman, "did you hear them instructions of the Judge?" Mr. Allen said that he had heard them. "Well," said the foreman, "they confused some of the boys right smart for a time, but they didn't confuse me." And then he went into Court and handed in a verdict for the plaintiff for $1,500.

There is as much distinction between a Chinese physician and a Chinese surgeon as there is between an American doctor and dentist. The Celestial practitioners are particular about this matter, and they would not trespass on one another's field to save a life. This custom is not only expensive, but costs many lives. An English tourist was riding a bicycle in Hong Kong one day when he fell from his bicycle with such violence that one of the wire spokes was run into his shoulder, where it broke off and stuck fast. The man was removed to a house and a surgeon summoned, who first demanded his fee. After pocketing his money he broke off the protruding point of the spoke, leaving the other fragment imbedded in the sufferer's body. He then went away. The tourist was in intense agony, but the surgeon would not help him. Medical etiquette forbade. "The case is for the physician," he said, "as the wire is inside the body."

NOTES.

General Joseph E. Johnston, one of the surviving heroes of the lost cause, is 84, but as buoyant and active as a man of 50. The whole Southern people feel a great pride in him, and he doesn't turn a wheel for a lottery, either.

Governor Penney has the Alla's best wishes. He seems to have got there in good shape.—Alla, June 5th.

Yes, come to think of it, Colonel John P. Irish did not assist the Democrats in Oregon during the last campaign.

The latest society pet is a pig. A short time ago a gentleman on entering the house of a young and ardent sportsman in the shires he was surprised to find the drawing room in the possession of a small but comely specimen of the Tamworth or Leicestershire breed of pigs. The pig's proprietor stated that it was a remarkably well behaved and well-conducted member of his household.

The boys and girls of Woodland have organized a coöperative fruit canning and drying union. It would not be a bad idea if the same plan would be adopted generally in the fruit and hop producing sections, where, through such organizations, contracts could be taken for picking. In this county each year, considerable difficulty is encountered in obtaining sufficient help, particularly for the picking of hops. A number of the growers let their contracts to head Chinese, who guarantee to furnish the required help; others bring in Pinte Indians from Nevada, and the work of the latter has been very satisfactory. But we have an abundance of our own race to do the work—the only difficulty to be overcome is that the work will be properly performed.

In the matter of providing money to appropriately celebrate such holidays as Decoration Day and the Fourth of July, it should be made largely from the city treasury. As the means are now raised, a few gentlemen of enterprise do the collecting work, and the burden of contributing falls upon the few. So long as our national patriotism prompts the observance of these anniversary days, we see no reason why provision should not be made for raising the money by the tax levy. As it is, many who reap largely from the benefits of the expenditures of our own people and visitors, do not contribute, or lend any aid whatever; and those who are non-residents, but who receive handsome rentals from property here, give nothing. It has been the city authorities appropriated money for such objects, and no objection was raised by the people. Such a policy should be pursued now and hereafter; it certainly would meet with popular approval.

We have noted elsewhere in our columns the pronouncing of the judgment of death upon Chas. Freeman. On the happening of the tragedy we recounted the circumstances, but of course, could express no opinion, as there had been no judicial determination in the case. Now, however, the defendant has been pronounced guilty of murder by a jury, and a motion for a new trial has been denied. We are fully satisfied, as was expressed by the judge, when he pronounced sentence, that there had been no error committed that will avail the defendant in the Supreme Court, and it is hardly possible that considerations can be brought which will justify the Governor in interfering. When the judgment was pronounced it was a matter of solemnity that was appreciated by all who heard it. It must be considered, however, that Freeman constituted himself a jury, judge and executioner, and that he aroused one incapable of protecting himself from sleep, told him that his time had come, carried him to a barrel of water, plunged him into it, and held him there until he perished. Freeman had no chance for defense and no jury stood between him and his fate. Freeman cannot complain. The law has treated him with much more mercy than he did his victim.

The number of girls who run away from home has of late materially increased, and old people and the members of sewing circles have shaken their heads and wondered what the world was really coming to. The reasons which impel girls to take this step are generally of a very flimsy character; but the story of Mary Nelson, which comes from Dubuque, Iowa, shows that there are sometimes extenuating circumstances to excuse an act which might at first sight be considered as worthy of condemnation. It appears that Miss Nelson ran away from the family mansion and successfully concealed herself for several weeks from her friends, thus causing them grave anxiety. Last week she was discovered accidentally in Grand Rapids, Mich., and taken back to Dubuque. Her reason for her action is so strange that it deserves to be recorded; and the hope may be expressed that when fathers and mothers shall hear the story it may serve to them as a solemn warning. Miss Nelson, according to her own statement (the truth of which has been fully verified), was compelled to practice on the piano five hours a day. Hitherto it has been supposed that a girl who would do this was a selfish and heartless creature, who delighted in giving pain to others; but it is now seen how unjust has been this estimate. The unspeakable anguish suffered by the residents of a "block" in which there were seven fully grown and constantly-agitated pianos has often called out the liveliest expressions of public sympathy; but until the present case, it has never been thought that the unhappy performers were entitled to any consideration. Miss Nelson says that every time she played "Little Annie Rooney" or "Down Went McGinty" the hot tears welled up in her eyes, and the pangs of remorse which she felt were so acute, that not even the most popular brand of chewing-gum could afford her relief. At last she could bear it no longer, and gathering up her few belongings—being careful to secure a plentiful supply of hairpins—she fled into the night and the darkness. When the people of Dubuque heard this story there was as much rejoicing as if the Mayor of the city had issued an edict banishing the hurdy-gurdy and the little German band. It was felt that Miss Nelson's example would be productive of good, and the number of "original packages" that were opened in celebration of the event would have astonished even the United States Supreme Court; but when Miss Nelson added that she had long had a wild and uncontrollable yearning to assist her mother in the family washing and ironing, it was felt that from Dubuque would go forth a lesson that might yet regenerate society. Already Miss Nelson has been besieged with offers of marriage, and with requests to sit for her portrait for the illustrated newspapers; and it is felt that, with her example held up to the American girls, the domestic problem may yet be solved.

From present indications there will be the usual field of candidates for Republican nominations for the various State and county offices next fall, and from those named and to be named, unquestionably tickets will be selected that will be successful, unless there will, in the case of the county, be inaugurated a petty fight in the party. We do not approve of the policy that has in the past been adopted with so much disaster here, of a few men assuming to represent one or the other faction, dictating the action of our conventions, and arbitrarily directing who shall or shall not sit in those bodies. We want to see the County Convention composed of delegates who are not committed in advance. Let any and all who seek nominations be given a fair show. A man who fails under those circumstances will feel satisfied, and will submit to the will of the majority. But it has been that gentlemen felt they were undeservedly treated, because they were conscious when their names were proposed for nominations and when they walked upon the platform that the selection of the nominee had been pre-arranged. It is not to be wondered that under such circumstances, many who have been defeated left the convention hall with a feeling of bitterness. Before an impartial convention a candidate feels very different, and in the event of his defeat has little to complain of.

It has been suggested by some of the press that as a just rebuke to Stephen J. Field, as well as a mark of respect to Mr. E. G. Waite, that the latter be given a place on the Republican State ticket. The idea is a prime one and should be adopted without a dissenting voice. Mr. Waite is not a whit better Republican than thousands of others in the State; nor is he any more learned than scores of gentlemen who, like himself, are modest, retiring and studious. But he stands to day a veritable martyr to his independence of thought and to that bravery that enabled him to defy those whom he offended by his expression in behalf of a dead, defenseless man. He had manhood enough to give credit where he felt credit was due. By thus acting, he was deprived of four years' of a livelihood; for he had been selected by the California Republican delegation in Congress for the position of Register of Lands for the San Francisco district, and had made his calculations accordingly. But in paying respect to the memory of a dead friend he provoked the ire of a gangrened, soured, sore, defeated politician at Washington; one who "filled with wrath and cabbage," because in years past he had been ignored and spurned by his own party in his puerile efforts to get a presidential nomination. And he it said with regret, that man is as able to dictate to the executive or others in position the withdrawal of the name of a good man to enable this political judge to still exhibit his spleen to the memory of his superior through the living. It is marvelous to what extent the human heart may be trained in its hatred; it has before this occasion been known to assume the ghoul-like nature that would prompt it to burrow into the grave after the festering carcass of its life enemy. But then such characteristics were only found in the outlaw, the midnight assassin, the infanticide, the wife-murderer, or the cold-blooded resurrectionist; it has never before been known to exist in the person of an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Rarely has any one man exercised the unmaposed power before all administrations that this Judge has at Washington. Presumably free, unbiased, even-handed and leaning toward no party or faction, but with scale evenly poised, he has dipped his arm to the elbow in the seething pool and groped without let or hindrance, fishing for and catching those whom he would prefer for place, and casting aside those he hated. A non-partisan, as he would have people believe, he has sought times without number to get the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, although appointed to the place his presence has sullied by President Lincoln, in 1863, when it was high treason to give place to a Democrat; a soi disant Democrat, he hangs about the back door of the Republican administration and dictates the appointments on this coast, and not a man of the delegation dares say nay, in the face of the fact that before going to Washington they made their selections of the best candidates from the multitude applying. His power was acknowledged in the last administration, as instance the appointments he was able to command for this coast.

It is time a quietus was given to this one-man, despotic power. Let the people of all parties unite in demanding that hereafter Stephen J. Field confine himself to the duties of the Bench, and for the rest of his years, in retirement and in sack-cloth and ashes, labor to efface the memory of the past whose bleak-eyed countenance must rise up every night and haunt him like the incubus demon of Tartarus.

Cincinnatus of Los Angeles.

We have been amused at the lengthy announcement published Sunday, of Stephen M. White, that he would be a candidate for the distinguished position of United States Senator, and to that end would take the stump to impress the people that he should be elected to that dignified office. Later on, in an interview published on Monday, in San Francisco, the reporter asked him:

"Then you will not accept the nomination for Governor?"

"Under no circumstances could I afford to do so. For many years I have been a hard worker, and by that means have succeeded in building up a lucrative law practice which I could not afford to sacrifice. If I were to be nominated and should carry the State, I could not, as you can well understand, attend to my law practice; but so far as the Senatorship is concerned the conditions would be altogether different. I have already gone carefully over the ground, and have matters so arranged that in the event of my succeeding Senator Stanford I could still, through my private office in Los Angeles, maintain my practice. No, I will not be a candidate for the gubernatorial office. Without egotism, I can safely say that I could have the nomination if I so desired; in fact, there would be practically no opposition to me in my party, for all of the gentlemen whose names have been mentioned in connection with the nomination have assured me that if I desired to make the race, they would quietly withdraw."

From the answer of the young man we are to assume his law practice is so extensive that it could be run by his office clerk during the time he would be absent at Washington attending the Federal Senate, and that he could conduct the important affairs of the State there while the clerk would look after the concerns of his Los Angeles clients. We are not disposed to doubt that the management of the clerk would be satisfactory. Mr. White's practice has doubtless largely increased; it must have increased, for four years ago it was not of such consequence to interfere with his making the struggle for the insignificant position of State Senator—a position paying $8 per day for a brief term. Now, it seems, he is, according to his own statement, spurning a tendered nomination for Governor. We are to assume, from his language, that the convention of his party are attempting to force that nomination upon him. It has happened in the history of this country that the distinguished fitness of an individual to fill an important public station has been recognized to the extent that the people have forced the office upon him. About the only instance of this character we recall, however, was the one of a man of the name of Washington, who was conducting a profitable farm in the State of Virginia, and without his knowledge was chosen President of the United States. Like White, Washington was a man without egotism, but it is to be assumed that he lived in a darker age, in that he did not decline the Presidency and ask that the world be given him. Of course the American people have, and are glad to accept, the favor of public service from such men as White and Washington; and we doubt not the farewell address of White, when he will retire from public life and relieve his law clerk at Los Angeles, will be as much revered by the American people as that which was delivered by Washington. There has been a misapprehension with many that the age of distinguished American statesmen has passed. It would seem, however, there is about to be a revival, and that it is to come from the Western side of the continent. While it is true White is unknown in the East, and feels that he ought to introduce himself to the people of his own State, we doubt not there will be no need that he be furnished credentials at the Federal Capitol. Should he be elected to the Senate, the difficulty to the people of this State will be that the popular ovations he will receive in the East may detain him from taking his seat on time. We all know the American people are over-demonstrative in this matter of the reception of great men.

First Railroad Accident in California.

In the Sacramento State Tribune of Wednesday morning, November 14, 1855, appeared the following account of the first railroad accident that occurred in this State:

FIRST RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—The first of a series of accidents, which seem to have been ordered by fate to attend the introduction of railroads into all parts of the world, occurred in this city yesterday. About half past four o'clock P. M., as the train was passing near the depot, a Frenchman named Julo Bergerant was unfortunately run over by the engine and his leg crushed beneath the wheels. It is said that he had been in the neighborhood during the entire day, in a state of intoxication. Every effort was made by the engineer to give the alarm and prevent the melancholy occurrence, and no blame can be rightfully attached to those having charge of the train. The unfortunate man was speedily taken to the hospital, where his leg was amputated below the knee. Chloroform was administered, and even at the present writing (some hours subsequent to the operation) he seems to be entirely unaware of his situation and the loss he has sustained.

Sentence of Freeman.

Charles Freeman yesterday had pronounced upon him by Judge Van Fleet the death sentence, in accordance with the jury verdict recently rendered in that court. Up to that time Freeman seemed not to realize the seriousness of his position. He had during the trial treated the matter somewhat with indifference; but when the motion for a new trial was overruled, and he was told to stand up to receive his doom, he quailed, and manifested emotion while the words of sentence fell from the lips of the judge. The date fixed for the execution will be designated in the warrant of death that will be delivered to the Sheriff, though its execution will be stayed pending the action of the Supreme Court. In case of an affirmation of the judgment of the Superior Court, a subsequent date for execution of judgment will be fixed, and then executive interference alone can avail to save.

The Weather.

The highest and lowest temperature during the past week was 88° and 44°, with variable winds and clear skies. The highest and lowest for the same time last year was 91° and 54°. There was no precipitation during the week this year, nor was there any on the same date last year.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MAURICE TOOMEY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Justina A. C. Toomey, Administratrix of the estate of Maurice Toomey, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the administratrix, at the office of Taylor & Holl, No. 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal.

Dated, June 5, 1890.
JUSTINA A. C. TOOMEY
TAYLOR & HOLL, Administratrix.
Att'ys for Administratrix. je75.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARGARET FEE, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Henry Fee, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Fee, deceased, to the creditors of, and to all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice to Henry Fee, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal.

Dated May 26, 1890.
HENRY FEE, Administrator.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m315

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARY W. L. AIKEN, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of the estate of Mary W. L. Aiken, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal.

Dated May 26, 1890.
EDWARD F. AIKEN, Administrator.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m315

CENSUS CLIPPINGS.

As to some of the questions, it looks very much as if the census enumerator will have to "read the answers in the stars."—Washington Post.

When you see a census enumerator negotiating for the purchase of a baseball mask, you will understand that public opinion in regard to his schedule of questions has begun to assert itself.—N. Y. World.

Census Enumerator—Well, I have finished a big day's work, and I'm tired. His wife—I'm so sorry I can't help you. Now sit down, dear, and tell me all you found out about our neighbors.—N. Y. Sun.

The talk of the census people about resorting to harsh measures to extract the desired information about health and private debts has been the purest sort of humbug. They dare not use harsh measures against any citizen who behaves himself decently when the census enumerator calls, answers the proper questions pleasantly and satisfactorily, keeps his lips closed tight when Question 22 is reached, and maintains his silence to the end of the preposterous schedule.—N. Y. Sun.

The first two weeks in June will be devoted to taking the census of the population and other valuable statistics. A number of new questions have been added this time, many of which have been severely criticised on account of their inquisitorial character. Among others it is intended to take a list of all the chronic diseases and other complaints with which the public are afflicted. It is hard to say what benefit this would be to the present administration, unless they wish to put a general line of patent medicine on the market or expect to turn an "honest penny" by furnishing addresses to patent medicine men. There is no doubt that the latter would be a very brilliant scheme, and that the wealthy patent medicine manufacturers would be willing to make large campaign subscriptions in order to secure the names and addresses of every one in the country who is afflicted with rheumatism, consumption, liver complaint, etc. We can see no good in this, and think it is very peculiar that a respectable government should go into such a small and disgraceful kind of business.—Druggists' Circular.

Major E. A. Montooth, of Pittsburg, a Republican aspirant for the Governorship, and one of the leading lawyers in Pennsylvania, is filled with disgust at Census Superintendent Porter's latest inquisitorial questions. "The six new questions that have been added by Mr. Porter are enough to make a man's blood boil," said the Major to a Pittsburg correspondent of the Washington Post. "Rome had her Caesar, her Scipio, her Brutus; but Rome in her proudest day never had a census enumerator going around to ask her citizens whether they were suffering from acute or chronic disease. Greece had her Pericles, her Demosthenes, and her Socrates; but Greece in her palmiest days never had census takers to find out whether her people were defective in mind and body. Even proud Albion herself cannot equal it. Queen Victoria in all her majesty never had a census enumerator ask her whether she was afflicted with any disease to which frail flesh is heir. The whole business is abominable. Most assuredly, if any clients come to me in regard to refusing to answer some of the questions I'll carry the matter into the courts, and there prove the utter absurdity and illegal character of the last six questions."

DRAMATIC NOTES.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings, at the Metropolitan, E. H. Sothern will present Lord Chumley and The Highest Bidder. Sothern produced both of these comedies here last year to full houses. He is an artist in this line, and better than his father.

The McNeill Club will give a season of three nights in The Pirates of Penzance, June 12th, 13th and 14th, at the Metropolitan. The club will be assisted by Alfred Wilkes, tenor, and Louise Manfred, soprano. The following is the cast: "Mabel," Miss Louise Manfred; "Ruth," Miss Lizzie Linn; "Edith," Miss Louise Milliken; "Kate," Miss M. Alys Pullman; "Isabel," Miss Alice Hanifin; "Major-General Stanley," H. R. Blair; "Frederick," Alfred Wilkie; "Pirate King," Horace Crocker; "Sergeant of Police," W. E. Lovdal; "Samuel," Theo. Milliken. Pirates, policemen and the General's daughters.

Excursion Up the River.

The excursion up the river on the Governor Dana, Captains Foster and Roberts, that left here Thursday evening and returned at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, was most satisfactory and enjoyable. It was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Museum Association, and about 400 attended. The party was accompanied by the First Artillery Band, who donated their services. The party proceeded about ten miles above the mouth of the Feather.

FLASHES.

Angels are "fly" creatures.

A curiosity—The Buffalo-bruin Co.

The man of Uz took his boils in Job-lots.

Chicago pork is sometimes sold at hog-tion.

The rooster is known by the comp-henny he keeps.

Patriotism at so much per pate is the politician's glory.

The rich man hath a lean conscience and a fat pocketbook.

Sewing circles are where dresses are sewed and characters ripped.

When one changes his mind he should always get a better one.

When doctors disagree, the undertaker usually settles the subject.

When a red-headed woman gets mad, don't look at her head; watch your own.

There is often something about a woman we don't like—another fellow's arm.

There are some things a woman does not know, but we can't tell what they are.

When a fellow tries to drown his sorrow in liquor, he finds that troubles are good swimmers.

The man that likes to hear himself talk is deprived of much pleasure he might have by talking in his sleep.

Baggage and funds in bank will not go unless they are checked. Other things stop when they are checked.

Funeral of Captain Dwyer.

The particulars of the accident at Oakland on the 30th, in which Captain Dwyer, of this city, perished, were not at hand when our last number went to press; hence, it was impossible that we could then express our feeling for his loss. The people, on the sad occasion of his funeral, testified their appreciation of one who had lived here so many years, and who throughout had, without assumption, helped his fellow men and the community. The news of his death was received here with a shock; our people felt that from among us few such men could be spared.

Those who attend the concert at the plaza to-morrow evening will find it convenient to step into Flint's Candy Store, No. 824 J street, and get a glass of his delicious Ice Cream Soda, or a dish of his famous Ice Cream.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal.

The popular market men, Garzoli & Genis, at 712 K street, are daily receiving choice strawberries, new potatoes, and in fact everything in the market line. Give them a call. 712 K street. Telephone No. 188.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAAR.

Gents' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Boots, Shoes

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON.

First-class make. Apply MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

JESSE SLAUGHTER,

Office, No. 1217 Fifth Street.

PLASTERING, WHITEWASHING, CLEANING OF CESSPOOLS, Etc.

Also, CITY SCAVENGER.

Burying of dead animals attended to at short notice.

Don't forget the number—1217 Fifth street, the old stand, where I have been for 25 years.

SPECIAL SALE

—OF—

1000 PAIRS of LACE CURTAINS

Prices range from 75c to $4.50 a Pair.

A Saving in your Pocket of from 50c to $2.50 a Pair.

The Nonpareil!

Cor. 5th and J Streets,

Summer Vests.

Ladies' Swiss Ribbed Cotton Vests, crochet finish, pink, blue, flesh and white, 25c.

Ladies' Lisle Vests, Swiss Ribbed, high neck, open front, with and without sleeves, natural color, 50c.

Ladies' Lisle Swiss Ribbed Vests, pink, blue and natural, run with silk tapa, silk crochet finish, 75c.

Ladies' All-Silk Swiss Ribbed Vests, run with silk tapa, silk crochet finish, pink, blue, ecru and natural, $1.25. Black, colored tapes, and self tapa, $1.50.

Infants' Swiss Ribbed Silk Vests, white, sizes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, prices, $1.25, $1.35, $1.50, $1.65 and $1.75.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL
HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND
HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND
SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO
OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Cart For Sale!

NEARLY NEW!
CHEAP FOR CASH!

Successor to McKIM & ORTH C. A. FISK, - 408 J Street

Mixed on the Planets.

The man who owned the big telescope at the corner of Broadway and Chambers street was called away and engaged a fakir to attend the business for him until his return. The fakir's knowledge of astronomy was not profound, but he did the best he could.

"Step right up, ladies and gents," he exclaimed, with a flourish, "and take a look at the heavenly bodies. Here we have Venus and Adonis, Mercury, Satan and his seven rings, Jupiter Pluvius and all the rest of em. Over here on the right," and he indicated a spot in the heavens, "we see the Dog-star, travelling with great velocity."

"Mebbe the Dog-star has a tin can tied to his tail," yelled a small boy on the opposite corner.

The interruption was treated by the fakir with the contempt it deserved, and he continued:

"Over here we can show you the beautiful planet Uranus, as the boys said when the farmer chased them out of the orchard. I am surprised gents, that you do not come up and take a look at Venus. It may be the last chance you'll get, as this beautiful and accomplished star is now receding from the earth at the rate of a million miles a minute. Such shrinkin' modesty is not often met with. We also have Romeo and Juliet. I am not certain, but I think they appear to-night in the balcony scene. Surely, gents, here is an attraction worth the paltry five cents we ask you for it. Over here we have Raceland, Badge, Exile, Inspector B., and some more of the talent. If you want to see Neptune in a new bathin'suit, now is your chance."

The crowd did not seem to be greatly interested in the starry firmament, and many did not hesitate to jeer and scoff. This hurt the fakir's tender feelings and he wound up his remarks by saying, very tartly:

"Confound yer pictures! I could get every nickel in the bloomin' crowd if I did tell you that this powerful telescope would draw the man in the moon close enough so you could borrow a dollar from him" and he placed his eye on the instrument and swept the sky for his own amusement.—N. Y. World.

An impecunious drummer is said to have turned spotter on an eastern road and by working upon the sympathies of conductors induced them to grant him favors, which he has reported, and therefore brought about their discharge. An exchange remarks that "if the devil should ever become incapacitated to properly administer the affairs of his realm, this spotter would make a most worthy successor to his satanic majesty." If the spotter's record was carefully investigated it could be ascertained beyond a doubt that he had at some time been engaged as a peddler or street fakir and that he has never, even for a short time, been enrolled in the ranks of traveling salesmen. A man so depraved could hardly prevail upon any reputable merchant to even trust him with a line of samples.

That the manners of our fathers are not ours, says the New York Evening Sun, is well enough understood, and the phrase "of the old school" has come to be used rather as a reproach to the degenerate present generation. An old lady who belonged to the times when courtesy was perhaps more general, as it certainly was more elaborate than it is now, administered rather neatly a rebuke to a lad who did not come up to her ideas. She had known the boy's father when he was in Harvard, as now was the son, and as the latter could hardly remember his parents, who died in his infancy, he was always eager to learn all he could about them. The youth was invited to call upon the old lady, who is now beyond the term set by the psalmist for man's life, at a country place one day last summer, and had an interview with her upon the wide veranda, where she was sitting when he arrived. He lifted his hat, and then, replacing it upon his head, went on talking with the old dame, who regarded him with looks of disapproval. "Do I look like my father?" the young man asked at length. "I cannot tell," the old lady replied, drily, "I never saw him with his hat on when he talked with a lady."

Cassius, or "Cash," Cologne, as he is usually named, entered a dry goods store to buy a dress-pattern for his wife. Walking up one of the aisles he was more than surprised to hear some one in the dim distance loudly yell out "Cash!" Naturally astonished, he looked in the direction whence the voice came, supposing its owner to be a friend or acquaintance. Still he could see no one whom he recognized. Wondering more and more, astonishment grew to boiling point, when, as if by a preconcerted signal, from all quarters of the room came persistent cries of "Cash!" "Cash!" "Cash!" This was more than Virginia chivalry could bear, and, as at that moment, a clerk, with a locomotive-whistle voice, standing right back of him, capped the climax by shouting the name in his very ear, he turned round and remarked: "Look here, young fellow, you folks may think you're having a lot of fun with me, but if you use my name that way again, I'll break your neck." It took the proprietor and six floor-walkers half an hour to convince him as to the facts of the case, and that no harm was meant.

Gregory Bros. Co.

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time
If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO.,
703 J Street, Sacramento. Agents.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

BUFFALO

BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates. Give it a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. my17

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh; Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.

1002 J Street, Sacramento.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

Gas and Steam Fitter.

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth
Repairing Neatly Done.
Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6.45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7.25 P
9.30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6.20 A
7.05 P	Denning, El Paso and East	6.45 P
6.25 P	Knights Landing	7.40 A
10.50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9.55 A
8.00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	6.25 P
12-01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6.00 A
3-00 P	Ogden and East	10-30 A
3-00 P	Oroville	10-30 A
10-40 A	Red Bluff via Marysville	4.00 P
6.15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7.25 P
3-05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 A
6-45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9-10 P
10-00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	86.00 A
10-50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2.25 P
6-50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 P
10-50 A	San Jose	2.25 P
7-05 P	Santa Barbara	9.55 A
6-45 A	Santa Rosa	11.40 A
3-05 P	Santa Rosa	7.25 P
8-15 A	Stockton and Galt	6.45 P
7-05 P	Stockton and Galt	9.55 A
8-00 P	Truckee and Reno	6.25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	6.00 A
12-05 P	Colfax	10.20 A
6-45 A	Vallejo	11.40 A
7-05 P	Vallejo	17.25 P
7-00 A	Placerville (Mixed)	4.50 P
5-00 P	Folsom	9.00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.

T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K. COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

KILGORE & CO.

DEALERS IN—

Oliver Plows and Extras, Studebaker Wagons and Buggies, Hardware, Etc.

Successors to Grangers' C. B. Association.

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.
Headquarters for Fancy Crackers
610 J Street, Sacramento.
Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,
—And You Will Save Money.—
H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries
QUEENSWARE, CIGARS,
TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.
1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,
Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN

HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Farth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from $25
Stylish Pants made to order 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 703 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento.

Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.
JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Attorneys for Administrator my10-5t

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice, SACRAMENTO.

The Ampulla.

The legend of the ampulla brought heaven by a white dove, and containing the oil with which the Frank King Clovis was anointed by St. Remy at his baptism in 496, is, as every respectable legend ought to be, considerably younger than the fact that it relates to. It is mentioned for the first time by Hincmar, the Archbishop of Reims, who was born in 806 and died in 882. The ampulla was always used thereafter at the coronation of the kings of France down to Charles X. It was kept at Reims, in the tomb of St. Remy. It was a glass vial 41 millimeters high, with an aperture 16 millimeters in circumference. It was filled with a kind of "gruel, thick and slab," which in the long run had become solidified and of a reddish brown color. When it was time to use it at the ceremony of coronation, the high prior of St. Remy, from whose neck the rich shrine which contained it hung by silver chain, scooped from it a particle by means of a gold needle, and this was mingled with the chrism (a compound of oil and balm), preparatory to the anointing of the king.

The legend says that there was such a relation between the holy vial and the life of the reigning king as for the bulk of the balm it contained to diminish if his health happened to be impaired. The ampulla was destroyed in 1793, by Ruhl, a member of the convention, then appointed commissioner in the Department of the Marne. But before delivering the vial to that officer, Abbe Seraine, the "cure" of St. Remy, took out of it a part, which was reverently kept in a crystal vessel inclosed in a silver-gilt shrine, and was used for the last time at the coronation of Charles X., in 1825. I think it may be admitted that, in the phrase of the very old French writer here quoted, the word mild refers to the oil and the word honey to the balm, which composed the chrism. Milk, indeed, can be an allowable substitute for oil, referring to the sweetness of the savor, and honey for balm, referring to the sweetness of the odor.—Notes and Queries.

When was Christ Born?

We have no proof that December 25 is the date of the birth of Christ. At one time the beginning of the Christian Era was supposed to conform with the date above mentioned, and for that reason was called Christmas by all Christian nations. It is now generally conceded, by the best authorities of the world, too, that Christ was not born on December 25, or any other time during the winter. The date now unanimously agreed upon is April 5, not April 5 of the "year of one," but April 5, B. C. 4. This error in our mode of reckoning time is supposed to have arisen from the fact that the dating of time as "A. D." was not introduced, into the church at least, until about the year 527 A. D.

The preachers will shortly go out of town, And Satan will put on the hood and the gown!

Citizen—So you think of locating here?
Physician—Yes. I thought some of practicing among you.

Citizen—See here, young man, there's a good opening here for a man as understands his biz, but we don't want no practicing, or experimenting—doctoring's what we want!
Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present, alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent or overbusy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his "practice" until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

It's the only medicine for the weaknesses, irregularities and painful derangements peculiar to women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee that it will give satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) paid for it will be promptly refunded.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. One a dose. Sold by druggists. 25 cents vial.

Utopia.

The word "Utopia" is of Greek origin, being compounded of "ou," not, and "topos," place. It literally means "nowhere." Sir Thomas More coined the word, and applied it in his "Happy Republic" to an imaginary island, where all was right and nothing wrong. His forcible, and at the same time fanciful picture of "Utopia" made a profound impression upon the reading public, and the pithy word which he had coined ere long was grafted into the language.

One of the stories now going the rounds, says the Chicago News, tells of Bismarck's clever ruse to save a friend from death. It seems that Bismarck and his friend were out hunting one day and the friend incautiously walked off into a morass from which he could not extricate himself. Feeling himself gradually sinking, the unfortunate fellow called out to Bismarck: "For God's sake, come to my help or I shall be lost in this quicksand." Bismarck saw that the danger was great, but he retained his presence of mind. "No," cried Bismarck, "I will not venture into the morass, for then I should be lost, too. It is evident your end is inevitable; therefore, to relieve you from the cruel agony of slow death I will shoot you." Therefore Bismarck coolly leveled his rifle at his floundering friend. "Keep quiet," cried Bismarck, "I cannot take correct aim. Remember that in order to put you at once out of misery, I must shoot you through the head." The shocking brutality of this suggestion drove all fear of the morass out of the friend's mind; the unlucky chap thought only of dodging Bismarck's bullet, and with this in mind he struggled so violently that finally, by almost superhuman efforts, he succeeded in laying hold of the root of an old tree and thereby he rescued himself. "It was your presence of mind that saved me," he confessed to Bismarck; "in no other way could my extraction from the quicksands have been accomplished."

Mother—Well, Katie, you have had quite a lively chat with the young barrister. Has he declared himself yet? Katie—Yes; you see, ma, all the time he was smoking his cigar he kept puffing rings into the air, and I am perfectly sure he intended that as a covert allusion to the engagement and wedding rings.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO. In the Superior Court in and for said county. In the matter of the Estate of Matthew Hodge, deceased. Notice is hereby given that Friday, the 6th day of June, 1890, at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, and the Court-room of said Court, at the Court-house, in the City of Sacramento, County of Sacramento, and State of California, have been appointed as the time and place for proving the will of said Matthew Hodge, deceased, and for hearing the application of James O'Brien and Terry McCabe for the issuance to them of letters testamentary thereon. Witness my hand and the seal of said Court, this 24th day of May, 1890. W. B. HAMILTON, Clerk. By L. P. SCOTT, Deputy Clerk. TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Petitioners. m3rd

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

J. A. MOYNIHAN G. E. MOYNIHAN. Moynihan's 418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda TRY OUR VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES 212 J ST. and 901 K ST. Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501 --- 507 K, cor. Fifth FURNITURE and BEDDING. On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK FAIR DEALING! LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS Agents for Rockford Watch Co. NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

CELEBRATED WEINER LAGER BEER CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS, Corner Twelfth and I Streets SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road AND BE SURE AND STOP AT BILLY GROENVELD'S Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line. Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter. M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor. CALL AT 1118 J STREET, AT— Fred Futterer's Saloon And Get a Glass of Cool Beer. The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand. POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES. FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER WISSEMAN'S SALOON, Klebetz & Green's Old Stand, 1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento. GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR. Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg. BOHEMIA PILSENER, BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS. SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE (Formerly Wm. Gamble's.) 1012 SEVENTH STREET. Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

Dealers are claiming that their pianos have a solid iron frame, just like the MATHUSHEK. We wish to make it clear to the public that the MATHUSHEK PIANO, of New Haven, Conn., is the ONLY PIANO MADE having a solid iron Wrist Plank, and the tuning pins set in same, statements to the contrary notwithstanding. Thin iron plates are only a detriment and gotten up to deceive the people. Hence this old claim that certain pianos are like the Mathushek, is exploded.

JOHN F. COOPER.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively. Yours, etc. MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, JUNE 14, 1890.

No. 17.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

It is a strange coincidence, that whenever anything is suggested regarding the bonded debt, with a view of lessening the burden, the Funded Debt Commission is promptly to the fore and in antagonism to any plan whereby a proper defense against unjust demands by the creditors, can be defeated. At all times this Commission has been the secret covert friend of the bondholders, and per force, the enemy of the city. Just now when it is deemed advisable by the Trustees to relieve the city from the effects of an unjust decision, we find this Commission arrayed against any effort for a fair hearing of the case before a Court which gives all indications of fairness and a comprehensive understanding of the situation. Why this great solicitude for the bondholders? It would occur to a reasoning mind, that any effort to reduce our burden, or to be relieved from the crippled condition in which the former decision of the Supreme Court left us, should receive a prompt recognition by all friends of the city, and by all who are desirous of lessening our burdens. This Commission, on its own behalf, even threatens to invoke contempt proceedings in behalf of the "poor injured bondholders." Indeed, do we find the fine handiwork already through the timidity of some of the city officials. There is just one proposition, and that is: Was the former decision of the Court a fair and just exposition of the law? We think not; the Trustees think not; the people think not. Therefore, we want another chance for justice.

The contempt proceedings would settle nothing, even if invoked. It was the proper thing to order the Auditor to apportion 55 per cent. of the net receipts from water rents into the interest and sinking fund. The Treasurer, as a matter of course, would only follow the Auditor's order. In this there could be no contempt. The Treasurer is simply a creature of the Board, and the apportionment is made by the Board and the Auditor independently of the Treasurer. Therefore, that officer could not be in contempt. There should be no fear of any contempt proceedings. We want justice, and want a chance for a fair hearing on the merits of our cause; this and nothing more. It is unjust to the taxpayers to have this Funded Debt Commission constantly stalking forth like Banquo's ghost, on every occasion, when the interest of the city is at stake, and always against the city.

Only a few months ago, when the absolute necessity for a new charter was manifest to all, this "friend of the city" came out in all its deadly power, and through an influence that is past all understanding, actually terrorized the people to abandon this project so necessary for our local self-government. So determined was this opposition that the friends of the Commission procured the publication of a "sidewalk circular" whose sole object was to defeat a charter. We do not like to revamp ancient history, or hold any "post-mortems," but in this case it is necessary to lift the curtain of the past for a brief time, in order that we may take warnings for the future. This is done for the benefit of those who are blind converts to the ruinous scheme of liquidating our city debt, and which has been used with such dire effect upon this city under the name of the Funded Debt Commission.

It was the influence of this "friend" that prevented an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from the decision that the statute of limitations does not run against coupons when it came before the old Court. This influence was exercised because the Funded Debt Commission held a few thousand dollars in outlawed coupons, and in order to secure this sum for speculative purposes, prevailed on the Trustees to abandon an appeal which was almost perfected by the then City Attorney and his associate counsel, thus causing a draft on the treasury by bondholders of upwards of $400,000, which never should have been permitted. This can be, and is, chargeable to the power of this "friend" of the city.

During every contest made by counsel for the city, these "great financiers" would approach the courts in a position of antagonism and proclaim that any effort for justice was repudiation. Coming from such a source, is it a wonder that the old Supreme Court shut their eyes to justice and let the bondholders have full sway? It must right here be noted that our present Supreme Court is not of the way of thinking of its predecessor. It was not surprising that the Court should be influenced by proclamations emanating from so respectable a source as the Funded Debt Commission. In the light of the recent friendly decisions of the present Supreme Court, the former state of affairs does not exist.

Before the passage of the Funded Debt Act, the bonds of this city scarcely occupied a place on the market, and were not even a medium of speculative venture. Once in a while we would find them quoted at figures ranging between 12 and 20 cents on the dollar. Then came this wonderful redemption scheme. Immediately upon the creation of this Commission the value of the bonds increased and has increased until they are now near par. In addition to the meddlesomeness of this Commission, we estimate it has cost this city cash $2,000,000. To prove this we assert that at the time of its creation the whole debt could have been purchased for less than $400,000. We have paid out of the treasury for interest and redemption about one million and a half, and still the debt is now over $1,600,000. Now what we could have extinguished for less than $400,000, has grown to over a million and a half, not speaking of the million and a half paid out of the treasury. It is upon such a scheme of financiering that the Funded Debt Commission claims to have been the "friend" of the city. As a matter of fact, at the present time, if this "friend" would mind its own business and not meddle with any attempt at local improvement, there is a possibility that it could do no further financial harm, and might serve as a legitimate means of redeeming the remainder of the debt with what money it has drawn from the treasury and may draw upon the coupons in its hands. There has been a peculiar sophistry invoked by this Commission and its friends, which has had the effect, despite the startling and self-evident facts above stated, to enlist a large number of otherwise sharp and prudent men, in its favor. By a species of reasoning it is made to appear that with a few hundred thousand dollars, this Commission has been enabled to secure over a million of the debt for speculative purposes. In all this, they lose sight of the one main fact—that no matter how much this Board may possess, the funds come directly out of the treasury and from the people. As we said before, at this present time the Funded Debt Commission might be the means of rendering some service in matters of redemption. But somehow the ruling spirit cannot let other matters alone. As in the water rents, there must be an intermeddling, because it might occur that a less sum would go into the interest and sinking fund, and possibly a less sum come to the Commission on its over-due coupons.

Again, there was a time when an adjustment of the whole city debt matter had been agreed upon between the leading bond creditors and the Board of Trustees. The then City Attorney had gone so far as to frame an ordinance in accordance with such agreement, and which refunded the entire debt at an average of fifty cents on the dollar. But the influence of this Commission was the means of causing one of the leading creditors, who was and is a particular friend of the moving spirit of the Commission, to break his faith and refuse to abide the agreement. The probability of obtaining par at a near date, through the generous medium of the Funded Debt Commission, was made so apparent that no compromise could be effected. Had there never been any Funded Debt Commission, there never would have been a time that we could not have fixed our own terms with the bond creditors. When James McClatchy, the veteran editor of the Bee, was with us, the Commission was shown up in its true light. But of late years it has become embolden by its successes in injuring the city.

There is a pretense of friendship for the pending street improvement scheme, by the Funded Debt Commission, and it is tacitly understood that when this $100,000 are voted by the people, that this Commission will use some of its funds in purchasing these bonds. Now, right here, let us make a prophecy. As soon as it is known that this course will be pursued, the bond creditors, some represented by a very near relative of the leading spirit of the Commission, will at once institute proceedings against the Funded Debt Commission, to enjoin it from advancing more than 35 cents on the dollar for these bonds; this for the purpose of having more funds available for the holders of the bonds of 1859. So certain are we of this line of action, that we can assert that local counsel have been consulted with that object in view. This idea is suggested by the apparent unconstitutionality of the Act amending the Funded Debt Act. Put the question in any shape you may, the Funded Debt Commission is not, never was, and never will be the friend of this city.

Several months ago we presented a carefully prepared article on the subject of alien land owners, and the ultimate result which would follow if foreign capital should be permitted to absorb Nature's heritage. Since then there has been considerable activity in our National Legislature on the subject. This week the House Judiciary Committee reported a bill to prohibit aliens from acquiring title to or owning lands within the United States. It is shown that the noblemen of Europe now own upwards of 21,000,000 acres of land within the United States. In addition to this, vast quantities of land are held untitled by aliens. These European syndicates already have large investments in railroad land bonds, which cover perhaps 100,000,000 acres of land. The bill adopted by the House Judiciary Committee contains a provision to compel alien land owners to cease to be such, or become citizens of the United States. There can be no doubt of the power of Congress to totally exclude aliens in this matter, to the same extent that Chinese are restricted.

The sovereign power can be exercised in defining what property rights each alien may have. The proposition is, "Become Americans, or no land." There are many other things to consider in connection with this subject, as we pointed out in our former article. Our own system of permitting Americans to acquire vast estates is a subject that needs the attention of political economists, not to consider the dire results of the foreign landlord.

[Written for THEMIS.]

NEWFOUNDLAND FISHERIES.

Will you kindly allow me space in your cosmopolitan journal to explain as well as I am able the Newfoundland fisheries question. Many of the statements put forth by some of your contemporaries are incorrect, and as the matter appears to be an international one, and in which the United States have a direct interest, I hope my explanation will interest your many readers. Reading the opinions put forth, many would be led to believe that a portion of the people of Newfoundland and the government were disunited over the question; that the Dominion has control over Newfoundland; or that "12,000 Nova Scotians who inhabit St. Johns, the metropolis of the island, have hit upon a method that will probably bring Salisbury to terms, by refusing to pay taxes of any kind, even import duties." No difference of opinion exist in the island over the question. Government and people are a unit in demanding their rights. The Dominion has no control whatever over Newfoundland, as the latter has its own local government, making its own laws, collecting its own revenues, and paying its own way. There are not 300, let alone 12,000, Nova Scotians in St. Johns; there is only one direct tax in St. Johns, which is for water. The import duties are paid directly by the importing merchants, of which not one is a Nova Scotian, and as for the people refusing to pay import duties, it would mean to refuse to purchase goods from the men who are leading public opinion, and if these refused to pay the import duty, goods would be stored in bond stores at the expense of the importer, or they should be taken forcible possession of, neither of which will occur.

Newfoundland is a large and valuable island, at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. For the present the harvests of the island are gathered, not from the earth, but from the sea, and they have the advantage of being inexhaustible—the supply will be always equal to the demand. A great Creator has ordained that the very elements which make the coast of Newfoundland what it is—the fogs, the icebergs, the cold currents, and the banks—shall all contribute to its prosperity. The banks are the spawning grounds of the cod, and the cold water attracts the multitude of fish which constitute the wealth of the island. The icebergs and field-ice bring down seals by thousands from their breeding grounds in the far north, giving employment to the laboring population at a time when they would otherwise be idle, and bringing wealth to the merchants of St. Johns.

If this colony be forced into the embrace of any foreign State, because unable to sustain the pressure of Anglo-French complications, then England's power in the West is doomed. The confederation of Canada, foremost of all her colonies, becomes but a fiction of the imagination. The right arm of Britain, stretching away through the Dominion to India, veined and vitalized along its course by the St. Lawrence and the Canadian Pacific railway, becomes a useless member, broken at the elbow joint. For, if the Dominion of Canada be that arm, outstretched in the West, and touching with newly nerved fingers the boundaries of her Eastern Empire, no less certainly is Newfoundland the joint and leverage of this colossal system of power and possession. Just look at the map of North America. See how this island lies like a gag at the entrance of the great Gulf of St. Lawrence, commanding the seas and shores of the North Atlantic, and blocking the way to the heart of the British American possessions. It is the portcullis to England's stronghold in the West, the unavoidable and impregnable barrier to the entrance of a foe. What naval power could operate, what merchant ship run a safe course in those waters, if the harbor of St. John's or any of the great harbors on the south and east coast of Newfoundland, opening as they do directly upon the ocean, were occupied by even one hostile squadron of fleet and well armed ships? It would be harder in such case for a British armament to enter the St. Lawrence or communicate with the new roadway to India, than for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle. Of course the only power with which Newfoundland, forced into a movement for self-preservation, would think of uniting its fortunes, would be its great Republican neighbor. As yet Newfoundlanders desire no such political allegiance. Their island, so long sustained and misruled, is, nevertheless, an ancient and loyal dependency of Great Britain. In history, tradition, trade, manners and complexion of character, the islanders are as little changed from the stock they sprang from as any separated members of the family in the world. They will that their lot in the future shall be cast, I believe (but more happily than before), with the country they have owned and admired as their parent land for over three hundred years. It remains now with England herself to maintain the time-honored tie.

The important question of the Newfoundland fisheries has been considered from the point of the broad and deep sea. The waters of the ocean have been sounded, their recesses explored, and their secrets revealed, to assist the reader in forming an estimate of the nature and value of the interests at stake in this controversy. The cod—the innocent cause of all this trouble—has been visited in his homby, upon those "banks" he so persists in loving and frequenting in spite of snares and stratagems below, of threatenings and "complications" above the waters. Having seen with what dignity and equanimity he bears himself in the presence of his immediate perils, let us now consider him before the courts, as it were, in his official character, as an object of consideration and anxiety to royalties, ambassadors, ministers and legislators. Time and again has he set all these by the ears. Governments may come and go, but he goes on forever chewing his bait and chuckling in his cool way, fathoms deep under the keels of national cruisers, undisturbed by the clamors of international commissioners.

The strangest feature of his strange influence is that this is not confined to the waters he inhabits, or to questions, economic or diplomatic, that only affect that element. He drags in his terrible train a host of difficulties and disputes that refer to territory, agriculture, minerals, political representation and religious establishments. Hence we find him in 1868 (not by any means for the first time in a like official atmosphere), creating a warm conflict in the House of Lords. The question raised was based on a petition sent by the Colonial Government, and was presented by Lord Houghton. Its object was to claim a right on the part of the British Colonists to obtain grants of land on the so-called "French shore" of Newfoundland; to elect representatives to the Colonial Assembly for the population already settled and increasing thereon; to explore and develop the great mineral and agricultural wealth of the territory; to establish there, in a word, the whole panoply of civic and industrial economy under the rule and government of the colony. There was, and could be, no obstacle to so natural a demand except the French claims upon this portion of the shore line. These claims gave the French no right, as they themselves admit, to settle upon, or inhabit, or develop that territory themselves; but the French maintain that their treaty concessions empower them to prevent the Newfoundlanders, the natural inhabitants of the country, from settling upon and utilizing this territory, because it is, on parchment, the French shore! The whole island, its people and their future, are handicapped and oppressed by this foreign political incubus. The complacent cod is the cause of all this disturbance. Had he no existence, or would he but consent to abandon his favored resort, the French claim, the French shore and the French fisherman would disappear with him. The colony and the colonist, however, would still remain, though bereft of their chief glory and resource. The cod, and he alone, is the creator of the awkward situation. He it is that furnishes the foreigner with his sole pretense of claiming territorial right in a British island. He derides all treaties and protocols; he arrests all political progress; he sneers at measures of conciliation; he is at once the comfort and the confusion of all who have anything to do with him.

To return to the debate in the House of Lords in 1868, which affords an apt introduction to the present view of this dispute, Earl Carnarvon, replying to Lord Houghton, the advocate for Newfoundland on the occasion, gave utterance to the statement that "there was no question of older standing, none more complex, none, perhaps, less understood in this country, and none more capable of mischief, than that of the Newfoundland fisheries." The statement is correct in each of its branches, if we except that his lordship seems to imply that "complex" character is inherent in the nature of this question, or directly consequent on the conditions of its history or its treaty arrangements. The complications and contentions that now surround the fisheries question are the pure growth of political intrigue and diplomatic disputes. A paragraph from history, a passage from the treaty of Utrecht, will set the question in as clear a light as may be placed before the readers of THEMIS.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Cost of Publishing a Newspaper.

What is the total annual cost to the wholesale purchasers of news—namely, the publishers—of the entire news product of the United States? An answer to this question would be of interest, but it has never been answered. For several years I have been gathering information upon which to base an estimate. Publishers have uniformly extended me every courtesy; nevertheless, I find it an exceedingly difficult quantity to arrive at, and for my figures I do not claim absolute accuracy. Publishers in this country annually expend something near the following:

For press dispatches	$ 1,820,000
For special	2,250,000
For local news	12,500,000
	$16,570,000

The business of the Associated Press, a mutual concern, which pays nothing for its news, and which serves its patrons at approximate cost, amounts to $1,250,000 per annum, and that of the United Press, a stock corporation, is $450,000 per annum. The former aims to provide news about all important events, in which work $120,000 in telegraph tolls is expended; while the latter endeavors, above all else, to provide accounts of events occurring in the vicinity of the respective papers served.

The estimate for special dispatches includes telegraph tolls and pay of the correspondents who furnish the news. This service is conducted by the publishers in the large centers of population, who find the reports furnished by the press associations either not full enough, or not to the political taste of their readers. Here are the average monthly bills for special dispatches of fourteen leading journals:

Atlanta Constitution	$1,100
Boston Herald	5,500
Chicago Herald	6,500
Chicago Tribune	4,500
Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette	5,800
Cincinnati Enquirer	4,750
Kansas City Journal	1,050
Minneapolis Tribune	3,000
New York World	9,514
Philadelphia Press	3,600
San Francisco Call	3,500
San Francisco Examiner	8,000
St. Louis Globe-Democrat	11,660
St. Louis Republic	3,300

The foregoing are the extreme in this department of expenditure. Many excellent journals find it possible to limit their bills to from $400 to $1,000 per month.

The cost of the "local" news far exceeds that of both the other departments. Not because the local services of individual papers cost more in every instance, but because so many journals maintain local bureaus, yet pay nothing for press or other dispatches. The bills for local news of the leading New York dailies are the largest of any in the country, and for two reasons—a larger territory to cover, and a greater demand from outside for the local news of New York. Their weekly bills range from $1,500 to $3,400.

When news is delivered upon the news editor's desk it has then to be edited; and editor's services command, in Boston, from $30 to $60 per week; in New York, from $40 to $100; in Philadelphia, from $30 to $70; in Cincinnati, from $25 to $50; in Chicago, from $40 to $80; in St. Louis, from $20 to $45; and in San Francisco, from $40 to $65. There are 35,000 persons in the United States engaged in editorial work upon daily and weekly newspapers. This is the report of the labor organizations. But more than half this number more properly belongs to the class of news gatherers rather than of editors; a class whose services command only from $10 to $35 per week.

White paper bills cut a big figure in the outlay of the newspaper publisher. Here are the annual paper bills of eighteen leading journals:

Atlanta Constitution	$63,000
Baltimore American	103,000
Boston Herald	315,000
Boston Globe	326,000
Chicago Herald	265,000
Chicago News	324,000
Chicago Tribune	195,000
Cincinnati Enquirer	252,000
Kansas City Journal	53,000
Louisville Courier-Journal	135,000
Minneapolis Tribune	60,000
New York World	667,500
Philadelphia Press	245,000
Philadelphia Times	165,000
San Francisco Call	120,000
San Francisco Examiner	155,000
St. Louis Globe-Democrat	205,000
St. Louis Republic	125,000

It is to be remembered that circulation is not the only factor which determines the amount of the publisher's white paper bills. Both the size of the sheet issued and the quality of the paper used are material considerations.

Following are the weekly composition bills of several of the great dailies:

Baltimore American	$2,000
Boston Globe	4,100
Chicago Herald	2,100
Chicago News	1,500
Chicago Tribune	2,500
Cincinnati Enquirer	3,200
New York Herald	3,780
New York Times	3,000
New York World	6,000
Philadelphia Ledger	2,150
San Francisco Call	1,650
St. Louis Globe-Democrat	2,700
St. Louis Republic	2,000

The New York Sun pays $140 per week to proof readers; the New York Times and the New York Tribune, $245 each; and the New York Herald and the New York World, $315 each. A new "dress" of type for the New York Times or New York Tribune costs $12,000; for the New York Herald, $15,000, including mailing type; and for the New York World, $13,890, excluding mailing type. As a rule, new type is purchased annually.

Immediately the newspaper leaves the office of publication, there are items of expense that are seldom considered. They are the pay and the profit of the person who leaves the paper at your door. The fact that you regularly receive and pay for the paper is worth to him, in the form of good will, $2 if you live in Atlanta, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Louisville, or St. Paul; $3 if in Pittsburg, San Francisco, or St. Louis; and $5 if in New York, Philadelphia, or Washington.

Even your circumstances are taken into account—wealth, age, disposition—as affecting your likelihood to continue a subscriber. Newspaper delivery routes are staple properties, varying in value according to the number, and, oddly but logically, the social standing of the patrons served.

A route owner who regularly receives from a subscriber 12 cents per week for the Philadelphia Public Ledger, holds the name of that subscriber, when he sells his route, at a stiff $4 to $5—the highest, if its list be taken as a whole, of any journal in America. Carriers deliver 60,000 copies daily of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Note the large capital here represented. The man who buys the news of the day for a penny, contributes his mite toward the support of an American journalism whose product Mr. Joseph Pulitzer estimates foots up $100,000,000 per annum.

Newspaper routes are worth from $200 to $2,000 in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Milwaukee, and New Orleans; from $400 to $3,000 in Cleveland, Minneapolis, and Pittsburg; and from $1,000 to $5,000 in Chicago, Cincinnati, Denver, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, and Washington.

Newspapers have two sources of income—advertisements and sales of copies. The former is greater than the latter, but not in proportion so overwhelmingly as is generally supposed. Most dailies in our larger cities realize an income in about the proportion of two-thirds from advertising to one-third from subscriptions and sales. The value of great newspaper plants is difficult to arrive at. A rule is, to value the good-will—a quantity which does not include building, outfit or machinery—at the sum of the profits during the preceding five years; but this rule is followed only in legal appraisements—I know of no publisher who ever sold at such a price.—Eugene M. Camp, in June Century.

Woman's Curiosity.

In a curious old book, the other day, was found a story about Louis XIV having his fortune told. The man to whom he went with Madame de Maitenon was a priest, who had no idea of the people who were before him. He burned perfumes, offered prayers and with loud invocations adjured the powers of hell to answer him. A wild sound pervaded the whole building and while visions seemed to be flitting to and fro, he drew the horoscope. He promised Louis that he should succeed in all his undertakings, and that upon the very day on which he spoke the words one of his children had been called to the inheritance of an immense fortune. Then he gave him a small package wrapped in a parchment, and said: "The day in which you form the fatal resolution of acquainting yourself of the contents of this package will be the last of your prosperity; but, if you desire to carry your good fortune to the highest pitch, be careful upon every festival—that is to say, Easter, Whitsunday, the Assumption and Christmas—to plunge a pin into this talisman, so that the point shall pass directly through it; observe this and you will live perfectly happy." The king accepted the fatal present, and swore never to open the package. Sometime after he got news that on that very October 2, 1700, the King of Spain had left Philip of France, his successor and heir, an enormous inheritance as the astrologer had predicted. Talking after this to the great Bossuet about magic and sorcery, the king told him about it, and the punishment imposed upon him by his spiritual adviser was that he should show his contempt for the talismanic properties of the parchment package by opening it at once. The king didn't fancy this at all, but as he had begun to grow very fearful, he obeyed the command and opened the magic parcel. It contained nothing but a consecrated wafer, pierced through with as many pins as there had been saints' days since it had been received. The king was filled with great remorse and consternation, from which it was a long time before he recovered, and he underwent many severe penances and fastings before he felt himself relieved from the weight of his crime. But this was only the commencement of the trouble. To those in the secret of this affair it was known that the monarch lost from that time as many male descendants in a direct line as he had stuck pins in the holy wafer. It seems curious to think that the religious Maintenon would allow Louis to do such a frivolous thing as to attempt to look into the future, but it only goes to show that from Eve to Marie Bashkirtseff, with all the noted women between, a desire to know what they oughtn't has been the ruling passion of their lives.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

A young man at Denver, Mr. Sedley Brown, is the author of two new plays which are said to be clever productions. The titles of the plays are The Minister, and A Long Lane.

Mrs. Langtry says one of the funniest slips she ever heard was on the stage in New York. Two of the company were playing the parts of lovers. They wanted to be alone, and one quietly repeated this line: "Let us seek some nosey cook." He should have said "some cosy nook."

At Cracow, recently, Froelich, a composer, was charged with having stolen melodies from compositions of Czibulka. Experts were brought into court to play both the Froelich and Czibulka passages in dispute, and, as a result, the former was fined and ordered to have his composition plates destroyed. This sort of thing would make "new" comic operas a rare treat in American cities, if not abroad.

W. S. Gilbert is remarkably quick at repartee, and numerous stories are related illustrating his aptness at retort, says the Chicago Tribune. One evening as Gilbert was leaving a party, and was standing in the vestibule waiting for his carriage, a snobbish young nobleman emerged from the house and mistaking him for a footman, said sharply: "Call me a four-wheeler." Gilbert calmly adjusted a single eyeglass in his eye, and surveying his lordship, replied blandly: "You're a four-wheeler." The young nobleman spluttered and wanted to know what he meant. Gilbert said: "You told me to call you a four-wheeler. I couldn't call you hansom, you know."

During a performance of Richelieu by the Booth-Modjeska Company not long ago, there was an episode which pointed a moral, if it did not adorn the tale, and cause a ripple of merriment. It will be remembered that when Richelieu proposes to read his verses to Joseph the latter remarks, aside: "Strange that so great a statesman should be so bad a poet." "Eh, Joseph," says the cardinal, "what were you saying?" Joseph replies: "I said it was strange that so great a statesman should be so sublime a poet." "No, he didn't," piped a voice in the audience near the stage. It was from a little girl, who then stood up and continued: "The priest has lied! He said it the other way!"

The Ober-Ammergau Passion Play is a very old institution among the Bavarian highlanders, dating far back into the middle ages, and one which has been used with great effect in presenting to a simple and pastoral people, more strongly than the spoken word could present, the suffering and death of the Saviour. It is an event long looked forward to at its recurrence at a regular interval of years, and is participated in by the peasants themselves. That it is to these simple folk in the nature of a religious rite, and entered into with religious feeling, is conceded by all who have had the fortune to witness it, whatever may be the opinion of its propriety. The peasant-actors prepare themselves for years before the play by leading pure lives and cultivating the spirit of reverence for their work. But what shall be said of the selection of such a woman as Sarah Bernhardt, gifted actress though she be, to personate the part of the mother of Jesus in the great cities of Paris and London!

The Sultan is a clever writer of comediettas, which are performed in a charming little theater that has been constructed in the Yildiz kiosk. They are, curiously enough, written in French, and performed in the presence of the author, his household, and the ladies of the seraglio. The latter are seated behind a grille, and enjoy the performance immensely, to judge by their laughter and applause. The Sultan is in the habit of suddenly conceiving the ideas for a plot, and having put them together he sends for the actors, and distributes the roles with a request that the piece is to be performed the same night. The subjects of these pieces are amusing, being generally based upon the dilemma or incapacity of some court official. For instance, one of the last, which was an immense success, represented an incapable master of a royal household who is suddenly called upon to provide a dinner for a hundred guests. Everything goes wrong and the utmost confusion reigns in the royal dining-room when his majesty enters with his guests. Tableau. An incident which his majesty especially wished to be emphasized was that of a lackey exploding a bottle of champagne right in the face of the discomfited master of the household. Like Aristophanes, the Sultan deals with personalities. But, however greatly the imperial playwright and his ladies may enjoy the performance, this is by no means the case with his household in the body of the theater, who abhor this showing up of their weaknesses. Here another comedy is played, which amuses the Sultan far more, each one of the household looking askance at the other, as though to say: "Is it you that he is driving at?"—Vanity Fair.

Book Chat.

Mr. Whittier is to write a poem of 100 lines for the coming 250th anniversary celebration at Haverhill.

Mark Twain says he quit smoking when he began to write "Roughing It." Perhaps that is how he came to get the title for the book.

There is only one flag for this country; all others are the "curiosities of history." They may be displayed without harm, for they mean nothing but a memory.

Edwin Arnold is writing a new epic, "The Light of the World," the subject of which is the founder of Christianity and his doctrines. In this poetic way he is enjoying his leisure in Japan.

Bret Harte's son, who has a verdict of $10,000 against him for alienating the affections of another man's wife, should sit down for half an hour and read his father's charming story of "Brown, of Calaveras."

A New Yorker, famous in the world of letters, awoke one night recently from a sound sleep. So far as he knew, he had not been dreaming. He composed himself again and was sinking into slumber when there came into his mind, as though out of the darkness, two lines of verse, rhythmical, but senseless. They kept him awake, and after a time two lines more, equally smooth and absurd, presented themselves to his consciousness. It seemed to him as though some one were dictating nonsensical doggerel to him from the shadows of the night. Unable to sleep, he arose and went down stairs to his library. He sat quiet in the darkness for awhile hoping that he would fall asleep in his chair. But a second verse, perfect in form but absurd in meaning, came into his mind, and then a third and fourth. Lighting a lamp, he took up a pen and wrote down rapidly the lines that had come to him. As he wrote, new verses fell from his pen, and when he had finished his task a poem of eight stanzas lay before him. He was surprised to find that, taken in their entirety, the verses were far from meaningless. He at once put the poem in an envelope and directed it to a publishing firm. Placing it among other letters to be mailed by a servant in the morning, he returned to bed and at once fell asleep. Upon awaking he was uncertain whether he had dreamed of writing a poem or had really transcribed one. As his letters had been posted he had no means of deciding the question. His uncertainty was pleasantly relieved the next day, however, by the receipt of a handsome check from his publishers and a letter praising his poem. The peculiarity of the case which makes it very different from the celebrated instance of Coleridge and his poem of "Kubla Khan" lies in the fact that the author had not been dreaming. He awoke from what seemed to him a dead sleep and found that his imagination had produced, without conscious effort on his part, a perfect poem.

Professional Chat.

Although Abraham Lincoln was methodical in many things, he was slovenly in some of the details of his business. He had no particular place for anything, for the reason, may be, that he didn't have the particular place. One smiles as he sees a yellow bit of paper, which was evidently a binding for a bundle of papers, on which are written these grinning words: "When you can't find it anywhere else, looks in this."

Pay as you go, is an excellent rule; but in certain peculiar cases it must not be acted upon too strictly. An old time Maine physician was once ferried across a swollen river by a man who, for some reason, declined to receive any compensation for the service. "O, let it go, doctor," he said, as the physician urged the money upon him; "let it go. I shall want you to do as much for me sometime. Like as not I shall want a tooth pulled." "Sit right down and have it out," said the precise old doctor; "I don't want any such bills outstanding."

Congressman John Allen, of Mississippi, in addition to being one of the wits of the House, is also something of a "plunger" in society, says the Baltimore Sun. He was present at a musicale given at the Shoreham by Mrs. Jeanette Thurber a few evenings ago and talked music with a fluency that astonished some of those who heard him. During the evening Mrs. Thurber engaged the Mississippi Congressman in conversation for a few minutes, and incidentally inquired if he was familiar with the study of music. "Oh, yes," replied Mr. Allen promptly; "I am something of a musician myself. In fact, I am so fond of music that I introduce it into my every-day life with very beneficial effect. I control my wife and family and govern my entire household by the power of my music." "I don't quite comprehend you," answered Mrs. Thurber, smiling. "Well," said Mr. Allen, with a merry twinkle in his eyes, "it is just like this: When I request my wife, or any member of my family, to do anything, and they refuse, I threaten to sing. They immediately relent and do my bidding rather than hear me."

NOTES.

On a real estate sign down town one reads: "Fine ten-acre tracts, all planted and unplanted." Peculiar condition that of being both planted and unplanted at the same time.

Jake Kilrain says he is aching to have another chance at Sullivan. The last time he had a chance he was aching to get away from him, and ached after he got away. That's the difference.

The Alla says the Examiner speaks as if that paper thought Geo. Hearst and Tom. Clunie owned the Democratic party. Well it is not exactly that but this way: Geo. Hearst owns the Examiner and Tom. Clunie owns Hearst. That makes us think George is trying to boom Tom for the Senate. Ye gods! How nauseating.

Herman Oelrichs and his bride, nee Fair, have arrived in New York. When he got home his private office looked like an express depot, so many packages, boxes, and parcels had been piled up during his brief absence on this coast. They were wedding presents, and the aggregate value represented many thousands of dollars. And yet, the number of homeless, starving poor of New York does not grow smaller.

The Siskiyou Telegram is the title of a new journalistic venture hailing from Yreka, with the names of McCarthy and Butterworth as editors and proprietors. The Telegram announces itself as "Democratic; no milk and water, but democratic from the ground up." This vigorous protest against milk-shakes will certainly commend the Telegram to its Democratic readers. The Telegram is edited with ability, is typographically attractive, and has a decidedly come-to-stay appearance.

So long as we are to have a World's Fair, let it be attractive. What is the matter with Sacramento making an exhibit? We could send our Board of Trustees there and permit the people of the balance of the world to guess what manner of people we are that we select such material to furnish brains for our government. Doubtless people of other cities who favor themselves with appropriate governmental ability, would be entertained as spectators of one of the Monday matinees. Possibly the exhibit would be classed under the head of amusements.

I wish I was a editor,
I'd in my sanktum stand,
And wear upon my countenance
A smile just orful bland.
And when the candydate cum in
To try to taffy me,
I'd exercise no modesty
To any grate degree;
I'd tell him right into his teeth
That our influence allers
Is lent to the aspirin' man
That has the shinin' $ $ $,
An' if he handed up the dust,
Forthwith my sheet 'd praise him,
But if he didn't come to time,
Great Moses! how I'd raise him!
—Modern Argo.

It has always seemed to us to be very ill-advised and untimely to have a burlesque parade, called the "Horribles," on the Fourth of July. It is not only inopportune, but in bad taste, as that day's observance is one designed to perpetuate a memorable event that should be observed with due decorum; but the fact of a nondescript mob usurping part of the occasion to indulge a fantastic taste for the ridiculous and unbecoming, has a tendency to divert the funds that should be devoted solely to the legitimate celebration of the Fourth. It is struggle enough to collect money for a successful turn-out, and the money should not be squandered in a way that is in no way germane to the real object of the occasion. Certainly those appearances of the rag-tag and bob-tail on the streets afford a deal of amusement to the people, but why not select another and a special day?

Party managers and party workers of the two political parties should insist upon having a plank inserted in their respective platforms for the approaching political contest pledging the nominees that, in the event of their election, they are to be debarred from appointing any relative to whatever subordinate position which may be at their disposal. Experience has demonstrated on more than one occasion that such procedure on the part of officials has only resulted in disaster in the administration of official duty and entailed a blot on a once honored name; and another, and a most important fact to be looked at is, that the workers in the traces, who have spent their time and money in helping to place these men in position, are thrust aside, their claims ignored, and the chief deputyships given to kinsfolk who never put a dollar or in any manner aided in bringing about the successful issue of a campaign.

There is an appearance of a boom in favor of a new hotel in this city, to be built on a huge scale, for the accommodation of the visiting public. It is argued that strangers coming here "have not whereon to lay their heads"—or words to that effect. This is all true as to the spring and summer months, when eastern excursion parties are traveling through and some desire to "lay over" in our city. But these excursions are only semi-occasionally, and then what is the hotel to do when travel ceases—seven or eight months in the year?

The Alla asks: "Now, why should the Examiner be so hostile to Stephen M. White?" Why, because George Hearst knows if White is elected to the U. S. Senate Hearst will be so completely overshadowed in that body that he would never be thought of by the people, as is the fact now, except that the shadow is thrown by a Republican, and he has the excuse that his colleague, Senator Stanford, belongs to the majority; whereas, if such a man as Tom Clunie should be chosen, there would be less likelihood of so complete an eclipse, Clunie and Hearst forming a mutual admiration society that would give the race-horse Senator a better chance than he would have with a brainy man of his own party.

If the Democrats will continue to think that their party is to have a majority in the next Legislature, why do they not talk of some of their really intelligent and smart men for the United States Senate—for there are some in their party in this State who can compare favorably with the best in any part of the country? Why are the politicians allowed to be forever thrusting before public notice, the names of men who could not emit an intelligent spark in a ward meeting of a third class bucolic village. Stephen M. White is a good man; a pretty good, and quite a successful lawyer, judging by the practice he is said to control; and the honesty of his Democracy cannot be questioned. And in all things that go to make the man and the citizen, it is not at all complimentary to him to note the manner in which he is to make his canvass, or the motives actuating him. But how does White compare in any manner with such men as ex-Chief Justice Wm. T. Wallace, that big lawyer, greater than whom is not in the State, Samuel M. Wilson; ex-Associate Justice of the Supreme Court E. W. McKinstry, present Associate Justice of the Supreme Court J. D. Thornton, whose term expires with this year and who does not want the place again? Any one of those shining lights of the bar would adorn a seat in the National Senate, and compare favorably with their colleagues in that body and be an ornament to the State; there are many others, without going to the foot of the ladder to hunt among the rubbish for material.

As Sacramento is bound to have a grand exhibition of her resources, products and enterprise at the World's Fair, and as doubtless the managing committees will find it difficult to know just how and where to begin as to proper arrangement, so vast and varied are the matters to be selected, it will not be deemed presumptuous if we offer the following as a partial list of the city's budget, its resources, etc., of course being singular and distinct from those of the county. It will be understood that there is no attempt made here to usurp the prerogatives and duties of the committees, nor is any attempt made to classify the list which is left entirely in the hands of those in charge. First of all we would place by priority of age, an ancient city debt of several thousands of dollars and a consequent high rate of personal taxation, and therefore a poverty-stricken population—except a favored few; two long business streets of one story shops, that look as if a Kansas cyclone had passed and taken off a story or more in years gone; acres of splintered sidewalks, formerly of rough lumber but now in kindling wood, here and there interspersed with imposing composition pavements where an owner can afford it, a batch of broken promises made by our city officials from year to year, of what they were going to do for the city, yet never accomplished; two or three busted booms, resulting in scores of law suits; several outside pleasure parks that were to afford cheap homes for poor families, yet never matured; a long-promised system of pure water from the springs of the high Sierras; factories to give employment to hundreds of families who were to have been invited to locate here; the grand results of maintaining an exhibition hall at the depot for months; our street improvements for years past; the latest discovery of the best method of settling our bond question; the actual good accomplished by our police system in suppressing vice in the city; a list of the statesmen and patriots who regard themselves fit for any place on earth because they have occupied some trifling local office; a beautifully framed galaxy of the political bosses of both parties; a certified copy of the bank accounts of those same bosses who neither spin or do anything else, yet never starve; a copy of the lives and times of the Shylocks who live and grow fat at the expense of their toiling neighbors; a litany of the saints belonging to our local churches; the old trousers worn out at the knees by the praying preachers; a photograph of the Chinese gardens fringing the outskirts of the city; an oil painting of Chinese slough (promised to be filled years ago); a bottle of water from the same lake, recommended for its highly-scented qualities.

The foregoing are a few of the exhibits we might offer, and for which prizes might be asked, as being about as nearly perfect as the most critical could demand.

Re-registration of Voters.

We spoke last week concerning the matter of the proposed re-registration of the voters of this county. We quoted the law, and presented considerations that we believe should appeal to the intelligent mind. We have been in a position for years to observe the manner in which the governmental affairs of this county have been conducted, and this journal has not heretofore published a word of adverse criticism of the action of the Board of Supervisors—it could not have done so justly. We can add nothing to the legal status of this matter that we have published. It is unfortunate that the question was decided by a strict partisan vote, particularly after the statement was made that the scheme had its origin with a local political club. We have full knowledge, as do others of intelligence, that attempts at political advantage, when the Great Register of the county is concerned, have always proven futile. It has been, and will be, that the committees of the great parties will exercise surveillance over the list of voters who will be enrolled by official authority. It has been that the voluntary committees of both the Republican and Democratic parties have followed the law and have been able to do what the constituted authorities of this county now admit they are unable to do—strike from the register the names that should not be upon it. No one desires there shall be a name upon the register except properly.

It has been said a re-registration can be made without expense. That we dispute. It will also result in this: Inconvenience to very many and the possible disfranchisement of some who may not understand, or will be absent from the county. It will not be seriously contended that it will be necessary for the Board of Supervisors to employ and pay for extra help to collate the data we already have expended a considerable sum of money to gather. If there could be a showing made that there had been any reasonable attempt to comply with the very plain provisions of the code regarding cancellations of entries on the Great Register, we could not in reason complain, but the result of this matter will be an unnecessary expense upon the people, labor and inconvenience to the political committees, and the shutting out of men who should vote.

The Republican party is in this position: It asks no favors, and it cares not to take advantage through official sources. Its committee asks not that those in power shall subject the tax-payers to useless expense. The Board of Supervisors cannot seriously say there is reason to disregard the law, and that the data that was collected two years ago, and which is now available, should be thrown aside. It will not be denied that the large majority of the voters need no re-registration. It strikes us the Board is placing itself in a position of one who, to build a stove-pipe hole, would tear down an entire building and rebuild it about the hole. We assume to address the intelligent. To our readers we say, how many of you are there whose registration of two years ago would not stand as of to-day, and what is the reason that if the suggestions we made last week, in view of the law and with regard to common sense, were carried out, you would not be saved from inconvenience and the county from expense.

Nerve Training.

Two Lassell (Mass.) seminary girls have been reduced to a serious condition of ill-health by reason of a curious course of study in that institution. It is called "nerve training" by the seminary authorities. Both girls were completely hypnotized, and since last December have been in bed. A portion of the instruction is to have the student lie at full length and endeavor to induce all her nervous system to relax. "The instructor in this branch of study is Miss Annie Call. She believes the system one of great advantage to her students, teaching them to relax their nerves and to economize nerve force."

This very learned and would-be renowned instructor of her sex, has this to advance in defense of her death-dealing instructions: "We aim first to secure a perfectly passive body and then to be able to use any muscles or nerves necessary, whether we are to play the piano, sing or sustain a part in an act upon the stage. In this way the body is left more perfect for natural expression in any form."

So here is some more of that tomfoolery that is fast making of fashionable female boarding schools a mockery and a laughing stock, and rendering them ridiculous to sensible people. In the modern young ladies' seminary the hypocritical, gray-bearded old ministerial patriarch, is frequently detected in his stealthy efforts to debauch those morals of the teachers or pupils he is supposed to be zealously guarding or protecting, else the spit-curl'd dames chosen to impart a knowledge of things spiritual and literary are devoting their worn out existence to a discovery of novel and unheard of cranky ways of instilling new ideas into a sensible curriculum, till, by the time the young and plastic Miss is ready to leave her "cherished mother" (alma mater is what they call it), she thinks she knows it all, whereas she knows nothing. A little more of the common sense education and a little less of those modern isms in the intellectual bill of fare, would be a blessing.

SHORT BITS.

"Senator" Crane next week.
"I've got to fix a Senator. Price $750."
Postmaster Coleman. Plain Mr. Stephens.
The Court house is taking a "paint bath."
Open air concert at the Plaza to-morrow night.
Last night of the McNeil Club and "Pirates."
Baseball to-morrow afternoon; Stockton against Sacramento.
Sacramento is to have a new hotel. "In my mind's eye, Horatio."
"The Three Graces" have ordered a bond election for the 9th of July.
The demolition of awnings still goes on. The buildings ought to be thrown in.
Census enumerators will shortly take a ten year's vacation. No more Porter in theirs.
The Improvement Association will undoubtedly give us a fine celebration on the 4th of July.

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE

SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY JUNE 15, 1890.

Sacramento vs. Stockton

Game called at 2 P. M.

ADMISSION FIFTY CENTS
LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 1:15 and 1:45 P. M. Stop at 3d 10th, and 18th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts. Reserved seats at Golden Eagle cigar store.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION

DOWN RIVER.

Wednesday, July 2d, 1890.

At 6:30 sharp, from Front and N streets. Steamer and barge side by side. Benefit

Stanford Camp, Sons of Veterans.

TICKETS, (Limited in Number,) $1.00

Can be subscribed for at the following places: A. Bontheim, at Weinstock, Lubin & Co's, Moynihan Bros. Confectionery, H. Bennett, Sacramento Bank, Hammer's Music Store, W. L. Matlock, at Osborn & Folger's, 501 I Street, Wm. H. Larkin, 309 J street, L. E. C. Jordan, at Baker & Hamilton's, or 1111 D st.

FIREWORKS

AND

FLAGS!

Wholesale and Retail.

Country Orders Solicited.

NATHAN & DeYOUNG,

523 J STREET.

A Stray Leaf from a Shipwrecked Life

"Man trusts in God—
He is eternal. Woman trusts in man,
And he is shifting sand."

We extract the following from the New York special correspondence of the Cincinnati Enquirer:

"A familiar figure on Fifth avenue and in the park drive is a woman of middle age who revels in a few remnants of vanished beauty in her hard and cruel face. She is the constant escort of a very pretty girl, and to those who have watched her for any length of time, it is apparent that she watches this lamb of hers with the concentrated intensity of a hawk. Every now and then these two vanish from the public parade and then suddenly return. The world at large knows them not, only a few that are informed nodding sagely and whispering a remark about them as they go by. In the hard-faced woman these few recognize a murderess. Of her early history nothing is known. She sprang into view in San Francisco one day, and commanded favor by her cold, regal beauty. She had a discreet tongue, and so far as any record of her went, she might have come up in a night out of the soil. She selected her victim with the utmost deliberateness. He was a man of great wealth, whose family lived in the East, and for several years he supplied her with the luxury she demanded. Finally he wearied of his life, and he sent for his family to come out to him, intending to settle down and pursue an existence of domestic contentment. Exasperated beyond endurance by being put aside in this manner, his former favorite, after attempting various forms of black-mail with no satisfaction to herself, lay in wait for her victim, followed him onto a ferry boat, and shot him dead at his wife's feet. She was tried for murder, and acquitted on the plea of emotional insanity. At this moment, years after those horrible events, the one dread and haunting horror of this woman's life is that the daughter to whom she now devotes herself will exhibit a tendency to follow in the footsteps of her mother and begin a life of disgrace. As the child has a high-strung and reckless spirit, it will not be surprising if the old lady's fears were realized; in which event I have no doubt that she will get out her old pistol and either kill the man or herself."

In the above paragraph are some elements of truth; some of untruth. We presume the reference is made to Mrs. Laura D. Fair, whose career in this State has been marked with tragedies. The record of her life was very graphically written in the Sacramento Union of June 22, 1872. She was the wife of Captain Grayson, a citizen of prominence in the city of New Orleans. So far as we can understand, their marital life was happy until one Christmas eve the husband announced he would bring to dinner a guest—a gentleman of military education, young, brilliant, and brave. That soldier was Col. Wm. D. Fair, who had won honor in the Mexican war under General Scott. The result of this meeting was the creation of a jealousy on the part of the husband against Fair, and eventuated in the separation of Mrs. Grayson from her husband. It is a matter of remarkable coincidence, that in the Pioneer Hall of this city is preserved a scroll, upon which the members of the first Legislature of this State recorded briefly, in their own handwriting, the record of their lives. Upon that scroll appears the following:

"W. D. Fair, Senator from San Joaquin District, California—Native of Virginia. Emigrated to California from Mississippi in February, 1849, as 'President of the Mississippi Rangers,' settled in Stockton, San Joaquin district, as an attorney-at-law. Route to California, via Rio Grande and Rio Gila. Aged 28 years."

"A. P. Crittenden—Born in Lexington, Kentucky; raised and educated, if at all, in Ohio, Alabama, New York, and Pennsylvania; married in Virginia; settled in Texas in 1839; has left a wife and six children there; came to California in 1849. Misrepresents the county of Los Angeles. Intended residence, San Francisco. Died, 18—."

In view of events which subsequently transpired, there is something of grim humor in the notation Crittenden then made of his life career and of that which was to follow. However, we will pursue the narrative of the life of the woman to whom the Enquirer has made reference. After the separation of Mrs. Grayson from her husband, she came with her mother to San Francisco, about the year 1856, and for a time taught music. Upon the streets of that city she again met Colonel Fair, and became engaged to him before she had been formally divorced from Grayson. She was married at Shasta to Fair, in February, 1858, and for a time their relations were happy. Soon, however, Fair became insanely jealous of her, and the object of his jealousy was an officer of the army. It happened that on the way to San Francisco with her husband, they stopped for the night at Trinity Mountain, and the object of Fair's jealousy rested under the same roof. The sight of the officer enraged the husband beyond control, and he could hardly be restrained from assaulting that gentleman in the public tavern. The bedroom given Colonel Fair and his wife was situated directly beneath that into which the military officer had been shown; but the stovepipe ran up through the floor of the chamber, and thence out of the roof. Conversation occurring below could be distinctly heard above. We quote from the writer in the Union:

"Insinuations, taunts and reproaches were showered upon the head of the unoffending woman, until the Captain felt almost forced to break into the room and throttle the jealous madman. A crisis approached—a sharp reply was extorted from the wife, and instantly afterwards the report of a severe blow with the open hand across the face of the lady echoed loudly through the chamber. Silence for an instant, then these words: 'Colonel Fair, you are a madman and a monster. You are the first man that ever struck me, and you shall be the last, so help me God. I will never live with you as your wife another day so long as I have breath in my body.'"

The morning stages carried the husband and wife in opposite directions. He returned to the mountains and she proceeded to San Francisco to her mother. Afterwards Fair pursued her, but she would not receive him. Late on the afternoon of December 27, 1861, Colonel Fair shot himself to death. He was a well known citizen and it was assumed that his act of self destruction had been brought about through the misconduct of his wife, and condemnation was very generally directed against her, yet after the tragedy had occurred she hurried to the scene of the disaster and claimed the body of her husband for interment. Her claim was opposed by a relative of Fair. She however took the remains to her lodgings and they were prepared for the grave. A hearse drove up to the house and a demand was made for the body. She approached the body and laying her left hand on the head of her husband, drew a cocked revolver with her right hand and exclaimed: "Approach, gentlemen, and if you dare, do as you are bidden; but I here call upon Heaven to bear me witness that I will kill the first man that shall dare to touch this corpse." She was not opposed.

Time passed on. A. P. Crittenden, a lawyer of distinction, had consorted with Mrs. Fair. His wife and family were returning from the East, and he crossed the ferry to Oakland to meet them. Upon the boat in returning Mrs. Fair shot him and inflicted a wound from which he died in San Francisco. November 5, 1870. The Grand Jury indicted her for murder, and she was placed upon trial for her life on March 27, 1871. The trial resulted in her conviction, and she was sentenced to be hanged. Subsequently, on February 5, 1872, she was granted a new trial and on September 27th of that year, was acquitted. On the first trial she was defended by Elisha Cook and Leander Quint, and on the second by N. Greene Curtis and Quint. The trial will be recollected as one of the most exciting that has occurred in the State, and perhaps the only one wherein the death penalty was imposed upon a woman.

Her acquittal was largely due to the management of Judge Curtis. It is related that after the acquittal, the judge presented his bill, and Mrs. Fair refused to pay it upon the ground that when she made the contract with her attorney she was emotionally insane, and that the verdict of the jury sustaining the theory of the defense had so declared. It was at the time considered a good joke on Judge Curtis, but he finally got his fee.

FLASHES.

We often hear of "good fat mortgages"—but they are always lean things.

When we remark, "a fellow feels his oats," we mean rye.

You can steal the color of a flower, but not its fragrance.

We have some strong men in this city—they can easily pack a caucus.

Our auctioneers are the greatest autocrats—the people do their bidding.

Our best friend becomes a bore if he comes at the wrong time.

There is never much concern how a man gets his money if he only spends it liberally.

Handsome Tom.

We have always looked with indulgence upon the career of the Honorable Thomas J. Clunie, and have not grudged him his elevation. But it seems that (if the enthusiastic praises of the Salt Lake Tribune, copied in the Examiner are to be believed) this is what architects call a rear elevation. In a long and well compiled puff that reads as if it had cost not less than fifty dollars the Tribune's praises of the gifted young statesman from Sacramento are so managed as to culminate in the following beautiful climax: "He, (Clunie, to wit) is an alert, active, gifted, handsome man, and has such a bearing as Macbeth had when in his heart he thought: 'The greatest is behind.' Well, we never did think Clunie's brains were the best of him.—S. F. Star."

CENSUS NOTES.

A few cases of refractory citizens who refused to answer questions of enumerators, have been reported. It is not probable that any criminal proceedings will be instituted, for the reason that in these cases it is the result of dense ignorance of the citizen.

Oakland, Sacramento and Stockton have been very nearly enumerated. In some districts there was a delay in commencing work on account of the failure of the appointed and commissioned enumerators to qualify. It is certain that the work of enumerators will be completed in these cities on or before the 18th inst.

Enumerator John H. Webster, of Stockton, calls loudly for adequate compensation for his services. In his report he says: "I have had a delightful time; always met at the gate by either a woman or a dog—generally a dog. Would it be proper to put in a claim for a pair of trousers?" Mr. Webster's experience is but a sample of that of about all the enumerators.

An effort will be made by the Supervisor of Census for Second District of California, to have an increased allowance for enumerators in his district. In many cases the compensation allowed is insufficient to even meet expenses. In a number of cases a per diem has already been substituted for a per capita. The census bureau seems disposed to be liberal in this matter.

The enumerators and Supervisors of census are prohibited under penalty, from communicating to any person, local authorities or newspapers, any information concerning the census. No tabulations whatever must be made by Supervisors, nor rough estimates given out. No information can be given other than through the Department of Census at Washington, after a full examination of all returns.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Professor Kinross says he will never give another opera with policemen in it. The moment the gentlemen got on their uniforms they started for the beer halls. He thinks this inclination to beer goes with the clothes.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings, W. H. Crane, with his great American Drama The Senator, will be heard at the Metropolitan. In our judgment The Senator is the greatest success of the day. The company is so nicely fitted to the cast, that it is difficult to single out any one artist for special mention. The author of the play has introduced a character "Ling Ching" of the Chinese Legation, who is in a measure the counterpart of Goldsmith's "Citizen of the World." The quaint philosophy of our manners and customs are given as were presented by Goldsmith in the 18th century. The female lobbyist, foreign diplomat, Ex-Congressman, old war claimant, and The Senator, are live characters, and true to the real incidents of political life at Washington during the closing hours of a session of Congress. When we see "Lieutenant Schuyler," as given by T. D. Frawly, we will be surprised at the striking resemblance in voice, manner and action, to a distinguished young attorney of this city. Our favorite, however, is "Josie Armstrong," the daughter of the Secretary of State, in the play, who coins words unique, expressive and heretofore unheard of. It is certain that "standing room only" will be the order when Crane and his excellent company produces The Senator.

The McNeill Club is a popular and favored institution of this city. On Thursday night the club presented Pirates of Penzance to a good house. The first night in any performance, even among professionals, has its rough edges, and the opening night in this instance was no exception. The young ladies particularly were exceedingly timid, and seemed afraid to let their voices take natural range. The orchestra was exceptionally fine. Last night there was more smoothness and much better artistic work. Miss Louise Manfred and Alfred Wilkie, assisted the club members in the leading roles, as soprano and tenor. The opera is one which runs to choruses, therefore there was but little work for any outside of the two leading roles. The McNeill Club chorus is strong and well drilled. It was a musical treat to listen to the splendid renditions of those young ladies and gentlemen. H. R. Blair is a veritable genius and a born comic opera artist. Miss Lizzie Lynn did not have a congenial part in this opera, but made the best of it. Horace Crocker made a good "Pirate King." Miss Louise Milliken was too timid to let her voice out, but did well under the circumstances. Misses Pullman and Casedy, and Messrs. Lovdal and Milliken were clever in their respective personations. Albert Hart, the efficient stage manager, was a most villainous looking pirate. The young ladies would present a better stage appearance if they stood erect, and not as though they were ashamed, and trying to conceal their feet under their short skirts. The musical direction was under W. H. Kinross, and the stage management under Albert Hart. We think that the young ladies and gentlemen would do even better if Mr. Kinross was not so severe and harsh with them. The Pirates again to night.

LADIES!

White Embroidered Hemstitched Flouncings, 45 inches wide, 65c, 75c, 90c, $1.00, $1.50, $1.85, $2.00, $2.40.

Infants' Half Flouncings, 22 inch, Hemstitched and Embroidered, 65c, 75c, 95c, $1.00, $1.20, $1.40, $1.75.

Plain White Hemstitched Goods, 44 inches wide, extra quality, 50c per yard.

White Victoria Lawn, 32 inches 20c, 22½c, 25c.

Plain White India Linen, 25c and 35c.

Checked Nainsook, 5c, 9c, 12½c, 16⅓c, 20c, 25c.

W. I. Orth,

630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the ECLIPSE CHAMPAGNE, 530 Washington St. SAN FRANCISCO.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

HOWE'S High School and Normal Institute

SIXTH STREET, BET. J AND K, SACRAMENTO.

Its course of instruction is thorough, and its methods of teaching systematic and ORIGINAL. Those who desire a THOROUGH education, and especially those who expect to make teaching a profession, are cordially invited to examine for themselves its methods of instruction. Its doors are always open; there are no vacations.

"Beg Your Pardon!"

What talismanic virtue there is in the three brief words, "beg your pardon!" You dig your elbow into a gentleman's ribs in making your way through a crowd, and as he turns, irate, to administer the "upper cut," you utter the magic phrase in deprecating tones. Down drops his arm, his honor is satisfied, and, notwithstanding the blue mark on his intercostal region, he grins horribly a ghastly smile and bows his head as if in acknowledgment of an act of courtesy.

Passing along the avenue of knees in a street car, in obedience to the "move up" of the packing agent of one of those social Black Marias, you come down with maddening emphasis on an unpruned corn. The furious exclamation which follows the deed as naturally as foam from the drawn cork of a bottle of champagne is arrested in the middle with an obsequious "beg your pardon!" and the expletive never reaches Heaven's Chancery to trouble the eyes of the Recording Angel.

You tread on the "trail" of a lady and "r-r-r-rip" go the gathers. In tremulous semitones, plaintive as the "last sigh of the Moor," you solicit forgiveness; and she—no beg pardon, she does not forgive you, but with a scowl that reminds you of the most vindictive of the Don's tormentors, she passes on, thinking daggers but saying nothing.

If you wish to insult a man without imperiling your personal safety, disarm him in advance with this saving clause, as thus: "Beg your pardon, sir, but what you say cannot be the fact; it is utterly impossible." The deprecatory prefix is like a whiff of chloroform before the pulling of a tooth. Under the influence of a full dose of it we have known a regular fire-eater to endure the lie circumstantial and even the lie direct without wincing. "If" is a good painkiller in some cases, but you may throw any quantity of moral vitriol in the face of a person you dislike, with perfect impunity, if you accompany the aspersions with plenty of "beg-your-pardons." The pardoning power is the most royal of human prerogatives. It tickles one's vanity to exercise it.

She Got a Pointer.

Two men were playing a game of euchre in a drawing-room car on the Erie road, and a little woman who had a seat near by watched the play with great interest. Finally as a certain play was made, she asked:

"Did he take that trick with the king of hearts?"

"Yes'm."

"He took your queen with his king?"

"Just so, ma'am."

"But a queen is higher than a king?"

"Oh, no, ma'am the queen ranks one below the king."

"Is that so everywhere?"

"Yes'm."

"Can't be no mistake?"

"Not the slightest. Don't you play?"

"Not much. My husband set out to learn me; but I took all his kings with my queens and he got mad and quarreled about it, and—

"And you don't play any more?"

"N-no, sir; but I'll telegraph him within the next ten minutes that I was wrong, and that all is forgiven, and that I'll return, and let him even take the bowers with ten spots if he wants to.—N. J. Sun.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MAURICE TOOMEY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Justina A. C. Toomey, Administratrix of the estate of Maurice Toomey, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the administratrix, at the office of Taylor & Holl, No. 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal. Dated, June 5, 1890.

JUSTINA A. C. TOOMEY
Administratrix.
Taylor & Holl, Att'ys for Administratrix. j675.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARGARET FEE, DECEASED.—Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Henry Fee, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Fee, deceased, to the creditors of, and to all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice to Henry Fee, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal. Dated May 26, 1890.

HENRY FEE, Administrator.
Taylor & Holl, Att'ys for Administrator. m3175

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARY W. L. AIKEN, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of the estate of Mary W. L. Aiken, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal. Dated May 26, 1890.

EDWARD F. AIKEN, Administrator.
Taylor & Holl, Att'ys for Administrator. m3175

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET.

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

WITH RADAM'S

MICROBE KILLER

In the house you will have no use for any other remedy.

It will come off Victorious Every Time If used according to directions. Persist in its use and you will be all right.

L. L. GODDARD & CO., Agents.
703 J Street, Sacramento.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

BUFFALO BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates. Give it a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. my17

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.
1002 J Street, Sacramento.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

Gas and Steam Fitter.

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET, Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done. Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

March 30, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:45 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:25 P
9:30 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	6:20 A
7:05 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6:45 P
6:25 P	Knight's Landing	7:40 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	9:55 A
8:00 P	Second Class Ogden and East	6:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express	6:00 A
3:00 P	Ogden and East	10:30 A
3:00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willows	4:00 P
6:15 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7:25 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
6:45 A	San Francisco via Benicia	9:10 P
*10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamer	26:00 A
10:50 A	Sau Francisco via Livermore	2:25 P
6:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose	2:25 P
7:05 P	Santa Barbara	9:55 A
6:45 A	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa	7:25 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
7:05 P	Stockton and Galt	9:55 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno	6:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno	6:00 A
12:05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:45 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo	7:25 P
7:00 A	Placerville (Mixed)	4:50 P
5:00 P	Folsom	9:00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

For Fine Carriages, Buggies, Carts, Spring

Wagons, Farm and Header Wagons,

buy the STUDEBAKER. They Always Lead.

KILGORE & CO.,

AGENTS,

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.

Headquarters for Fancy Crackers

610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENSWARE, CIGARS,

TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.

1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN
HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Farth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

GRAND OPENING AT

JOE POHEIM, The Tailor

OF AN IMMENSE STOCK OF FINE SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, that has never before been exhibited on this coast. Fine Tailoring at Moderate Prices.

Elegant Business Suits made to order from..... $25
Stylish Pants made to order..... 6
Fine Silk-lined Overcoats made to order from..... 25
Stylish English Walking Suits made to order from..... 30
Fine French Pique and Beaver Suits made to order from..... 40
And all other garments in like proportion. These are prices never offered before. All garments made by first-class mechanics. Perfect fit, best of trimmings and workmanship guaranteed or no sale.

JOE POHEIM, THE TAILOR,

600 J Street, cor. Sixth, Sacramento.

No. 203 Montgomery St., 724 Market St., 1110-1112 Market St., San Francisco; 1828 Mariposa St., Fresno; 105-107-109 Santa Clara St., San Jose; 1021-1023 Fourth St., San Diego; 141-143 Spring St. (Bryson & Bondreck building), Los Angeles; 73 Morrison St., Portland, Or

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento. Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.

JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Attorneys for Administrator my10-5t

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

A Misunderstood Woman.

The separation of Eugene Mortimer and his wife was a surprise to their friends. I am the only person in the city who knew the cause of their domestic tragedy, and the time has come to let the public hear the story, for it embodies a valuable lesson. You have seen Mortimer, of course. He is one of the most prominent of our younger lawyers, and has taken quite an active part in politics. He is a tall, thin, nervous man, who is always rubbing his hands across his face, like a clock. His mentality is more brilliant than well-balanced. In fact, he has never thoroughly repaired the intellectual ravages of a college education.

Mrs. Mortimer is not a genius. She loves Mortimer, and, up to a short time ago, had made a good wife. She acted as a kind of sedative upon him, and he was generally happy in her company. By an unfortunate chance she read a book in which the author depicted the awful results which follow intellectual divergences between husband and wife. He argued that a woman should make an effort to keep up with the mental progress of her husband; if she did not, when he was 40 and when she was 35, he would be sure to be bored by her lack of sympathy with his ambitions and achievements. Mrs. Mortimer was scared. She wished to retain Eugene's love to the end of life, and determined to keep up to his intellectual plane if possible. She began her studies by reading the debates on the McKinley Tariff Bill. Mortimer, she knew, was intensely interested in political economy.

At dinner one night, recently, she observed that he looked tired. She determined to surprise and interest him at the same time.

"Do you think the existing duty on sugar should be reduced, my dear?" she asked.

Mortimer looked at her in astonishment.

"Pass me the butter," he said savagely.

There was silence for a moment.

"What is jute bagging, Eugene?" she asked, modestly.

"I don't know."

"Do you think the duty on it should be increased?"

"No."

Mrs. Mortimer was discouraged. Her husband looked more fatigued than ever.

"Do you believe in free raw material, darling?"

"What — nonsense!" exclaimed Mortimer, leaving the table and retiring to his library.

Mrs. Mortimer is now with her mother in Boston.—N. Y. World.

The people of Japan will cast their ballots for the first time at the parliamentary elections to be held July 1st. A property qualification is attached to the right of suffrage; yet a wonderful advance has been made toward democracy. The intelligence and aptitude of the Japanese promise still further progress in the science of free government.

Copyright, 1889.

"Hello! Hello!! Hello!!!"

"Well; what is it?"

"How is your mother, this morning?" "Very much better; she had a real restful sleep last night; she is almost rid of her night-sweats, cough and nervousness, and is growing quite cheerful. How grateful we all are to you for that bottle of medicine."

"Don't speak of gratitude. What does the doctor say?"

"He says he never saw so wonderful a change in such a serious lung trouble. He still thinks we are giving his medicines. I don't like to tell him."

"That's right. He's an old friend, you know. I'm sure your mother will get well now; but you won't forget the name of the medicine, will you?"

"Never! Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery" are household words already, and it has come to stay. Do come and see what sunshine it has brought already, and let us thank you again for it."

"I will. Good bye."

The foregoing is a fair representation of a very common occurrence. "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured severe, lingering coughs and arrested Consumption, or Lung-scurful, in thousands of cases after doctors have failed and other medicines have been tried and abandoned as useless. The "Discovery" is guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case, if taken in time and given a fair trial, or money will be refunded.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY cures the worst cases, in matter of how long standing. 50 cents, by druggists.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

The popular market men, Garzoli & Genis, at 712 K street, are daily receiving choice strawberries, new potatoes, and in fact everything in the market line. Give them a call. 712 K street. Telephone No. 188. *

Those who attend the concert at the plaza to-morrow evening will find it convenient to step into Flint's Candy Store, No. 824 J street, and get a glass of his delicious Ice Cream Soda, or a dish of his famous Ice Cream. *

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers. *

GOLDEN RULE BAZAAR.

S. E. Corner Third and J Streets.

N. ZEMANSKY Proprietor.
Gents' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Boots, Shoes

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON.

First-class make. Apply
MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

JESSE SLAUGHTER,

Office, No. 1217 Fifth Street.

PLASTERING, WHITEWASHING, CLEANING OF CESSPOOLS, Etc.

Also, CITY SCAVENGER.

Burying of dead animals attended to at short notice.

Don't forget the number—1217 Fifth street, the old stand, where I have been for 25 years.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth

FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER,

1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER,

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN

Formerly of Agricultural Park.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

CAUTION.

Dealers are claiming that their pianos have a solid iron frame, just like the MATHUSHEK. We wish to make it clear to the public that the MATHUSHEK PIANO, of New Haven, Conn., is the ONLY PIANO MADE having a solid iron Wrist Plank, and the tuning pins set in same, statements to the contrary notwithstanding. Thin iron plates are only a detriment and gotten up to deceive the people. Hence this old claim that certain pianos are like the Mathushek, is exploded.

JOHN F. COOPER.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE NEWS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1890.

No. 18.

THE NEWS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The census deals with cold facts. Figures won't lie. There is a wide difference between theoretical calculations and facts. In making estimates we are prone to reach far beyond the facts. It is the same old story we have heard in the past. When the census returns do not reach our calculations, there is something wrong, those entrusted with the work have failed to do their duty. As a matter of fact, in our city, as well as Oakland and Stockton, the enumerators have performed their duties. It is probable that some have been omitted, but these omissions will only amount to a trifling per cent. It is more than likely that the enumerations in hotels and lodging houses of transient visitors will equal if not exceed the percentage omitted. Some of our enthusiastic citizens build up figures to an extent that is improbable, and when the returns do not come up to them, they cry aloud that there has been a want of care in obtaining true returns. We repeat that figures won't lie. The people are not here, nor there. We cannot make a showing of 30,000 in Sacramento with 25,000. Nor in Oakland can we return 60,000, when the facts develop only 45,000. Our estimates have been inflated, and the enumerators' demonstrations have reduced the same. The citizens of some of the Western cities have lashed themselves into a fury at the discrepancies between their over-estimates and the actual returns. It is a poor, as well as unjust, satisfaction to berate the enumerators, who have done their duties generally in a most heroic and self-sacrificing manner. The newspapers are the most unreasonable and unjust of all critics in this matter, and yet whatever shortcomings that exist are directly chargeable to that source. For months before the commencement of enumerations many of the leading newspapers of this country prejudiced the citizens against the census, and advised them to refuse to give required information. When the enumerator put in his appearance he was retarded in his duties by the very power that now cries out against the census because it does not come up to their inflated calculations. If there are any discrepancies, they can be laid at the doors of those who educated the citizen to refuse to be enumerated. We cannot score a population that does not exist. The inflated ideas of some cannot be realized. It is better to have a healthy understanding of our situation, than to deal in pure fancy. We should not feel disappointed because actual experience cuts down the theoretical population. Let faultfinders croak as they will, the official count is as near correct as it is possible to make it. There is nothing to be gained by building our faith on airy nothings.

Reference has been made by the press to the fact that the census just taken will be a disappointment so far as this city is concerned, because it will not show we have the population we have been claiming, and that a comparison with the 1880 enumeration will be unfavorable. When we consider the conditions that existed ten years ago, and those which now exist, this matter can be very readily understood. If we recollect right, we then had, in addition to what we have to-day, three first-class hotels—the Arcade, the Orleans and the Union. It is very evident considerations of business, or rather the lack of business, caused their closing. Now there is considerable cry made for the establishment of a first-class hotel to replace what we once had. At that time, or about that time, there were in the city a smelting works, a woolen mills, a beet sugar factory, a plow factory, a carriage factory, and more flouring and planing mills and foundries than we now have. These lost institutions have either been swept away by fire or suspended from lack of business. There has been no particular change in the number of our wholesale houses. If the addition to their trade has advanced, we believe it to be insignificant. During that period we cannot recall any prominent original improvements that have been made in a business line except the California State Bank building, the Waterhouse & Lester block, the establishment of the Buffalo Brewing Company and the additions that have been made to the Capital, Western, Golden Eagle and State House hotels. True, it has been that new buildings have been constructed and old ones added to other than those we have mentioned. The fact that the railroad shops of this city are now being run with a light force has had a tendency to send very many people hence; and the fact that the enumeration will not show what had by many been expected, is due to the consideration that the people are not here. We have not the avenues of employment or business to induce them to remain with us. Real estate values are not as high as they have been at periods in the last decade, and it is now almost impossible to dispose of residence property at a figure commensurate with what should be its worth. We believe not in floating air bubbles, for sooner or later they will dissipate when investigation is made of the facts. We do not believe this attitude of affairs should exist and it is extremely significant that the influx of outside capital has amounted to about nothing, while some of the local capital we had has taken wings and flown. The reason for this condition of things is very apparent; the man who invests his money here has to assume his portion of the mortgage to pay off the unconscionable bonded indebtedness that hangs over us, and it is apparent that unless it is differently handled, its liquidation will never occur within the lifetime of any one of recent birth, unless he shall rival the longevity of Methuselah. Again, and largely from this factor, the tax-rate of the city is extremely high, and when added to State and county taxes and other public dues, operates as a potential impediment to investment. There are also other considerations of which we speak elsewhere, that serve as a menace to enterprise and to drive people from this community. We fully appreciate the honest efforts of the gentlemen who are laboring for local improvement, but believe they are so handicapped that little will be accomplished. The facts we have herein recited should certainly convince any one that this city has retrograded in the last ten years.

That Sacramento, both city and county, should be well represented in their exhibits at the World's Fair in 1892 is keenly felt in all directions, and the people seem to be fast awakening to an anxiety to at once put in motion the machinery of preparation, so that nothing will be left undone to result to the honor and glory of the Capital of the State. So let every endeavor be bent in that direction from now till the consummation. It is not child's play; it is not the mere spasmodic effort of a few to get up a local celebration or parade; it must be assumed by the business men of the community, who must give evidence of the faith they have in their homes and the love of the location of their adoption, where they expect to be buried and where they expect their children to succeed them in the affairs of life. The committees to be appointed must be of men who have no personal interests to subserve aside from those of the general good; no axes are to be ground at the expense of the labor and sweat of those who turn the grindstone; but each and all must go hand in hand at the work as if it was a matter of purely personal interest, and that personality represented in the growth, prosperity, industry, enterprise, wealth and success of this county, and her chief city, and all her towns. This being the animating influence; this being the actuating spirit, who says it will be a failure? Doubtless the session of the Legislature to convene next January will be called on to make a general and liberal appropriation for the benefit of California's entire exhibit at Chicago; and as we are "on the ground," so to speak, we should be ready when the members meet to assist in educating them to the understanding that the question of that appropriation will be one of their chief considerations and that they cannot afford to be niggardly in the matter, for the people will sanction almost any outlay, provided it be not outrageously excessive, to enable the State to appear at its best among the people of the world, for like the scriptural bread cast upon the waters, it will come back to us many times over if we but manage our part properly. But the people of all the counties of the State think just as we do about this exhibition, and of course will in all probability advise their representatives to aid the cause by judicious donation from the State Treasury. As to the gentlemen who will go to the Assembly from this county and our Senator, we feel assured they will require no persuasion as they know the sentiment of the people in that respect. Then let us all be as a unit in the cause of an unequalled exhibit of our mines, manufactories, farms, mercantile affairs, stock farms and orchards, the arts and sciences, and all pursuits and avocations in which mankind can possibly be engaged, and then we can, with some degree of propriety, invite the people to whom we will be thus introduced to come among us and partake of our bounty.

Sometime ago it was announced that Hon. Joseph McKenna would have serious opposition for a re-nomination. At the time we were at a loss for any adequate reason for such antagonism. Certainly the experience of Mr. McKenna now makes him doubly valuable. While it might be the ambition of others to secure the Congressional prize for the sake of ambition, yet Hon. Joseph McKenna should not be displaced in these days of his usefulness to gratify ambition in others. However, this opposition has evidently ceased, and there will be little to prevent his return to Washington. McKenna has been and is an energetic worker for the interests of his constituents. There is nothing of the brag or blustering nature about him. Perhaps if he would employ the means utilized by some of our Congressmen, to wit: the Washington newspaper reporter and the telegraph, he might be brought to the attention of the public oftener. But McKenna is a modest, yet untiring worker. He is a man of keen perception and broad views. There is nothing of a demagogue about him. On all subjects at all times you will find him with fixed and determined opinions. His word is inviolate. When he expresses himself you know that he means what he says. As a public man he ranks with the highest. Sacramento, above all, owes a debt of gratitude to the Hon. Jos. McKenna for his labor in our interests. The same can be said of his entire district. At the polls no man can defeat him. Let McKenna be the unanimous choice of the next Congressional Convention.

Mary Anderson is married. The gaping gossips of both continents are satisfied, now that they can no longer attribute sinister or mean motives for the privacy for which she chose to characterize the ceremony—to her a holy sacrament. She was of a true but unusual type of the American lady, had few peers, no superiors, in all the essentials that unite to make the perfect woman. Youth, beauty, education, all were hers, and she possessed those fascinations that have too often proven the downfall of women similarly engaged. Left in childhood with a widowed mother and an invalid brother, she took to the stage, though disliking its life. Yet she was proof against its bewildering allurements. A natural talent and untiring diligence soon sent her to the front rank of her temporary profession where she engraved her good name and fame on the highest niche of histrionic merit. Her fabulous subsidies in early life and her thorough freedom from that extravagance and fashionable dissipation that have led so many of that calling into an early poverty and obscurity, have enabled her to retire to domestic seclusion with a competency that insures an exemption from future want. Her natural and constantly maintained, yet unostentatious Christian character has exempted her from the least breath of scandal, and in this she has been happily unlike too many of her sisters of the mimic world. She preferred a marriage devoid of pomp with the man of her heart's selection, and loved him for his manly merit; she had known him since her childhood, and both have "done Europe" under the chaperonage and guidance of his mother—a woman of the strictest ideas of propriety in youth of either sex. The young wife now retires to that private life, that those most intimate and best acquainted with her says she dearly prefers, leaving behind her a celebrity that a Siddons might envy, and a reputation for purity of character that does not belong to a Bernhardt, a Terry, a Langtry or a Potter.

Some time ago the City Council of Los Angeles adopted a resolution that neither aliens nor other than citizens of Los Angeles should be employed in the work of constructing public sewers. A clause covering the subject was, by order of the Council, inserted in all the sewer contracts. At the last meeting of the Council a complaint was made that contractors were violating this section of their contracts. Accordingly a committee was appointed to make an investigation. This committee completed its report. On work being done by Contractors Mahoney & Walker, the committee found fourteen men at work who had been in the country three years but were not citizens. Frick Brothers had had men at work who were not citizens, but the day when the committee was appointed they were discharged. The Laborers' Coöperative Company had two men at work who were not citizens for the reason that they were not of age. The committee also reported sundry violations of the eight-hour law.

Considered from the broad and elevated plane on which the humanitarian rests; this action of the Los Angeles Board would seem to be ill-advised and radically wrong. Had the opposition been aimed at the Mongolians alone, nothing could be said, for it is universally admitted that we of California (indeed, the Caucasian race, generally) have everything to fear in an increased emigration from a pauper population of nearly five hundred millions of low wage workers, who are satisfied with a few cents a day as against the dollars it requires for the support of our own favored race; and the arguments against their further ingress to these shores have been exhausted, so that it is time lost to dwell on the topic. But the authorities of Los Angeles have been pleased to boycott all "aliens," and that means those of foreign nation in our State not yet naturalized. It is those who have come here to become citizens, and settle and become a part of the State—its future people. Is it fair, is it just, is it human, that bread and butter should be denied those people simply because of the accident of birth? And then, Los Angeles has herself brought about this necessity for self-protection, so to term it, by the sanguine and persistent invitations through their booms, to the people of the world to go into their midst and settle. If, therefore, they are beginning to be over-populated, the fault lies with themselves, not with the poor and deserving laborer who was induced by the fascinating laudation of the real estate sharper, sanctioned by the local press, to believe he was entering a land of promise, overflowing with milk and honey. If the expectations of that people have not been realized, if that south-end bubble has burst and gone into thin air, the citizens down there should at least be just, if they are so situated that they cannot afford to be generous. They could and should tell their visitors, who went there in good faith, that there is really no work for them, that Los Angeles cannot support her own people; for it now looks as if the order of the City Council is intended to protect those citizens who have been there for years, and who find it hard to procure work. If an ordinance such as has been passed against non-citizens should become a law, what is to prevent the enactment of a rule prohibiting the employment of men who have not been in Los Angeles less than five, or any number of years, thus protecting the old settlers? The authorities should be humane enough to direct the unemployed working men of that city to come to Central and Northern California, where they will be assured work in the field and factories, and not be ostracized just because they have not taken out their papers or "declared their intentions." It is uncharitable; it is un-American.

[Written for THEMIS.]

NEWFOUNDLAND FISHERIES.

CONTINUED.

All the history needed is supplied by the same noble Lord (Carnarvon) in the same speech delivered in the House of Lords. He said: "Newfoundland was originally claimed for this country, in the time of Henry the Seventh (he might have added it was first discovered by Cabot, an officer in the employ of Henry the Seventh). It was subsequently occupied by the French. Then, after a long series of difficulties and disputes, it was secured finally to England by the treaty of Utrecht in 1713, the French securing to themselves, or rather the English securing to them, certain rights on part of the coast contingent on the fishery." The filling up of this outline reveals a chapter most discreditable to the English Government. "The object of Newfoundland as a possession for us," says Carnarvon, "was not the foundation of a Colony, but the training up of seamen, and the creation of a nursery for our navies. The notion of colonization or settlement was foreign to our ideas." True to this "object" and ruled by this "notion," the British Government, for nearly two centuries, most cruelly and unwisely hindered and harassed the settlers who persisted in making their home in the island. They were denied all civic and religious rights. Their dwellings were demolished. They were refused a corner of the virgin soil to build a place of worship. The senior captain of the men-of-war on the station was their ex officio governor, judge, jury and executioner. The land was doomed by imperial decree to everlasting desolation. It was only to be known and recognized as one of Burns' "twa' dogs" described it:

"Some place abroad,
Where sailors gang to fish for cod."

This glance at the history of the island is a revelation of the policy of the British Government in its regard to-day as a hundred years ago. Newfoundland, at the era of the Utrecht treaty, was decreed to be, and to remain, a mere uninhabited fishing station. As such, it would have given little trouble to the rival powers of Western Europe. Their fishing fleets would come and go, their cruisers hover upon and disappear from the scene of present contention, leaving the land bare of settlement and production. Without inhabitants, industries, or living interests of any sort, it never could become an international danger. Either contending power might claim it, but none should possess it. England and France should have perpetual peace as far as the new land was concerned. That and no other was the new land's destiny. To belong to no one and come to nothing—as a land—was the noble fate assigned it by the decree drawn up in the flats and fens of a Dutch village.

But nature, aided by the short-sighted policy of England nearer home, decreed otherwise. To those far-off and desolate shores came exiles from another island, rendered by various miseries more hopeless and more desolate still. When the wild forest supplied them with such a home, the light but vigorous soil with a quick return for labor, and the teeming seas abundance of wholesome food in this new land, what argument or what force that the government might employ could induce those sons of Erin to return to a country made waste by famine and persecution.

So they remained in their new island in spite of penalties and protocols. The colony grew in time by spontaneous immigration, and has become one of the most interesting, as it is decidedly one of the most important, possessions of the British empire. Where a log church was forbidden to be erected, there are now three cathedral churches of stone, second to none in the New World for beauty of style, and ranking with the largest for spaciousness.

The "fishing station" is now a self-governing colony of 250,000 inhabitants. The port of St. John's, where only a few fishing and trading vessels once found shelter, picked up a few sailors, prepared their tackle and laid in stores for their voyages, is now a city of 40,000 inhabitants, far advanced in the pathway of prosperity and culture; and this has been effected not only without aid and encouragement from the home country, but in spite of neglect and oppression, and in the teeth of appalling obstacles placed in the way of the colony's progress by foreign competitors and marauders. This is therefore a colony that deserves consideration for its own sake, from the hands of England, no less than for the essential interests of her empire in the Western World. But would any sane man, not a diplomatist, believe that this growth and progress of Newfoundland has been imputed to her, by imperial politicians, as little less than a crime against the interests of the empire? The argument of Carnarvon in the speech before quoted is this, and it has been the argument of his predecessors in the Colonial Office also: That because Newfoundland chose to become a colony and a country, to grow into social importance, instead of remaining as was decreed for her, a mere fishing station, an ichthyographical term, therefore she placed herself outside and beyond the provisions made for her by treaty, and is no longer deserving of British care and protection. The English government did not contemplate or desire, at the ratification of the Utrecht Treaty, the colonization, nor the subsequent autonomy of the island. The colony itself, by its own act of being and growing, has made itself an eyesore to France, and a perplexity to England. This is the substance of the argument of the colonial office expressed by Lord Carnarvon in these and, by other officials, in like words: "Partly by conquest, and partly by treaty, we acquired this territory of Newfoundland many years ago, and in return certain rights were secured to the French. Time went on. A great colony sprang up which at that time was never anticipated. English fishermen gradually abandoned the shores, and left them to the colonists. Now we are called upon to enforce obligations which, at the time the treaty was entered into, were wholly unexpected on our part. This is not a position in which this colony ought to be placed." Is not this a plain statement on the part of the English government, that the colony, simply because it has chosen to become a colony, must look to itself, and that the crown is released by a law of nature that it would not foresee and could not prevent, from its treaty obligations and difficulties? This, and no other, need be the colonist's reading of this passage. We shall see anon what that reading must lead to. It is necessary at this point to introduce the following extract from the Treaty of Peace and Friendship between Great Britain and France, signed at Utrecht, 31 March, 11 April, 1713.

"The island called Newfoundland, with the adjacent islands, belong of right, wholly to Britain. And to that end the town and fortress of Placentia, and whatever other places in the said island are in the possession of the French, shall be yielded and given up within seven months from the ratification of this treaty, or sooner if possible, by the Most Christian King to those who have a commission from the Queen of Great Britain for that purpose. Nor shall the Most Christian King, his heirs, or successors, or any of their subjects, at any time hereafter lay claim to any right to the said island or islands, or to any part of them.

"Moreover, it shall not be lawful for the subjects of France to fortify any place in the said Island of Newfoundland, or to erect any building there besides stages made of boards and huts necessary and usual for drying fish; or to resort to the said island beyond the point necessary for fishing and drying of fish. But it shall be allowed to the subjects of France to catch fish and to dry them on land, in that part only and in no other besides, which stretches from the place called Cape Bonavista to the northern part of said island, and from thence, running down to the western side, reaches as far as the place called Point Riche.¹

"Done at Utrecht, the 31 March, 11 April, 1713.

"Signed: JOHN BRISTOL, C. P. S. [L.S.]
"STAFFORD. [L.S.]
"HUXELLES. [L.S.]
"MEANAGER. [L.S.]"

By the Definitive Treaty of Paris, 1763, the above Art. XIII of the Treaty of Utrecht was confirmed, with the addition in favor of France, that "the King of Great Britain cedes the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon in full right to his most gracious majesty, to serve as a shelter to the French fisherman, and his said most gracious majesty (of France) engages not to fortify the said islands, to erect no buildings upon them but merely for the convenience of the fishery; and to keep upon them a guard of fifty men only for the police."

Next comes the Treaty of Versailles, in 1783, in which "His Majesty the King of Great Britain is maintained in his right to the Island of Newfoundland," and the right to the island of St. Pierre and Miquelon, as well as the fishing right ceded to France by Art.

—¹ Now called from Cape John to Cape Ray.

XIII of the Utrecht, are confirmed to that kingdom. Finally, by the treaty of peace signed at Paris, May 30, 1814, the whole question between France and England regarding Newfoundland, and the fisheries, coasts, etc., is "replaced on the footing on which it stood in 1792;" that is, the footing of the Treaty of Versailles, which is but the confirmation of that of Utrecht, with the addition of the cession of St. Pierre and Miquelon to France.

The Treaty of Utrecht, therefore, I respectfully contend, gives the law to this question, and it will be seen all these other treaties concur with that of Utrecht in placing on the forefront of their arrangements, "That the island of Newfoundland belongs of right wholly to Britain." No statement could be more absolute and exclusive than this. It admits of no claim whatever in the sense of territorial ownership on the part of France, or of any other country, to as much as one inch of land on or within the shores of the island. This has always been insisted upon by imperial and colonial authorities. Lord Palmerston, writing to Count Sebastian (July 10, 1858) on the subject of French claims to territory on the Newfoundland coast, denies emphatically the existence of any such rights, and ends his vigorous protest against them, thus: "The claim put forward on the part of France is founded simply on interference and upon an assumed interpretation of words."

The judicial opinion of Sir R. J. Pinsent, given in the colony, is considered the best and clearest indictment of French claims that has yet been pronounced.

"Under the Treaty of Utrecht," he states, "the whole of the island was declared to be the rightful territory of Great Britain, and to be under her absolute sovereignty. The terms of the treaty in this respect have never been abrogated or abandoned. I have never understood for a moment that the crown has in any degree allowed any sovereign or proprietary claim on the part of France. The presence of British ships of war, of civil officers, and the right of legislative representation enjoyed by the people of this coast, and its subjection to taxation and customs regulation, and the presence here of the Supreme Court of this island, and its dependencies, with jurisdiction over the adjacent seas, and with cognizance of offences committed on the Banks of Newfoundland—all attest this position, which is in no wise annulled by the permissive presence of a French naval force for the discipline and protection of their own marine."

A leading member of the English bar, in the Pall Mall Gazette, of December, 1888, in calling attention to the above judgment of Sir Robert Pinsent, delivered on the scene of the contention, subjoins his own emphatic opinion thus: "This is absolutely conclusive, and it is accordingly certain that the French will never become possessed, unless the fortune of war give it to them as it took it away, of any portion of the Newfoundland Coast." The possibility of "dual ownership" seems to have been always peculiarly the English idea about landed property. This (let us plainly call it absurd) idea unfortunately crept into the import and State arrangement made with France by the Treaty of Utrecht. France has not been backward in taking advantage of it. "How," she argues, "can my subjects cut wood and build huts on the shores of Newfoundland if I have no ownership, no territorial rights upon or within the shores of that island?" On the other hand the Newfoundlander retorts: "How can you presume on any rights whatever upon territory declared by a treaty signed by yourselves, to 'belong wholly to Great Britain,' without our consent, who are British subjects (?) and colonists, and the natural owners of the country. This consent you will never obtain. We will not be deprived of our lands, our minerals, our bays, our harbors along four hundred miles of our coast, simply because the agents of the British government, in 1713 (as now), entertained the ridiculous idea that two could own and use the same thing at the same time, or rather that one own without being allowed to use, and another use without being allowed to own it."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Kansas Philosophy.

A man is never too poor to get married.

When a man reaches 40, he begins to look around for the names of men who distinguished themselves after that age.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

A novel called "The confessions of a Door-Mat" is being dramatized for production in London.

Musical composers are complaining that the disposition in this country to dub every popular favorite a "chestnut," seriously militates against the life of a song.

Miss Julia Neilson, an English beauty, who has been two years on the stage, is expected to succeed Mary Anderson in the affections of English play-goers. Our English friends are respectfully informed that several ambitious American girls are understudies, each on her own account, for Miss Anderson in this important role.

They say that a certain well known theatrical man left an imperative order to be called at four A. M., with the night clerk of a struggling one-night stand hotel. The proprietor himself undertook to see that the call was surely made, and even lit a fire and prepared some hot coffee for the departing guest. At the appointed hour the knuckles of Ye Boniface played a tattoo on the slumberer's door. "All right!—but say, landlord, is it raining?" "Yes, like the very devil." "Then I guess I won't go—" "By God, I guess you will!" And he did.

The drama in Europe is about to be given a substantial lift forward and upward. A number of Persian highwaymen, whose exploits lately became so daring and successful that they have been compelled to fly from the Shah's dominions, have organized a troupe of fifty Persian singers, dancers, wrestlers, boxers, conjurers, bandits and equestrians, and will shortly set out for a tour of Europe under the management of a Russian impressario and livery-stable keeper. These Persian performers should be able to make a great hit, and doubtless will, unless they accidentally stray over the Shah's borders and fall into the iron grip of the Persian law. We shall now be able to compare the genuine bandit with our comic-opera bandit. The latter will no doubt prove the better of the two, although he knows nothing of the bandit business except in a general way.

Book Chat.

I know a wondrous man—my neighbor he;
He's ripe in years; and great in understanding.
He's versed in art, and in philosophy
He shows a mind that's verily commanding.

He'll stand before a painting, and without
A single instant's thought or hesitation,
He'll tell the painter's name, nor any doubt
Is there he gives the proper information.

The rocks, the hills and valleys, hold from him
No secret that is past a man's revealing.
He knows why some are stout and others slim;
He comprehends all kinds of human feeling.

The records of the stars he knows, and each
Romance that round about the heavens lingers.
At dinner time he oft delights to preach
On which was made the first, or forks or fingers.

Indeed, all things he knows, or high or low—
The things that fly on wing, or go a-walking—
Except one thing he never seems to know,
And that's when he should stop his endless talking.

Payne, the novelist, plays whist two hours a day.

In Hawaii there are nearly 200 schools, with 9,000 pupils.

The oldest living authoress in this country is Mrs. Elizabeth Oakes Smith, who lives at Holywood, N. C. She is 84.

An English literary statistician has discovered that of the 562 heroines in last year's novels, 372 were blondes and 190 brunettes.

The literary production of Mexico is quite wonderful. One of her latest bibliographical lists mentions no less than 12,000 volumes by 3,000 native Mexican authors. The first book printed on this continent was published in Mexico.

M. Alexandre Dumas is now a hale, vigorous, man of some 66 years, broad-shouldered and strongly built, with gray hair, the ample forehead of a thinker and observer, and with a shrewd satirical expression about his mouth. He lives in the avenue de Villiers, comfortably and unostentatiously, occupied with his books, his plays and his grandchildren.

A fancy for the Spanish language and literature is reigning in Washington. Classes and readings in Spanish are held frequently, and many have made sufficient progress in the language to converse with the many South and Central American delegates who have been at the capital this winter. Translations and originals of works by Spanish and Spanish-American authors are frequently called for at the book stores.

During the American Revolution an English magazine published an estimate of the future population of the North American colonies. Placing the population then at 2,000,000, and assuming that it would double itself every twenty-five years, the writer estimated that in the year 1890 the number would have increased to 64,000,000. As matter of fact, this is near the present estimated population of the United States.

An autograph letter of Richard III was sold in England recently for about $5.25 per inch of surface. It was written at Barnard Castle, in Durham, August 4, 1480, or about three years before the crook-back Duke of Gloster, the constable and admiral of England, came to the throne, and is described as "slightly tinged and torn, but written in a small, clear hand, pasted on a clean sheet of white paper, and inclosed in a glazed oak frame."

In collections centuries old, to be seen in both China and Japan, are specimens of the most remarkable drawings in the world—pictures of all kinds drawn with the thumb nail. The nail of the thumb on the left hand of these peculiar artists are allowed to grow to an enormous length, sometimes to a foot or nineteen inches, and are then pared down to a pen-shaped point. Dipping this oddly-constructed pen in beautiful vermilion or sky-blue ink, the only kind of ink used in these "sacred" thumb-nail drawings, the artist gracefully outlines his work. Occasionally the bold touches from the studio of a master in this department of "high art" are life-size and are sketched by a few sweeps of the artist's arm.

It is the moral purity, the human sympathy, the divine quality of compassion for suffering, the swift insight into the soul pressed down by

The heavy and the weary weight
Of all this unintelligible world, that we trace the minds of women attuned to finer spiritual issues. This broad humanity has vitalized modern literature. It is the penetrating spirit of our century, which has been aptly called the Woman's Century. The Greek poets give us types of tragic passions, of heroic virtues, of motherly and wifely devotion, but woman is not recognized as a profound spiritual force. Aphrodite, the ideal of beauty is the type of sensual love. Athena, the goddess of wisdom, is cold, crafty and cruel. The Greek heroine is portrayed with all the delicacy and clearness of the Hellenic instinct, but she is the victim of an inexorable fate, a stern Nemesis, an Antigone patiently hopeless, an Iphigenia calmly awaiting a sacrifice. It is a masculine literature, perfect in form and plastic beauty, but with no trace of woman's deeper spiritual life. This literature, so vigorous, so statuesque, so calm and withal so cold, shines across the centuries side by side with the feminine Christian ideal—twin lights which have met in the world of to-day. It may be that from the blending of the two, the crowning of a man's vigor with a woman's finer insight, will spring the perfected flower of human thought.—Century.

Professional Chat.

A lawyer's opinion is worth just what it will bring in the legal market.

A man's will, properly attended, is strong in law, but a woman's "won't" never backs down anywhere.

A statesman to-day is a man who maintains that "the decalogue and the golden rule have no place in a political campaign."

First Doctor (to country practitioner)—Well, how are you getting on? Have you many patients? Second ditto—Alas, no; we have had a regular health epidemic in our neighborhood of late.

It is told of a well-known lawyer, who, by the way, is scarcely ever ready for trial when his case is called, that he was attending Court one day in a case that had been dragging through the courts for years. "No. 25," called the Judge, and all the other lawyers waited to hear the excuses. "Ready," cried the lawyer in a loud, clear voice. Everybody within range looked surprised. "—If the other side is not," added the lawyer in a low tone. The case went over the term once more.

One of the late stories about Congressman Allen of Mississippi, says the Philadelphia Record, is that one of the aspirants for his place in case it should be vacant, a brilliant fellow named Riley, met him on the streets of Tupelo with: "Look here, Allen, are you going to run again or not? I took your card to mean what it said, and I thought I would be a candidate if you were really out; but I kept hearing that you're going back after all. I'd like to know about it, because if you're going back I'll keep out of it." "Well, now, Riley," said Allen, "I'll tell. I meant every word of that card. It was all true then; but since I've gotten down here I find myself sort of in the hands of my friends. And I tell you, Riley, there's nothing more dangerous in politics than a man in the hands of his friends."

I heard a good story about Dr. Talmage the other day, writes a New York Star reporter. It was at a baseball game at Washington Park, Brooklyn, and it was my lot to be seated near a loquacious individual who was very critical of the good and bad points of the game and of the people he saw around him. After he had exhausted about every possible subject of conversation, he said: "Ah, there is Dr. Talmage over there. I see him here quite often. He is a mighty good man, but it's too bad he swears so." "Swears!" I exclaimed. "Do you mean to say that Dr. Talmage is profane?" "Oh, yes, he swears like a pirate. It was like this: He was sitting next to me at a game last week when O'Brien stopped a red hot liner which ought to have been good for two bases. Forgetting that I was so near the doctor, I said: 'By jove, that was a d—d clever play!' and the doctor, who is a great admirer of O'Brien's, replied: 'That's so.'"

NOTES.

Energy without judgment does the world almost as much harm as wilful negligence.

If every fellow could see himself just as others see him, he would be very careful about making an exhibition of himself, and would see that the blinds are carefully closed.

Men rest in as many different ways as they become tired. What is rest to one is wearisome to another. What re-creates one tires another. Every man is entitled to rest in his own way.

It is an old saying that charity begins at home; but this is no reason why it should not go abroad. A man should live with the world as a citizen of the world; he may have a preference for the particular quarter, or square, or even alley in which he lives, but he should have a generous feeling for the welfare of the whole.

The difficulty lawyers have sometimes in fixing upon a day to which a case shall be continued, reminds one of the young woman who wrote a poem about the season in which she would prefer to die. She would not die in spring for certain reasons; she objected to summer on some other accounts; autumn was not agreeable for sundry other considerations; and when it came to winter, she and her friends feared that she was not willing to die at all.

The California people are largely given to brag and exaggeration. Any man you meet will always have the best watch, best gun, or best horse. Ask him about his city or town, and he will never fail to stretch the truth to its utmost. This penchant for exaggeration has been fully exemplified in the matter of census. In nearly every instance the citizen has fixed the population of his locality at figures greatly in excess of what the facts demonstrate. When confronted with these developments, his sense of absurdity does not forsake him, and he at once denounces the means whereby the facts were obtained.

In view of the demonstrated insufficiency of our fire protection, from now until after the 4th of July, and particularly about that day, there should be extreme vigilance used to guard against fires. Already the small boy is burning fire-crackers on the sidewalk, and of course in his usual careless way. Passing along Sixth street yesterday morning we observed on the wooden sidewalk the remains of a smoldering fire-cracker. Such a thing as that dropped through the walk might create extremely disastrous results. It would not be a bad idea for the police authorities to restrain the burning of fire crackers, etc., until just about and on the 4th of July. Other cities, better protected than ours, have suffered with great severity on the fourth.

Stephen M. White, whom it would seem from his pronouncement to had the Democratic party of this State in the grasp of his hand, and who spurned its proffered nomination for the governorship, but did consent to accept the trifling office of United States Senator, appears to have already gotten himself into hot water. We had been led to believe, from the confident declarations of the youth, that the Democratic party had made him an unwilling captive, and were trying to fasten the senatorial toga over his shoulders. We have been deceived. It develops he is being violently opposed in his party, and that some of its prominent journals are seriously inquiring if he is the only one upon whom this distinction should fall. It looks very much as if Mr. White, like other skyrocket politicians, has ascended with considerable display, but that as the stick he will fall in the darkness with a "dull thud." It is however as well our Democratic friends should present Mr. White to the Legislature as any other of their party, for the Republicans, while not so demonstrative, will interest themselves in this matter to the extent that a Republican Senator will be returned.

CENSUS NOTES.

It is quite too common for some people to condemn what they do not understand, and often know nothing about. In the matter of taking the census our evening contemporary has endeavored, in a sensational manner, entirely devoid of judgment, and contrary to the facts, to create the impression that there has been neglect in the enumeration of this city. The paper accuses the enumerators of incompetency without the slightest knowledge of the extent of their labors. Several citizens, not to exceed half a dozen, have told the Be that they have not been enumerated. In every instance, on investigation, there was no fault of the enumerator, and in all but three cases the parties had been listed. The case of Schmidt, of the North California Herald, his habitation had not been reached by the enumerator. One man had been absent from the city, and the enumerator was informed several days ago that he had left the city to work abroad. On his return he was promptly listed. The enumerators have had enough time in collecting statistics and names, without incurring these unjust accusations by those who have no means of comprehending their labors. As a matter of fact, the enumerators have been diligent, active and accurate. Some people may have the impression that they are not enumerated because they have not been personally visited by the enumerator. A personal visitation in many cases is impossible, and the enumerator gains what information he can from the others at his habitation. Possibly some details of his history might be omitted, but the fact of his existence and residence is fixed for census purposes. This is the case in lodging houses and hotels. All lodgers are taken as one family. In Sacramento there will be only a trifling percentage of omissions, if any at all. The enumerators are finishing up their work, gathering in absentees and looking up those who could not be found at former visits. There never was the slightest cause for alarm that there would be any considerable omissions in the enumeration.

Curiosities of Naturalization.

It is a matter of congratulation that the disposition of the Judges of the State in respect to naturalization, is to require a more rigid examination of applicants than there had been in the past. Several of the Superior Judges have announced they would require a satisfactory degree of intelligence before they would grant applications. We have witnessed a great many naturalizations in the last 15 years. One instance rather amusing we recollect, was where the applicant was asked: "Do you believe in a republican form of government?" and he answered earnestly, "Vell, I will vote for Hayes."

In this case the other day, where Judge Walling in the Superior Court here refused to naturalize a man, one of the witnesses was asked: "What is your name?" He replied by giving his last name. The Judge asked: "What is your given name?" He replied "I was a saloon keeper." The applicant, in response to questions, stated that he did not know who was the Governor of the State. Perhaps he could be excused in that respect, for a great many intelligent people seem to regard it that we have a de facto and a de jure Governor. The applicant could not read English and knew nothing about the Constitution. When asked: "Who made the laws of the State?" he replied, "I guess the State officers." After he had answered he was a saloon keeper, the Judge asked him if he belonged to an organization known as the League of Freedom. He replied that he did. He was then asked if one of the principles of that organization was not to violate all laws they might consider detrimental to their business interests. He replied in the affirmative. It is to be hoped the example of this Judge will be followed generally.

It very often happens that a man will come into court who cannot speak English, or speaks it very imperfectly, and his examination has to come largely through an interpreter. It also happens that Kanakas have displayed woful ignorance. It is, of course, the duty of every man capable of acquiring citizenship, who lives among us, and who receives the protection of our laws, to reasonably inform himself as to the nature of our institutions, and to acquire a knowledge of our language, and then to put himself in a position to assume the burthens to government that are imposed upon citizens—such as jury and military services. There are cases, however, where men have lived in this country for years, who intend to remain here, who have acquired large property interests, yet who refused to be naturalized, for the simple reason that they might be called upon a jury and lose their time. Of course, no one can respect a man of that character, who is willing, when he needs a jury to protect his rights, that those about him shall lose their time, while he will not reciprocate when they need the assistance of the courts. A few years ago there was a gentleman here who, for a long time, was editor of one of our leading dailies, who declared himself so opposed to our form of government that he would not affiliate with us; and yet, in questions of politics, the editorials he wrote were intended to direct voters in exercising the franchise he would not accept.

A Friend In Need.

"Can you direct me to the dressing-room, madam," asked the fashionably dressed society belle, who had just arrived at the full-dress ball in Washington, of the good wife of Deacon Pogram, the new member from the Thirty-second New Hampshire District. "Sakes alive!" replied Aunt Jerusha, "I don't wonder you ask. Here, put my shawl over you, child, and come this way just as fast as you possibly can!"—Somerville Journal.

"MUST HAVE IT."

The City's Crying Need—The People Favor a New Hotel—Where will the Coin Come From?

And Joshua had commanded the people, saying: Ye shall not shout, nor make any noise with your voice; neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout, then shall ye shout.

It is not our intention that we have headed this article with a quotation from scripture, we will publish a sermon, though we might with much propriety. In the case of Joshua the command he gave came from higher Power and the blast of the trumpets and the shouting resulted in the accomplishment of his purpose. In the case of the city of Sacramento we have equinoctial trumpet blasts and shouting, but the Joshua is usually a portion of the public press, and while the claimed intention is to build up the city, we have generally succeeded in making ourselves ridiculous. Just now there is considerable agitation upon the subject of the construction of a modern hotel here, and a journal of prominence gravely informs us that: "It seems impossible to mention the project for building a hotel of the modern type in Sacramento without eliciting the utmost enthusiasm from the person approached. Such unanimity has rarely attended a plan for the public interest. While there is naturally some diversity of views as to the best location for the proposed structure, there is none whatever as to the advisability of the proposition and its importance to Sacramento." The articles that have been published have consisted largely of interviews with citizens, in which they freely expressed, it would seem, an enthusiastic approval of the plan if some one else would put up the money. Opinions of this character are extremely cheap; it would be more satisfactory if some one or more of our local enthusiasts on this subject would indicate their faith in the project by a contribution of cash. We very fully appreciate, as do people generally, that advice expressed in newspaper interviews, calling for no outlay by those tendering it amounts to little, and we have read with no more than amusement the opinions of our fellow citizens who have all faith in the project, but who we know would not embark a dollar in the enterprise. In one interview there was related an instance that occurred in Kearny, Nebraska, where a hotel burned down during the absence of its owner. He had been ruined by the fire, but the citizens held a public meeting and determined that the man who had met with the loss should not leave the town through his financial embarrassment, and rousing him from his bed, told him if necessary they would rebuild his hotel. We have some appreciation of the public spirit displayed by the people of Kearny; it strikingly contrasts with that manifested by the people of Sacramento. In 1875 one of the principal hotels of this city was destroyed by fire. We are not aware that a public meeting was held to assist its then crippled proprietor; that it was rebuilt on a larger scale was due to his indomitable energy alone. Later the Capital Hotel proprietors, in conjunction with other extensive property owners in the block, desired to make modern improvements. To the extent that they could purchase real estate, it was done. Their scheme at improvement, however, failed, that they could not purchase property needed except at a fancy price and one that would not justify the undertaking. It was not long ago that a gentleman of experience and means sought to procure a site for a modern hotel opposite the State Capitol on Tenth street. While liberal in the prices he offered, he would not have been justified in paying what was asked for a portion of the needed land.

If we had the slightest idea anything would result from this present agitation, if we were aware that any of those who are so enthusiastic would embark their capital in this enterprise, we would look upon this matter differently; but it strikes us as a repetition of the absurdities of the press and people of this city. One gentleman of prominence declares with enthusiasm that "as for himself he preferred a facing on Capitol Park, but that fact should not be pressed to the disadvantage of the plan. 'I don't care where it is located,' he added, 'we want the new hotel and we need it.'" Another volunteers the suggestion the proposed new building should be at East Park. We have no particular suggestions to make about this matter, but presume we have an equal right with those who are willing to advise in newspaper interviews, how strangers should invest their money here. There is a very fine corner lot to the north of the American river owned by one of the name of Haggins. It comprises some 40,000 acres. What is the reason the persons who will be attracted to this city through the flattering inducements of the gentlemen who have expressed themselves should not locate their hotel there. The lot is large enough to permit of extensions being built as the business increases, and being outside of the city limits, there will be an escape from the oppressive city taxes that fall upon all who invest their capital here.

Our citizens should understand that outside capital will not come to us so long as our own capital is timid. With the bonded indebtedness that we have hanging over us it means, to outsiders, stay away. Then, again, let us consider the treatment persons and corporations who have invested here have received from the hands of a portion of the people, the press, and the public authorities. Some years ago a gentleman from Chicago located here, created a boom in real estate, and established a line of street railway. He found it prudent to leave the town, but took with him to his Eastern home the title to the Sutter Fort property. Recently, through the generosity of Colonel Crocker largely, the title to this property is again here. The parties who have embarked their capital in street railroad enterprises have operated their roads under the fire of journalistic and municipal governmental authority. Recently and to-day, we have an instance of the determined effort to keep capital out of this city. An outside corporation asked for leave to establish an electric lighting plant here. It was fought with the usual tenacity, and of the journals of this city, THEMIS stood alone in saying: "Bring in your money; we will encourage you." The gentlemen who have staked their capital in this enterprise have been hampered at every turn; and while it is a matter of State notoriety, that until recently the condition of the streets of this city was such that the poles of this company could not be transported without danger that the horses might be suffocated in the mud, and while it is known that these poles could not be with security planted in the mire, as soon as the north wind volunteered to improve our streets and work was commenced by the company and prosecuted with earnestness, we find the municipal fist shaking in the faces of these men. They are being threatened with a penalty, and with the abrogation of their franchise. From some quarters they have been held up almost as public felons. Their crime consists in bringing capital into Sacramento city, and in furnishing its inhabitants with a modernized system of lighting.

Our readers cannot misunderstand our position. Whenever we have believed practical results would follow, we have lent all aid possible; but we are not disposed to pursue the policy of encouraging and then of injuring, nor are we willing to waste the space of this paper in publishing the views of gentlemen who are enthusiastic to advise what we need, but both to furnish the needed money. We realize very fully from the experience of the past, that in this city expressions in the shape of newspaper interviews can be had without number on almost any subject, be it the crucifixion of the President or the employment of a schoolboy to furnish brains and dignity for the municipal management. If there can be shown an instance where outside capital has been permitted to be invested here without persistent opposition, we would be gratified to know of it.

After the above article was written we have read further expressions in the shape of interviews concerning this proposed modern hotel that have been published. It seems that the enthusiasts have been exhausted and that the matter has resolved itself down to a plain business trot. The position taken by Frank Miller, the Cashier of the National Banking House of D. O. Mills & Co., accords with ours, and is in striking contrast with the expressions of those who spoke without regard to the cost or the means of getting the money. While we do not believe that the amount of money suggested can be raised here, we fully agree with him that "if the scheme cannot meet that (the raising of the necessary money) it should not be undertaken," and that the result of the sale of stock among our citizens is not possible to be guessed at "until a little canvass has been made." The ideas of the banker are right. He appreciates that in order to carry out such an enterprise it should be first ascertained whether the money will be available and presume he takes as little stock as we in the popular manifestation by those who perhaps would contribute little or nothing to the proposed hotel.

The Extraordinary Census.

Census Enumerator (to individual with luxuriant whiskers)—What is your sex?

Individual (indignantly)—You'd take me for a man, wouldn't you?

Census Enumerator—Answer the question. You might be the bearded woman from the Dime Museum, for all I know.

Census Enumerator (to Miss Elder)—What is your age?

Miss Elder—I was born in '70.

Census Enumerator—1770 or 1870?

Census Enumerator (to Chicago woman)—Married, mum?

Chicago Woman—Yes.

Census Enumerator—How many times have you been divorced since June, 1889?—N. Y. Sun

FLASHES.

Going the rounds—the enumerators.

A question of business—taking the census.

Women who don't fancy work, do fancy work.

A fellow gets awfully tired hunting for happiness.

A barrel is like a man, when it gets full it is bunged up.

The greatest bore is the man who knows it all and wants to tell it.

The fellow who is fond of his ante, usually has to call on his uncle.

You can please a woman any time by telling her she has a devilish twinkle in her eye.

The anarchist don't care who makes the laws, all he wants is to break them, and drink beer.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Gillette's great military drama Held by the Enemy, will be given at the Metropolitan, June 24th and 25th.

On June 27 and 28, W. A. Brady will present After Dark. Bobby Gaylor is in the company.

June 30th and July 1 and 2, Wilson Barrett, the great English actor, will produce three of his plays.

The Senator delighted packed houses for two nights this week. We can only reiterate what we have heretofore said, that this is one of the greatest American dramas.

What is there in the player's art
Should close the fount of love?
He who on earth acts well his part
May hope a seat above.

My Shingle.

[Irving Browne, in Albany Law Journal.]

My shingle is battered and old,
No longer decipered with ease,
So I've taken it in from the cold,
And fastened it upon a frieze.

A long generation ago,
With feelings of singular pride,
I regarded its glittering show,
And pointed it out to my bride.

Companions of youth have grown few;
Its loves and aversions are faint;
No spirit to make friends anew,
An old enemy seems like a saint.

My clients have paid the last fee
For passage in Charon's sad boat;
Imposing no duty on me,
Save to utter this querulous note.

And still, as I toil in life's mills,
In loneliness growing profound,
To attend on the proof of their wills,
And swear that their wits were sound.

So I work with the scissors and pen;
And to show of old courage a spark,
I must utter a jest now and then,
Like the whistling of boy in the dark.

I tack my old friends on the wall,
So that infantile grandson of mine
May not think, when my life they recall,
That I died without making a sign.

When at court on the great Judgment Day,
With penitent suitors I mingle,
May my guilt be washed cleanly away,
Like that on my faded old shingle.

SHORT BITS.

Don't lean too heavily on the sidewalks.

"Mud throwing" was indulged in to an alarming extent at the fire on Thursday night.

Take the dust out of the fire-plugs and blow the smoke out of the water works whistle.

The History Company don't appear to have caught any of Sacramento's Crown Builders.

Sacramento will eclipse all her previous efforts in celebrating the "glorious Fourth" this year.

The Bee keeps a-shouting and persistently insists that Sacramento stands in need of a first-class tavern.

Judged from the preparations being made by the Sons of Veterans, their moonlight excursion down the river on the 2d of July will prove a most enjoyable affair.

The Republican State Convention will be the largest deliberative body that ever assembled in this city, and the people of Sacramento will make it one long to be remembered by the delegates and the visitors from abroad.

The Weather.

The highest and lowest Signal Service temperature during the past week was 94° and 49°, with fresh southerly winds and a cloudless sky, while the highest and lowest for the same time last year was 94° and 52°, with clear skies and southerly winds.

Bunker Hill Day.

Few among us now know that the battle of Bunker Hill between the British and American forces on June 17, 1775, is being annually commemorated in this city. It grew from this circumstance: Five years ago W. B. Davis invited John Talbot, Dr. W. W. Light, E. Lyon and Mr. Lefaver to his home for dinner on the afternoon of that day, it being the anniversary of the birthday of Mr. Talbot. The following year Mr. Talbot invited those named with W. B. Miller, W. R. Jones and W. E. Gerber to meet with him at dinner at the French restaurant, and it was then agreed that the parties should meet annually on the anniversary day, in a similar social gathering. At the second meeting the seal was knocked from a demijohn of fine sherry wine, and each of the party drank a glass of its contents. It was then sealed up, to be reopened at the following anniversary, and that ceremony has been continued since, and will be, with the understanding that the last who survives will own the remainder of the wine. Mr. Lefaver has died. We cannot guess who will be entitled to the balance of that wine. It may be possible that Dr. Light and the depleted demijohn will be the last to celebrate our local anniversary of this famous battle.

Disastrous Fire.

The fire Thursday night that swept out of existence one of the J street stores, ruined its proprietors—enterprising and valuable citizens—and threatened to wipe out a prominent business block, is a matter to be very much deplored. Had it been the result of circumstances that could not have been controlled, it would have been bad enough, but this is an aggravated instance of the results that are directly due to the gross mismanagement of our municipal affairs. Here were faithful firemen unable to work because they could not get any water, and the flames did their destructive work before their eyes, while they were powerless to check. We do not know of the capacity of the Chief Engineer of the waterworks, but we do know that last April an engineer of years of experience, of acknowledged ability, and whose management of the works had been satisfactory, was displaced solely that the Trustees could be enabled to fill the city offices with men suggested by the lower grade politicians of the city. The citizens of Sacramento are reaping the result of their own folly in permitting the unscrupulous politicians to dictate the nominations and elections. The only interest these men have is to make places for themselves or their friends. The question of competency is not considered, nor do they regard if disasters may come. It is apparent that unless some changes are made we will meet further heavy losses by fire.

Names of Women.

Fashions in men's names change somewhat, but not as women's. John, Charles, George, and William reign in 1890 as they did in 1790. But the fashion in women's names changes every ten or fifteen years. It is possible that the sociological New Zealander will find that the feminine key-names of this century, so to speak, are about as many in number as the decades. Just what was the favorite woman's name at the very opening of the century is hard to guess off-hand, but the listener may venture to say that the Nancy epoch was about the first worthy of the word in the century.

Among the octogenarian ladies of the listener's acquaintance the name of Nancy seems to have a very prominent place. Further on down the century came the fashion of double names—possibly an old fashion revived—and we find Martha Anns, Mary Janes, and Ann Elizas in nearly every family. Perhaps this epoch would be best described as the Mary Jane epoch of our feminine nomenclature.

It is a little hard to locate these things in years, but the listener would say, at a guess, that the Lucy epoch began about the year 1835, and was closely followed by the Helen epoch, which left the name of the beautiful daughter of Leda scattered broadcast over the country. Somewhat after the reign of Helen came the most singular, unaccountable epoch of all—the Ella epoch. The use of the name of Ella goes back, as closely as the listener can locate it, to about the year 1850, though there may have been earlier examples. Where the name "Ella" came from is a mystery. The authorities put it down as a corruption of the name of Eleanor, which in its turn was corrupted from Helen.

It appears to have no recognized place either in history or fiction, though evidently it was borrowed from a fourth-rate popular novel. It is, at any rate, without meaning, without associations in the past, without any other reason for existence at its beginning, except that it pleased many people's fancy. Now it no doubt has a recognized existence, since beautiful and good women have borne it, and, like all other names that women ever bore, it is sanctified with that other name of mother. The real Ella epoch did not set in as early as 1850; probably it was at its height about the year 1860. People thought it so pretty! But it is sadly out of fashion now.

There was an Ida epoch that came in somewhere along there, probably just after the Ella epoch, though the two names ran pretty closely together. The name of Ida is a good and ancient one, though most of the people who took it up doubtless thought they had hit upon something quite new. Most of the Idas of the time of about 1860 were named for a character in a popular story or for one another. But following the Ella and Ida period there came another girl name which attained a most extraordinary rage—the Edith epoch, indeed, survives almost to the present day. Between 1865 and 1875 about half of the girl babies were christened Edith, and the crop is ripening fast now, as a matter of course.

Look at the High School catalogues and see how they bristle with Ediths. An ancient Saxon name, and a pretty one, disused for centuries and revived all at once—a happy revival if it had not been overdone. Then came the Maud-and-Mabel epoch; these names have to be hyphenated, because neither ever seemed able to stand up without the other. They were a great rage in their turn. The main crop of Mauds and Mabels will hardly mature before another five years, though the earliest sowings are ripe already. Since then we have the had Marjorie revival—an exceedingly pretty name that, and better and more English than either Maud or Mabel—and now we are threatened with a Gladys epoch.—Boston Transcript.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

New fruits are added to the list almost daily. Everything fresh and choice at our market, and prices always low. Telephone No. 153. Send orders to Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

The immense stock of E. Lyon & Co. is now being closed out. The values they are offering in dress goods, etc., is sure to disprove the balance of the stock very soon. It will pay you to call and see their prices. *

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers. *

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION

DOWN RIVER.

Wednesday, July 2d, 1890.

At 6:30 sharp, from Front and N streets. Steamer and barge side by side. Benefit

Stanford Camp, Sons of Veterans.

TICKETS, (Limited in Number,) $1.00

Can be subscribed for at the following places: A. Bonheim, at Weinstock, Lubin & Co's, Moynihan Bros. Confectionery, H. Bennett, Sacramento Bank, Hammer's Music Store, W. L. Matlock, at Osborn & Folger's, 501 I Street, Wm. H. Larkin, 309 J street, L. E. C. Jordan, at Baker & Hamilton's, or 1111 D st. Mrs. Bonheim, 1408 N street.

600 J Street, corner Sixth,

SACRAMENTO.

203 MONTGOMERY ST., SAN FRANCISCO

Rules for self-measurement and samples of Cloth sent Free for all orders.

JUST RECEIVED!

A New Line of Ladies' Muslin Underwear.

Ladies' Muslin Drawers, tucked, 25c, 40c, 50c.

Ladies' Muslin Drawers, trimmed with embroidery or lace, 55c, 75c, 85c, 90c, $1.00, $1.35, $1.50, according to style of trimming.

Ladies' Plain Chemise, corded neck and arm bands, 39c.

Ladies' Chemise, tucked and embroidery trimmed, 44c, 75c, 90c, $1.20, $1.35, $1.85 and upwards.

Ladies' Plain Gowns, tucked, embroidery trimmed, full length and nicely finished, 85c.

Ladies' Gowns, embroidery and lace trimmed, some tucked back and others pleated, all nicely finished and handsomely trimmed, at prices from $1.00 to $3.25 a garment.

Ladies' Muslin Skirts, tucked flounces, 68c, 75c, $1.00.

Ladies' Muslin Skirts, embroidery trimmed flounces, from $1.00 to $3.25.

W. I. ORTH,

630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

Until further notice we shall remain open evenings until 8 o'clock.

Fine Table Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the ECLIPSE CHAMPAGNE, 530 Washington St. SAN FRANCISCO.

FIREWORKS

AND

FLAGS!

Wholesale and Retail.

Country Orders Solicited.

NATHAN & DeYOUNG,

523 J STREET.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

DENTIST.

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

A Chinese Bride.

A writer in the North China Herald describes the dress worn by a Chinese lady at her wedding, of which he was a witness, as follows: "At length we were admitted to inspect the bride, whose four hours' toilet was just completed, and a marvellous spectacle truly was the figure, seated motionless in the center of the room. Gorgeously elaborate was her array from head to foot, the former crowned with a helmet-like erection of a material resembling turquoise enamel, wrought into the finest filagree work, from which projected glittering artificial beetles and butterflies, and other quaint, rich ornaments, the whole surmounted by three large, round tufts of crimson silk, arranged tiara wise. From the brim of this head gear fell all round strings of pearl and ruby beads, about half a yard in length. Just visible through these, at the back, were broad loops of jet-black hair, stiff and solid as polished ebony, and decorated with artificial pink roses. Her principal vestment was a long tunic, whose foundation fabric of crimson satin was scarcely discernible amid its embroidery of gold. A corner turned back, lined with emerald satin, revealed an underskirt paneled in brilliant red and blue silk; this, also, profusely trimmed with gold embroidery. A belt of scarlet satin, studded with tablets of white carnelian, crossed the waist behind. From the front edge of her headdress, a red silk veil fell almost to the ground, adding much to her preterhuman aspect."

Four Dozen Alarm Clocks.

A jeweler at St. Louis, Mo., outwitted his landlord in a rather unique manner. He desired to move, but was compelled to pay a full month's rent of $200, because he had not given the required thirty days' notice. He consulted a lawyer, but was assured that the claim could be collected. "I can use the store, can I not?" he asked. "Certainly," said the lawyer. His stock had nearly been moved to the new store, but the remaining occupant of the store, who was the landlord, was much surprised when the jeweller returned with a select assortment of four dozen cheap alarm clocks. These the owner set to suit himself, and then went out for a walk. When the alarm clocks began to ring, one after the other, the landlord was almost frantic with the noise, and hunted up the jeweler and tendered him his money in return, but the jeweller did not want to lose the price of his clocks, so he drove a sharp bargain, accepted $300, and moved out.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL
HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND
HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND
SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO
OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MAURICE TOOMEY, DECEASED.
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Justina A. C. Toomey, Administratrix of the estate of Maurice Toomey, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the administratrix, at the office of Taylor & Holl, No. 628 1/2 J street, Sacramento, Cal.
Dated, June 5, 1890.

JUSTINA A. C. TOOMEY
TAYLOR & HOLL, Administratrix.
Att'ys for Administratrix. j675.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARGARET FEE, DECEASED.—
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Henry Fee, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Fee, deceased, to the creditors of, and to all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Henry Fee, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628 1/2 J street, Sacramento, Cal.
Dated May 26, 1890.

HENRY FEE, Administrator.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m3175

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARY W. L. AIKEN, DECEASED.
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of the estate of Mary W. L. Aiken, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628 1/2 J street, Sacramento, Cal.
Dated May 26, 1890.

EDWARD F. AIKEN, Administrator.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m3175

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

Packers and Shippers of California
Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET.

San Francisco Office, 313 DAVIS ST. SACRAMENTO.

HOWE'S

High School and Normal Institute

SIXTH STREET, BET. J AND K,

SACRAMENTO.

Its course of instruction is thorough, and its methods of teaching systematic and original. Those who desire a thorough education, and especially those who expect to make teaching a profession, are cordially invited to examine for themselves its methods of instruction. Its doors are always open; there are no vacations.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of
all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing
of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets.
Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

BUFFALO
BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates.
Give It a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. m17

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated.
One trial will convince you of the truth
of this statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED
DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST
MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh,
Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.
1002 J Street, Sacramento.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and
dealer in Saddles, Har-
ness, Robes, Collars,
Whips, Spurs, Brushes
Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties
a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

Short-Hand

ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

June 15, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at
SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6:30 A	Calistoga and Napa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7:30 P
11:00 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3:40 A
5:30 P	Denning, El Paso and East	6:45 P
7:30 P	Knights Landing	7:25 A
10:50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	8:45 A
8:00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	5:25 P
12:01 A	Central Atlantic Express	5:55 A
	Ogden and East
3:00 P	Oroville	10:30 A
3:00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10:30 A
10:40 A	Redding via Willows	4:00 P
4:00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10:40 P
6:10 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7:30 P
3:05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 A
6:30 A	San Francisco via Benicia	8:40 P
*10:00 A	San Francisco via Steamers	6:00 A
10:50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2:50 P
5:50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11:40 P
10:50 A	San Jose	2:50 P
5:30 P	Santa Barbara	8:45 A
6:30 A	Santa Rosa	11:40 A
3:05 P	Santa Rosa	7:30 P
8:15 A	Stockton and Galt	6:45 P
5:30 P	Stockton and Galt	8:45 A
8:00 P	Truckee and Reno	5:25 P
12:01 A	Truckee and Reno	5:55 A
12:05 P	Colfax	10:20 A
6:30 A	Vallejo	11:40 A
3:05 P	Vallejo	7:30 P
*7:00 A	Folsom and Placerville	*4:50 P
*5:00 P	Folsom	*9:00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday ex-
cepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

For Fine Carriages, Buggies, Carts, Spring

Wagons, Farm and Header Wagons,

buy the STUDEBAKER. They Always Lead.

KILGORE & CO.,

AGENTS,

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.
Headquarters for Fancy Crackers
610 J Street, Sacramento.
Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,

—And You Will Save Money.—

H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENSWARE, CIGARS,

TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.

1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,

Telephone 266.

SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET,

SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Open Valve A, pull off the hose, and water follows immediately.

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

JESSE SLAUGHTER,

Office, No. 1217 Fifth Street.

PLASTERING, WHITEWASHING, CLEANING OF CESSPOOLS, Etc.

Also, CITY SCAVENGER.

Burying of dead animals attended to at short notice.

Don't forget the number—1217 Fifth street, the old stand, where I have been for 25 years.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAAR.

S. E. Corner Third and J Streets.

Gents' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Boots, Shoes

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON.

First-class make. Apply

MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199.

Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento.

Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator. JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Attorneys for Administrator my10-5t

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice,

SACRAMENTO.

Josh Billings' Philosophy.

It is a good sign when praise makes a man behave better.

Proverbs are like arrows; the fly not only fast but straight.

Our wants, after all, make most of our happiness. When we have got all we want then comes fear lest we lose what we have got, and thus possession fails to be happiness.

Dangers are like a cold bath—very dangerous while you stand stripped on the bank, but often not only harmless, but invigorating, if you pitch into them.

Cunning is the dishonesty, and therefore the weakness of wisdom.

Wise men are like a watch—they have open countenances enough, but don't show their works in their face.

Love is a natural passion of the heart, while friendship is a necessary one; and all hearts, however much they love, reserve a sly corner for what they call friendship.

About the best that can be set on grate wealth is that it is the means of grace.

Young and Great.

Charles James Fox was in Parliament at 19. The great Cromwell left the University of Cambridge at 18.

John Bright never was at any school a day after he was 15 years of age.

Gladstone was in Parliament at 23, and at 24 was Lord of the Treasury.

Lord Bacon graduated at Cambridge when 16, and was called to the bar at 21.

Peel was in Parliament at 21, and Palmerston was Lord of the Admiralty at 23.

Henry Clay was in the Senate of the United States at 29, contrary to the Constitution.

John Hampton, after graduating at Oxford, was a student at law in the Inner Temple at 19.

Gustavus Adolphus ascended the throne at 16; before he was 34 he was one of the great rulers of Europe.

Judge Story was at Harvard at 15, in Congress at 29, and Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States at 32.

Conde conducted a memorable campaign at 17, and at 23 he, and Turenne also, were of the most illustrious men of the time.

Martin Luther had become legally distinguished at 24, and at 55 had reached the top-most round of his world-wide fame.

Washington was a distinguished Colonel in the army at 22, early in public affairs, commander of the forces at 43, and President at 57.

Webster was in College at 15, gave earnest of his great future before he was 25, and at 30 was the peer of the ablest man in Congress.

William H. Seward commenced the practice of law at 21, at 31 was President of a State Convention, and at 37 Governor of New York.

"Her grace of motion, and of look, the smooth The swimming majesty of step and tread, The symmetry of form and feature, set The soul aloft, even like delicious airs Of flute and harp."

For her matchless look of grace and motion, this regal beauty was indebted to perfect health, restored by the use of that unequalled, invigorating tonic and nerve, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which set in healthy action every function and gave purity and richness to the blood.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. Manufactured by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. PIERCE'S PELLETS

regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. They are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. One a Dose. Sold by druggists. 25 cents a vial.

Concerning Memory.

Memory is found in all healthy states of the brain, and consists of a revival in the mind of a past condition or act, says the New York Ledger. It is not enough that the original impression be renewed on the brain and comprehended; it must be registered, so as to produce a permanent modification of brain-structure or action; otherwise it passes from the mind and can only be vaguely recalled. A good memory depends on various considerations; one is healthy brain-structure, another is nutrition, and a third is training and culture. The young remember more easily than the old. Their brains are active, and there is an enormous amount of new, healthy blood coursing through them at a rapid rate, and nutrition is active. Fatigue is fatal to good memory—it is then that nutrition languishes; but rest restores a healthful condition, and then the power of memory comes back again. As old age comes on nutrition is less perfect, and the cells of the brain in which memory takes place become filled up with debris of decay, become yellow, and actually lose their organized structure, and are no longer capable of action.

The following story, from London Til-Bits, is said to be authentic: A certain Russian nobleman visiting Paris, was noticed to be constantly plunged in deep sadness. He wore on his finger a very remarkable ring, large enough for a bracelet, and which extended over his hand like a buckler for the ring finger. It was of a greenish color, and was traversed by red veins.

It attracted the attention of everybody, but no one was bold enough to interrogate the mysterious stranger, until one day a lady, meeting him in public, ventured to say:

"You wear a very handsome ring."

The Russian made a movement as though he would conceal his hand, but that feeling gave way to a desire to unburden himself.

"It is not a ring," he answered, "but a sepulchre!"

A shudder passed through the whole company.

"This jewel," he continued, "is my wife. I had the misfortune to lose her some years since in Russia. She was an Italian, and dreaded the icy bed which awaited her after this life. I carried her remains to Germany, where I was acquainted with a celebrated chemist, whom I directed to make of the body a solid substance which I could carry about with me. Eight days after he sent for me and showed me the empty coffin, amid a horrid collection of instruments and alambics. This jewel was lying on the table. He had, through means of some corrosive substance, reduced and compressed that which was my wife into this jewel, which shall never more leave me."

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER
CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.
M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET.

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER.

BAVARIA BIERBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors
and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN
Formerly of Agricultural Park.

H. WACHHORST

Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

—♦♦♦♦♦—

—♦♦—THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. —♦♦—WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg,

WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

A Card from John F. Cooper.

TO THE PUBLIC—A CAUTION—BEWARE OF IMITATIONS—ALSO BOGUS PIANOS BRANDED "Mathushek." It is a well known fact that all articles of good reputation are imitated by disappointed competitors, and offered by irresponsible parties as genuine. In the last few years several parties have stenciled the name Mathushek on worthless wood wrest plank pianos, cheaply made, thereby hoping to palm off a few pianos on the well earned reputation of THE MATHUSHEK PIANO MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, which firm incorporated with a large capital in 1866, and whose pianos are made strictly first-class in every respect, and so acknowledged by the best musicians everywhere. Among the many distinctive features of their pianos over any other piano bearing the same or similar name is the bushing of the tuning pins into a thick, solid iron wrest plank. Their pianos have been sold by me for the past twenty years. Respectfully, JOHN F. COOPER.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1890.

No. 19.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The correspondence between Hon. Grove L. Johnson, of this city, and Colis P. Huntington, the President of the Southern Pacific Company, so far as it has been made public, has attracted attention. It is, however, unfortunate that the letter Mr. Johnson wrote has not been printed, and we can only infer what its contents are and the motives which prompted its emanation. It would seem that Mr. Johnson has complained to the President of the company that gentlemen who are employed by the company in this city exercise their political privileges, and that the result has not fallen his way. Huntington is very fair in his letter, and if we understand what he means, hereafter men who render value received for their services, will be permitted to exercise their political rights, and the ending has come, that because a man works for the railroad company he is a subservient when it comes down to a primary or an election. We may be sceptical, but we have no faith in the political declarations of Mr. Huntington; it would be unjust to ask any intelligent man to believe he is sincere in the face of his own letters that were introduced in evidence in the Colton case. In them the prices that were paid and the influences that were brought to sway Congressmen and other officials were stated cold-bloodedly.

The Argonaut recently stated that a Helen of Troy was at the bottom of the hostility Huntington is displaying towards Senator Stanford. Of that we care nothing; yet it is apparent if Huntington can defeat Senator Stanford for reelection, he will do so. We are not aware of the true import of this Johnson-Huntington correspondence. It has been said by some it means that Huntington has determined to attack the Senator in his old home, and that he has chosen Mr. Johnson as his political factotum. We believe, however, while Mr. Johnson has had a life checkered with political mistakes, he has sense enough to know that the people of this county respect Senator Stanford, while they despise Huntington.

It would seem that of all men in this county, Mr. Johnson should be the last to complain of railroad interference in politics. If there is any individual here who has been favored from that quarter, he is that man. Let us recur to the campaign of 1882. Mr. Johnson was then a candidate for the office of State Senator. The entire power of the railroad company was given him. A caucus was held at the Court House, of the the Republicans of the third ward. It was packed in his interest, and the record will show he took an active part in it and in the primary manipulation. He personally superintended its action and the minority were crushed. His nomination was forced upon the party in the convention which followed. A few days before the election some $15,000 was distributed here to be used in his interest. The public press supported him to a unit. He suffered defeat. This is a striking example of what comes from forced nominations. Now it seems that Mr. Johnson is complaining of the very medicine that he was willing should be dealt out to others when he would receive the benefit.

Particularly what the animus is of the present complaint we know not, unless it be that he was defeated at the third ward caucus and primary last spring. He was a candidate for chairman of that caucus, and while another gentleman had been nominated against him, took the chair upon a vote that was put something in this wise: "Those in favor of Mr. Johnson say aye." The name of his competitor was not mentioned in the motion. The result was, it developed that a majority of those assembled were against him, and his party retired and acted independently. At the primary his ticket was defeated. Is it possible that a gentleman of dignity, of his acknowledged ability, and who has filled the distinguished offices of Assemblyman and Senator, should, after a petty ward squabble, in which he had been fairly beaten, act the part of a schoolboy, and run to the teacher and say: "Oh! Mr. Huntington, I played with those other bad boys, and they won all my marbles!"

The position of Mr. Johnson is extremely unfortunate. The people have a right to assume the contents of his unpublished letter most strongly against him, for, without disrespect, it must be taken that where a gentleman writes concerning others, with the idea it will never reach the public eye or the eye of those who are attacked, a long bow will be drawn. In justice to himself, Mr. Johnson should give this letter publicity; he certainly should have the courage to permit those he has accused to know what he has said, and again the members of the Republican party of this county are an intelligent class, and if opportunity be given them will judge if his premises are correct and his deductions right. Mr. Johnson is a candidate for Congress, and at one time stood an excellent opportunity of receiving the nomination, but the two errors he made in actively participating in a ward caucus and in writing this covert letter have certainly injured him very much, if not destroyed his chances. We have never been able to understand how the gentleman expects to succeed in his political ambitions by continually and unnecessarily antagonizing people, and it would seem if there is a hole in the political sidewalk, Mr. Johnson will inevitably plunge his foot into it. The attitude of this present matter perhaps places him in a false position, and certainly one from which he should relieve himself. So far, the result has been that there are some here who regard it as an attempt to abridge their political rights; others, as we have stated, regard it as the foundation for a blow at Senator Stanford. Let us have the letter that the people may judge. The position of this journal is very well understood. We favor the reelection of Senator Stanford, and are very free to say, that in his old home—Sacramento county—there should be no legislative vote returned against him. We believe that to be the sentiment of the people.

Concerning this election of 1882, we will not be understood as blaming Mr. Johnson for accepting the support he received; he would have been foolish had he declined it. Nor are we to be understood as criticising the railroad people for endeavoring to protect themselves. Political conventions had declared against them unjustly, and the Legislature of 1883, which was the outgrowth of that election, endeavored to pass acts, and resolutions to Congress, which would have resulted in the paralyzation of railroad enterprise in the State. That Legislature was composed largely of demagogues, and the result of its action was, that for two years railroad building ceased and general stagnation prevailed throughout the State. In 1884 the people came to a realization of their situation, elected a Legislature that favored progress; and since, there has been no time when it has been necessary that the carrying corporations should interfere in politics; it is not necessary now. Let those who are employed by the corporation have the full and unrestrained exercise of their franchise, the same as citizens employed in other capacities, and no fault will be found. But as sure as an attempt will be made to drive intelligent men, and to dictate their opinions, there will be the same disastrous results that closed the campaign of 1882. Of that campaign we could say more, in that we are entirely familiar with its details.

It seems to us there is an excellent opportunity for the authorities of this county to prosecute for blackmail, the parties concerned in the publication, in San Francisco, of scurrilous matter concerning a respected young lady of this community. We can appreciate the helplessness of one, and particularly a young lady, when subjected to attacks of this character, and in this instance admire the pluck she manifested in declining to furnish "hush money" to a San Francisco policeman. Had she shot him or any other of her traducers, she would have been entirely justified. This matter, however, concerns not herself alone, but the entire people. This sheet, the Illustrated World, has published several articles in the line of scandal concerning people in this city, and a few weeks ago all of the papers of one edition received here had an article cut out. We infer it was of a character that from motives of prudence the proprietor of the paper concluded it would be better it should not come into this community. We have no sympathy whatever for the blackmailer when he receives his punishment, be it inflicted by the bullet of the maligned or the ordinary process of the criminal Courts. The press of this city were aware of the publications that were being made in this San Francisco sheet, but from motives that will be readily appreciated, referred to them not until the exposure of the attempt to blackmail this young woman. As we say, we hope the Grand Jury will investigate this matter. The case against the policeman, it seems to us, is about as clear as evidence can make it, and its prosecution might involve the disreputable publisher.

The New York World, in answering a correspondent's question in relation to proposals to lady-loves by adoring swains, philosophizes in a happy manner. When a girl loves you she knows it, and she knows, too, that you love her. This is one of woman's gifts. She knows of the fellow's love because he shows it, and conceals her own because it is her desire to let him ask for it. She expects to be asked, and if she loves in return, will help the admiring lover make his declaration. This help will be in a clever manner, and leave you with the idea that the whole thing has been a great surprise to her. That is woman's way, and a most lovable way, besides. Among the ways of proposing, it is best always to be straight out. As suggested by "Josie Armstrong," in The Senator drama, strike right out from the shoulder. A true woman admires nothing in man more than courage and manliness. The little diffidence betrayed by the strong man only adds to her admiration, because she sees in him that courage which Wellington admired in the man who knew his danger, yet faced it in a heroic manner. A woman does not like a cowardly man, nor does she like a cold-blooded, bold man, who would make his proposal in the same manner he would barter the sale of a horse. A sensible girl does not admire set speeches in making this momentous declaration. Sincerity is what she wants, and most woman's tact tells her when a man is sincere. Women like to be told that they are loved. No girl was ever offended by an honest declaration of love. When you propose to a woman and are accepted, be careful never to find out you love any other woman as long as you live.

BRODERICK AND GWIN.

An Interesting Retrospect of a Noled Senatorial Contest—How Broderick was Tricked—Protests of His Friends.

The first Constitutional Convention of this State held its final session at Monterey, on Saturday, October 13, 1849. In the afternoon the members signed the Constitution they had prepared with so much care and ability. That instrument provided that it should be submitted to the people for their ratification or rejection at a general election to be held on Tuesday, the 13th day of November, then next. It also provided that at the same election there should be elected a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, members of the Legislature, and two members of Congress. It also provided that if the Constitution was ratified by the people, the Legislature should assemble at the seat of government on the 15th day of December, 1849. It was also provided that until the Legislature should divide the State into counties and senatorial and assembly districts, the apportionment of the two houses of the Legislature should be as follows: The districts of San Diego and Los Angeles, jointly, two Senators; the districts of Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo, jointly, one Senator; the districts of Monterey and San Jose, one Senator each; San Francisco, two Senators; Sonoma, one Senator; Sacramento, four Senators; San Joaquin, four Senators. Members of Assembly: San Diego, one; Los Angeles, two; Santa Barbara, two, San Luis Obispo, one; Monterey, two; San Jose, three; San Francisco, five; Sonoma, two; Sacramento, nine, San Joaquin, nine. The Constitution was duly ratified by the people, and the Legislature met and organized as provided for in the Constitution.

Some of the ablest men the politics of the State has ever developed were among its members. J. S. Bradford, one of the members from Sonoma, during the session, conceived the notion to secure the auto-biography of the members of both houses, written by themselves. He accordingly prepared blank paper in the form of a book and passed it around among the members, and most of them wrote such matters of their history as occurred to them. Some of them are very brief, others more extended, and the whole paper neatly bound is now in the possession of the Sacramento Society of California Pioneers. The entry therein by a man afterwards very prominent in the history of the politics of the State, and whose end was tragic, is as follows: "D. C. Broderick, Senator from San Francisco. Born in Washington City, D. C., Feb. 4, 1818; emigrated from Washington to New York city, March, 1824; left New York for California April 17, 1849." Wm. M. Gwin was not a member of that Legislature, but his position as a member of the convention which framed the Constitution, and as one of the commission selected to secure the admission of California to the Federal Union, placed him in the front rank of the politicians of the State. Both these men were of marked ability, members of the same party, and that party dominant in the State. The Democracy of the State were from the first divided on the slavery line. Gwin took (or was placed) in the lead of the Southern idea, and Broderick was well fitted to lead the ranks of freedom.

It is not our purpose to develop in this article the feature of the struggle between these two leaders for supremacy in the politics of the State. In the early history of the State the party in power in the Federal Government favored Gwin. The opposition to slavery north of the Mason and Dixon line had not yet developed into a political power, but it existed among the people, and Broderick was its representative in California. Gwin, as a statesman, had more experience than Broderick, and as a tactician was near his equal. On the floor of a political convention Broderick had no equal in the State. He had a powerful voice, was of commanding presence, and he always made the right motion at the right time. Those in sympathy with him felt perfectly safe in following his lead, and by his quickness and aptness in such matters he often plucked victory out of defeat for himself and friends.

The struggle for supremacy between these two forces, represented by these men, in 1854, 1855 and again in 1856, resulted in no election for Senator. In the election of 1856 for legislators for the session of 1857, the great question was, "Shall Broderick be the next United States Senator?" Election day came; the votes were canvassed, and the dominant party declared that question in the affirmative. From the day of the election it seemed determined, in advance of the session, that for the long term Broderick had secured a large majority of the legislators-elect. There was, it is true, a feeble effort made in the Democratic caucus which met January 7, 1857, to bring on the election of United States Senator for the short term first. This movement of the Gwin forces was defeated after a spirited debate by a test vote of 35 to 42. In the caucus Gwin retired from the contest for the long term. Before the caucus for the long term two men only were placed in nomination, and the vote resulted: Broderick, 42 votes; J. B. Weller, 34 votes. Then came an exciting struggle for the short term. The caucus adjourned to January 9th for a breathing spell, after two informal ballots. The candidates were Wm. M. Gwin, Milton S. Latham, Stephen J. Field, J. W. McCorkle and B. F. Washington. On the 9th of January the caucus balloted four times with no choice, and adjourned to the 10th, when five ballots were taken without choice, and the caucus adjourned to the 12th.

Living and noting these matters at this time, there can scarcely be any conception of the intense interest felt in these ballots; not only by those taking part, but by the whole people. The election proved that the slave power in California was on the wane.

The accumulated bitterness of years was directed against Broderick. It was not altogether personal. He stood in advance of the hosts of freedom, and the slave power had been unable to control his action or defeat his election. Opposition to him had become desperate, and this desperation had spent itself without avail; and now the time had come when that fountain of political power—the United States Senate—must listen to his voice, and he thenceforward for six years must influence the distribution of Federal offices in California. The question who shall be his colleague was now vital, and must be decided in that Democratic caucus. Broderick must necessarily have much to say in it. His friends were not those of a day. Many of them had stood shoulder to shoulder with him in many a hard fought political battle since 1850; and his will was as to many their rule of action. After the adjournment of the caucus on the 10th, to the 12th January, 1857, it became apparent that some one must secure the nomination for the short term at that session. Broderick had made no movement that could be traced. He had stood clearly aloof. On the morning of the 11th it was rumored that Broderick had determined to throw his influence to Gwin, and that he would secure the nomination at the caucus meeting on the 12th. This most of his friends doubted. Their antagonism had been extended and bitter. Their political differences were too wide apart, and their friends could not permanently fraternize. B. B. Redding at that time was State Printer, editor and proprietor of the Democratic State Journal, and he had been a staunch adherent of Broderick from the first. He was essentially anti-slavery, and hated the crack of the slave driver's political whip about his shoulders. He considered Gwin the embodiment of the slave power, and nothing could induce him to do aught to reinstate Gwin in the United States Senate.

In this state of affairs, on the afternoon of the 11th January, 1857, Redding, taking with him a member of the Assembly who had stood by Broderick in his contests, visited Broderick at his rooms in the Sazerac building on J, near Second street, to learn from his chief whether the rumors were true. Finding Broderick at home, after some commonplace remarks, the conversation was adroitly turned by Redding to the rumors which had become rife, and we give the substance of it; Redding's friend taking some part in it, but we give that side as coming from Redding:

Redding—"It is rumored on the streets that you have determined at the next meeting of the caucus to throw your influence for Gwin. How is this?"

Broderick—"Who told you this?"

Redding—"Nobody directly, but Gwin's friends seem jubilant, and certain of his election. I have talked with Gabe Hall, and he will neither affirm nor deny it, and the air is full of the rumor, and I came to you to know the truth."

Broderick—"Well, it is true."

Redding—"True; and this from your own lips? Oh, no; don't make us drink that bitter cup to its dregs. What does it all mean?"

Broderick—"It means just this: You know Latham. He cannot be relied on to do as he promises. In politics he is a very wretch. You can't bind him to keep faith with anybody, and in the United States Senate I should have to dig deep for the pipes he would lay to defeat me in my purposes. Field is not to be thought of for a moment. He never was and never can be a leader of men. He necessarily has some one, usually a money power, to lean on; he takes his directions from that power. I can't spend my time in ferreting out what that power is, and we can't harmonize. He is a man of great legal ability and a good servant, but not fit for the Senate. McCorkle I could support. His instincts are good, and naturally he is with us. But I have prospected this, and find I can't elect him, and Washington is more intensely chivalry than Gwin. I can trust the word of Gwin. What he promises he will perform, and I shall support him."

Redding—"What has he promised?"

Broderick—"Every thing I want. Within three weeks from the time of his election his friends will denounce him from one end of the State to the other. I have his letter now in my pocket, promising me that as to all appointments he will take no part, and allow me full control. In this way I can take care of my friends who have stood by me so long without reward."

Redding—"In this matter you are clearly wrong. If for no other reason you should not place your friends in this false position. Then the United States Senate is largely made up with friends of Gwin. He has an inside view of the situation, and even if you can trust the word of Gwin, the word only extends to his own acts and not to those of his friends, and I predict that with Gwin in the Senate, made up as it is of his friends, you will find your influence small, and we must fight our battles over again."

But Broderick was inflexible. His special friends voted for Gwin, and he was elected on the last ballot: Gwin 47, Latham 26, McCorkle 6.

The sequel to this contest with this result is noteworthy. The letter Broderick referred to was afterwards published and is as follows.

SACRAMENTO CITY, January 10, 1859.

DEAR SIR—I am likely to be the victim of the unparalleled treachery of those who have been placed in power through my aid and exertions. The most potential portion of the Federal patronage is in the hands of those who, by every principle that should govern men of honor, should be my supporters instead of enemies, and it is being used for my destruction. My participation in the distribution of this patronage has been the source of numberless slanders upon me that have fostered a prejudice in the public mind against me, and have created enmities that have been destructive to my happiness and peace of mind for a year. It has entailed untold evils upon me, and while in the Senate I will not recommend a single individual for appointment to office in this State. Provided I am elected, you shall have the exclusive control of this patronage, so far as I am concerned, and in its distribution I shall only ask that it may be used with magnanimity, and not for the advantage of those who have been our mutual enemies and unwearied in their exertions to destroy us. This determination is unalterable, and in making this declaration I do not expect you to support me for that reason or in any way to be governed by it; but as I have been betrayed by those who should have been my friends, I am in a measure powerless myself, and dependent on your magnanimity.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

WM. M. GWIN.

HON. D. C. BRODERICK.

[To be continued.]

NEWFOUNDLAND FISHERIES.

CONCLUDED.

The French, and they must get credit for it, are, as usual, logical in interpreting for themselves an exclusive right to both the lands and seas to which England granted them only concurrent rights. It is not, therefore, the colonists, as Carnarvon cynically states, who has made this difficulty with France by increasing, and multiplying, and filling the land that was only intended to be a desert. It was and is the Government and the diplomacy of the British Empire that made the difficulty, because they did not learn and understand the first elements and the due terms of jurisprudence. England will have yet to declare definitely that there is no "French shore;" and that there cannot be such, on an island that "belongs wholly to Great Britain." Newfoundland has declared this both by word and act long ago, and she means to abide by her declaration.

Let us now look at the practical interpretation the French have made of this treaty. They have, so far, debarred the colonists from utilizing all the western shore of their own island, from Cape Ray to Cape John, a line of four hundred miles, a coast swarming with fish and teeming with mineral wealth. To debar the use of this coast line to the British colonist, means to debar him the use of the lands that lie behind it. Of what avail are interior lands in an island, to a people who could have no access to the sea because its ramparts are held, without even being occupied, all along their extent, by a foreign and jealous intruder. As to St. Pierre and Miquelon, those islands are not only held and peopled by the French; but in spite of treaty conditions, they have built on the former a substantial town, with forts, jails, public institutions, churches, and schools. They have there a Commandant appointed by the French Government, police, magistrates, and all the panoply of established dominion.

So much as regards French claims to territory in the colony, which is the claim that lies at the bottom of all their efforts the cripple to fishing industry of the Newfoundlanders. The fisheries for the French are but a training and recruiting school for their navy; hence the bounty accorded by their government of sixty per cent on the value of every catch of fish; hence the fact that each year, as soon as the fishing season ends, the French fishermen and their families are conveyed, a la patrie, by government vessels, escorted by government war ships. Out of about 8,000 Frenchmen engaged in the fisheries from St. Pierre in summer, scarce 2,000 remain to winter on the island. All would return to France in winter were it not that the French government provides for the remaining of some, sufficient in number and official position to represent its rule and ascendancy in this British colony. Every Frenchman is paid there by the French Government—the Governor, the magistrates, the priests, the police, the fishermen themselves.

Compare this treatment of its subjects by France to the action of the "home" government of England towards the Newfoundlanders. The latter do not get such aid or protection from England as their French neighbors receive from France. They would scorn to ask or accept it. They are a self-sustaining people. Their country is not like those so-called French islands for the French fisherman—a training school, a place of exile or probation. It is their home, their patria. They bear its burthens, support its officials and its institutions, from the highest to the lowest, suffer its reverses and enjoy its prosperity. All that is in the island, and round about it, is theirs by every law of nature and of political right. The treaty of Utrecht, and the other treaties that supplemented it, make a contract with a foreign country, disposing of the future industries of a people (the Newfoundlanders) who had no political being at the time. Their future political existence was hampered in advance by a legislation to that effect made and intended. Nevertheless, in the fullness of time, this people presumed to be—they have reached a very sturdy and promising condition of political life. Must they, a young, hopeful, and energetic race, be doomed to extinction because a foolish old parchment, with foolish old writing upon it, lies hidden away somewhere in the archives that inclose so many other memorials of intentional blindness and blundering? Let the treaty of Utrecht be condemned, abolished, forgotten, or neglected if it stands in the way of a people's rightful liberties. The treaty never was a lawful document; because it presumed to dispose of what its signatures did not, and could not, possess, viz.: the future of a people, with their fulness and fruition thereof. Now, that people not only exists, but in senatus venit, it has a legislature, a political place of its own among the nations.

Thirty years ago "Responsible Government" or "Home Rule," was granted to Newfoundland. By the provisions of the grant the colony was fully and freely empowered, for all time, to legislate for itself; to dispose of its own internal and external revenues; to direct the channels, improve the resources, and arrange the tariffs of its own trade—in a word, to guide itself, support itself, and protect itself independently of any aid or interference from without. There was this sole proviso: that it should retain its territorial connections with the British Crown, and so legislate as not to impair the interests of the empire. England relieved herself of all the burthens of outward responsibility towards the colony; her troops were withdrawn. Her batteries were dismantled and allowed to crumble into decay. Every imperial establishment was uprooted, every official recalled. The sole relics of the crown-rule that remains are a Governor whom England appoints, but whom the colony salaries, and a brace or so of war vessels which England sends each summer to the Newfoundland seas to protect the fisheries.

The French fisheries on the Newfoundland Coast had been gradually declining for a number of years; but lately, by the operation of the bounty and the energy developed in this direction by the French Republic, they have increased enormously. The Newfoundlanders are being driven out of their best markets by French competition. From 1884 to 1886 the French increase in the capture and cure of fish has been from 20,000 to no less than 500,000 quintals and which has been a fair average catch since each year. This amount of fish going into the market with an immense bounty to sustain it affected the Newfoundland markets very much, as the French had already received a fair price before entering the market, as the following figures will show:

Description of Products.	Place of Destination.	Place and How Exported.	Amount of Bounty per 100 Kilos.
Dried codfish, production of French fisheries.	Colonies and French settlements of America, the Indies, W. and E. and W. Coast of Africa or other trans-Atlantic countries, provided there is a French Consul at the port of importation.	Direct from French fisheries or from bonded warehouses in France.	Twenty francs—equal to $3.84.
	Same colonies and French settlements, to same trans-Atlantic ports.	From French ports, without having been bonded.	Sixteen francs—equal to $3.08.
	Countries on Mediterranean coast, excepting Old Sardinian States, others excepting Algeria.	Direct from fisheries or French port.	Sixteen francs—equal to $3.08.
Cod roes from French fisheries.	Old Sardinian States or Algeria.	Direct from fisheries or French port.	Twelve francs—equal to $2.30.
	Imported into France by French vessels, being products of their fisheries.		Twenty francs—equal to $3.84.

Fifty francs, equal to $9.62, for each man forming the crew of fishing vessels (including the drying or curing of their fish), either on the Newfoundland Coast, St. Pierre, Miquelon, or on the Grand Bank of Newfoundland.

Fifty francs per man for the fisheries (without curing or drying), in the Island Seas.

Thirty francs, equal to $5.76, per man for the fisheries (without curing or drying), on the Grand Bank of Newfoundland.

Fifteen francs, equal to $2.88 per man for the fisheries on the Doggerbank. The bounty is payable only once for each campaign. The bounty is payable only on fish acknowledged fit for consumption as food at the ports of importation.

To counterbalance this protective bounty the now celebrated Bait Act was passed by the Newfoundland Legislature in the session of 1885-86 prohibiting the supply or sale of bait by Newfoundlanders to the French engaged in fishing on the banks or elsewhere around the coast. The English Government disallowed the Act, and it was reenacted by the unanimous vote of all parties in the Newfoundland Legislature, and the following address was sent to the English Government in 1887.

"Our fish are driven out of the European markets by the sixty per cent bounty-aided French fish. and in furnishing our rivals with bait we promote the evils which we have to contend with. The only course is to terminate the suicidal traffic. * * * * * Newfoundland declines to accept the view that France or any other foreign power has any status or consultative claim or control in the disposition of our property. Newfoundland acknowledges no authority but that of the Imperial Government, and the latter's rights of dominion are wisely limited by our constitutional powers, which secure for us the free exercise of our instructed intelligence in the management of our local affairs. Her Majesty's Government, in proposing that they should be the judges of the effects of our laws upon our local interests are not, the Legislature submits, in a position to discharge that duty with safety or advantage, and the Legislature cannot believe that any alleged difficulties will be allowed further to supersede the rights of this colony."

After some deliberation and talks of "international questions," etc., between England and France, the act went into operation in the season of 1888, as Newfoundland was firm in her stand.

Such being the description and history of the Bait Act, let us pursue the inquiry as to why it became an act, and to understand it clearly, it must be first understood that the shore fishery is practically in the hands of the Newfoundlanders. The shore line is the rendezvous of the smaller tribes of fish that constitute bait for the cod—the all-important fish of those waters and of the trade of the island.

Now, the cod fishing cannot be conducted without bait. The bait, as already explained, frequents the shores, and the shore fishermen (the Newfoundlanders) are those who have practical possession and command of it. It is their commodity; but the law, the Bait Act, will not permit them to make use of it as a private commodity, for private profit, at the expense of the well being of the whole colony. This would be, and has been, the exact result of the system of supplying bait to foreigners to be used for the extermination of the great fishing interests of the island. It has always seemed true that the only course for the colony to pursue is to act boldly within its constitutional rights, and let France and England dispute about the matter afterwards.

That the Bait Act is having the desired effect is beyond dispute. Take for instance Bay St. George, one of the baiting centers, in 1887, sixty-five French vessels were baited; 1888, fourteen called for bait; in 1889, only nine called. The trouble is over for this season in all probability, as the herring baiting season is about over, but the Newfoundlanders are determined to secure a modification of the treaty or a cessation of what they deem French aggressions, and have already made an emphatic protest against the French being permitted to fish for lobsters, on the ground that this was not contemplated in the treaty and does a great injury to the colony's interests, because they are not permitted to erect lobster factories under the modus vivendi.

The French are forcing matters to obtain the right to buy bait for the grand bank fisheries. This solution the Newfoundlanders would consider fair, provided the French government stops paying the bounty, and in this matter I feel sure the Newfoundland people will not give way, even in the face of a demand from the English government.

Newfoundland has also been charged with being unfair, in charging Canadian and American fishing vessels a license fee of $1 a trip besides the cost of bait, which is prohibitory or ruinous. The answer to this charge is: When the Newfoundland fishermen violated the Act they were punished by heavy fines, imprisonment and confiscation of their vessels, the Canadians and Americans escaped scot free until this season, but Newfoundland wishes to treat the Canadians and Americans in a friendly and not in an unfriendly spirit, and I believe such friendly policy will be reestablished as soon as the situation assumes its normal condition.

Newfoundland knows of course she cannot cope with the fleets of France. She knows also England will not quarrel with France for her sake. She does not desire she should. Of the two, however, the empire and the colony—the latter is least alarmed and least exercised about the issue of this dispute. The Newfoundlander stands, not on English or French, but on his own ground. His seas, with their tameless waves, are his protection. He alone knows their secret ways, their times and seasons, laws and caprices. Nestled on his sea-girt home like a sea-gull, he can swoop the waters, glorying in their tumult, when the stranger bird must fold its nerveless wing and cower for shelter.

France will not dare to provoke a contest on these coasts, even though sure of the unconcern of England. Newfoundland is not Madagascar or New Caledonia. France will never find an Africa or a Polynesia in any land or sea of North America. If England will not say, "hands off," let her leave the case to the Newfoundlander himself. He holds the vantage ground and he knows it.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Louise Abberna, a gifted French painter, ambitious for the ermine of Rosa Bonheur, wears male attire and has a grace of manner and speech that a Chesterfield might have inspired.

Richard Golden, who has been doing so well with Old Jed Prouty, is off the stage not a bit like the old Jed on the stage. Den Thompson is old Uncle Josh off the stage as well as on it, but no one who ever saw Dick Golden play Jed Prouty would imagine that the slim, thoughtful-looking young fellow to be met with on the streets was the quaint old character that one enjoys so much on the stage.

Mr. Lawrence Barrett announces that he is preparing for next year a dramatic surprise in the shape of a play founded upon the life and times of Thomas A. Becket, the Archbishop of Canterbury, who flourished in the time of Henry II. This shows the tendency of our dramatists to work backward in history. We expect to see yet a first-class drama founded upon the tragic taking off of Abel, at the hands of his brother Cain.

A newspaper man who called to inquire about Mme. Bernhardt's health, during her recent illness, was ushered directly to her bedroom, where she was surrounded by a dozen or more artists, authors, et al., who took turns at sitting in one favored chair close to the bedside. Bernhardt lived, which goes to prove what a wonderful constitution she has. But she is now worse, which scores one for medical science.

Italy has undoubtedly discovered a new musical genius. All the musical critics of Italy who have been present at the first four representations of the new opera Cavaleria Rusticana, agree on this point. The new opera is one of seventy-three presented in a competition promoted by the publisher, Sousogno, of Milan. The author—a young man of twenty-six years, of Leghorn, teaching music at a school in Sicily, with a salary of 100 francs (£4) per month—composed the whole opera in fifty days, as he only heard of the competition at the last moment. The structure is masterly and the melody is rich, flowing, purely Italian. The poor young author, a few days since an obscure name, is now the hero of the day. The press salutes in him the continuator of Rossini's and Verdi's genius.

Book Chat.

"Ouida" is said to have earned more money than any woman of the century, with the single exception of Adelina Patti.

The Dowager Empress of China employs an American physician. She must be a direct descendant of the wise Confucius.

The title of one of the toadstool novels of the day, "Can Love Sin?" would present a more healthful conundrum if reversed to read, "Can Sin Love?"

Did you ever meet a poet who had just been married? I am sorry for you if you have. He is more of a bore than the poet who has just published at his own expense his first volume. The poetical bridegroom may be harmless enough, like an Italian tenor, but if you happen to meet him in the moonlight over an after-dinner cigar, look out for meteoric showers. I ran against a well-known rhymster on his wedding tour not long ago. Did he talk of his bride? Not at all. He seemed to forget that he was under bonds to subdue his mentality to the plane of his better half. He talked of the future, and swore by some Greek god that he would astonish this materialistic age with his verse. He had an epic in mind that would render Dante and Milton back numbers. As I returned to my room I was amused to see a pitcher of beer going to his wife's apartment.—Journalist.

NOTES.

From the number of real estate sales of late and those advertised to take place hereafter, it would seem the boom in Sacramento has let loose to take a better hold. Grip tight next time.

Hogg and Cook are the two Democrats seeking the gubernatorial nomination in Texas before the convention soon to meet in that State. It remains to be seen whether the Hogg will be Cooked or the Cook will be Hogged.

During the progress of a music jubilee at Jacksonville, Ill., a wind and thunder storm came up and leveled the big tent in which the jubilee was held. Probably the only persons who sat calmly through the storm were the Wagner enthusiasts, who imagined that the lifting of the roof was a part of the " motive."

The man who blows out the gas has a rival. He recently stopped over night at a Michigan hotel, and the smell of burning cloth prompted a search for him. After rapping up several guests, this man finally peered out of the darkness of his room and confessed that he had tied a towel around the electric light, and it had scorched it. "I tried to blow it out," he said, "but it wouldn't go out."

One of the terrible results of the blackmailing schemes of the self-styled detectives was shown in the case of the Gonet girl in this city, a few days ago. The wretch who concocted and sought to carry out his unlawful scheme of extorting hush money from the young woman deserves a severer fate than a striped suit and a home behind the prison bars. The world is full of the scoundrels who thrive off the proceeds of their unholy calling.

It now transpires that the woman who was particeps criminis in the Eyraud murder case, was hypnotized. This wonderful and dangerous power is being slowly developed. Women should not use it. The practice of submitting the nervous system and mentality to the control of this power, destroys the responsibility of the individual. It weakens the health, destroys mental powers, and has the final tendency to ruin morals.

The most potent and most perfect remedy for sleeplessness is to drink hot water. If one awakes in the night, as hopelessly wide awake as if galvanized or electrified with vital activity, an invariable remedy is a glass of perfectly hot—not warm—water. It can be heated over the gas, or over a spirit lamp, and sipped while almost at boiling heat, and one who tries it will find himself going off to sleep like an infant, and getting too, the most restful and peaceful sleep imaginable.

The hottest place on earth is that part of Persia that borders on the Persian Gulf. The maximum temperature is reached in July and August, when for forty consecutive days the thermometer registers not less than 100 degrees night or day. At Bahrin, a place in this section, wells are sunk from one hundred to five hundred feet before water is reached. In spite of all this, people live there. The water supply is drawn from submarine springs in the gulf. From these, water is got by divers, who, after plunging down through the brine, fill goatskin bottles at the fountains of fresh water.

A quarter of a million dollar hotel in a choice location—for example, about the Capitol. Elegant furniture and other appointments; first-class management, under the guidance of experienced, be-diamonded clerks and amiable bell-boys. Two years after it is finished: Autoneers' red flag at the door; furniture sold to second-hand dealers for one-sixteenth part of its original cost, and not enough to pay the back salaries of employees; building bought by some bank or rich corporation and rented for a lodging-house, to be thereafter ornamented with clothes lines running over the balconies, from which hang all varieties of wearing apparel, male and female, hung up to dry, a la St. George. Beware!

Mrs. Blattner, an aged widow lady, living alone in the suburbs of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Prussia, was murdered early in May of this year. A traveling tinker by the name of Newbrad was arrested and charged with the crime, but as the evidence against him was wholly circumstantial, the case was dropped. Now comes the strange part of the story. Her relatives are very rich and offered an immense reward for the conviction of the murderer. Hearing of this, a Munich lawyer named Eberhardt, had the remains of the old woman disinterred, the eye taken out and a photograph of the retina made. The picture of the old woman's last sight on earth was strikingly clear. It was a picture of Newbrad holding a dagger in one hand and a hatchet in the other. He has gone to sea as a sailor, but will be arrested and tried for the crime.

Fred. Gebhardt has just been sued by a barber in New York for a bill contracted for shaving, shampooing, hair dressing, and making him generally a sweet-scented thing for Langtry's delectation and caresses. Fred. has been a smooth shaver ever since he met her.

Even the Oxford student can act the hoodlum to perfection when called on to show the animal nature in him, as witness the disgraceful scenes enacted at that famous university last Wednesday, on the occasion of Henry M. Stanley's visit by invitation of the authorities. The students, by their conduct, rivalled a mob of San Francisco hoodlums at a Sunday picnic.

So Chris. Buckley is in New York, and is accredited with laying the foundation for Gov. Hill's nomination for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket; that he is to send a Hill delegation from California to the National convention. Well, Buckley has done many things for Democracy, but in this case he may promise the goods without being able to deliver them. There are those in his party who wish he would remain in New York, and induce others to accompany him and also reside there. Then there might be less corruption in politics here and more of it there, another Fassett investigating committee, conviction, and penitentiary.

The proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle threw his new office open to the inspection of the public, recently, and the building was formally dedicated. It is one of the most commodious and best equipped newspaper establishments in the world, and is a significant monument of the success of the paper. The journal grew from a very small beginning. The DeYongs formerly lived in this city, and when boys sold newspapers on the streets here. In the winter of 1864 they began the publication here of a small gratuitous daily called the Dramatic Chronicle. Some nine months later they removed to San Francisco, and for some years published it there under the same name. About 1869 it was enlarged and issued as the Daily San Francisco Chronicle, and as the business grew, it was from time to time improved, until it has reached its present mammoth proportions and extensive circulation and influence.

With all the sensational clamor about enumerators neglecting their duties in the city of Sacramento, the actual facts are that only sixty-seven persons were omitted by enumerators, and in these cases it was the fault of the individuals. In some instances the heads of families failed to give correct returns, and in others, the individuals moved from one place to another, thus eluding the calls of the enumerator. Sixty-seven names are the sum total of corrections made at headquarters. When the cry was first raised that there were omissions, it came from people who had not been visited for the reason the enumerator had not reached that particular locality. This was the case on the row of blocks on P street between 14th and 19th. Also on blocks between Front and Fourth, south of R street. In those districts enumeration was slow, but at no time was there ever an intention to close enumeration until all would be complete. The enumeration of Sacramento city has been thorough and accurate. Much credit is due to the self-sacrificing labors of the poorly paid enumerators. We speak from actual knowledge of the situation. The approximate population of this city is about 26,500.

An enterprising wine grower of Napa county offers to erect a wine fountain at Chicago and maintaining it during the continuance of the World's Fair, if space enough is granted him by the managers. He promises to supply the fountain with a different kind of wine each week. This is a laudable enterprise as it will not only tend to give him a personal notoriety as a wine maker, but will have the effect of throwing California to the front as among the greatest of vine growing countries in the universe, and introduce her as such to the nations of the earth. Nor is the idea chimerical as at first thought it might appear. Fountains are made to play colored and perfumed waters and their prismatic effect is wonderful to behold. Then what is to prevent the construction of a huge reservoir for sufficient wine to operate the fountain? Nothing. But what are Sacramento city and county to do to be represented at the great gathering of the universal brotherhood of mankind? Will we lie idly as we ever do and be walked over by other people of the State on their march with their exhibits to the Fair? It will not do to say that there is time enough to act as the date fixed is distant. It is not too soon for other places to begin work, and certainly the past of our career in other enterprises does not furnish evidence of our superior qualifications to manage the duties that must devolve on us if we are to be present at Chicago. Already San Francisco has incorporated a World's Fair Association with her Mayor and other distinguished citizens at its head. If this city and county do not present a decent exhibit, commensurate with their resources, the fault will be theirs, and such dereliction will deserve the lasting imprecation of all the community. So after the proper celebration of the approaching National holiday, let us bend every energy, strain every nerve and devote all intelligence to a most thorough organization of the Capital city and county as if they were to be the only part of the State to make an exhibit at Chicago, for all other places will take care of themselves, as their pride is already enlisted and they will not allow trifles to obstruct their progress.

OLD ROGER WILLIAMS.

The Quaint City of Providence that he Founded—An Interesting Sketch from the Pen of a Sacramento Lady.

[Written for THEMIS.]

The tiny bit of United States called Rhode Island, is the only State of all the forty-two proud sisters that boasts of two capital cities. They are of great historical interest to strangers, and very dear to the hearts of Rhode Islanders. Providence, particularly, is full of historical memories, and it is of that city we now give a sketch. To begin with a description: In the first place it is beautifully situated. Built on hilly land, there are fine views to be had of the country from the hill-tops; and it is built on either side of Providence river. This place is verily Roger Williams' city. He named it Providence, and dedicated it to the Creator; for in his dream, as history tells us, a prophet came to him and told him there were more things in Providence than he knew. He dreamed, also, that an Indian, wrapped in bear skin, came to him and said: "Where you hear the word 'what cheer?' there must you settle." We all have studied in history, of how the Massachusetts Bay colony banished Roger Williams from Salem, and how he fled to the Seckonk river, but settling on the wrong bank was ordered to move, and he went across to the other side and into other territory, and thus founded Rhode Island. All this is purely historical, but is sort of an explanatory preface to this sketch, for the city is so identified with its founder it would be impossible to write of Providence and omit a page or two of his history. In Providence is Brown University, founded by Williams in the latter part of the seventeenth century. In the museum belonging to the college are any number of real curiosities. Legendary history has it, that dwellers in the vicinity of Roger Williams' grave ate up the venerable old man by devouring the fruit of an apple tree that grew over the grave, and the roots of which absorbed the body of Rhode Island's founder and grew into the shape of a man. The apple tree root is certainly a curio. It is just as much like a skeleton as it is like the root of a tree. It grew round the body, and when it came to the feet, turned up and grew into the shape of feet. The arms, also, took the human form, and this strange root ceased to grow after it had absorbed all there was of the remains of the author of soul liberty. In the cabinet is also a lock of hair—all that remained of the body of Roger Williams' wife. There is a case containing the coffin nails, and they are all broken and rusty. The little lock of braided hair is only two or three inches long, and is very carefully fastened to a small slip of white paper. Besides these relics, and any amount of curiosities in the shape of birds, animals, and minerals, is a palanquin that was in use in the last Japanese dynasty, and was stolen from the emperor by the rebels, who sold it to an American captain for $300. It is the only one of the kind in existence, is an extremely handsome one, and bears the chrysanthemum, the emblematical flower of the East. This palanquin was discovered in an auction house in Philadelphia, and was presented to Brown University by a friend of Professor Jenks, the curator, on condition that it is never to leave the university. This college is to be free always to the heirs and descendants of Roger Williams. The old buildings are quaint in architecture, and the new ones of plain, red brick. There are, perhaps, a dozen of these college buildings, and all of them are more or less interesting. From the university tract out to the Roger Williams park is a very pleasant drive. The park is a tract of land bequeathed to the city of Providence by Betsy Williams. It was originally the old Williams plantation, and in one corner is a little, old burying ground, such as each farm possessed in early days. This little plot of land is full of graves, marked by little, old-fashioned headstones. In one corner is a large and handsome monument to the memory of the great ancestor. Upon this monument is inscribed the following:

Erected
In accordance with the will of Miss Betsy Williams,
Who bequeathed to the City of Providence
The adjoining park, part of the original gift of Miantonomi to Roger Williams.

Wandering along the walk you come to the small old house of Betsy Williams, a little low structure, almost two hundred years old. Winding around the pathway the old well comes into view, and the little round bucket and the moss recalled to mind the old and familiar song—

How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood,
When fond recollections presents them to view—
The orchard, the meadow, the deep, tangled wild-wood,
And every loved spot which my infancy knew;
The wide-spreading pond, and the mill which stood by it;
The bridge and the rock where the cataract fell:
The cot of my father, the dairy-house high fit,
And e'en the rude bucket which hung in the well.

In June last the people of the Baptist Church celebrated the 250th anniversary of the founding of Rhode Island. The old church was built over two centuries ago, and has been constantly added to and repaired ever since. The Providence Court House is a very elegant building; so, also, is the City Hall. The Atheneum is a little low stone building, and antique in appearance. It is used as a library, and books can only be taken therefrom by people who pay large taxes; hence many are excluded from perusing the volumes therein contained. The building is, however, open to the public, for the purpose of gazing upon a few relics. The Capitol Building is old and antiquated. Here the solons meet to make the laws. The Governor is inaugurated at Newport in May, and the Legislature meets in Providence in January. There are ten or eleven public parks in Providence, and one, which was a part of the Dexter estate, came very nearly reverting to the heirs of the donor. The park was given to the city with the proviso that once a year the military should tramp across it. Last year it was forgotten until the very end of the term, and in short order a few recruits were gotten together and told to run across the square and save the land for the city. Through New England there are several companies of soldiers who wear the Continental costume—it is very effective, and pretty withal.

The Providence people are great ones for attending what they call shore dinners. All along the river and on Narraganset Bay are places where clam-bakes hold the fort. At these shore dinners there is never anything except fish and boiled vegetables. The bill of fare includes shell fish of all varieties, and cooked in various ways—clam chowder, clams roasted in seaweed, clam fritters, boiled lobster—fish of some sort every day, boiled corn, and so on through the fishy bill of fare. If one thing tastes better than another, there is no limit put upon you; all you want is there, and you are welcome to it.

The city of Providence, while being so full of old historical things and memories, is also a very lovely city of modern times. There are any number of good car lines, and many beautiful buildings and residence streets. As time goes on, the memory of Roger Williams seems more sacred, and memorials of all kinds rise to do honor to his good old name.

FLASHES.

Census jokes will soon become senseless. Most of them were senseless at the start.

Census enumerators have all foresworn drinking beer, because it is too much like Porter. See?

It is about time to do some "resolootin"—and make great local improvements—on paper—through the papers.

The Weather.

The highest and lowest Signal Service temperature during the past week was 84° and 52°, with northerly winds generally prevailing and skies cloudless. The highest and lowest for the same time last year was 96° and 53°. There was .25 of an inch of rain one year ago yesterday (Friday), when the highest temperature was but 65°.

From Sig. S. Martinez, Concert Piano Soloist.

MR. JOHN D. COOPER.

Dear Sir—I can most cheerfully testify to the excellence of your style H solid iron frame Mathushek Co. Piano (of New Haven, Conn.). Its tone and action I have never seen excelled in any upright piano. I so expressed myself to Miss Mary E. Barnard at her grand concert, before I saw you. If your uprights are so fine, what must the grands be? Yours, truly,

S. MARTINEZ, Pianist.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

Mr. Barrett has been discussed more than any modern actor on account of his original and novel conception of Hamlet, so at variance with all other artists. We shall see him and judge for ourselves.

After Dark was given last night at the Clunie Opera House, to a good house, by a clever company. The play is purely of the sensational order, and is of a kind to please a certain class of theater goers.

Wilson Barrett, the noted English actor, will present Hamlet, at the Metropolitan, on Monday night, The Silver King, Tuesday, and an extensive bill comprising Color Sergeant, A Clerical Error and Chatterton, on Wednesday evening.

Mme. Judie's salary in Paris is $200 a night, playing seven nights a week, and $125 for every matinee performance, the management finding her a private dressing-room and a dresser. Her engagement always stipulates with Parisian managers that every new piece she plays in must be kept in the bills for sixty nights, whether it is a failure or not. Her benefit terms are a clear half receipts of the house.

The Madison Square Theater Company, which has left New York city on its western tour, includes twenty-nine people, and will have a special Pullman coach and a dining car. The first engagement commenced June 23d, at Tacoma. Other cities visited will be Seattle, Portland and San Francisco, where the company will stay for five weeks. In some of these places there have already been large advance sale of seats.

W. H. Crane, while presenting The Senator in San Francisco, wrote to a friend in New York: "Californians seem to think they know a little more than anybody else. They do not want to know anything about New York or the East. They think California is the greatest State in the world, and that they know more than anybody can tell them, no matter where they come from. I wish that all first-class attractions could stay away from here about one year. Let them have something cheap and not very good, and perhaps they would appreciate other things better."

SHORT BITS.

A new daily paper is what is wanted in Sacramento.

"Meet me by moonlight alone" on the Sons of Veterans' excursion, July 2d.

"Thirty Years Ago," as published in last Sunday's Union, we read that L. C. Chandler had a narrow escape from drowning. How unfortunate!

The Bee seems determined to build a new hotel in Sacramento. Stay with it, neighbor, and remember that your efforts to put up an Exposition Building was crowned with success.

"Let the citizens give me the Plaza, and I'll put up a $150,000 hotel, and do the managing myself."—B. U. Steinman, in the Bee. Ben might have the Capitol Park for the asking of it.

"Bonneting."

Crime has coined a new word. Twenty-five years ago garroting in New York was fashionable with highwaymen, until Recorder John T. Hoffman stamped it out and took a long step toward the Governorship, by sentencing a garroter to State prison for forty years. Now, bonneting is the word and the fashion. At 1 o'clock on Sunday morning a thief bonneted a pedestrian on the Bowery by throwing his vest over his head, and then after snatching his gold watch, ran away. The thief was caught, the watch found, the man indicted, put on trial and convicted, and on Thursday—four days after perpetrating the crime—he was sentenced by Judge Martine to Sing Sing Prison for ten years and eleven months. Quick work, but just, and was a surprise to the highwayman; but a little more of it would make our streets considerably safer.

"Money-makers" in the Country.

"Come out and see my money-makers," said a lady living in the country, the other day, to a lady from the city who was visiting her. "These," she said, as they came to a large and well-appointed hen-house, "are my 'church hens'; all that I make out of them above expenses is devoted to religious objects. The geese you see down there on the pond are my 'poor and needy geese.' They cost little or nothing, and the profits are applied to the poor and needy. Away down beyond that wood I keep a drove of hogs—'dress hogs,' I call them, because I buy my dresses, frocks, you say, I suppose, out of what I make from them. Those Alderney cows are my 'theater and opera cows.' I saw four Wagner operas out of the profits of one of them last winter. You see that bed of strawberries? Well, we don't call them strawberries, but 'shoeberries,' for I buy all the children's shoes and my own, too, out of the income I get from them. These, and many other little money-making schemes, I manage myself without troubling my husband, who works very hard in the city for a small salary. Consequently, we have a great many luxuries that we couldn't otherwise have; and I thoroughly enjoy the work, too."—N. Y. Tribune.

Get the new waltz song, "When the Pretty Blue Birds Sing," just received; it is all the rage. Only 10 cents a copy at Cooper's music store, No. 631 J st., Sacramento, Cal. *

New fruits are added to the list almost daily. Everything fresh and choice at our market, and prices always low. Telephone No. 188. Send orders to Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street. *

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos. *

The immense stock of E. Lyon & Co. is now being closed out. The values they are offering in dress goods, etc., is sure to dispose of the balance of the stock very soon. It will pay you to call and see their prices. *

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers. *

BOOMING! BOOMING!

JULY 4th, 1890.

HORRIBLES!

OVER $350 GIVEN AWAY IN CASH PRIZES.

Best Dressed Band of ten or more in Uniform, furnishing good music.....	$75 00
Best Burlesque Band of ten or more, with professional leader.....	50 00
Best representation of a Minstrel Troupe.....	10 00
Best Group in Line of Eight or more.....	25 00
Second Best Group in Line of four or more.....	20 00
Third Best Group in Line of three or more.....	8 00
Best Float in Line.....	30 00
Second Best Float in Line.....	20 00
Most Comical Character, representing a Circus.....	15 00
Best Vocal Character.....	8 00
Best Sustained Character.....	8 00
Best Original Character.....	8 00
Most Comical Character on a Mule or Donkey.....	6 00
Most Comical Character in a Gig or Cart.....	8 00
Best String Band of four or more.....	8 00
Best Representation of any Business firm in town.....	12 00
Best Drum Corps of four or more.....	8 00
Most Comical Characters of two or more, with music.....	9 00
Best Representation of Sullivan and Jackson.....	15 00
Two Most Comical Characters, on foot.....	9 00

ONE HUNDRED COMIC MASKS and COSTUMES furnished free at Headquarters, 10th and K sts.

FIREWORKS

AND

FLAGS!

Wholesale and Retail.

Country Orders Solicited.

NATHAN & DeYOUNG,
523 J STREET.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF ISAAC HALL, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned Administratrix of the Estate of Isaac Hall, Deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to said Administratrix, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento City, Cal.
Dated, June 27th, 1890.

FRANCES M. HALL, Administratrix.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'y's for Administratrix.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MATTHEW HODGE, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned Executors of the Estate of Matthew Hodge, Deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the Executors, at the office of Taylor & Holl, No. 628½ J street, Sacramento City, Cal.
Dated, June 27th, 1890.

JAMES O'BRIEN, TERRY McCABE, Executors.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'y's for Executors.

1776 1890

4th of July

PROGRAMME.

The day will be announced at sunrise by a salute of thirteen guns. Salute will be repeated at noon and at sunset, under the supervision of Capt. J. Cook.

The Parade. The Grand Marshal, Marshals and Aids will meet at the Capital Hotel, at 9 A. M. sharp. Procession will form and move promptly at 10 o'clock A. M.

Formation. Mounted Police, Warren F. Drew, Chief, will form on west side of Tenth street, right resting on J. Grand Marshal, Marshals and Aids will form on left of Police.

First Division will form on I street, right resting on Tenth, extending west.

Second Division will form on I street, right resting on Tenth, extending east.

Third Division will form on Tenth street, right resting on I, extending north.

ROUTE OF MARCH:

Down Tenth to M, M to Second, Second to K, K to Tenth, Tenth to J, J to Front, and counter-march to Tenth Street.

ORDER OF PROCESSION:

Advance of Police, WARREN F. DREW, Chief.
Grand Marshal, GEO. C. McMULLEN—Colors, Crimson and Gold.

Chief of Staff, WM. B. MILLER—Colors, Red and Gold.

Assistant Marshals—Colors, Gold.

LITERARY EXERCISES

Commencing immediately after the dismissal of the Parade at the Assembly Chamber.

ATHLETIC EXHIBITION

At the Clunie Opera House, at 2:30 P. M.

HORRIBLES

At 4:00 P. M.

FIREWORKS

Front of Capitol at 8:00 P. M.

Further particulars, with full list of Marshals and Aids will be published in Record Union and Bee.

GEO. C. McMULLEN, Grand Marshal.

WM. B. MILLER, Chief of Staff.

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON

First-class make. Apply

MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

FANCIES!

Black Silk Van Dyke Laces, in several widths and patterns, at 20c, 30c, 35c, 45c and 60c.

Tatting Lace Handkerchiefs, hand-made, with sheer lawn center; makes very pretty tidies, 50c.

Ladies' Sheer Linen Lawn ½-inch Hemstitched Handkerchiefs, 25c, 40c, 50c.

Gents' Black Silk Handkerchiefs, 2-inch hemstitched, 85c.

Ladies' Embroidery and Lace Setts (collars and cuffs) at 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75.

Sizes complete in Thompson's Ventilating Glove-fitting Corsets, a perfect Summer Corset, $1.00.

Illusion Veiling, new shades, 12½c per yard.

W. I. ORTH,
630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION

DOWN RIVER.

Wednesday, July 2d, 1890.

At 6:30 sharp, from Front and N streets. Steamer and barge side by side. Benefit

Stanford Camp, Sons of Veterans.

TICKETS, (Limited in Number,) $1.00

Can be subscribed for at the following places: A. Bonheim, at Weinstock, Lubin & Co's, Moyuiban Bros. Confectionery, H. Bennett, Sacramento Bank, Hammer's Music Store, W. L. Matlock, at Osborn & Folger's, 501 I Street, Wm. H. Larkin, 309 J street, L. E. C. Jordan, at Baker & Hamilton's, or 1111 D st. Mrs. Bonheim, 1408 N street.

BASEBALL, CALIFORNIA LEAGUE
SNOW FLAKE PARK.

SUNDAY.....JUNE 29, 1890.

Sacramento vs. San Francisco.

Game called at 2 P. M.

ADMISSION.....FIFTY CENTS
LADIES FREE.

Trains leave depot at 1:15 and 1:45 P. M. Stop at 3d 10th, and 18th streets. Fare both ways, including admission to Park, 50 cents. Fare round trip, 15 cts. Reserved seats at Golden Eagle cigar store.

Fine Table
Wines

From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.

Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

A romantic youth in our city fair,
Was madly in love with a maid;
And once after dark, in the cool midnight air,
He attempted a sly serenade.
He warbled and sang with his rare tenor voice
Till morning bejeweled the skies;
But, alas for youth's hopes, the girl of his choice
Never came in response to his sighs.
At last, tired out and weary at heart,
And swelling with rage and regret,
He went to her door, where he read with a start—
"This large vacant house is—To Let!"

A strange legend comes to us from the Sioux, who alone can tell the true history of that deadly ambush. They say that on the hillock where Custer fell now grows a plant never seen there before—a curious plant with tall, slender leaves, curved in the exact form of a sabre, with edges so sharp as to inflict keen wounds upon unwary hands, and those who pluck it once soon drop it, so strangely cold and clammy are its leaves. It bears a golden-hued, heart-shaped blossom, and in the center is one small spot of brilliant red, like a drop of blood. The Indians regard it with superstitious awe. They call it "Custer's heart," and cannot be induced to touch it, claiming that the blossom crushed in the hand leaves a blood-red stain impossible to remove.

600 J Street, corner Sixth,
SACRAMENTO.

203 MONTGOMERY ST., SAN FRANCISCO

Rules for self-measurement and samples of Cloth sent Free for all orders.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL
HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND
HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND
SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO
OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MAURICE TOOMEY, DECEASED.
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Justina A. C. Toomey, Administratrix of the estate of Maurice Toomey, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice to the administratrix, at the office of Taylor & Holl, No. 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal.
Dated, June 5, 1890.
JUSTINA A. C. TOOMEY
TAYLOR & HOLL, Administratrix.
Att'ys for Administratrix. j675.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARGARET FEE, DECEASED.—
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of the estate of Margaret Fee, deceased, to the creditors of, and to all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice to Henry Fee, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street, Sacramento, Cal.
Dated May 26, 1890.
HENRY FEE, Administrator.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m315

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MARY W. L. AIKEN, DECEASED.
Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of the estate of Mary W. L. Aiken, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to Edward F. Aiken, Administrator of said estate, at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628½ J street,
Sacramento, Cal.
Dated May 26, 1890.
EDWARD F. AIKEN, Administrator.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Att'ys for Administrator. m315

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

Sau Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

HOWE'S

High School and Normal Institute

SIXTH STREET, BET. J AND K,

SACRAMENTO.

Its course of instruction is thorough, and its methods of teaching systematic and ORIGINAL. Those who desire a THOROUGH education, and especially those who expect to make teaching a profession, are cordially invited to examine for themselves its methods of instruction. Its doors are always open; there are no vacations.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of
all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing
of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets.
Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

BUFFALO

BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates.
Give it a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. my17

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated.
One trial will convince you of the truth
of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED
DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST
MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh,
Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.
1002 J Street, Sacramento.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

Sau Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street, Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets,
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and
dealer in Saddles, Har-
ness, Robes, Collars,
Whips, Spurs, Brushes
Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done.

Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties
a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

Short-Hand

ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

June 15, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at
SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6-30 A	Calistoga and Napa	11-40 A
3-05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7-30 P
11-00 P	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3-40 A
5-30 P	Deming, El Paso and East	6-45 P
7-30 P	Knights Landing	7-25 A
10-50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	8-45 A
8-00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	5-25 P
12-01 A	Central Atlantic Express
6-30 A	Ogden and East	5-55 A
3-00 P	Oroville	10-30 A
3-00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10-30 A
10-40 A	Redding via Willows	4-00 P
4-00 A	Sau Francisco via Benicia	10-40 P
6-10 A	Sau Francisco via Benicia	7-30 P
3-05 P	Sau Francisco via Benicia	11-40 A
6-30 A	Sau Francisco via Benicia	8-40 P
*10-00 A	Sau Francisco via Steamer	26-00 A
10-50 A	Sau Francisco via Livermore	2-50 P
5-50 P	Sau Francisco via Benicia	11-40 P
10-50 A	Sau Jose	2-50 P
5-30 P	Santa Barbara	8-45 A
6-30 A	Santa Rosa	11-40 A
3-05 P	Santa Rosa	7-30 P
8-15 A	Stockton and Galt	6-45 P
5-30 P	Stockton and Galt	8-45 A
8-00 P	Truckee and Reno	5-25 P
12-01 A	Truckee and Reno	5-55 A
12-05 P	Colfax	10-20 A
6-30 A	Vallejo	11-40 A
3-05 P	Vallejo	7-30 P
*7-00 A	Folsom and Placerville	*4-50 P
*5-00 P	Folsom	*9-00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday ex-
cepted. A for morning. P for afternoon.
A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities
of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED'K COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

For Fine Carriages, Buggies, Carts, Spring

Wagons, Farm and Header Wagons,

buy the STUDEBAKER. They Always Lead.

KILGORE & CO.,

AGENTS,

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, ETC.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAIL-
ING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

Oscar Flint

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.
Headquarters for Fancy Crackers
610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,
—And You Will Save Money.—
H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries
QUEENSWARE, CIGARS,
TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.
1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,
Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and

Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

JESSE SLAUGHTER,

Office, No. 1217 Fifth Street.

PLASTERING, WHITEWASHING, CLEANING OF CESSPOOLS, Etc.

Also, CITY SCAVENGER.

Burying of dead animals attended to at short notice.

Don't forget the number—1217 Fifth street, the old stand, where I have been for 25 years.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAAR.

S. E. Corner Third and J Streets.

N. ZEMANSKY Proprietor.

Gents' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Boots, Shoes

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON.

First-class make. Apply

MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

700 and 702 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento.

Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.
JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Attorneys for Administrator my10-5t

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice, SACRAMENTO.

CENSUS NOTES.

"Is it takin' the census vez call it?" said Mrs. McFinnerty to the enumerator. "Takin' the nonsenses is what it is, oim thinkin'."—Washington Post.

The country census enumerators, after some experience, are going to ask that the first question on the list be: "Have you any dogs?"—Washington Star.

Census enumerator (to the President)—What relationship do you bear to the head of the family? The President (innocently)—I'm its grandfather.—Washington Star.

A pauper is worth just two and a half times as much as a good, responsible citizen to the census enumerator. In like manner, two lunatics put as much money into the pockets of the enumerator as five sane persons.—Omaha Republican.

A Georgia editor apologizes for the scarcity of local news in his paper, and says: "We will have plenty of news next week, as we have a census contract, and we are on the inside track of every citizen in the county."—Philadelphia Record.

The census takers in Philadelphia are not having or giving much trouble. Most of them are druggists who know a great deal about their neighbors and do not find it difficult to fill out the blanks when members of families come in.—Philadelphia Times.

Census enumerator (to the head of the house)—Are you married or unmarried, sir? Head of the house—Married. Enumerator (a little later)—Have you a wife? Head (astonished)—Yes. Enumerator—Er—male or female? Head (now thoroughly aroused)—That, sir, is one of the questions I am not going to answer.—Chattanooga Times.

Congress (1891)—Who is this knocking at my doors?

Applicant—It is I, please your highness, seeking a pension.

Congress—But who are you that you should make such a claim.

Applicant—I am a poor disabled census enumerator.—Chicago Times.

Dr. Graff, of Eau Claire, who slammed the door in the face of the census man because he called at supper time, was wrong. He should have been more courteous and requested the enumerator to sit down, if not to sup, at least to wait until the doctor's appetite was satisfied. The enumerator represents the great American eagle and he cannot be banged about with impunity.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

The wise man is a fool who thinks.

A LOVELY WOMAN

overheard one say of her, "By Heaven she's painted!" "Yes," retorted she indignantly, "and by heaven only!" Ruddy health mantled her cheek, yet this beautiful lady, once thin and pale, and suffering from a dry, hacking cough, night-sweats, and spitting of blood, seemed destined to fill a consumptive's grave. After spending hundreds of dollars on physicians, without benefit, she tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery; her improvement was soon marked, and in a few months she was plump and rosy again,—a perfect picture of health and strength.

This wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery," now world-famed as a remedy for consumption, which is really lung-serofula, is not only an acknowledged remedy for that terribly fatal malady, when taken in time and given a fair trial, but also for all forms of Serofulous, Skin and Scalp Diseases, as White Swellings, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas and kindred ailments. All scaly, crusty, itching, troublesome eruptions yield readily to its curative powers. It invigorates the liver, enriches the blood and promotes all the bodily functions. It is the only liver, blood and lung remedy, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee that it will do all that it is recommended to, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

$500 REWARD offered for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head, by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Only 60 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

DENTIST.

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

Stub Ends of Thought.

The crank is a hero in disguise.
Get there leads Stay-there to the finish.
Love was full grown when the world was born.

A hard heart may not bend, but it can break.

A dude's head is not so large 'round as his pant's leg.

To the Enumerator: "Facilis est de Censu Avari."

Lucifer was the first person in the record of crime to be "helled up."

Cupid carries no money in his clothes, for obvious reasons.

Very few persons resent the blow when an idea strikes them.

Our graves are no deeper than we dig them.—N. Y. World.

The beauty of the inside of a girl's head varies inversely as the beauty of the outside.

A rainbow of promise in the morning of youth does not always presage a storm of fulfillment ere the evening of age.

Who, but a German, would have invented the savory thing known as the onion-tart? Prithce, do not recoil—this is really a most delectable viand. You make it in this wise: The pastry must be exceeding "short" and light; spreading this crust over the baking-tin or dish, you cover it with very thin slices of raw onion, plentifully sprinkling these latter with pepper and salt. Then baking the hole in a hot oven, you shall find that the onions are as soon done as the pastry, and this fragrant delicacy should be eaten as it comes from the oven, further seasoned (as the taste shall require) with butter. Many who dislike the onion served in every other way are reconciled to that homely, modest and healthful fruit when it comes to them in a tart.

Certain substances which are deadly in their effects upon man can be taken by animals with impunity. Horses can take large quantities of antimony, dogs of mercury, goats of tobacco, mice of hemlock and rabbits of belladonna, without injury. On the other hand, dogs and cats are much more susceptible to the influence of chloroform than man and are much sooner killed by it. If this invaluable anesthetic had been tried first upon animals we should probably have never enjoyed its blessings, as it would have been found to be so fatal that its discoverers would have been afraid to test its effects upon human beings. It is evident, then, that an experiment upon an animal can never be the means of any certain deductions so far as man is concerned. No scientist can ever know when trying some new drug or some new operation whether or not when he comes to try it upon man the effect will be the same as that upon an animal.

CELEBRATED

WEINER LAGER BEER

CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,

Corner Twelfth and I Streets

SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road

AND BE SURE AND STOP AT

BILLY GROENVELD'S

Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.

M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET,

—AT—

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER,

1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S St. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER,

BAVARIA HERSBRUCKER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars. ROBERT ALLEN, Formerly of Agricultural Park.

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

No. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

.....

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501 -- 507 K, cor. Fifth
FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS
Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
No. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

A Card from John F. Cooper.

TO THE PUBLIC—A CAUTION—BEWARE OF IMITATIONS—ALSO BOGUS PIANOS BRANDED "Mathushek." It is a well known fact that all articles of good reputation are imitated by disappointed competitors, and offered by irresponsible parties as genuine. In the last few years several parties have stenciled the name Mathushek on worthless wood wrest plank pianos, cheaply made, thereby hoping to palm off a few pianos on the well earned reputation of THE MATHUSHEK PIANO MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, which firm incorporated with a large capital in 1866, and whose pianos are made strictly first-class in every respect, and so acknowledged by the best musicians everywhere. Among the many distinctive features of their pianos over any other piano bearing the same or similar name is the bushing of the tuning pins into a thick, solid iron wrest plank. Their pianos have been sold by me for the past twenty years. Respectfully,
JOHN F. COOPER.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

THE EXAMINER

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1890.

No. 20.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

When a writer has reached celebrity it is the fashion to praise him rather than his work. No matter how little merit his writings may possess, if the high-sounding name of the author is attached, the work is given to the public virtually under false pretenses. It has become fashionable, also, to pick up any person who has attracted attention, even from physical or mental defects, or even crime, and speculate upon the same. This is the stock in trade of sensational newspapers and unscrupulous theatrical managers. A recent magazine writer put the question strong when he urges that there is too much of the securing of newspaper and magazine contributors of well-known people, as well as their relatives, when in fact they possess no ability whatever. Thus, the man who has made himself talked about in some mob organization, is engaged to contribute a poem in the papers; "the wife of a coal-heaver, whose brutal murder of his mother-in-law, is secured, regardless of expense, to write a serial novel." A woman who has committed some dastardly crime and acquitted thereof by a sniveling sentiment, is much sought after by the "live" papers to write a series of articles; or, some sharp theatrical manager, who knows the curious nature of mankind, will "star" her in some engagement. Notoriety, not distinction, is what is most desired. There is also snobbery in literature. Let some indifferent or insignificant person attain wealth or position, and there is a disposition to secure something in the way of literature from him or her, not on account of its merit, but for the position of the contributor, hoping thereby to gain something by the act. Because a person may attain a high position through the strange freaks of fortune, either in politics or socially, does not carry with it brains and ability; yet we often find great head lines in newspapers that Mr. So-and-so, who has, through his individual efforts, attained the position of United States Senator, will contribute an article on "Self-Made Men," "How to Get Money," or perhaps on "Science of Government." This style of snobbery is unbearable. In ninety-nine cases out of every hundred where this snobbery is involved, there is not the slightest ability in the person sought to contribute; and, indeed, when contributions are made, they emanate from the pen of some poor devil who has to write for pay, and who never gets the credit for his labor.

It is amusing and ludicrous to our American detectives, to read of the circumstance and commotion that attended the capture and deportation of the strangler Eyraud, at and from Cuba to Paris. Two of the perfumed and pomatumed ones of the Paris force were detailed to see that the cowardly fellow was safely landed in the prison there, and they set out burdened with more hand-cuffs, leg-irons, Oregon-boots and other implements of torture wherewith to manacle the lascivious seducer and outlaw, than would start a junk store on Chatham street. Arrived at Cuba, they made sure of the authorities that the prisoner was secure and could not fly at and choke them to death, and with the cocked guns of the Cuban army covering him, hat in hand, bowing and apologizing for the necessity that compelled them to disturb his repose, they proceeded to weight him down with iron till he could not put one foot before another, but had to be taken to the steamer in a hack, which the horses found hard work to move with its freight of shackles. On board they confined the wretch to a pen constructed for the purpose where, also in his irons, he was exhibited like some recently trapped wild beast from the jungles of Ceylon. Arrived at Paris they are met by an additional force from the detectives headquarters, who, with all their native formality, are introduced to their distinguished guest and with one on each side holding an arm, one behind grasping his collar, another in front seizing his wrist ornaments, then flanked close by others, and yet more in advance and in the rear. Eyraud is hastened to a carriage hard by, in which he and as many of his escort 'as can squeeze in, are driven to the prison that has been elaborately prepared for the illustrious traveler. Soon we will read of the fashionable trial he will have, and get a taste of the history of the many and dirty liaisons he has had in his life all over the world. Our detectives do those things differently in the United States. They locate their man; take along a good six-shooter and a pair of hand-cuffs, clap the darbies on the outlaw's wrists, tell him to "come along" peaceably, and that if he does not he will be filled as full of holes as a grater. And if he don't the threat of the officer is carried out, the scoundrel fills a hole in the Potter's field, and that's the end of it.

THEMIS has heretofore expressed its opposition to a division of the funds collected for the Fourth of July celebration, for the purpose of enabling the exhibition of a nondescript rag-tag and bob-tail parade, that has neither amusement nor intelligence to commend it to public approval. It may be well enough for the children of the city, who have not yet a serious knowledge of the cause of the national holiday; but the adult population feel that they would prefer not donating their dollars for this abuse of a sacred day, although feelings of delicacy and fear of giving offense to personal friends prevent their refusal when asked to donate. What is the result? The celebration proper is a failure, almost, just because the funds that should be devoted to the patriotic manifestations of real joy are sequestered for the use and benefit of a lot of rubbish that means nothing and has not the redeeming apology of originality. The city and county should each year, through their Supervisors and Trustees, make a liberal appropriation of three or four thousand dollars, for the decent observance of the great birth-day, with the proviso that the money should not be otherwise used. And the Legislature should enact a law that the day should not be desecrated by a burlesque parade of any kind. Such a law could be made as well as one prohibiting the carrying of any other than the American flag on the occasion of the parade of the National Guard of the State. It is wrong that the Fourth of July should be turned into a carnival of nonsense.

The nice little fight now raging between the Alla and the Examiner, both Democratic, mind you, is very interesting, and promises fine fun for the on-lookers before the fall election. Yet, in fairness, it must be admitted that the Alla holds the whip, while the Examiner, like the poor boy at the wedding, stands by and has not a word to say. Indeed, if it were not for Senator Hearst's money, there would be a good chance for the monarch to lose its self-assumed crown. Some weeks ago the Alla openly charged that its victim had sold out to the moneyed powers of the State, and demanded the figure at which the bargain had been consummated. But up to date, not a word in reply has been deigned by that boss of lottery schemes. Last Sunday and Monday the Examiner contained graphic accounts of a hypnotized hen, that was made to sit on and hatch eggs, even though in her watchful hours she ignored the lazy job, and a sensational account of a correspondent who fell into a South American geyser, and was saved by being returned to earth on the reaction of the boiling water. Tuesday's Alla, like the sleuth hound, still on the trail of its enemy, cruelly gives voice that it is in hot pursuit, by exposing the glaring fraud, and shows that the articles were both copied, in detail, except as to the locations, from articles that appeared in the European press of several weeks ago. One was from Temple Bar, the popular London magazine, and the other was by a French story writer, and created some notoriety when it first appeared. Thus stands the fight at present. as the Examiner has not said a syllable in response, but contents itself by expressing satisfaction that the Alameda County Convention, at its late session, ignored Colonel Irish's congressional aspirations. If these exposures continue with the same degree of correctness that has characterized them in the past, the public will soon learn to look upon the Examiner as an unreliable sheet, and the Democrats of the State may find it necessary to join capital and establish an organ in which they can have full faith, and to which they can look for guidance in their political faith, with some degree of assurance that they will not be hoodwinked and cozened in those matters of which they would be enlightened.

Politics are beginning to warm up in the State; naturally they should, as the selection of delegates to the State Conventions is quite near at hand. It would seem that for the Republican nomination for Governor the chances of Markham are improving, and it is apparent they have been improved by the ill-advised abuse that has been heaped upon him by some journals of doubtful Republican proclivities. Morrow has decided strength, and those who claim to be in position to know the direction the political winds will blow, indicate his following is increasing. There will, however, be no trouble for the Republican convention to make satisfactory selections from the material that will be presented, and we apprehend little difficulty will be encountered in electing the State ticket. If we forecast correctly the wars will be with respect to local tickets in some of the Republican counties. In Alameda county serious dissensions are known to exist in the party. In this county there have existed for several years two distinct wings of the party, and the leaders have been intolerant to a degree that much injury has been done. There are many Republicans who have desired to be permitted to remain aloof from these factional quarrels, but there has been a disposition to force them to take sides. We have heard much of prospective trouble if this or that gentleman will be nominated, but sincerely hope those who assume to control will have sense enough to act with some showing of fairness. So sure as inharmony will enter into the County Convention, some of the candidates will be defeated, and the blow may fall both ways. Matters should be so managed that there will be no cut-and-dried nominations, and that each candidate and his friends will feel they have been fairly dealt with. There is no use of blinding ourselves to what experience has taught so severely: that forced nominations are decidedly unsafe, and that if either faction monopolizes all the nominations, or a greater portion of them, trouble must be looked for. We have much regretted that a disposition has been indicated by some of the leaders of both factions to capture the whole works, and that it is intimated if things will not go in a particular way, the successful parties will not be supported. So far as we are concerned, we want to see an unpledged convention selected, before which any competitor will feel that justice will be done him. If he suffers defeat under those circumstances, he will have no reason for complaint, and will be morally committed to support the ticket. Much will depend on the action of the County Committee, and we hope they will act with fairness and discretion. No good will come from arbitrary action; harm will inevitably follow. Notwithstanding the fact that Gov. Waterman announced his declination to enter the race for Chief Magistrate, it is whispered among the leading politicians that he will be the nominee despite his former declaration.

The daily press of this State is chargeable with many derelictions in failing to give its readers the current and important eastern news, that verges on the criminal because of the avoidance. The daily papers, having the Associated Press conveniences, content themselves with a bare outline of the title of bills introduced, or the bald fact of a committee report in either house of Congress, when often the reader is more than interested in those proceedings. And yet the same so-styled news papers devote columns to sensational reports of murders, suicides, seductions, and libidinous detail that would induce a blush to the cheek of Balzac or a Yola.

These remarks are suggested by noticing the omission by the papers of an important report made by the Judiciary Committee of the House on the 9th of June, on the bill to prohibit aliens from acquiring title to or owning lands within the United States. There are few people in California who even know there was pending before Congress such a bill, to say nothing of their utter ignorance of the favorable position it occupies in the House, in which it originated. And yet no State in the Union has more interest in the measure than this and the other Pacific States and Territories where the public lands, of any value for preemption or homestead purposes, are nearly all appropriated by a few rich individuals or syndicates.

Representative Oates, of Alabama, acting for the Judiciary Committee, not only reported recommending the passage of the bill, but accompanied the advice by an elaborate report in which the committee holds that the power of the Government to totally exclude aliens from coming within its jurisdiction, as has been done in the case of the Chinese, no one questions. This sovereign power certainly includes the lesser one of defining what property rights they may exercise after they are admitted and during the continuance of their alien condition.

The committee ascertained that certain noblemen of Europe, principally Englishmen, have acquired and now own, in the aggregate, about twenty-two million acres of land within the United States. It (the committee) had not sufficient information to state the quantity owned by untitled aliens, nor is it important, as it is generally held in smaller bodies. This alien non-resident ownership will, in the course of time, lead to a system of landlordism incompatible with the best interest and free institutions of the United States. The foundation of such a system is being laid broadly in the Western States and Territories. The avarice and enterprise of European capitalists have caused them to invest many millions in American railroad and land bonds, covering perhaps a hundred million acres, the greater part of which, under foreclosure sales, will, most likely, before many years, become the property of these foreign bondholders, in addition to their present princely possessions. The report goes on to condemn the manner in which millions of acres of land have been fenced in for cattle herding, and makes a forcible declaration against absentee landlordism. The bill proposes to place these aliens under the disabilities of the civil law as to all future attempts to acquire lands in this country. It also contains a provision which will compel alien land owners to cease to be such or to become citizens of the United States within ten years. It will prevent any more abuses like that of Mr. Scully, who resides in England and is a subject of the queen, but owns ninety thousand acres in Illinois, occupied by tenants, mostly ignorant foreigners, from whom he receives as rent $200,000 yearly, and spends it in Europe. Another instance is that of the Scheuleys, of about two thousand acres within the city limits of Pittsburgh and Alleghany, from the rents of which the Scheuleys, who are subjects of the British queen, draw annually not less than $100,000.

STANLEY'S BRIDE.

A tall, robust, handsome woman, rather inclined to embonpoint, with fair hair, dark blue eyes, a straight, well-developed nose, a lovely complexion, white teeth, full mouth, small dimply hands, and pretty feet, about describe the young lady who will become Mrs. Henry M. Stanley next month. Miss Dorothy Tennant is nearly 34 years of age, and first came into prominent literary notice by her clever illustrations of Mrs. W. K. Clifford's popular book, "Anyhow Stories," which appeared some years ago, and still enjoys an enormous sale, writes Eugene Field to the Chicago News. Miss Tennant's name is on the title-page.

Then she began to exhibit a series of delightful pictures of naked children, her style showing clearly the teachings of her celebrated master, Hennell, of Paris. Her "The Baby" was one of the sensations of the year. With her sister, now Mrs. Frederick Myers, a pronounced brunette, she sat for Millais' twin pictures now called "Yes" and "No." At the time they were exhibited in the Royal Academy they were referred to as "The Blue Girl" and "The Red Girl," Miss Dorothy being "the blue." Mr. Frederick Myers, the husband of Miss Dorothy Tennant's sister, is the author of "St. Paul" and one of the leaders in the æsthetical poetical set which now rules in English poetry. He was a great friend of the late Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, who was godfather to Mrs. Myers' first baby.

From a society point of view, few young ladies in London are better known than Mr. Stanley's betrothed. Not a festival of the year, from a flower show, or a "first night" at the opera, to a garden party at Marlborough house, but Miss Dorothy Tennant's name appears in the list of guests. She has acquired a distinct fame in London for the quiet elegance of her gowns and the number and variety of her parasols, which is apparently a hobby with her, and she never appears in the park, either riding or driving, without a cavalcade of admirers en suite, which has not been lessened by the announcement of her engagement to the famous explorer. A clever article, generally illustrated, in one of the magazines, or a striking picture in one of the galleries, keeps her always in front in literary and art circles; in fact, as the Princess of Wales remarked when congratulating Mr. Stanley: "You marry not only a very pretty and charming girl, but a woman brimful of genius."

The story of Stanley's wooing is gradually being disclosed. He first met Miss Tennant when last in England, and for a while was received with the same coolness which has usually characterized the lady's reception of attentions from gentlemen. But the indomitable courage, energy, and wonderful powers of description possessed by the explorer, gradually won the heart of one who possessed similar traits in so marked a degree, and when Stanley managed to pluck up sufficient courage to propose, she fainted with mingled delight and excitement. She promised to wait until he returned from his next African trip, and insisted that their engagement should be kept secret.

The letters which have passed between "Stanley Africanus" and his fiance, if they ever see the light of publication—love letters of eminent persons are now included in the printer's prey—will be truly curious stories, for no doubt the explorer told more to his lady love than he will ever confess elsewhere, of the awful tribulations of his march through the African swamps and forests. His brother explorers were aware of their commander's love story, and many a tree in the strange lands visited has "Dolly" deeply cut into the bark. The natives used to think it the sign of the white chiefs' fetish, and often prostrated themselves before it. In one of his letters, Stanley wrote such a harrowing account of the sufferings of his band, and gave such a vivid picture of the death of a gigantic negro slowly swallowed by a huge serpent, that Miss Tennant swooned after reading it.

Stanley has brought a most extraordinary collection of curios home for Miss Tennant, many of them being now on exhibition at the African Society's show. He declares that he will never permit his wife to share the dangers of exploration, and that if he goes again to Africa, she must remain at home or in Egypt until he returns.

The girl who pined and died when her lover went back on her is no longer with us. The modern girl shoots her faithless lover.

A CREMATION FREAK.

A letter from Cassville, Mo., to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat tells this: Great interest is manifested over a remarkable circumstance which has just come to light. It happened on Off Davis, near Buzzard Roost. When old man Clayback came out of the late war he was a physical wreck, but like many others of the State militia was too independent to ask for a pension, even if he could have secured one, and made his living in the best way he could until his six boys and seven girls got old enough to help him. About five years ago the old man began to get very bad with rheumatism, as he thought, and, although he used the entire crop of spicewood berries which grew on the creek, he continued to get worse. Two years ago he got so stiff as to be confined to his house and called in a physician, who, after carefully diagnosing the case, gave as his opinion that instead of rheumatism ailing the man it was a true case of ossification.

The disease continued, complete ossification took place, and the old man died. How to carry out the wishes of the deceased, who had expressed a desire to be cremated, at first troubled the bereaved family, until they learned that Stephen Symphony was burning lime in his kiln, which had been fired three days, and was reaching a white heat. Desiring to save the ashes, they procured a great evaporating pan belonging to a molasses mill. Placing the remains in this they carefully shoved the whole into the kiln, which was an open one on top, and being built in the side of the hill, was easily accessible. The sorrowing family gathered around, expecting a rapid incineration and disintegration of the departed. In a few minutes the winding sheet was gone and the naked body exposed to the intense heat. From the ears, nostrils and mouth came jets of steam, broken at first, then solid, and in an hour had ceased, but no change was perceivable in the silent form. More wood was fed to the glowing furnace to make the vigil of the bereaved briefer, but still no change. More wood was pitched in, and hotter still the fire raged. Hour after hour passed, and from a glowing red to an opaque white the body turned, while on the countenance seemed to rest an expression of infinite peace and satisfaction. So three days wore away, and the fire must be drawn or the lime spoiled. Twenty-four hours after, by means of grappling-hooks, the pan and body were raised, and, to the surprise of every one, the body was still intact and glowing. A greater and more pleasant surprise, however, awaited the family, for when the body became cold, it was ascertained that the intense heat, acting upon the ossified body, had changed it to perfect marble, a little lighter in color than the natural body, but retaining its natural shape, except on the back, which is a little flattened. The only defects are where there was a bullet wound, and in the left foot, which is broken in two. In 1870 Mr. Clayback cut his foot very severely, splitting it between the second and third toes, and following this wound a rupture appeared, which caused the loss as above stated. Where a small blood vessel had burst in his leg there appeared a delicate tracing of the circulation. The family are having a pedestal cut out of native limestone, and will mount the "statue"; but at present they are using a black gum block for the purpose.

Stipendous Figures.

The Dependent Pension bill has gone to the President. The Senate on Monday agreed to the conference report. The vote was light, only 34 to 18; of the 34 all but 2 were Republicans. No human being can form even a decently probable conjecture as to how much money will be required to meet this bill. Last year a little over $80,000,000 was spent for pensions; this year it will be over $109,000,000. Next year it cannot be less than $125,000,000, without the dependent pensions. With these $160,000,000 is a low estimate. Up to date the country has expended since 1861 over $1,100,000,000 in pensions, and by the close of the century, that is, within thirty-five years from the close of the war, it will have expended as much more. The situation, so far as the finances of the country are concerned, is very serious.

The Silver Question.

"Dear me," said Mamie to Maud, as she shoved a soggy caramel under her upper lip, "you should have been with me when I went to Congress."

"Oh, they talked about silver and things; it was awfully interesting."

"Oh, dear, I don't suppose I ever will understand this silver question."

"It's easy. You see, when you buy anything and give a man money for it, very likely he'd rather have paper, because he can fold it up and put it in his vest pocket, although it's easier to lose that way, and some men would rather have silver and gold; and when they get too much gold, that tilts the balance of trade away over to one side, and you get all mixed up on your standards of value, and you can't tell which is a precious metal and which is a baser metal more'n half the time. On the other hand, the country has a large floating debt, and if you get into all this uncertainty you can't tell whether it is going to sink or swim. Some of them want the Government to buy bullion and coin it, and, of course this would be buy-metalism. Then, again, some want the white metal demonetized and some don't; and I'm just dying to see how it is all going to come out."

"Isn't it lovely?" said Maude, under her breath.—Washington Post.

Resolutions of Josh Billings.

"If a lovely woman smaks me on one cheek, I will turn her the other also.

I will try hard to be honest, but it will be just my luck to miss it.

I won't bet on nothing, for things that require betting on lak something.

I will respect public opinion just as long as I can respect myself in doing it.

I won't wear any more tight boots if I have to go barefoot to do it.

A BACHELOR'S BLUNDER.

I am a married man, just turned 50, and I think I have been very shabbily treated, to say the least. You see, as a bachelor I was very fond of good living, and when the husband of our porter was killed, the widow, Mrs. Rugsby, consented to cook for me. She did know her business, I can tell you. I never was so happy as when sitting down to a meal she had prepared; and all would have gone well if I had not engaged a private coachman.

This fellow, Thomas, had to make love to my cook. He wanted to marry her, and I saw that the only way to keep my cook was to take her myself, if she was willing.

I interviewed her at once, and said she couldn't go.

"But I've promised Thomas, and I must not break his heart," said Mrs. Rugsby. "I'm too sensitive a nater to trifle with any one else's feelin's, sir."

I groaned and shut my eyes.

"Anything else, sir?" said Mrs. Rugsby.

"I shall starve," said I.

"No," said Mrs. Rugsby, "you won't relish your vittles, but you'll eat 'em. There's many'll be glad to do for you."

Again she vanished. This time I did not send for her again; I sent for Thomas.

"Thomas," I said, as he came in wiping his mouth—doubtless Mrs. Rugsby had made him some peculiarly exquisite dish—"Thomas, sit down; I want you to listen to me. I hear your going to rob me of Mrs. Rugsby. I am surprised, Thomas. I disapprove."

"We're both of age, and we ain't bonded slaves," said Thomas.

"But think of me," said I.

"We did talk you over," said Thomas, and one spell we thought of staying along of you; but the restaurant seemed better, and you don't want your wife to have other interests, you know, if you ain't jealous."

"Then you won't stay?" said I.

"No, sir, thankie. It's a good place," said Thomas, "but I'm an Englishman, and I want my home to be my castle. I did think of marrying a little chambermaid down the street. Pritty as a picture, and only 17; but she hadn't saved anything, and Mrs. Rugsby had done wonderful. What's warts on the nose, and a trifle too fat, to that? If the other one had her savings, why, of course—but she hasn't."

"How much has Mrs. Rugsby saved?" I asked.

He told me, and I allowed him to go. He could be bought off, perhaps, but what was Mrs. Rugsby's price?

That evening I resolved to discover. Thomas had gone to see to the horses. Phemie, the assistant, was away with her young man. I went down into the kitchen and found Mrs. Rugsby sitting before the range with a handkerchief to her eyes. She uttered a little scream, and arose.

"Sit down, Mrs. Rugsby," said I; "I'll take a chair. What a soup you made me to-day! What a roast! What a salad! I cannot live without you! Think of my misery before you go!"

"I do," sighed Mrs. Rugsby.

"Then stay," said I.

"You can't expect me to break Thomas' heart," said she.

"You'd rather break mine," said I.

"It ain't your heart as is injured, it's your stomach, sir," said Mrs. Rugsby. "Ah! I know it well."

"They say it's the way to a man's heart," said I.

Mrs. Rugsby looked at me.

"I have come to make you give it up," said I; "this idea of leaving me. What can I say?"

"The only thing as you could say you won't," said Mrs. Rugsby. "I am offered a decent husband, and I shan't give him up unless I'm offered a better."

"But if you were offered a better?" said I.

"I'd consider it," said Mrs. Rugsby.

I paused. I struggled with myself.

"But 'taint likely in a fortnight," said the widow.

I paused. I looked at Mrs. Rugsby.

She took the cover from a sauce-pan near by and looked in. Such a delicious aroma arose that I quivered in every nerve.

"A new dish?" said I.

"Original," said Mrs. Rugsby.

I ceased to struggle with myself.

"Mrs. Rugsby would I be a better offer?" I said.

"I so consider you, sir," said Mrs. Rugsby.

"Then marry me and stay," said I.

"Poor Thomas!" sighed Mrs. Rugsby; "but I must own you have had my affections for years, sir."

I had a scene with Thomas next morning, but he allowed himself to be bought off. He married the pretty chambermaid, and has started a restaurant. As for me, I married Mrs. Rugsby last week, and on the eve of the honeymoon my wife said, briskly:

"My dear, how about a cook?"

"Surely, you don't need a cook, my love," said I. "You, with your talents."

"If you think I'm going to cook, now I'm a lady, you're much mistaken," replied my wife. "I've had quite enough of it. You gets a cook, or you goes without your dinners."

Good reader, pity me.

The Stage.

[Under this caption will appear a fair and impartial criticism of the drama, actors, music, and all noteworthy matters pertaining to the stage.]

Theatrically speaking, a burlesque, to be a good take-off, must be well put on.

Emma Abbott is the pet of Paris. She tells an interviewer that she has had offers to sing there in French opera, but makes no sign as to whether she will accept.

Henderson—That was a good thing your wife got off at the theater last night. It pleased me ever so much. Williamson—What was it? Henderson—Her bonnet.

Coquelin, the French actor, does not entertain a very high opinion of Shakespeare as a dramatist, but he still entertains the same exalted opinion of Coquelin, the actor, that he always did.

Little Mabel Stevenson, the New York girl, has captured English swells with her imitation of birds. She has been quite as much the rage in fashionable drawing-rooms in London as Carmencita has been in New York.

In Duncan Harrison's new play written for John L. Sullivan, the "big fellow" will assume the role of a blacksmith's helper, and Harrison will appear as the "smithy." Both of them fall in love with a pretty girl, and the blacksmith, who thinks he has the upper hand in the matter, is naturally driven almost to frenzy when he discovers that the girl's heart leans a trifle toward his handsome assistant. He then challenges the favored one to a fistic encounter, and both agree that the victor shall marry the fair damsel who has caused all the trouble. Harrison is a pretty big man, and he can box a little; but of course he would make a poor showing with the big fellow, so when the time comes for the men to fight, Joe Lannon will be substituted for the blacksmith, and, after a fierce conflict, in which both men display a thorough knowledge of the manly art, the substitute of the blacksmith is knocked out, and the blacksmith's helper walks triumphantly off with the coveted prize.

Book Chat.

According to the London Times of June 7, Jeremiah Lynch's book, "Egyptian Sketches," published in London recently, has created a furore among foreign Egyptologists and taken its place as a classic and standard work on the land of the Pharaohs. Mr. Lynch is an American business man, living in San Francisco, who spends much of his time in study.

Dr. Holmes was in a city bookstore one day when a woman came in to purchase a book for a holiday present. One of the first volumes shown her was the "Last Leaf," a poem which the autocrat prizes as one of his dearest. "Who is this by?" asked the customer. "Dr. Holmes." "The pictures are very nice. Did he draw them?" "Oh no; he wrote the poetry." "The poetry! is that all?" The clerk look at the Doctor, who had overheard the dialogue and was enjoying a quiet giggle. When the lady went out the Doctor repeated very comically, "The poetry! is that all?"

A strange story is now being circulated in India about a gold plate with inscriptions upon it in the Tamil and Telegu languages, which is said to have fallen from heaven. The Hindoo Patriot gives the following version of it: A plate made of the finest gold, containing the following inscription, fell from heaven and was found in the temple grounds at Benares by the person who saw it fall. The inscription is as follows: "From the month of June, 1890, God Himself will rule as Emperor of Hindoostan, incarnating Himself in human form. From that time forward there will be justice all over the world and the munis (sages) will be worshipped by the people. All the diseases of men will be cured, dogs will walk and talk as men, and man, whose life is now established at 70 years, will in the future have it extended to 125 years."

Professional Chat.

'Tis strange that lawyers should ever travel on foot when it is so easy for them to make a conveyance.

"He was the most perfect gentleman I ever saw," said a Kentuckian of Henry Clay. "When you went to see him he handed you the whisky bottle and then turned his back."

A well-known Irish judge is reported to have said of a personage who had an apparently congenial disposition to deviate into veracity: "I only once knew him to speak the truth, and then I could tell it by the natural embarrassment of his manner."

At a railway station in Rome, last year, Count Herbert Bismarck, who is not renowned for the suavity of his manners, pushed rudely against an Italian dignitary. The dignitary was greatly incensed, and remonstrated very vigorously against such unceremonious treatment, whereupon Count Herbert turned round haughtily, and said: "I don't think you know who I am. I am Count Herbert Bismarck." "That," replied the Italian, bowing politely, "as an excuse is insufficient; but as an explanation it is ample."

By the way, that was a fine sally of Judge Crisp's, the other day, in which he illustrated the power of Speaker Reed, by quoting the explanation of the Hindoo, when rallied about his abject worship of a great big wooden god. "I know he is ugly," said the Hindoo, "but then he is great." No wonder the House, the Speaker included, broke into a roar of laughter. The Speaker was very ready, however, for after one broad smile his face assumed the utmost gravity, and he said, solemnly: "It is to be hoped gentlemen will not intrude personal matters into debate."

It is told of a good, old fashioned parson in one of the hill towns of western Massachusetts, that he recently gave the following advice to his son, who was about to come to New York to begin a business career: "My son, of course it is always wicked to fight, and as a Christian minister I must warn you against it. But at the same time, if you should ever find yourself in a fight—mind, I say, find yourself in a fight, with no way out—always see that the right man is whipped." "But, father," replied the lad; "how shall I know who is the right man?" "The other man, of course," said the old gentleman. "In every crisis of life something must be taken for granted, and in a fight you must always assume that the other fellow deserves to be thrashed." This advice, similar in spirit to that given by Shakespeare, indicates that there may be a good deal of unregenerate human nature even in a quiet country parson.

A pretty good story is told about a certain ignorant justice, who does business up in Fulton county. This justice was elected over an able but very unpopular lawyer, and his first case was that of a prisoner charged with violating the fishery law. The complaint and warrant were defective, and this the defendant's lawyer took exceptions to in a masterly argument, winding up by moving the prisoner's discharge. "Is the motion seconded?" asked the justice. "It is," replied the prisoner. "Gentlemen," continued the judge, "it is regularly moved and seconded that the prisoner be discharged. All those in favor of the motion say aye." "Aye," came from the prisoner and his counsel. "Opposed, no." Silence followed, and after a short pause the scales-holder said: "The motion is carried and the prisoner discharged," whereupon, to the surprise and amusement of all, court was declared adjourned.—Amsterdam (N. Y.) Democrat.

As the pastor of a certain Presbyterian church was walking home after the morning service a few Sundays ago, one of his flock, a pillar of the church and a privileged character, stepped up to him, and after the customary greeting, said: "Dr. —, do you know how long your prayer was this morning?" "No, I really do not," the good man replied. "Make a guess." "Four or five minutes?" "No, over fifteen!" "I did not time myself, and I suppose the prayer was too long." "This hot weather it is." "Well, I'll cut it short next Sabbath, but," continued Dr. —, "this is not the first time that complaint has been made to me about the length of the prayer, though the complainant in the previous instance objected, if anything, to its brevity. It was the sexton of my first charge, a church in a little country town, who approached me in the church lobby after the morning service. He said, after beating about the bush a little: 'You'll excuse me, sir, if I find fault with the prayer you made this morning.' 'Certainly, Mr. —,' I replied, 'what was wrong with it?' 'Why, sir, you prayed for the United States, Pennsylvania, the President, the church, the congregation, the Sunday school, Mrs. Jones, who's sick, and yourself, but you never even mentioned the sexton. Now if I'm not worth praying for I'll resign.'"

NOTES.

Every 4th of July, up to this, it has been the custom to honor the Mayor with the position of the President of the Day. Why was it not so this time? Was it intended as a slighting insult to Mr. Comstock, or did that gentleman decline it?

Now comes France and objects to the importation of American lard. Would it not be a good idea to restrict much of our patronage of French goods as a matter of retributive justice, in case La Belle France puts an embargo on American lard.

The Louisiana lottery scheme has received a new lease of life. The Senate of that State passed the bill with amendments, by a vote of 68 to 25. This vote insures its passage over the Governor's veto. Thus has the legalized robbery been perpetuated. The drain upon our resources, to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars, for which no equivalent is returned, will continue.

The daily Bee has entered upon its sixty-eighth volume. There is no better or brighter paper on the coast. Our neighbor has the fault, however, of allowing its zeal to reach beyond good judgment. The Bee is the devoted friend of all public improvements, and the friend of the city. At no time during its history has the paper been on a firmer basis.

When the "great expectations" of a community have not been realized in the matter of population, the first thing to be done is to abuse the census department. Our neighboring city, Oakland, through some of its papers, makes war on the count of the enumerators because the population has not reached the estimates. If any errors have occurred, they have not been developed. The time for completing this census has been extended in an almost arbitrary manner, in order to give the people of Oakland an opportunity to swell their count if the people were there. Facts and figures are not easily refuted. We would like to have the population of Sacramento and Oakland come up to the estimate, but figures won't lie—the bold fact exists that we have not the population sought to be accredited. One evening paper charges the deficit in Oakland's population to Major W. A. Anderson, the Supervisor of Census. This is about as unreasonable as anything could possibly be. The enumeration was made by the selected agents of Oakland, and from the returns the work has been faithfully and accurately done. At least, there is nothing to disclose that any considerable percentage of the population has been omitted. An investigation of all complaints has resulted in establishing the fact that the complaints were groundless. The enumerators have not been negligent, and in many instances which have been brought to the attention of the Supervisor, the enumerators have been vindicated and the correctness of the returns verified.

In a very recent article of the Record-Union, that paper savagely denounced the Louisiana people in general and its Legislature in particular, for enacting a law that would leave the question of a perpetuation of the lottery in that State to a vote of the people, at which only white people are to be allowed to vote. Of course the Record-Union vigorously denounced the entire affair as an outrage on the negroes, an assault on the privilege of the ballot-box, and called for the severest condemnation of all good and virtuous citizens. Now, our fellow-citizen on third street knows that we do not favor the Louisiana Lottery any more than he does, nor are we less a Republican than our patriotic friend, but we do know and assert that he should study his subjects before he assumes to enlighten the public on important matters. The uninformed, reading that article, would think that the people down there are making a covert effort to disfranchise the negro, when nothing is more foreign to their thoughts. Everyone knows that if the question of the everlasting continuance of the Louisiana Lottery was left solely to the negro vote in that State, it would be carried without a dissenting vote. Knowing that to be a fact, the white opponents of the measure publicly and privately, and in the legislative halls, made the charge that the friends of the pending bill desired the matter left to a vote of the people, because they knew they could carry it by the vote of the colored man, and not otherwise. Thereupon, the Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, who is in favor of an extension of the lottery franchise, and acting for himself, and not officially for his party, put himself in correspondence with the Attorney General of the State, also a Democrat, but an active and bitter enemy of the scheme, and suggested that the bill placing the question of the proposed extension of the lottery privilege before the people, be so drafted to allow only the white people to vote on it, and thus test the desire of the better class of people. This seemed to the Attorney General and a majority of the Legislature to be a perfectly fair proposition, and the bill thus worded recently became a law. Thus it is seen that it is not opposition to the negro vote, for that aid would have ensured success to the friends of the lottery, but because of the charge that only that class is in favor of it, and because its advocates believe a greater part of the white population desire it, was the suggestion made to test it by the means set forth above. Again we say our local contemporary is not a whit stronger opposed to a further continuance of the Louisiana Lottery than are we, but we like to be fair and honest with everybody.

THE SCARLET LETTER.

Noted Political Letters.—George C. Gorham and the Chinese.—The Fatal Letter to Senator Broderick.

It was Henry Clay, who, at an unfortunate moment, wrote a political letter which had the effect to prevent him from becoming President of the United States. Perhaps the most unfortunate of all the propensities of men engaged in politics is that of writing letters. George C. Gorham suffered in that he declared for "the universal fatherhood of God, and the universal brotherhood of man." He had been, in 1867, when a young man, nominated for the office of Governor. The Union and the Bulletin fomented an opposition against him, which led to an independent movement and the nomination, first, of John Bidwell, and on his declination, the nomination of Caleb T. Fay. The result of the election was that Mr. Haight became Governor. Before the meeting of the Union Convention of that year, the management of the Antislavery Association, on April 19th, requested Gorham, Bidwell, Fay, and Frank M. Pixley, the candidates for Governor, to express themselves on the Chinese labor question. All except Gorham responded briefly, but he wrote, among other things:

Because I am opposed to the Coolie system, I am not the enemy of its victims. I believe in the Christian religion, and that rests upon the universal fatherhood of God and the universal brotherhood of man. The same God created both Europeans and Asiatics. No man, of whatever race, has any better right to labor, and receive his hire therefor, than has any other man. To controvert this is to contend with Him who said to man, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread 'till thou return to the ground." As a question, then, of right and wrong, I am as emphatically opposed to all attempts to deny the Chinese the right of labor for pay, as I am to the restoration of African slavery, whereby black men were compelled to labor without pay. This is with me an earnest conviction, the expression of which I have no desire to avoid.

Years later when he returned to this State with Senator Sargent, and secured control of the Republican State Convention, Gorham attempted, in the campaign, to explain away the import of the unfortunate letter, an extract from which we have given. The explanation, however, was not kindly received by the people, the ticket he championed was defeated, and William Irwin was elected Governor.

Perhaps the most fatal political letter written in this State, was that from Wm. M. Gwin to David C. Broderick, a copy of which was published in the last issue of THEMIS. Two years after its writing the most bitter campaign this State has known was conducted, and among the principal actors were Senators Broderick and Gwin. On August 9, 1859, Broderick delivered a speech in this city, in which he read this letter of Gwin's, and concerning it, said:

I shall give to you the letter which I confidently believe was the cause of William I. Ferguson's death. When the death of Ferguson was announced, his desk in the Senate Chamber was broken open, and his private papers searched for this letter without avail. Ferguson, on his death-bed, related to Gen. Estell why the fatal difficulty had been sought with him. He told Estell where the letter could be found. Estell found it, and just previous to his own death, Estell told me where he had placed the letter. A curse seems to follow the secret possession of this letter. I give it to the public that the curse may return to its author; that wherever he may go, by day or night, where his presence can be recognized, the people shall only see the letter of disgrace worn on his forehead, as was the scarlet letter worn on the breast of Hester Prynne.

It is strange to consider the fatality that attended the possession of that letter. All of the parties whose names are mentioned in connection with it are dead. Whether it was the cause of the fatal duel, in which Geo. Pen Johnston killed Ferguson, in the fall of 1858, as Broderick intimates, we are unable to determine. Our understanding has been the duel was the outgrowth of a remark made by Ferguson concerning a lady friend of Johnston. The participants had been friends, and we have been told that Johnston, until his death, never ceased to regret the outcome of the encounter. On September 16, 1858, Colonel Edward D. Baker delivered the funeral oration in the Assembly Chamber, here, over Ferguson. On the 18th of September, 1859, a little over a month after the utterance of the remarks of Broderick we have quoted concerning this scarlet letter, the same eloquent man was called on to deliver an oration over the dead body of David C. Broderick, at Portsmouth Square, San Francisco. It would almost seem this letter was one of death. Unquestionably it had much to do with bringing Broderick to the duelling ground to receive the fatal fire of Judge Terry. The allusion of Broderick to the scarlet letter that was burned on the breast of Hester Prynne was apt at that time. Hawthorne had but a few years before issued his famous work, "The Scarlet Letter," and its popularity had not waned when Broderick made allusion to it. It would seem political mistakes still are made through the writing of letters, and that the retribution will as ever fall upon the writers. It is fortunate in the case of the epistle Huntington directed against Senator Stanford its import is patent on its face, and that it has fallen harmless, more than harmless; it has had the result of drawing friends to the Senator, and of intimating to the people the line of attack that will be made against him. We cannot misunderstand the sentiment of the people of this community; it is that of indignation, and we feel confident this very impolitic movement of the president of the railroad company will result in disaster to him and advantage to the distinguished gentleman he is assailing.

FLASHES.

Dress often makes an insignificant woman "conspicuous" in public.

Towns and cities are like drunken men—apt to imagine themselves bigger than they really are.

These are times you meet a great many extremely polite gentlemen—a great political convention is at hand.

Mayor Comstock says he has grounds for complaint in the management of the city waterworks—Coffee grounds.

Most of our would-be reformers are something like the man who stays up all night trying to get people out of bed.

There seems to be such a thing as a fashionable physician and a fashionable preacher—why not a fashionable lawyer.

The poor devils that can't go to the seaside, can sit on the front porch and fight mosquitos at home for amusement.

While the band was playing at the concert, a German said of one of the pieces played, "That's Meyerbeer." "You're a damned liar," said an Irishman; "that's Buffalo Beer."

SHORT BITS.

The "Glorious Fourth."

The people on foot; servants of the people in carriages.

The quarry is laboring to bring forth a Waterman.

The question now uppermost in the mind of the enumerator: "When am I to be paid."

The Examiner is rapidly going to the front as a first-class "gift enterprise" concern.

The Sullivan-Muldoon controversy should be conducted within the confines of a penitentiary.

Our Attorney-General has put the San Francisco sloggers "to sleep." The pen is mightier than the skin-tight glove.

The facial contortions produced by the constant chewing of gum, is certain to create wrinkles. Stop the vile practice, girls.

Sacramento's magnificent business blocks were beautifully decorated and were greatly admired by throngs of visiting strangers.

Testing Gold Coins.

Gold coins are worth their full face value in gold, without counting the one-tenth part of copper they contain. The yellow metal, unlike the silver, does not "segregate" in the middle of the piece. Therefore, it is not necessary to perforate gold coins for testing them. They are simply rolled out, each strip cut into three pieces, and little pieces for chemical analysis are snipped off the cut edges. There is a very small amount of silver left in the gold pieces, as they are made at the mints, and, for the sake of arriving at perfect accuracy, the assayer takes this out by boiling in nitric acid.—Washington Star.

Dollars a Foot Long.

You would be amused to see the silver dollars that compose the stock of the Government assayer at the Treasury building. Each one of them is about a foot long, of a narrow oval shape, and perforated with hundreds of little round holes. Such is the form they appear in after being rolled out thin and punched with a machine. They are sent in from the mints as specimens, taken at random from every fresh lot made, and it is the duty of the assayer to find out whether these samples are of the weight and fineness required by law.—Washington Star.

Rubbing After a Bath.

A quick bath and a hard rub will work wonders in preparing a man for each day's battle among men. There are two stimulants in the process, first that of the cold water and then that of the friction. The rubbing should be done with an old fashioned crash towel, not one of those alleged bath towels that one pays $2.50 for at fashionable stores—they are no good—but a rough crash towel which any woman will know where to buy. Rubbing with this will produce a good reaction after the bath, and without that the bath will prove hurtful rather than beneficial. Rub till the skin is red.

Stealing Kisses.

A good joke is being told on a well-known young Main street man. He is a great society man. He is handsome, polished, and something of a dandy; and a pair of glasses balanced on his aristocratic nose gives him an intellectual air that he would not otherwise possess. For a year or so he has been devoted to a well-known young society woman. Not a week has ever passed that he has not been at least twice to see her. About a month ago he proposed and was accepted. About two weeks ago the engagement was broken, only to be patched up again shortly afterward.

The cause of the engagement being broken was, that the young man made his accustomed visit. He was shown into the parlor. While sitting there he heard his betrothed coming down the stairs. He stepped to the door, and as she passed the door he leaped out and imprinted a kiss upon her lips. A faint scream above startled him. He looked up and saw his sweetheart at the head of the stairs; he looked down and saw that he had the housemaid in his arms. He tried to explain matters, but his sweetheart would not have it, and the engagement was broken. She afterward accepted his explanation and reinstated him.

This experience would have cured most people, but it did not cure him. A few nights ago he called again, and entered the parlor. There was no light in the hall nor in the parlor. In a short time he heard his girl coming down the steps. He stepped out into the hall, and as she reached the bottom of the stairs he inclosed her in his arms and imprinted a long, lingering kiss upon her ruby lips. Releasing her, he struck a match and lit the gas, then turning to snatch a kiss, he was horrified to see before him the black cook. He gave her a dollar not to say anything about it, but it was too good to keep, and she told it.—Louisville Commercial.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION.

IN PURSUANCE OF ORDINANCES NOS. 257 and 258 of the city of Sacramento, notice is hereby given that a special election will be held on the 9th DAY OF JULY, 1890, in the city of Sacramento, submitting to the qualified electors of said city the proposition of incurring an indebtedness of $100,000 for the purpose of paying one-fourth of the cost of improving the streets of said city by graveling, macadamizing or paving the same.

The bonds to secure said indebtedness are to be two hundred in number, for $500 each, of the character known as serials, to be payable as follows: One-twentieth of the whole thereof each year on a day and at a place to be fixed by the Board of Trustees of said city, and named in said bonds, together with interest thereon at the rate of five (5) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, and the amount of the annual tax levy to be made for the payment thereof will be $10,000 for the first year, $9,750 for the next year, and so on for each year thereafter the sum of $5,000, and a further sum sufficient to pay the interest upon the principal sum of said bonds remaining unpaid; and the rate of the annual tax levy shall be such number of cents on each one hundred dollars of the assessed value of the taxable property of said city as will be sufficient to raise the aforesaid amounts.

The polling-places for said election and the officers of said election are hereby fixed and designated as follows, and the polls will be open from sunrise until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election.

First Precinct, Third and J—William Beckman, A. J. Schatz, Inspectors; W. A. Anderson, J. J. Bauer, Judges; V. J. Gregory, E. Wachhorst Clerks. Second Precinct, Fourth and K—C. Green, E. A. Boyer, Inspectors; C. Sellinger, O. H. Cronkite, Judges; H. Kimbrough, R. H. Crouch, Clerks. Third Precinct, Meisler—F. R. Dray, B. C. Steinman, Inspectors; L. J. Lewis, L. P. Anderson, Judges; Frank Hickman, G. M. Mott, Clerks. Three and One-Half Precinct, Seventeenth and I—Sam Blair, P. E. Platt, Inspectors; E. I. Robinson, John Talbot, Judges; Bert Kidder, R. H. Hawley, Clerks.

Fourth Precinct, Ninth and N—M. E. Hornlein, W. J. O'Brien, Inspectors; Stephen Butler, Jas. McNasser, Judges; A. H. Starr, Clinton L. White, Clerks. Four and One-Half Precinct, New Pavilion—M. A. Howard, John Miller, Inspectors; T. B. Hall, P. Herzog, Judges; J. E. T. Pike, J. M. Henderson, Jr., Clerks.

W. D. COMSTOCK,

President Board of Trustees.

Passed June 23, 1890.

R. H. McKee, Clerk.

CITY TRUSTEES' OFFICE,
SACRAMENTO, June 30, 1890.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sacramento, held on above date, the following order was passed:

Ordered, That should the qualified electors of the city of Sacramento decide at the special election to be held on the 9th day of July, 1890, to incur an indebtedness of $100,000 for the purpose of paying one-fourth of the cost of improving the streets of said city by graveling, macadamizing or paving the same, that said one-fourth of the cost of improving said streets shall apply to all streets wherein action was commenced by the City Trustees toward improvement on and after January 1, 1890.

W. D. COMSTOCK,
President of the Board of Trustees.
R. H. McKee, Clerk.

DRAMATIC NOTES.

The next attraction will be Sedley Brown's new drama, A Long Lane.

A telegram announces the death of Geo. C. Parkhurst, a well known actor of New York. He was the last living member of the company that played in the National Theater, in Washington, on the night of the assassination of President Lincoln.

Miss Eastlake, of Wilson Barrett's company, is one of the best actresses on the stage. Her personations of "Nellie Darwin" in The Silver King, was the highest order of the player's art. The scene between "Nellie Darwin" and "Jaikes," where the existence of her husband was made known, was grandly realistic.

Wilson Barrett, the accomplished English actor, made a great mistake in opening his engagement with Hamlet. His idea of the young Dane does not accord with the traditional Hamlet. Indeed we think Mr. Barrett in his rendition of the character has holdly seized upon an idea that his distinguished ability would bear him through in his interpretation of Shakespeare's masterpiece. But he will realize, if he has not already, that the great mass of lovers of the Divine Art, will not accept his views. When we analyze the character as presented by Barrett, there is not so wide a difference in his interpretation from other artists, but his reading is entirely different. Barrett is not a good reader. He runs his words together without proper or intelligible articulation. He is a splendid artist, however, and his dramatic power cannot be surpassed. His rendition of The Silver King, and the two farce comedies on Wednesday night, was the perfection of dramatic art. Speaking of Hamlet, it is one of the strangest things in dramatic art that we never can get an actor who has the slightest conception of the "Ghost," to play that part. The "Ghost" of Barrett's company was no exception. It was the same old monotonous, sing song lingo. Now, when Hamlet's father braves the ceremonies and came back to earth a mortal, he was supposed to act and talk like a mortal—like a man—not in the unnatural manner which our "artists" would try to make it seem. We regret that so eminent an artist met with such a poor reception in our Capital city.

CENSUS NOTES.

The enumerations in nearly all the districts has been completed, and schedules forwarded to the Census Bureau at Washington. A few districts remain to be examined and returns transmitted.

The "omitted district" in Alameda county is being promptly enumerated by the enumerator who at first refused to complete the work. A just compensation of $5 per day was allowed him for the completion of his district.

The census returns show the following populations: Haywards, 1,425; Castro Valley, 1,177; Mt. Eden, 962; Placerville, 1,693; Lincoln, 955; Sheridan, 137; Sutter Creek, 1,355; Amador City, 971; Auburn, 1,599; Elk Grove, 203; Florin, 51.

The most influential citizens of Nevada petitioned the department for an additional allowance to enumerators in several of the Nevada county districts. The petition was indorsed by Supervisor of Census Anderson, and forwarded to the department at Washington.

Statistician McCarthy, in his book for 1889, made a careful estimate of the population of the city of Sacramento, and fixed it at 26,000. The gentleman came very near the mark, as the population will be about 26,800. The actual increase since 1880 is 26 per cent. This we consider a very fair showing.

"Tales of woe" come from all parts of Major Anderson's district. Many of the enumerators did not make actual expenses. In other words worked for nothing and paid their own board. After energetic importunities there was a per diem allowed to nearly all the mountain districts, and even with this, the enumerators did not clear more than $2.50 per day.

Major Anderson is emphatic in his praise of his enumerators in all parts of his district, for the careful and accurate performance of their duties. In many instances when it caused an actual loss to them, they proceeded with the work, rather than place the Supervisor in a bad position. Notwithstanding the sneers that may have been used against the enumerators, the work has been well done.

There will be some delay in payment of enumerators on account of distance from Washington and the detail methods employed in departments at Washington. The schedules and verified vouchers are sent from the Supervisor's office to the headquarters, for examination there. Receipts will then be forwarded to enumerators, upon return of which a treasury draft will be sent to each enumerator for amount due him. This will probably occupy several weeks.

M. R. Beard, as Chief Deputy, and John J. Cahill, Clerk, have rendered most valuable and comprehensive assistance to the Supervisor of Census. There are few people who can comprehend the magnitude of the work embraced in taking the census for such a large district as the Second Supervisor District, which extended from Tuolumne county to Lake Tahoe, and included the largest cities outside of San Francisco. It is a safe proposition to say that none of the gentlemen connected with the census in this district could be induced to undertake the labors again.

If figures do not lie, the census returns will show that the city of New York is not half so black as it is sometimes painted by imaginative writers. According to the census the death rate has decreased more than 2 per cent. during the past decade, and the matrimonial percentage has shown a still greater increase. This is a good showing from a moral and sanitary point of view, and the criminal records bear out the idea that improved homes and marriage are excellent things to keep people in the straight road. A comparison of the number of arrests made in 1880 with those of 1889 shows a positive (and not comparative) decrease in arrests for felonious assault, burglary, lottery law violation, simple assault, petit larceny and intoxication, and a small increase in the crime of larceny alone. In 1880 there were 824 arrests for burglary; in 1889, 769. The arrests for intoxication in 1880 were 21,168; in 1889, 20,240. It is curious to note, too, that the growth of official honesty seems to keep pace with the decrease of crime, for in 1880 the amount collected for fines was only $53,622, but in 1889 it was $112,215.

Proportions of the Body.

The proportions of the human body, as given by the best authorities, are as follows, the length of the head being the standard of measurement:

From the bottom of chin to breastbone, one-half length of head.

From top to bottom of breastbone, or sternum, one-half length of head.

From bottom of sternum to beginning of lower limbs, two lengths.

From thigh to bottom of knee, two lengths.

From the bottom of the knee to the ankle, one and one-half lengths.

From the ankle to the ground, one-half length.

Adding to these measurements one length for the head itself, gives eight lengths for the proper height of the body of men. Women are slightly shorter, the proportion of their head to the height being about as one to seven, or seven and one-half.

The arm from the armpit to the elbow joint is one and one-quarter times the length of the head; from thence to the wrist, one and one-quarter, and from the wrist to the end of the little finger, three-quarters of the length of the head. The distance between the right middle finger and the same finger of the left hand is, when the arms are spread horizontally from the body, equal to the height of the figure. It follows, therefore, that the breadth of the body, from armpit to armpit, is one and one-half lengths of the head.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Boon to the Baldheaded.

A quack, having invented a wonderful hair-invigorating fluid, applied to an editor for a testimonial. He gave it in these terms, calculated, we should think, to convince the most skeptical: "A little applied to the inkstand has given it a coat of bristles, making it a splendid penwiper at little cost. We applied some to a tennypenny nail, and the nail is now the handsomest lather brush you ever saw, with beautiful soft hair growing from the end of it, some two or three inches in length. Applied to the door stones it does away with the use of the mat; applied to the floor, it will cause to grow therefrom hair sufficient for a Brussels carpet. A little weak lather sprinkled over a barn makes it impervious to the wind, rain, or cold. It is good to put inside of children's cradles, sprinkle on the roadside, or anywhere where luxuriant grass is wanted for use or ornament. It produces the effect in ten minutes.—Tenorial Times."

Apples as Medicine.

Chemically, the apple is composed of vegetable fibre, albumen, sugar, gum, malic acid, gallic acid, lime and much water. Furthermore, the German analysts say that the apple contains a larger percentage of phosphorus than any other fruit or vegetable. This phosphorus is admirably adapted for renewing the essential nervous matter of the brain and spinal cord. It is, perhaps, for the same reason rudely understood that old Scandinavian traditions represent the apple as the food of the gods, who, when they felt themselves to be growing feeble and infirm, resorted to this fruit for renewing their powers of mind and body. Also, the acids of the apple are of signal use for men of sedentary habits, whose livers are sluggish in action; those acids serving to eliminate from the body noxious matters, which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull, or bring about jaundice or skin eruptions and other allied troubles.—Herald of Health.

An Old Traveler.

The heartiest and most sprightly man in New York, for his age, is Colonel Charles B. Tappen, who was 95 years old in February, and started last week on a trip to California. He went alone and stepped on board the cars as buoyant as when, in 1812, he came to town from the rural parts of Jersey to seek his fortune here. His son, Mr. F. H. Tappen, is President of the Gallatin National Bank, and his nephew, A. B. Tappen, sat for 14 years on the Supreme Court bench, but he is a younger man than either of them. Erect of figure, with a full head of white hair and snowy side-whiskers (he shaves himself every day), in possession of a good appetite and sound digestion, a lover of Shakespeare, and a reader of Plutarch's lives, this grand old man who stood on guard at McGowan's Pass and in the forts that frowned on Harlem Plains during the war of 1812, will be a revelation to the men of the Golden State. They will cease to talk of the magnificent climate of California when he tells them that during the seventy eight years he has lived in New York he has not spent a dollar for doctors or drugs for himself. "Judge," I said to Judge Tappen, as this sturdy monomaniac walked up and down his law office smoking a cigar, "what do you think of this man, anyhow?" "I have my doubts," was the reply, "and am afraid that the family Bible is a blanked liar."

Odd Superstition of the Red Mouse.

According to Grimm, it is the devil's brides out of whose mouths the soul runs in the shape of a red mouse. Thus we are told that in Thuringia, a servant girl fell asleep while her companions were shelling nuts, when they observed a little red mouse creep out of her parted lips and run out of the window. One of those present shook the sleeper, but not succeeding in awakening her, moved her to another room. Presently the mouse returned to where she had been sitting, but not finding her, vanished. The girl died instantly. A miller, cutting firewood in the Black Forest, fell asleep over his work. His companions saw a mouse creep out of his mouth and run away. Others were called and a thorough search made for the mouse, but it could not be found. The miller never awoke. In Bohemia, it was formerly considered dangerous to sleep while thirsty, as the soul was sure to leave the body in search of water.

Modjeska Economizes Her Nerve.

Mme. Heleue Modjeska never allows her temper to get the better of her. "I cannot afford to get angry," she says. "A woman at my time of life must economize her emotions and her nerves if she wants to hold the remnants of her youth and beauty."

An Odd Design for a Lace Pin.

A large oddly shaped, speckled pearl was recently found in a Wisconsin river, and was subsequently purchased by a New York manufacturer. For some weeks he puzzled his inventive mind as to the best manner to mount it, and at last decided on forming it into a crab, with gold extremities and two small, fancy colored pearls for eyes. The ornament is set as a lace pin.—Jeweler's Weekly.

New music at 10 cents a copy, at Cooper's Music Store.

New fruits are added to the list almost daily. Everything fresh and choice at our market, and prices always low. Telephone No. 188. Send orders to Garzoli & Genis, 712 K street.

Popular music at 10 cents per copy; prices elsewhere range from 35 cents to 75 cents. Catalogues furnished on application. Hammer's music store, No. 820 J street. Sole agency Chickering & Son's pianos.

The immense stock of E. Lyon & Co. is now being closed out. The values they are offering in dress goods, etc., is sure to disprove the balance of the stock very soon. It will pay you to call and see their prices. *

We recommend you to write to Cooper's music store, Sacramento, for anything in the music line. Mr. Cooper now imports all his musical goods direct from the European manufacturers, and can now retail at former wholesale prices. Will also sell at lowest wholesale prices to dealers. *

From Sig. S. Martinez, Concert Piano Soloist.

MR. JOHN F. COOPER.

Dear Sir—I can most cheerfully testify to the excellence of your style H solid iron frame Mathushek Co. Piano (of New Haven, Conn.). Its tone and action I have never seen excelled in any upright piano. I so expressed myself to Miss Mary E. Barnard at her grand concert, before I saw you. If your uprights are so fine, what must the grands be? Yours, truly,

S. MARTINEZ, Pianist.

FANCIES!

Black Silk Van Dyke Laces, in several widths and patterns, at 20c, 30c, 35c, 45c and 60c.

Tatting Lace Handkerchiefs, hand-made, with sheer lawn center; makes very pretty tidies, 50c.

Ladies' Sheer Linen Lawn 1/2 inch Hemstitched Handkerchiefs, 25c, 40c, 50c.

Gents' Black Silk Handkerchiefs, 2-inch hemstitched, 85c.

Ladies' Embroidery and Lace Sets (collars and cuffs) at 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75.

Sizes complete in Thompson's Ventilating Glove-fitting Corsets, a perfect Summer Corset, $1.00.

Illusion Veiling, new shades, 12 1/2 c per yard.

W. I. ORTH,
630 J ST.,

Successor to McKIM & ORTH

Fine Table Wines
From our Celebrated Orleans Vineyard.
Grand Hamworthy & Co.
Producers of the
ECLIPSE
CHAMPAGNE,
530 Washington St.
SAN FRANCISCO.

Weinstock, Rubin & Co.

LARGEST GENERAL RETAIL

HOUSE ON PACIFIC COAST.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING AND
HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE AND
SAMPLES MAILED FREE TO
OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMERS.

400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412 K Street
SACRAMENTO, CAL.

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON

First-class make. Apply

MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

DR. H. H. PIERSON,

511 J STREET, bet. 5th and 6th, SACRAMENTO.

The Last Look.

Out of the sunlight thro' the shade
His way he slowly wound;
Then, stooping low, a garland laid
Upon a grassy mound.

The lonely mound, where 'lone she slept
Of all the world his one;
Then down the darkening hill he crept
Toward the sinking sun.

—William Toynbeer.

Mrs. Grant's Youthfulness.

Mrs. General Grant seems to have found the elixir of youth. Although 66, she is as agile as a woman of 30, enjoys perfect health, and barring the weakness of her eyes which were never strong, her faculties are as keen as they ever were. The gray in her hair is hardly noticeable, her face is plump and of good color, and her interest in the affairs of the world covers both continents.—N. Y. World.

A Prismatic Parasol Stick.

A coaching parasol is the only style properly carried with tailor-made gown, and those of two toned twilled louisine silk are by all odds the most stylish—the handles of natural wood, or of gold or silver, delicately chased. The latest novelty, however, is a stick finished with a faceted ball of heavy cut-glass, to heavy to be easily broken, and reflecting all the colors of the rainbow in its transparent heart.—N. Y. Post.

Tailor Gowns for the Resorts.

Among watering-place tailor gowns for stylish afternoon wear are those of silver-gray English serge or white summer cloth made up as French redingotes, with princess breadths forming the entire back, opening over slender fronts of colored surah or tulle silk, old rose, Empire green, raspberry, swallow blue, violet or reseda, embroidered at the foot in a narrow band of white silk or of pale and deep shades of the silk forming the skirt.

A Fortune from Orange Peels.

Mme. Varnard, a poor woman of Paris, left a widow years ago, arrived at competency by gathering orange peel, and thereby not only helped herself, but gave occupation to others. She became a rich person, a great patroness of art and a regular habitue of the opera. She has now retired from business, and enjoys the fruits of her former hard-earned labor.

JOE POHEIM
THE TAILOR

Makes the best-fitting Clothes at 40 per cent. less than any other house on the Pacific Coast.

600 J Street, corner Sixth,

SACRAMENTO.

203 MONTGOMERY ST., SAN FRANCISCO

Rules for self-measurement and samples of Cloth sent Free for all orders.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF ISAAC HALL, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned Administratrix of the Estate of Isaac Hall, Deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to said Administratrix at the office of Taylor & Holl, 628 1/2 J Street, Sacramento City, Cal.

Dated, June 27th, 1890.
FRANCES M. HALL, Administratrix.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attys for Administratrix.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MATTHEW HODGE, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned Executors of the Estate of Matthew Hodge, Deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the Executors, at the office of Taylor & Holl, No. 628 1/2 J Street, Sacramento City, Cal.

Dated, June 27th, 1890.
JAMES O'BRIEN, Executors.
TERRY McCABE, Executors.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attys for Executors.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF MAURICE TOOMEY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Justina A. C. Toomey, Administratrix of the estate of Maurice Toomey, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them, with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the Administratrix, at the office of Taylor & Holl, No. 628 1/2 J Street, Sacramento, Cal.

Dated, June 5, 1890.
JUSTINA A. C. TOOMEY, Administratrix.
TAYLOR & HOLL, Attys for Administratrix.

Gregory Bros. Co

Established 1852.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Packers and Shippers of California Fruit and Produce,

126 and 128 J STREET,

San Francisco Office, 313 Davis St. SACRAMENTO.

HOWE'S

High School and Normal Institute

SIXTH STREET, BET. J AND K,

SACRAMENTO.

Its course of instruction is thorough, and its methods of teaching systematic and ORIGINAL. Those who desire a THOROUGH education, and especially those who expect to make teaching a profession, are cordially invited to examine for themselves its methods of instruction. Its doors are always open; there are no vacations.

CURTIS BROS. & CO.

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in and Shippers of all kinds of

Fruits, Vegetables

And GENERAL PRODUCE.

Careful attention paid to the selection and packing of Choice Fruits and Vegetables for distant markets. Goods delivered in city free.

308 and 310 K Street, - - Sacramento, Cal.

BUFFALO BREWING CO.

TRY OUR

Sparkling Pilsener Beer.

On Draught in all First-Class Saloons,

BOTTLED BEER DELIVERED TO ANY PART OF THE CITY.

Our Ice will be delivered to any part of the city at reasonable rates. Give it a Trial.

TELEPHONE No. 209.

N. B.—Branch Ice Depot, Fifth street, between K and L. my17

GRUHLER'S SALOON,

No. 522 J STREET.

THE FINEST

WINES, LIQUORS AND CIGARS.

Elegant Reading-room Attached.

All the Leading Papers constantly on file.

EUREKA!

HAMS AND BACON

BEARING THE ABOVE BRAND ARE

Fresh and Sugar Cured.

OUR LARD

We guarantee to be fresh and pure—not adulterated. One trial will convince you of the truth of this Statement.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT.

ALL KINDS OF SAUSAGES ARE MANUFACTURED DAILY, AND FROM THE BEST MATERIAL ONLY.

MOHR & YOERK.

R. DAVIS,

NOTARY PUBLIC,

Real Estate and Insurance Agent.

Representing the following companies:

Manchester of England; Caledonian of Edinburgh, Scotland; London and Lancaster, England.
1002 J Street, Sacramento.

BAKER & HAMILTON,

San Francisco and Sacramento,

Importers and Jobbers of

Hardware, Iron, Steel, Coal, Powder,

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Send for Catalogue.

A. L. HART,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Sutter Building, cor. 5th and J.

W. A. ANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

No. 209 J Street,

Sacramento.

W. A. GETT, JR.,

Attorney at Law,

Southwest Corner of Seventh and J Streets, SACRAMENTO, CAL.

A. J. MUIR,

PLUMBER,

—Gas and Steam Fitter.—

Being a practical plumber, I can guarantee all work.

810 K STREET,

Telephone 226.

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

D. McDOUGALL,

Merchant Tailor,

617 K STREET,

Next to Golden Eagle Hotel, Sacramento, Cal.

PAUL GRAF,

Manufacturer of and dealer in Saddles, Harness, Robes, Collars, Whips, Spurs, Brushes, Currycombs, etc.

1130 J Street, near Twelfth

Repairing Neatly Done. Harness Made to Order.

ANOTHER NEW ARRIVAL

AT THE

CAPITAL ALE VAULTS,

302 J St. and 1005 Third St., Sacramento.

Ten Barrels of the Famous

Sour Mash Copper Distilled Kentucky Whisky

Direct from Covington, Ky., via Cape Horn.

NAGELE & SVENSSON, Proprietors.

Restaurant de France,

FAURE & BECKER, PROPRIETORS.

(Successors to L. Payen.)

No. 427 K Street, Near Metropolitan Theater.

Family Entrance on Fifth Street.

Catering to Families, Banquets and Wedding Parties a specialty. Telephone 228.

OSBORN & FOLGER

DEALERS IN

ICE and COAL, HAY and GRAIN.

New 10-ton Fairbanks' Hay Scales.

N. E. cor. Fifth and I Streets.

Wood Yard, 806 I Street.

Waterhouse & Lester

DEALERS IN

IRON, STEEL, CUMBERLAND COAL,

Wagon Lumber and Carriage Hardware,

SACRAMENTO.

Short-Hand ECLECTIC!

The system taught by all the leading Colleges on the Coast, viz: Heald's and the Pacific, of San Francisco; Woodbury's, of Los Angeles; DePue's, of Oakland; Garden City, of San Jose; Stockton College, of Stockton, and

Bainbridge College of Sacramento

Why? Because it can be learned in one-half the time required for the old moss-covered systems.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

Southern Pacific Company

PACIFIC SYSTEM.

July 1, 1890.

Trains LEAVE and are due to ARRIVE at SACRAMENTO.

Lv.	Trains Run Daily.	Arr.
6.30 A	Calistoga and Napa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Calistoga and Napa	7.30 P
12.50 A	Ashland and Portland via Chico	3.40 A
5.30 P	Denning, El Paso and East	6.45 P
7.30 P	Knights Landing	7.25 A
10.50 A	Los Angeles and Mojave	8.45 A
8.00 P	Second Class, Ogden and East	5.25 P
12.01 A	Central Atlantic Express	5.55 A
	Ogden and East
3.00 P	Oroville	10.30 A
3.00 P	Red Bluff via Marysville	10.30 A
10.40 A	Redding via Willows	4.00 P
4.00 A	San Francisco via Benicia	10.40 P
6.10 A	San Francisco via Benicia	7.30 P
3.05 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 A
6.30 A	San Francisco via Benicia	8.40 P
10.00 A	San Francisco via Steamers	6.00 A
10.50 A	San Francisco via Livermore	2.50 P
5.50 P	San Francisco via Benicia	11.40 P
10.50 A	San Jose	2.50 P
5.30 P	Santa Barbara	8.45 A
6.30 A	Santa Rosa	11.40 A
3.05 P	Santa Rosa	5.25 P
8.15 A	Stockton and Galt	7.30 P
5.30 P	Stockton and Galt	6.45 P
8.00 P	Truckee and Reno	8.45 A
12.01 A	Truckee and Reno	5.25 P
12.05 P	Colfax	10.20 A
6.30 A	Vallejo	11.40 A
3.05 P	Vallejo	7.30 P
*7.00 A	Folsom and Placerville	*4.50 P
*5.00 P	Folsom	*9.00 A

*Sunday excepted. †Sunday only. ‡Monday excepted. A for morning, P for afternoon.

A. N. TOWNE, Gen'l Manager.
T. H. GOODMAN, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

California State Bank

DOES A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

Draws Exchange on all the Principal Cities of the World.

OFFICERS:

PRESIDENT.....N. D. RIDEOUT
VICE-PRESIDENT.....FRED K. COX
CASHIER.....A. ABBOTT
ASSISTANT CASHIER.....W. E. GERBER

DIRECTORS:

C. W. Clarke, Jos. Steffens, N. D. Rideout,
Geo. C. Perkins, J. R. Watson, Frederick Cox,
W. E. Gerber.

W. R. STRONG & CO.

Founded 1852.

Fruit Packers

and Shippers.

PROPRIETORS OF

CAPITAL NURSERIES,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Edwin K. Alsip & Co.

ESTABLISHED 1860.

REAL ESTATE

AND INSURANCE AGENTS.

FARMING LANDS A SPECIALTY.

Catalogues issued monthly.

No. 1015 Fourth Street, Sacramento.

For Fine Carriages, Buggies, Carts, Spring

Wagons, Farm and Header Wagons,

buy the STUDEBAKER. They Always Lead.

KILGORE & CO.,

AGENTS,

S. E. Corner Tenth and K Streets,

SACRAMENTO, CAL.

Joseph Hahn & Co.,

PHARMACISTS,

S. W. cor. Fifth and J Streets, Sacramento.

CHOICE PERFUMERIES, Etc.

Prescriptions carefully compounded, at all hours.

FOR THE COUGHS AND COLDS NOW PREVAILING USE

Hammer's Glycerole of Tar

A Speedy and Effectual Cure.

Fourth and K, and all Sacramento Druggists

MY ICE CREAM PARLOR is now open to the Public, after being completely renovated and newly furnished. My famous WALTER CREAM needs no introduction; its reputation places it beyond competition.

Ice Cream in Boxes

A SPECIALTY.

Oscar Flint

824 J STREET.

W. W. GRISSIM,

DEALER IN

Staple and Fancy GROCERIES.
Headquarters for Fancy Crackers
610 J Street, Sacramento.

Orders from country solicited and promptly shipped

BEFORE BUYING STOVES
CALL AT THE

Sacramento Stove House,

813 and 815 J STREET,
—And You Will Save Money.—
H. K. WALLACE & CO.

C. F. WILLIAMS,

DEALER IN

Fancy and Staple Groceries

QUEENWARE, CIGARS,
TOBACCO, FRUIT, VEGETABLES AND FEED.
1100 and 1102 J Street.

WM. H. BRADLEY,

(Successor to Barber & Wise.)

Dealer in Hay, Grain & Mill Feed

N. E. COR. ELEVENTH AND J STS.,
Telephone 266. SACRAMENTO.

B. Ruhl

Bookbinder, Paper Ruler and
Blank Book Manufacturer.

Periodicals, Magazines, Music, and all kinds of Binding neatly done at the lowest prices.

No. 409 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

SCHENCK'S HOSE REEL

Patented Dec. 10, 1889.

FOR SALE BY

A. J. MUIR and CROUCH & LYMAN

FIFTH AVENUE SALOON,

1015 Fifth Street, between J and K.

E. DIETERLE, Proprietor.

Philadelphia Lager Beer on draught, five cents a glass. Also, fine Wines, Liquors, Cigars, etc.

THE FINEST IN THE LAND.

D. H. QUINN HATTER,

401 J Street, corner of Fourth.

HATS MADE TO ORDER. Old Hats Renovated to Equal New.

Butchers' Home,

1020 J Street,

Between 10th and 11th, : Sacramento, Cal.

Fine Wines, Liquors and Cigars. Also,

BOCA BEER ON DRAUGHT.

JACOB GRUHLER, Prop'r.

JESSE SLAUGHTER,

Office, No. 1217 Fifth Street.

PLASTERING, WHITEWASHING, CLEANING OF CESSPOOLS, Etc.

Also, CITY SCAVENGER.

Burying of dead animals attended to at short notice.

Don't forget the number—1217 Fifth street, the old stand, where I have been for 25 years.

GOLDEN RULE BAZAAR.

Gents' Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Boots, Shoes

FOR SALE.

ONE NEW PHAETON.

First-class make. Apply

MILLS & HAWK, Insurance Agents and Real Estate Dealers, 301 J Street.

Twelve Million Machines

IN USE.

THE LIGHT RUNNING

DOMESTIC

Sewing Machine

Leads all others. Most Durable, Simplest, Best.

Every Agent claims the machines he sells the best, but talk is cheap. TIME is the only real test of genuine merit. During TWENTY-SIX YEARS of practical use the DOMESTIC has withstood this test. It stands to-day without a peer. Recommended by all White Goods Sewers, Dressmakers, Tailors and Manufacturers. Used by over 4,000 Families in Sacramento City. It is the only Sewing Machine with really Self-Setting Attachments. It costs you nothing to try it before you buy another. Sold on easy installments. Old machines taken in exchange.

Domestic Sewing Machine Co.

A. J. POMMER, Selling Agent,

Northwest corner Ninth and J streets, Sacramento.

American Steam Laundry

NINETEENTH AND I STS.—WHITE LABOR only. Linen polished in the neatest manner. We guarantee satisfaction. All ordinary mending, sewing on buttons, etc., free of charge. Washing called for and delivered to any part of the city. Main Office at Sawtelle's Book Store, 708 and 710 J street. Branch offices at all the Hotels.

Lavenson's.

THE LARGEST AND

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE IN SACRAMENTO.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

GREAT INDUCEMENTS TO BUYERS.

E. LYON & CO.,

Removed to 625 J Street, Sacramento.

O. W. Nordwell

MERCHANT TAILOR AND DRAPER,

218 Bush St.,

SAN FRANCISCO.

My new invoice includes the very LATEST STYLES and inspection is invited as to quality of GOODS, the FIT, and PRICE.

Headquarters for the Bartlett Springs Water on Draught.

THE OFFICE,

1008 Fourth Street, Next to Cal. State Bank

H. D. GAMBLE, Proprietor.

Telephone 199. Office Hours from A. M. to P. M.

RHOADS & TOWNSEND HOUSE

On European Plan.

Cor. Second and J Streets, Sacramento.

ARTHUR MILLER, PROPRIETOR.

REEVES & LONG, UNDERTAKERS,

609 J Street, bet. Sixth and Seventh.

WE KEEP ON HAND A COMPLETE Stock of Coffins and Caskets; also, Shrouds of every description. Orders from city or country receive prompt attention, day or night. EMBALMING done in the best manner; and at reasonable rates.

C. H. Stephenson,

DENTIST,

CORNER SEVENTH AND J. STREETS, OVER LYON'S DRY GOODS STORE.

Notice to Creditors.

ESTATE OF CATHARINE MAHANY, DECEASED. Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Catharine Mahany, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary affidavits or vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to me at my place for the transaction of business of said estate, at 504 J street, up stairs, Sacramento.

Dated May 7, 1890. W. J. KAVANAUGH, Administrator.

JOHNSON, JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Attorneys for Administrator my10—5t

LARGE VALUES IN FURNITURE and CARPETS.

CHAS. M. CAMPBELL,

409 K STREET, SACRAMENTO.

Send for Catalogue.

TENTS, AWNINGS AND WINDOW SHADES.

DAVE'S.

1022 FOURTH STREET,

Next door to Postoffice, SACRAMENTO.

Wheat as a Cosmetic.

Red nose, face, or hands, usually betray need of purgatives, or the free use of the whole meal bread, which is in growing demand all over the Union. The most skilful and best informed toilet specialists of the cities make the coarse, whole meal food an indispensable part of their diet, as it aids the work of beauty so effectually. It makes fine flesh, it feeds the nerve, and teeth that have begun to crumble and decay renew themselves on this food with sound bone and enamel.

There is no need to write to me for this bread. It is to be had wherever one can grind good wheat between coarse stones without bolting it, and bake such flour cakes mixed with milk and water, in a very hot oven until thoroughly brown. That is all. Such was the bread the patriarchs ate when they lived hundreds of years. It is good solely because it contains the elements needed for the body, in the best and most eatable shape. It is notable when living on sound food, how quickly the hair and nails grow, and how the former renews its gloss.

I have lately heard, on the testimony of a very creditable and conservative medical man, of hair which has turned gray, regaining its color with health.—N. Y. Herald.

Men as Patients.

A trained nurse tells the New York Press: "It was a trying thing for me to take my first male patient, but I am quite used to them now. Men are just like babies when they are sick. They are helpless, fretful, playful by turns, just like infants. My first case was a gentleman whose one fault was that he would swear. I stood it for a day, and then I told the doctor that I had not been used to that sort of thing. The doctor said: 'Why, you must take that just as you would a sponge to sap up blood if I was performing a surgical operation. It is part of the business. Simply ignore it.'

The Twin Bed.

In many summer cottages the double bedstead has been superseded by the "twin bed." This is an arrangement of two single beds, side by side, varying in width each from three feet to three feet six inches, and ornamented with a continuous pattern of carving, which is fully seen when the two beds are together. This is an English fashion which is excellent, except for the fact that it takes up more room.—N. Y. Tribune.

To Help Tired Saleswomen.

At a recent meeting in a New York drawing-room, it is said an organization of ladies was formed, to do at least one practical thing to help the tired saleswomen. Those present agreed not to shop on Saturday afternoons, and not after half past five other days. Many other women have joined in this excellent movement.

AN OLD MAID'S SOLILOQUY.

"To take or not to take it, is the question—Whether it is better to end this earthly career A spinster—braving the smiles of those who would insist That lack of lovers caused my lonely state,— Or take the remedies my sisters take, And see my eyes grow bright as tho' I bathed In the immortal fount De Leon sought In vain in Florida's peaceful shades. I oft have heard my married sisters say That good old Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription Would bring back color to a faded cheek— Restore the health of one who fain would die To rid herself of all the pain she feels."

The aforesaid spinster took the remedy—and forthwith took a husband also, having regained her health and blooming beauty. Thousands of women owe their fresh, blooming countenances to the restorative effects of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb.

Dr. PIERCE'S PELLETS

regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels. They are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. One a Dose. Sold by druggists. 25 cents a vial.

Arabic Proverbs and Expressions.

Need develops the mind.
 Silence is often an answer.
 The best visits are the shortest.
 Take the thief before he takes you.
 Every man leaps over a low wall.
 Borrowed dresses give no warmth.
 Sipping may happen even in July.
 Ride not the saddle of thy neighbor.
 Sucking becomes bitterness by meaning.
 Sometimes the tongue cuts off the head.
 He builds a minaret and destroys a city.
 Time will teach him that has no teacher.
 Though the will be idle, yet be not you idle.
 When there are many captains the ship sinks.
 To be weaned is a difficult task for an adult.
 Sciences are locks, and inquiry the key to them.
 The owner of the house knows best what is in it.
 In adversity the real principles of men appear.
 He has sold the vineyard and bought a wine-press.
 The carpenters have sinned, and the tailors are hung.
 He is warm towards his friend only to burn him.
 If your friend be honey, do not eat him altogether.
 The best companions, when you sit, are good books.
 The mule went to ask horns and returned without ears.
 I like the head of a dog better than the tail of a lion.
 He plucks out the tooth of the dog and barks himself.
 An hour's patience will procure a long period of rest.
 The fig-tree looking on the fig-tree will be made fruitful.
 He that sleeps without supper gets up without debt.
 He who makes himself brave, the fools will scrape him.
 When things tire you at the head, take them by the tail.
 Shave your own chin when the beard of your son is grown.
 Close the window through which an ill wind enters to you.
 The best friends are those who stimulate each other to good.
 The mother of the dumb knows the language of the dumb.
 He was absent two years and came back with two yellow boots.

CELEBRATED
 WEINER LAGER BEER
 CAPITAL BREWERY

LOUIS NICOLAUS,
 Corner Twelfth and I Streets
 SACRAMENTO.

Take a Ride on the Riverside Road
 AND BE SURE AND STOP AT
 BILLY GROENVELD'S
 Sutterville House

And get a glass of COOL BEER. Or if you want a bottle of CHAMPAGNE Billy has it on hand, or anything else you may wish for in his line.

Always a FINE LUNCH on the Counter.
 M. T. GROENVELD, Proprietor.

CALL AT 1118 J STREET.

Fred Futterer's Saloon

And Get a Glass of Cool Beer.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars always on hand.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

FRED FUTTERER, 1118 J Street.

Agent for the Celebrated W. J. LEMP'S ST. LOUIS LAGER BEER

WISSEMAN'S SALOON,

Klebetz & Green's Old Stand,

1020 Fourth St., bet. J and K, Sacramento.

GEO. WISSEMAN, PROPRIETOR.

Families and Saloons supplied by bottle or keg.

BOHEMIA PILSENER.

BAVARIA BEER.

CHANGED HANDS.

SACRAMENTO EXCHANGE

(Formerly Wm. Gamble's.)

1012 SEVENTH STREET.

Fine Wines. All the celebrated brands of Liquors and Cigars.
 ROBERT ALLEN,
 Formerly of Agricultural Park.

THE MATHUSHEK UPRIGHT

First Premium at State Fair; also Silver Medal at Mechanics' Fair, San Francisco.

The only Upright Piano which will remain permanently up to the Concert Pitch.

A Card from John F. Cooper.

TO THE PUBLIC—A CAUTION—BEWARE OF IMITATIONS—ALSO BOGUS PIANOS BRANDED "Mathushek." It is a well known fact that all articles of good reputation are imitated by disappointed competitors, and offered by irresponsible parties as genuine. In the last few years several parties have stenciled the name Mathushek on worthless wood wrest plank pianos, cheaply made, thereby hoping to palm off a few pianos on the well earned reputation of THE MATHUSHEK PIANO MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, which firm incorporated with a large capital in 1866, and whose pianos are made strictly first-class in every respect, and so acknowledged by the best musicians everywhere. Among the many distinctive features of their pianos over any other piano bearing the same or similar name is the bushing of the tuning pins into a thick, solid iron wrest plank. Their pianos have been sold by me for the past twenty years. Respectfully,
 JOHN F. COOPER.

Endorsement of Merit:

From the Eminent Pianist, Shonert.

SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1890.

JOHN F. COOPER—Dear Sir: I had occasion this evening, at the grand concert of the great cornetist, Jules Levy, in the Metropolitan Theater, to try and to carefully test your Mathushek Piano, and I am happy to be able to congratulate you upon the actual high state of perfection these splendid pianos have reached.

EDWIN M. SHONERT.

The following is a letter from Mrs. Geo. Stoneman, wife of Hon. Geo. Stoneman, ex-Governor of the State of California:

GRAND AVENUE, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, August 13, 1889.

MR. COOPER: Your letter received this morning, and I am happy to oblige you by testifying to the excellence of the Mathushek Grand sold me some four years ago. It has been in constant use, and I think, instead of deteriorating and becoming thin, it has softened and deepened in tone. It required a little tuning through the first year. I have frequently recommended the piano, and consider that its merits are equal to those of the best in the United States.

The singing quality of this piano is particularly suited to vocalists, and while agreeable in small room, it can, by its brilliancy and power, fill a large auditorium effectively.

Yours, etc.

MRS. GEO. STONEMAN.

I take pleasure in certifying to the excellence of "The Mathushek Piano." I can cheerfully and truthfully recommend it in any of its various styles as a first-class instrument, the equal of any and the superior of most in the qualities necessary to the accompaniment of the voice; and I believe it to be more than any other suited to withstand the effects of our California climate. We use it exclusively at our rehearsals and concerts.

W. H. KINROSS, Musical Director McNeill Club.

JOHN F. COOPER

SOLE MANUFACTURERS' AGENT.

631 J STREET, Sacramento, Cal.

The Mathushek!

H. WACHHORST Leading Jeweler of Sacramento

SIGN OF THE TOWN CLOCK,

NO. 315 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

J. A. MOYNIHAN.

G. E. MOYNIHAN.

Moynihan's

418 J Street.

Our LATEST FLAVORS in Ice Cream Soda

TRY OUR

VIOLET! NADJY! BOUQUET!

THE ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSE IN THE CITY. WE DO OUR OWN MANUFACTURING

Willis & Ray APOTHECARIES

212 J ST. and 901 K ST.

Two Stores, Sacramento, Cal.

W. D. Comstock, 501--507 K, cor. Fifth
 FURNITURE and BEDDING.

On Exhibition, THE LARGEST AND BEST SELECTED STOCK

FAIR DEALING!

LOW PRICES!

Klune & Floberg, WATCHMAKERS and JEWELERS

Agents for Rockford Watch Co.
 NO. 428 J STREET, SACRAMENTO.

THEMIS

Vol. II.

SACRAMENTO: SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1890.

No. 21.

THEMIS: published weekly, by A. J. Johnston & Co. Publication Office, 410 J Street. Subscription—One year, by mail, $3 00; six months, by mail, $1 50, in advance; per month, by carrier, 25 cents. (Entered at the Post Office at Sacramento as second-class matter.)

WINFIELD J. DAVIS AND W. A. ANDERSON, Editors.
A. J. JOHNSTON, Managing Editor.

The next Legislature will make a new apportionment of Senators and Assemblymen for this State. At the last apportionment, under the census of 1880, Sacramento county had a population of 34,390, and the county was only allowed one Senator and three Assemblymen. At the time there should have been a greater representation accorded us, but our representatives in the Legislature seemed powerless to secure the same. This coming Legislature will apportion the representatives on the basis of the census of 1890, which shows a population for the county of over 40,000. While this does not show the increase we expected, it still places Sacramento as a third-class county, under the County Government Act. We are entitled to two Senators, or an increase in Assemblymen. This representation can only be secured, however, by energetic work on the part of those whom we send to the Assembly this year. There is nothing more important than a full and active delegation in the Legislature for this county. Many are under the impression that anybody is good enough to send to the Legislature. There never was a graver error. This year particularly, Sacramento stands in need of the very ablest representatives in the halls of legislation—men of influence, power and first order of ability are required in order to secure a just and proper apportionment for the respective branches of the Legislature for the ensuing ten years, until the next national census. In matters of this nature it is not everybody that can be of service. In addition to the matters of representation in the future, there are other vital and important matters relating to the welfare of Sacramento that demands the highest order of intelligence, as well as legislative ability. Should the Supreme Court hold that our charter can be amended without controvening any provisions of the Constitution, then there are matters of local self-government that demand the greatest consideration and most careful judgment. For this, only men trained and educated in science of government and political economy should be sent to represent us in the Legislature. It is all nonsense to say that any plain ordinary business man would make a proper representative. These are matters that demand a careful training and many things that can only be accomplished by skill and experience in legislative bodies. The people of Sacramento should make no mistake this year in sending representatives to the Legislature. There is very much at stake. In regard to the question of our best interests, which ever political party succeeds in getting control of the Legislature, we should send our best men to represent us. Democrats and Republicans alike are concerned in our local welfare, and in securing a proper apportionment of Senators and Assemblymen.

The people of this city have, by their votes, determined to issue bonds to the amount of $100,000 for the improvement of the streets. The movement is right, for if there is any city on the globe that needs improved streets it is Sacramento. We want, however, to say to the people here, see that this money is properly expended upon our streets. It has been and we anticipate much of the public fund will be wasted. Admittedly the affairs of this city are being run by incompetent men, and we sincerely say we are not disposed to trust them with the disbursement of the sum this people pay annually into the city treasury. Now this has come to be a matter of absolute business. The people have said they are willing to improve the streets of Sacramento, and that they are willing to contribute $100,000 for that purpose. The people are right, but the next thing they will demand will be that this money will be properly expended, and for the public benefit. We suggest that in view of events that have happened in the recent past, and of the distrust of the capacity for business management of the Board of Trustees, the citizens who are deeply concerned in the payment of this tax, shall personally see that advantage is properly made of it.

